

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

The Cabinet. of the principal officer in each of the Executive Departments upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices, and he shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States, except in cases of impeachment.¹ Constitution, Art. II, sec. 2.

placed by the Constitution in the hands of the President. Street v. U. S., 24 Ct. Cls., 230; 25, ibid, 515, 113, U. S., 299. See, also, the chapter entitled THE EMPLOYMENT OF MILITARY FORCE.

Power to establish rules and regulations.—The power of the Executive to establish rules and regulations for the government of the Army is undoubted; * * * The power to establish implies, necessarily, the power to modify or repeal, or to create anew. U. S. v. Eliason, 16 Pet., 291, 301. The Army Regulations, when sanctioned by the President, has the force of law because it is done by him by the authority of law. U. S. v. Freeman, 3 How., 556, 567.

May form military governments in occupied territory.—As an incident of the exercise of belligerent rights, the President may form military and civil governments in the territory of the enemy occupied by the armies of the United States. Cross v. Harrison, 16 How., 164, 190, 193. The Grapeshot, 19 Wall., 129, 132. He may also institute temporary governments within insurgent districts occupied by the national forces. Texas v. White, 7 Wall., 700, 730.

May establish courts in occupied territory—Limitation.—The courts established or sanctioned in Mexico, during the war, by the commanders of the United States forces, were nothing more than the agents of the military power, to assist it in preserving order in the conquered territory, and to protect the inhabitants in their persons and property, while it was occupied by the American armies. They were subject to the military power, and their decisions were under its control whenever the commanding officer thought proper to interfere. Neither the President nor any military officer can establish a court in a conquered country, and authorize it to decide upon the rights of the United States, or of individuals in prize cases, nor to administer the laws of nations. Jecker v. Montgomery, 13 How., 498, 515. The Grapeshot, 9 Wall., 129, 132.

For authority to employ secret agents in time of war, see Totten v. U. S., 92 U. S., 105, 107. For powers and duties of the Executive in connection with the Army, the Militia, and the Army Regulations, etc., see the chapters so entitled.

The constitutional power of the President to command the Army and Navy, and of Congress "to make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces" are distinct; the President can not, by military orders, evade the legislative regulations; Congress can not, by rules and regulations, impair the authority of the President as Commander in Chief. Swaim v. U. S., 28 Ct. Cls., 173. When a law is passed for the regulation of the Army, which does not impair the efficiency of the President as Commander in Chief, he becomes, as to that law, an executive officer, and is limited in the discharge of his duties by the statute. McBlair v. U. S., 19 ibid., 528.

Delivery and acceptance.—The pardon is a private though official act. It is official in that it is the act of the Executive; it is private in that it is delivered to the individual and not to the court. It must be pleaded, or brought officially to the knowledge of the court, in order that the court may give it effect in any given case. There is nothing peculiar in it to distinguish it from other acts. It is a deed to the validity of which delivery is essential, and the delivery is not complete without acceptance. It may be rejected by the person to whom it is tendered, and, if rejected, there is no power in the court to force it upon the individual. U. S. v. Wilson, 7 Pet., 150.

Effects.—Subject to exceptions therein provided, a pardon by the President restores to its recipient all rights of property lost by the offense pardoned, unless the property has, by judicial process, become vested in other persons. Osborn v. U. S., 91 U. S., 474; V Opin. Att. Gen., 532.

Constitution,

Power to mitigate and commute.—The President may, by an exercise of the pardoning power, mitigate or commute a punishment imposed by any court of the United States. Ex parte Wells, 18 How., 307; In re Ross, 140 U. S., 453. In mitigating the sentence of a naval court-martial the President may substitute a suspension for a term of years without pay for an absolute dismissal from the service; as suspension is but an inferior degree of the same punishment. I Opin. Att. Gen., 433.

Conditional pardons.—The language of the Constitution is such that the power of the President to pardon conditionally is not one of inference, but is conferred in terms, the language being "to grant reprieves and pardons," which includes absolute as well as conditional pardons. Under this power the President can grant a conditional pardon to a person under sentence of death, offering to commute that punishment into an imprisonment for life. If this is accepted by the convict he has no right to contend that the pardon is absolute and the condition of it void. Ex parte Wells, 18 How., 307; Osborn v. U. S., 91 U. S., 474; U. S. v. Wilson, 7 Pet., 150. When a pardon is granted with conditions annexed the conditions must be performed before the pardon is of any effect. Waring v. U. S., 7 Ct. Cls., 501. One who claims the benefit of a pardon must be held to strict compliance with its conditions. Haym v. U. S., 7 Ct. Cls., 443; Scott v. U. S., 8 ibid., 457. The condition annexed to a pardon must not be impossible, unusual, or illegal; but it may, with the consent of the prisoner, be any punishment recognized by the statutes, or by the common law as enforced by the State. Lee v. Murphy, 22 Grat. (Va.), 789.

Time of exercise.—The President of the United States has the conditional power to pardon as well before trial and conviction as afterwards; but it is a power only to be exercised with reserve and for exceptional considerations. VI Opin. Att. Gen., 20; 1 ibid., 341; 2 ibid., 275; 5 ibid., 687; Ex parte Garland, 4 Wall., 333; Dominick v. Davidson, 44 Ga., 457; 5 Blair v. Com., 25 Grat. (Va.), 850. It is competent for the President to grant a pardon after the expiration of the term of sentence, thereby relieving from consequential disabilities. Stetler's Case, 1 Phil., IX, 38; Com. v. Bush, 2 Duv. (Ky.), 264.

Limitation upon the pardoning power.—The Constitution gives to Congress the power to dispose of the public property and to the President only the power to pardon crimes; and the President, having no title to forfeited property, can not restore it, though he may pardon the offense which caused the forfeiture. Property confiscated by judgment to the United States is beyond the reach of executive clemency and is absolutely national property. Knote v. U. S., 10 Ct. Cls., 397, 406; U. S. v. Six Lots of Ground, 1 Woods, 234; Osborn v. U. S., 91 U. S., 474, 477.

Pleading.—A pardon is a deed, to the validity of which delivery is essential, and delivery is not complete without acceptance. * * * The pardon may possibly apply to a different person or to a different crime. It may be absolute or conditional. It may be controverted by the prosecutor and must be expounded by the court. These circumstances combine to show that this, like any other deed, ought to be brought before the court by plea, motion, or otherwise. U. S. v. Wilson, 7 Pet., 150, 161; Ex parte Reno, 66 Mo., 266. The recital of a specific, distinct offense, in a pardon by the President, limits its operation to that offense, and such pardon does not embrace any other offense for which separate penalties and punishments are provided. Ex parte Weimer, 8 Biss., C. Ct., 321. The conviction having been of two offenses, and the pardon reciting only one, the pardon operates upon the offense recited. State v. Foley, 15 Nev., 64.

Officers of the United States.—Any person occupying a position under the Federal Government, conferred upon him by a legally authorized election or appointment, whose duties consist in the exercise of important public powers and trusts, as a part of the regular administration of the Government, such duties being continuing and permanent, not occasional or temporary, and prescribed by the Government or by a on the Vice-President, and the Congress may by law provide for the case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of the President and Vice-President, declaring what officer shall then act as President, and such officer shall act accordingly, until the disability be removed, or a President shall be elected. Constitution, Art. II, sec. 1, par. 6.

Provision for Acting President should vacancy occur in offices of President and Vice-President
Jan. 19, 1886, s.
1, v. 24, p. 1.

5. In case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the President and Vice-President of the United States, the Secretary of State, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation, or inability, then the Secretary of the Treasury, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation, or inability, then the Secretary of War, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation, or inability, then the Attorney-General, or if there be none, or in case of his superior officer, and whose compensation is paid out of the Treasury, is an officer of the United States. U. S. v. Hartwell, 6 Wallace, 385; U. S. v. Germaine, 99 U. S., 508; U. S. v. Maurice, 2 Brock., 103. Unless one in the service of the United States holds his office by virtue of an appointment made by one of the courts of justice or heads of departments authorized by law to make such appointment, he is not, strictly speaking, an officer of the United States. U. S. v. Mouat, 124 U. S., 303; U. S. v. Hendee, 124 U. S., 309; U. S. v. Smith, 124 U. S., 525. Noncommissioned officers are not officers in the sense in which the latter term is generally used. Babbitt v. U. S., 16 Ct. Cls., 202.

Appointments to office.—Appointments provided for by act of Congress, merely in general terms, must be made by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. VI Opin. Att. Gen., 1. When a person has been nominated to an office by the President, confirmed by the Senate, and his commission has been signed by the President, and the seal of the United States affixed thereto, his appointment to that office is complete. Congress may provide * * * that certain acts shall be done by the appointee before he shall enter on the possession of the office under the appointment. These acts then become conditions precedent to the complete investiture of the office; but they are to be performed by the appointee, not by the Executive; all that the Executive can do to invest the person with his office has been completed when the commission has been signed and sealed, and when the person has performed the required condition, his title to enter on the possession of the office is also complete. U. S. v. Le Baron, 19 How., 73, 78; U. S. v. Stewart, ibid., 79; Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch, 137.

Powers of officers.—All the officers of the Government, from the highest to the lowest, are but agents with delegated powers, and if they act beyond the scope of their delegated powers their acts do not bind the principal. U. S. v. Maxwell Grant, 21 Fed. Rep., 19. An officer can only bind the Government by acts which come within a just exercise of his official power. Hunter v. U. S., 5 Pet., 173, 178; The Floyd Acceptances, 7 Wall., 666; State v. Hastings, 12 Wis., 596. It is a question of law for the court whether an act is a part of the official duty of a public officer. U. S. v. Buchanan, 8 How., 83. Every public officer is required to perform all duties which are strictly official, although they may be required by laws passed after he comes into office, and may be cumulative upon his original duties, and although his compensation therefor be wholly inadequate. In such case he must look to the bounty of Congress for any additional reward. Andrews v. U. S., 2 Story, 202. An officer is bound to use that care and diligence in the discharge of his duties that a conscientious and prudent man, acting under a just sense of his obligations, would exercise under the circumstances of a particular case, and if he fails and neglects to do so he is culpable. U. S. v. Baldrige, 11 Fed. Rep., 552.

Presumptions as to official acts.—The acts of an officer to whom a public duty is assigned, within the sphere of that duty, are prima facie within his power. U. S. v. Arredondo, 6 Pet., 691; U. S. v. Clarke, 8 ibid., 436, 452; Percheman v. U. S., 7 ibid., 51; Delassus v. U. S.; 9 ibid., 117, 134; Strother v. Lucas, 12 ibid., 410, 438; U. S. v.

Eligibility.
Sec. 2, ibid.

6. The preceding section shall only be held to describe and apply to such officers as shall have been appointed by the advice and consent of the Senate to the offices therein named, and such as are eligible to the office of President under the Constitution, and not under impeachment by the House of Representatives of the United States at the time the powers and duties of the office shall devolve upon them respectively.¹ Section 2, ibid.

power.

7. He shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, judges of the Supreme Court, and all other officers of the United States, whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by law; but the Congress may by law vest the appointment of such inferior officers, as they think proper, in the President alone, in the courts of law, or in the heads of Departments.² Constitution, Art. II, sec. 2, par. 2.

power.

8. The President shall have power to fill up all vacancies that may happen during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session. Ibid., par. 3.

pointments.

9. The President is authorized to fill all vacancies which may happen during the recess of the Senate by reason of death, or resignation, or expiration of term of office, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session thereafter, and if no appointment, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, is made to an office so vacant or temporarily filled during such next session of the Senate, the office shall remain in abeyance,

² Public office.—An office is a public station, or employment, conferred by the appointment of Government. The term embraces the ideas of tenure, emolument, and duties. * * * The duties are continuing and permanent, not occasional and transitory, and are defined by rules prescribed by Government and not by contract. * * * A Government office is different from a Government contract. The latter, from its nature, is necessarily limited in its duration and specific in its objects. The terms agreed upon define the rights and obligations of both parties, and neither may depart from them without the assent of the other. U. S. v. Hartwell, 6 Wall., 385, 394; U. S. v. Maurice, 2 Brockenbrough, 103. A public officer is the incumbent of an office "who exercises continuously, and as a part of the regular and permanent administration of the Government, its public powers, trusts, and duties." Sheboygan Co. v. Parker, 3 Wall., 93, 96. Unless a person in the service of the Government holds his place by virtue of an appointment by the President, or of one of the courts of justice or heads of Departments authorized by law to make such an appointment, he is not, strictly speaking, an officer of the United States. U. S. v. Monat, 124 U. S., 303, 307; U. S. v. Germaine, 99 U. S., 508, 510.

20. The head of each Department is authorized to prescribe regulations, not inconsistent with law, for the government of his Department, the conduct of its officers and clerks, the distribution and performance of its business, and the custody, use, and preservation of the records, papers, and property appertaining to it.²

partments in relation to subjects which appertain to their respective duties. Wilcox

v. Jackson, 13 Pet., 498, 513; Wolsey v. Chapman, 101 U. S., 755. It is the general theory of departmental administration that the heads of the Executive Departments are the executors of the will of the President. X Opin. Att. Gen., 527. As a general rule the direction of the President is to be presumed in all instructions and orders issuing from the competent Department. VII id., 453. Official instructions issued by the heads of the several Executive Departments, civil and military, within their respective jurisdictions, are valid and lawful, without containing express reference to the direction of the President. VII id., 453. The duties of the heads of the several Executive Departments are derived, in part, from the Constitution, and are, in part, imposed by statute. In the execution of the former they act as the representatives of the President, to whom they are responsible for their correct performance. For duties imposed by statute their responsibility is to the legislature, and they are controlled in all matters relating to performance by such statutory rules and regulations as Congress may see fit to impose. (See Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cr., 137, and par. 1, note 1.)

The executive power is vested in a President, and so far as his powers are derived from the Constitution he is beyond the reach of any other Department, except in the mode prescribed by the Constitution through the impeaching power, but it by no means follows that every officer in every branch of that Department is under the exclusive direction of the President. * * * There are certain political duties imposed upon many officers in the Executive Department the discharge of which is under the direction of the President, but it would be an alarming doctrine that Congress can not impose upon any executive officer any duty they may think

Chief clerks to distribute duties, etc.
 Aug. 26, 1842, c. 202, s. 13, v. 5, p. 525.
 Sec. 174, R. S. 22. Each chief clerk shall take care, from time to time, that the duties of the other clerks are distributed with equality and uniformity, according to the nature of the case. He shall revise such distribution from time to time, for the purpose of correcting any tendency to undue accumulation or reduction of duties, whether arising from individual negligence or incapacity, or from increase or diminution of particular kinds of business. And he shall report monthly to his superior officer any existing defect that he may be aware of in the arrangement or dispatch of business.

 Sec. 175, R. S. 23. Each head of a Department, chief of a Bureau, or other superior officer, shall, upon receiving each monthly report of his chief clerk, rendered pursuant to the preceding section, examine the facts stated therein, and take such measures, in the exercise of the powers conferred upon him by law, as may be necessary and proper to amend any existing defects in the arrangement or dispatch of business disclosed by such report.

 Sec. 176, R. S. 24. The disbursing clerks authorized by law in the several Departments shall be appointed by the heads of the respective Departments, from clerks of the fourth class; and shall each give a bond to the United States for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office according to law in such amount as shall be directed by the Secretary of the Treasury, and with sureties to the satisfaction of the Solicitor of the Treasury; and shall from time to time renew, strengthen, and increase his official bond, as the Secretary of the Treasury may direct. Each disbursing clerk, except the disbursing clerk of the Treasury Department, must, when directed so to do by the head of the Department, superintend the building occupied by his Department. Each disbursing clerk is entitled to receive, in compensation for his services in disbursing, such sum in addition to his salary as a clerk of the fourth class as shall make his whole annual compensation two thousand dollars a year.

Sec. 193, E. S.

59. The head of each Department shall make an annual report to Congress, giving a detailed statement of the manner in which the contingent fund for his Department, and for the bureaus and offices therein, has been expended, giving the names of every person to whom any portion thereof has been paid; and if for anything furnished, the quantity and price; and if for any service rendered, the nature of such service, and the time employed, and the particular occasion or cause, in brief, that rendered such service necessary; and the amount of all former appropriations in each case on hand, either in the Treasury or in the hands of any disbursing officer or agent. And he shall require of the disbursing officers, acting under his direction and authority, the return of precise and analytical statements and receipts of all the moneys which may have been from time to time during the next preceding year expended by them, and shall communicate the results of such returns and the sums total, annually, to Congress.

of the lawmaking power to require that purchases could only be made after advertisement of small articles which may occasionally be needed, and where in many cases the cost of advertising itself would exceed the value of the article purchased. It can not be said that such cases are governed by the emergency provision in the statute, for there may be, and are, many instances where the officer could not truthfully certify that immediate delivery was necessary. (3 Dig. 2nd Compt. Dec., p. 288.)

The act of March 2, 1861 (sec. 3709, R. S.), while requiring such advertisement, as the general rule invests the officer charged with the duty of procuring supplies or services with a discretion to dispense with advertising, if the exigencies of the public service require immediate delivery or performance. It is too well settled to admit of dispute at this day that, where there is a discretion of this kind conferred on an officer or board of officers, and a contract is made in which they have exercised that discretion, the validity of the contract can not be made to depend on the degree of wisdom or skill which may have accompanied its exercise. U. S. v. Speed, 8 Wall., 77, 83; Childs v. U. S., 4 Ct. Cls., 176; Mason v. U. S., 4 Ct. Cls., 495; Wentworth v. U. S., 5 Ct. Cls., 302. See, also, III Compt. Dec., 175, 314, 470; II ibid., 373, 632.

Section 3709, Revised Statutes, provides, generally, that the making of public contracts for supplies, etc., shall be preceded by an advertising for proposals "when the public exigencies do not require the immediate delivery of the articles or performance of the service." Exigencies growing out of a state of war, or hostilities with Indians, were probably mainly had in view, and it is exigencies of this class which have been considered in the adjudged cases in the Supreme Court and Court of Claims. (a) It is clear, however, that other exigencies may exist requiring that contracts or purchases be made at once or without the delay incident to advertising for proposals. Thus a loss of stores, structures, etc., on hand, caused by an actus Dei or vis major, as fire, storm, freshet, or a sudden riot or violent disorder; or a loss of supplies occasioned by the neglect of military subordinates in charge; or a failure of a contractor to fulfill a contract for supplies, transportation, or other service, might properly be regarded as constituting an "exigency" under the statute, if of such magnitude or injurious consequence to the Army as to necessitate an immediate making good of the deficiency. (b) The general rule, however, of the statute, in requiring a notice and invitation to the public as a preliminary to the awarding of a contract, is founded upon a sound and well-considered public policy, and exceptions thereto, especially in time of peace, should be recognized as admissible only where, if the rule were strictly complied with, the public interests would manifestly be most seriously prejudiced. (c)

^c As to the authority who is to decide whether there exists such an exigency as is contemplated by the statute, the Supreme Court, in the United States v. Speed, 8 Wallace, 83, has held that it is "the officer charged with the duty of procuring supplies or services who is invested with this discretion." This description is rather general, nor is the term "the purchasing officer," by which the Court of Claims explains it, in Thompson v. United States, 9 Ct. Cls., 196, a much more precise definition. It is clear, however, that a subordinate officer charged with the duty of being the immediate representative of the United States in a contract or purchase should not, in general, venture to dispense with advertising, on the theory of the existence of a public exigency, in the absence of instructions or orders from a proper superior. Nor, on the other hand, will a superior officer, in entering into a contract for his command or branch of the service, properly assume that an "exigency" exists authorizing him to dispense with the statutory forms, when the period is time of peace and no imperative necessity exists for the immediate delivery of the supplies or performance of the service proposed to be contracted for. It is to be noted that the cases both of Speed and Thompson related to contracts entered into during the late war. In the instructive opinions of the Attorney-General on the "Fifteen per cent contracts," of April 27 and May 3, 1877 (XV Opins., 235, 253), it is held that the "exigency" contemplated by the statute can be one of time only, and that it can be regarded as existing only where an immediate delivery or performance is required by a public necessity.

Compelling testimony.

Feb. 14, 1871, c. 51, s. 1, v. 16, p. 412.

Sec. 186, R. S.

111. Witnesses subpœnaed pursuant to the preceding section shall be allowed the same compensation as is allowed witnesses in the courts of the United States.

112. If any witness, after being duly served with such subpœna, neglects or refuses to appear, or, appearing, refuses to testify, the judge of the district in which the subpœna issued may proceed, upon proper process, to enforce obedience to the subpœna, or to punish the disobedience, in like manner as any court of the United States may do in case of process of subpœna ad testificandum issued by such court.

Professional assistance; how obtained.

Feb. 14, 1871, c. 51, s. 3, v. 16, p. 412.

Sec. 187, R. S.

113. Whenever any head of a Department or Bureau having made application pursuant to section one hundred and eighty-four, for a subpœna to procure the attendance of a witness to be examined, is of opinion that the interests of the United States require the attendance of counsel at the examination, or require legal investigation of any claim pending in his Department or Bureau, he shall give notice thereof to the Attorney-General, and of all facts necessary to enable the Attorney-General to furnish proper professional service in attending such examination, or making such investigation, and it shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to provide for such service.

Evidence to be furnished by the Departments in suits pending in the Court of Claims.

114. In all suits brought against the United States in the Court of Claims founded upon any contract, agreement, or transaction with any Department, or any Bureau, officer, 119. General Commanding the Army, etc., may be designated.

120. Chief clerk may sign requisitions, etc., during illness or absence of Secretary.

Par.

121. Absence of head of bureau.

Commanding General of the Army, etc., may be designated by President to perform duties of Secretary of War.

Aug. 5, 1882, v. 22, p. 238.

119. The President may authorize and direct the Commanding General of the Army or the chief of any military bureau of the War Department to perform the duties of the Secretary of War under the provisions of section one hundred and seventy-nine of the Revised Statutes, and section twelve hundred and twenty-two of the Revised Statutes shall not be held or taken to apply to the officer so designated by reason of his temporarily performing such duties. Act of August 5, 1882 (22 Stat. L., 238).

Secretary of War may authorize chief clerk to sign requisitions, etc., in his absence.

Mar. 4, 1874, v. 18, p. 19.

120. When, from illness or other cause, the Secretary of War is temporarily absent from the War Department, he may authorize the chief clerk of the Department to sign requisitions upon the Treasury Department, and other papers requiring the signature of said Secretary; the same, when signed by the chief clerk during such temporary absence, to be of the same force and effect as if signed by the Secretary of War himself.¹ Act of March 4, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 19).

Designation of officer to act as chief of bureau.

Feb. 25, 1877, v. 19, p. 242.

Sec. 1132, R.S.

121. During the absence of the Quartermaster-General, or the chief of any military bureau of the War Department, the President is authorized to empower some officer of the department or corps whose chief is absent to take charge thereof, and to perform the duties of Quartermaster-General, or chief of department or corps, as the case may be, during such absence.² Act of February 25, 1877 (19 Stat. L., 242).

Collecting flags, etc.

Apr. 18, 1814,
c. 78, s. 1, v. 3, p.
133.

Sec. 218, R. S.

124. The Secretary of War shall from time to time cause to be collected and transmitted to him, at the seat of government, all such flags, standards, and colors as are taken by the Army from the enemies of the United States.

Purchase and
supplies.

Mar. 3, 1813, c.
48, s. 5, v. 2, p.
817.

Sec. 219, R. S.

125. The Secretary of War shall from time to time define and prescribe the kinds as well as the amount of supplies to be purchased by the Subsistence and Quartermaster departments of the Army, and the duties and powers thereof respecting such purchases; and shall prescribe general regulations for the transportation of the articles of supply from the places of purchase to the several armies, garrisons, posts, and recruiting places, for the safe-keeping of such articles, and for the distribution of an adequate and timely supply of the same to the regimental quartermasters, and to such other officers as may by virtue of such regulations be intrusted with the same; and shall fix and make reasonable allowances for the store rent and storage necessary for the safe-keeping of all military stores and supplies.

Transportation of troops, etc.

Jan. 31, 1862, c.
15, s. 4, v. 12, p.
334.

Sec. 220, R. S.

126. The transportation of troops, munitions of war, equipments, military property, and stores, throughout the United States, shall be under the immediate control and supervision of the Secretary of War and such agents as he may appoint.

Construction
telegraph, etc.

June 20, 1878, v.
20, p. 219.

127. That the construction of new lines of telegraph shall be under the supervision and direction of the several military commanders, subject to the approval of the Secretary of War.¹ Act of June 20, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 219).

minister oaths.

Mar. 3, 1865, c.
79, s. 25, v. 13, p.
491.

Sec. 225, R. S.

128. The Secretary of War is authorized to detail one or more of the employees of the War Department for the purpose of administering the oaths required by law in the settlement of officers' accounts for clothing, camp and garrison equipage, quartermaster's stores, and ordnance, which oaths shall be administered without expense to the parties taking them.

¹The act of October 1, 1890, provides that "the civilian duties now performed by the Signal Corps of the Army shall hereafter devolve upon a bureau, which, on or after July first, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, shall be established in the Department of Agriculture, and the Signal Corps of the Army shall remain a part of the military establishment, under the direction of the Secretary of War, and all estimates for its support shall be included with other estimates for the support of the military establishment." Vol. 26, Stat. L., ch. 1266, p. 653. This statute operates to repeal so much of sections 221, 222, and 223 of the Revised Statutes as imposed duties upon the Secretary of War and the Chief Signal Officer in connection with the observation and report of storms, leaving under their direction such duties in connection with the construction and repair of military telegraph lines as were imposed by the acts of March 3, 1875, 18 Stat. L., p. 388, and June 20, 1878, 20 Stat. L., p. 219. See chapter entitled THE SIGNAL DEPARTMENT, post.

² The strength and composition of the clerical force in the War Department and its several bureaus and offices is now fixed and established in the annual acts of appropriation.

The following clerical force in the Secretary's office is authorized by the act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat., 988): One "chief clerk, including five hundred dollars as assistant in military park and insular affairs, three thousand dollars; clerk to the chief clerk, two thousand one hundred dollars; clerk to the Secretary, two thousand two hundred and fifty dollars; clerk to the Assistant Secretary, two thousand one hundred dollars; stenographer, one thousand eight hundred dollars; disbursing clerk, two thousand dollars; four chiefs of division, at two thousand dollars each; superintendent of buildings, outside of State, War, and Navy Department building, in addition to compensation as chief of division, five hundred dollars; appointment clerk, two thousand dollars; librarian, one thousand eight hundred dollars; four clerks of class four; five clerks of class three; ten clerks of class two; eleven clerks of class one; four clerks, at one thousand dollars each; carpenter, one thousand dollars; foreman of laborers, one thousand dollars; two carpenters, at nine hundred dollars each; four messengers; seven assistant messengers; eight laborers; hostler, six hundred dollars; two hostlers, and one watchman, at five hundred and forty dollars each; in all, one hundred and four thousand one hundred and fifty dollars."

Temporary clerical force.—The act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 988), makes the following provision: "For continuing the employment of such additional temporary force of clerks, messengers, laborers, and other assistants, rendered necessary because of increased work incident to the war with Spain, as in the judgment of the Secretary of War may be proper and necessary to the prompt, efficient, and accurate dispatch of official business in the War Department and its bureaus, to be allotted by the Secretary of War to such bureaus and offices as the exigencies of the needs of the service may demand; six hundred thousand dollars." The same enactment also contains the following restriction upon the employment of the temporary services therein authorized: "Persons in the classified service of the Government shall not be eligible to appointment under this appropriation or other appropriations for additional employees because of increased work incident to the war with Spain or to be transferred from any position in the classified service to positions paid under this or said other appropriations."

In the office of the Adjutant-General: One chief clerk, at a salary of two thousand dollars a year.¹

President to regulate admissions to the civil service.

Mar. 3, 1871, c. 114, § 9, v. 16, p. 514.
Sec. 1753, R. S.

142. The President is authorized to prescribe such regulations for the admission of persons into the civil service of the United States as may best promote the efficiency thereof, and ascertain the fitness of each candidate in respect to age, health, character, knowledge, and ability for the branch of the service into which he seeks to enter; and for this purpose he may employ suitable persons to conduct such inquiries, and may prescribe their duties, and establish regulations for the conduct of persons who may receive appointments in the civil service.¹

Preference of persons disabled in military or naval service.

Mar. 3, 1865, Res. No. 27, § 1, v. 13, p. 571.
Sec. 1754, R. S.

143. Persons honorably discharged from the military or naval service by reason of disability resulting from wounds or sickness incurred in the line of duty shall be preferred for appointments to civil offices, provided they are found to possess the business capacity necessary for the proper discharge of the duties of such offices.²

¹ See the title The Civil Service Law, post. Neither section 1753, Revised Statutes, nor the civil service act of January 16, 1883 (22 Stat. L., 403), puts any restrictions upon the power of removal from appointive offices except for refusal to contribute to political funds or neglect to render political service; hence Presidential Rule II, relating to the civil service and providing (as amended July 27, 1897), that no removal shall be made without giving the accused notice and an opportunity to make defense, has no such authority at law as confers upon the holder of an office a vested right thereto, with the right to invoke the equitable power of the courts to restrain his removal therefrom in violation of such rule. *Page et al. v. Duties of commissioners.

147. That it shall be the duty of said commissioners:

Rules.

First. To aid the President, as he may request, in preparing suitable rules for carrying this act into effect,¹ and when said rules shall have been promulgated it shall be the duty of all officers of the United States in the Departments and offices to which any such rules may relate to aid, in all proper ways, in carrying said rules, and any modifications thereof, into effect.

Second. And, among other things, said rules shall provide and declare, as nearly as the conditions of good administration will warrant, as follows:

Competitive examinations.

First, for open, competitive examinations for testing the fitness of applicants for the public service now classified or to be classified² hereunder. Such examinations shall be practical in their character, and so far as may be shall relate to those matters which will fairly test the relative capacity and fitness of the persons examined to discharge the duties of the service into which they seek to be appointed.

Vacancies, how filled.

Second, that all the offices, places, and employments so arranged or to be arranged in classes shall be filled by selections according to grade from among those graded highest as the results of such competitive examinations.

Apportionment.

Third, appointments to the public service aforesaid in the Departments at Washington shall be appointed among the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia upon the basis of population as ascertained at the last preceding census. Every application for an examination shall contain, among other things, a statement, under oath, setting forth his or her actual bona fide residence at the time of making the application, as well as how long he or she has been a resident of such place.

² The term "classified service" indicates the parts of the service within the provisions of the civil-service law and rules requiring appointments therein to be made upon examination and certification by the commission, unless especially excepted from competition; the term "unclassified service" indicates the parts of the service which are not within those provisions, and, therefore, in which appointments may be made without examination and certification by the commission. Sec. 2, Manual for Examinations for the Classified Civil Service.

A vacancy in the classified service may be filled either by original appointment upon examination and certification by the commission, as explained, or by transfer or promotion from certain other positions in the classified service, or by reinstatement.

Fourth, that there shall be a period of probation before any absolute appointment or employment aforesaid. Probation.

Fifth, that no person in the public service is for that reason under any obligations to contribute to any political fund, or to render any political service, and that he will not be removed or otherwise prejudiced for refusing to do so. Political contributions and service.

Sixth, that no person in said service has any right to use his official authority or influence to coerce the political action of any person or body. Coercion.

Seventh, there shall be noncompetitive examinations in all proper cases before the commission, when competent persons do not compete, after notice has been given of the existence of the vacancy, under such rules as may be prescribed by the commissioners as to the manner of giving notice. Noncompetitive examinations.

Eighth, that notice shall be given in writing by the appointing power to said commission of the persons selected for appointment or employment from among those who have been examined, of the place of residence of such persons, of the rejection of any such persons after probation, of transfers, resignations, and removals, and of the date thereof, and a record of the same shall be kept by said commission. Notice of changes in service.

And any necessary exceptions from said eight fundamental provisions of the rules shall be set forth in connection with such rules, and the reasons therefor shall be stated in the annual reports of the commission. Exceptions to rules.

Third. Said commission shall, subject to the rules that may be made by the President, make regulations for, and have control of, such examinations, and, through its members or the examiners, it shall supervise and preserve the records of the same; and said commission shall keep minutes of its own proceedings. Regulations for examinations.
Minutes of proceedings.

Fourth. Said commission may make investigations concerning the facts, and may report upon all matters touching the enforcement and effects of said rules and regulations, and concerning the action of any examiner or board of examiners hereinafter provided for, and its own subordinates, and those in the public service, in respect to the execution of this act. Investigations.

Fifth. Said commission shall make an annual report to the President for transmission to Congress, showing its own Annual report.

action, the rules and regulations and the exceptions thereto in force, the practical effects thereof, and any suggestions it may approve for the more effectual accomplishment of the purposes of this act. Sec. 2, act of January 16, 1883 (22 Stat. L., 403).

148. Said commission is authorized to employ a chief examiner, a part of whose duty it shall be, under its direction, to act with the examining boards, so far as practicable, whether at Washington or elsewhere, and to secure accuracy, uniformity, and justice in all their proceedings, which shall be at all times open to him. The chief examiner shall be entitled to receive a salary at the rate of three thousand dollars a year, and he shall be paid his necessary traveling expenses incurred in the discharge of his duty.

Secretary.

The commission shall have a secretary, to be appointed by the President, who shall receive a salary of one thousand six hundred dollars per annum. It may, when necessary, of boards of examiners, and may at any time substitute any other person in said service living in such State or Territory in the place of any one so selected. Such boards of examiners shall be so located as to make it reasonably convenient and inexpensive for applicants to attend before them; and where there are persons to be examined in any State or Territory, examinations shall be held therein at least twice in each year. It shall be the duty of the collector, postmaster, and other officers of the United States, at any place outside of the District of Columbia where examinations are directed by the President or by said board to be held, to allow the reasonable use of the public buildings for holding such examinations, and in all proper ways to facilitate the same. Sec. 3, ibid.

158. Whenever any person * * * is elected or appointed to any office of honor or trust under the Government of the United States, * * * he shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take and subscribe in lieu of that oath the following oath:¹ "I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office² on which I am about to enter. So help me God." Act of June 6, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 432).

Under the act of February 14, 1889 (25 Stat. L., 670), S. was appointed from civil life to the position of major of engineers in the Army, and thereupon was placed on the retired list of the Army as of that grade; advised, that he must take the oath required by section 1756 of the Revised Statutes, and that this act would be in law a legal acceptance of the office, and, as such, a sufficient formal acceptance. XIX Opin. Att. Gen., 283.

Section 1757, Revised Statutes, and the act of May 13, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 22), which require generally that an officer shall take the oath of office prescribed "before entering upon the duties of his office" are directory only (U. S. v. Eaton, 169 U. S., 331), and a deputy clerk of a United States court whose acceptance of office on the same day he was appointed was evidenced by his entrance upon duty, and who subsequently took the oath, is entitled to compensation from that day. 4 Compt. Dec., 498.

No allowance or compensation shall be made to any officer or clerk, by reason of the discharge of duties which belong to any other officer or clerk in the same or any other Department; and no allowance or compensation shall be made for any extra services whatever, which any officer or clerk may be required to perform, unless expressly authorized by law.¹

he was still Chief Justice of the United States; of the mission of Mr. Gallatin to London and St. Petersburg, to negotiate a peace, while Secretary of the Treasury under President Madison; and of Mr. Justice Nelson, sitting as a member of the commission which concluded the treaty of Washington, under President Grant. On the other hand, it is the undoubted aim of general legislation respecting salaries to gauge the work so as to give full employment to the capacities of the man likely to be appointed to do it, and to measure the pay according to the work. In construing statutes restraining the Executive from giving dual or extra compensation, courts have aimed to carry out the legislative intent by giving them sufficient flexibility not to injure the public service and sufficient rigidity to prevent Executive abuse. Landram v. U. S., 16 Ct. Cls., 74, 82. The great object has been to establish by law the compensation for public services, whether in offices or agencies, where the nature and character of the duties to be performed were sufficiently known and definite to enable Congress to form an estimate of its value, and not leave it to the discretion of the head of an Executive Department. * * * These sections "can by no fair interpretation be held to embrace an employment which has no affinity or connection, either in its character or by law or usage, with the line of his official duty, and where the service to be performed is of a different character and for a different place and the amount of compensation is regulated by law. * * * The just and fair inference from these acts of Congress taken together is that no discretion is left to the head of a Department to allow an officer, who has a fixed compensation, any credit beyond his salary, unless the service he has performed is required by existing laws and the remuneration for them is fixed by law." Converse v. U. S., 21 How., 463, 470, 473; U. S. v. Brindle, 110 U. S., 688, 694; U. S. v. Shoemaker, 7 Wall., 338; Meigs v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls., 497; XV Opin. Att. Gen., 608; 1 Compt. Dec., 286; 2 ibid., 33; Crosthwaite v. U. S., 30 Ct. Cls., 300.

A question having arisen as to the payment of a per diem to the members and certain employees of the Bering Sea Tribunal of Arbitration, it was held: As to Justice Harlan and Senator Morgan, that the terms of section 1763 of the Revised Statutes, as amended by the act of July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 205), did not apply, as they had been appointed to separate and distinct offices not incompatible with the offices of justice of the Supreme Court, Senator of the United States, and retired judge. Payments to them were therefore allowed. U. S. v. Saunders, 120 U. S., 126. As to Senator Morgan, it was held that membership of a tribunal of arbitration did not constitute the holding of office under the authority of the United States under Article I, section 6, of the Constitution, and that Senator Morgan was not thereby prohibited from sitting thereon. The payment of per diem allowances to clerks and other regular employees of the United States, who had been detailed from the several Executive Departments to assist the tribunal in its labors, was held to be unauthorized under section 1765 of the Revised Statutes. Held, under this section, that a major and paymaster in the Army, detailed as disbursing officer of the Bering Sea Tribunal of Arbitration at Paris, could not receive any other allowances or emoluments than those specified in this section as allowable to officers of the Army. Compt. Dec., 1893-94, 275.

A compensation for extra services, where no certain allowance is fixed by law, can not be paid by the head of a Department to any officer of the Government who has, by law, a certain compensation in the office he holds. X Opin. Att. Gen., 31. The various provisions of law forbidding extra allowance or additional pay for extra service imply extra-service pay or allowance in the same office, not distinct service in distinct offices. VIII Opin. Att. Gen., 325. Where the service is one required by law, but not of any particular official, and compensation therefor is fixed by competent authority, and is appropriated, any officer who, under due authorization, performs the service is entitled to the compensation. XV Opin. Att. Gen., 608. See also Converse, admr., v. U. S., 21 How., 463; U. S. v. Shoemaker, 7 Wall., 338; Stansbury v. U. S., 8 Wall., 33; XIX Opin. Att. Gen., 121. ¹An officer is one who is invested with an office, and an office is authority, granted by law, to exercise a function of Government. An employee is one who is employed under a contract to perform personal service. An office is distinguished from a public employment by the fact that in the one case the authority to perform a public service is derived from the law, while in the other it is derived from a contract. IV Compt. Dec., 696.

²Salary is fixed when it is at a stipulated rate for a definite period of time; pay or emolument is fixed when the amount is agreed upon and the service is defined. Hedrick v. U. S., 16 Ct. Cls., 88.

The provisions of section 1765, Revised Statutes, which prohibit the payment of additional compensation, apply to two classes of persons only, viz, officers in the public service and employees whose compensation is fixed by law or regulations. ⁴The phrase "who is in arrears to the United States," contained in the act of January 25, 1828 (sec. 1766, Revised Statutes), applies only to persons who, having had previous transactions of a pecuniary nature with the Government, are found, upon the settlement of those transactions, to be in arrears. ¹ Sections 1781 and 1782 of the Revised Statutes make it illegal for an officer of the United States to have that sort of connection with a Government contract which an agent, attorney, or solicitor assumes when he procures, or aids in procuring, such contract for another, or when he prosecutes for another any claim against the Government founded thereon. XIV Opin. Att. Gen., 483. But there is in the statutes no general provision whereby officers of the executive branch of the Government are forbidden to contract directly with the Government as principals, in matters separate from their offices and in no way connected with the performance of their official duties; nor are those officers forbidden to be connected with such contracts, after they are procured, by acquiring an interest therein. 194. The Auditors of the Treasury shall hereafter be designated as follows: The First Auditor as Auditor for ¹By instructions of the Comptroller of the Treasury, issued under the authority conferred by section 4, act of July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 205), it was ordered that all questions arising in the Departments of War, Navy, and the Interior should be decided by the Assistant Comptroller. Order of Comptroller of January 19, 1898, IV Compt. Dec., 726.

197. The Auditors charged with the examination of the accounts of the Departments of War and of the Navy shall keep all accounts of the receipts and expenditures of the public money in regard to those Departments, and of all debts due to the United States on moneys advanced relative to those Departments; shall receive from the Comptroller the accounts which shall have been finally adjusted, and shall preserve such accounts, with their vouchers and certificates, and record all requisitions drawn by the Secretaries of those Departments, the examination of the accounts of which has been assigned to them. They shall annually, on the first Monday in November, severally report to the Secretary of the Treasury the application of the money appropriated for the Department of War and the Department of the Navy, and they shall make such reports on the business assigned to them as the Secretaries of those Departments may deem necessary and require.

198. The balances which may from time to time be certified by the Auditors to the Division of Bookkeeping and Warrants, or to the Postmaster-General, upon the settlements of public accounts, shall be final and conclusive upon the Executive branch of the Government, except that any person whose accounts may have been settled, the head of the Executive Department, or of the board, commission, or establishment not under the jurisdiction of an Executive Department, to which the account pertains, or the Comptroller of the Treasury, may, within a year, obtain a revision of the said account by the Comptroller of the Treasury, whose decision upon such revision shall be final Revision.

¹The act of July 16, 1892, contained the following requirement: "Hereafter nothing in section two hundred and seventy-seven of the Revised Statutes shall be so construed as to prevent the Second Auditor of the Treasury from disallowing claims for arrears of pay and bounty in cases where it appears from the records and files of his office that payment in full has already been made to the soldier himself, or to his widow or legal heirs: Provided, That if any person whose claim may be disallowed be dissatisfied with the action of the Auditor, he may, within six months, appeal to the Second Comptroller; otherwise the Auditor's action shall be deemed final and conclusive and be subject to revision only by Congress or the proper courts." obtain further evidence or explanations necessary to their settlement. When suspended items are finally settled, a revision may be had as in the case of the original settlement. Action upon any account or business shall not be delayed awaiting applications for revision: Provided, That the Secretary of the Treasury shall make regulations fixing the time which shall expire before a warrant is issued in payment of an account certified as provided in sections seven and eight of this act. Sec. 8, ibid.

Auditors to be examined, etc.,
by Comptroller.
Sec. 8, ibid.

203. All decisions by Auditors making an original construction or modifying an existing construction of statutes shall be forthwith reported to the Comptroller of the Treasury, and items in any account affected by such decisions shall be suspended and payment thereof withheld until the Comptroller of the Treasury shall approve, disapprove, or modify such decisions and certify his actions to the Auditor. All decisions made by the Comptroller of the to follow the decision in subsequent settlements of the parties' accounts. The legislation of Congress and the decisions of the Supreme Court unmistakably indicate that judgments of this court, not appealed from, are obligatory upon the Government as upon the claimant, and are intended to be guides and precedents for the Executive Departments. Meigs v. U. S., 20 Ct. Cls., 181; U. S. v. O'Grady, 22 Wall., 641; Wis. Cent. R. R. Co. v. U. S., 164 U. S., 190.

Under section 8 of the act of July 31, 1894, an appeal will not lie to the Comptroller of the Treasury except from the final certificate of an auditor. A suspension of action upon a case by an auditor is not a final decision of such officer. Ibid., 381. An appeal to the Comptroller from the action of an auditor will not lie until the auditor has taken final action in the case. A suspension for further evidence is not a final decision upon which an appeal can be based. I Compt. Dec., 448, 500.

In a case where the Auditor for the War Department disallowed the claim of a soldier for pay and allowances upon the ground of desertion, and, subsequent to said settlement, the Secretary of War has removed the charge of desertion and issued a discharge certificate under the act of March 2, 1889: Held, That the application for pay and allowances upon said amendment of record is a new claim, coming within the jurisdiction of the Auditor for the War Department, and is not to be regarded as an appeal under section 8, act of July 31, 1894, or an application for a rehearing. III Compt. Dec., 144; IV ibid., 303, 332, 471, 622, 723.

Under the act of July 31, 1894, an auditor has no jurisdiction to review his own final action in the settlement of an account, but such settlement can be reopened only on a revision thereof by the Comptroller of the Treasury within a year, as provided in section 8 of said act. I Compt. Dec., 27. See, also, ibid., pp. 31, 78, 87, 139, 199, 317, 381, 448, 500, 502; II ibid., pp. 4, 401, 510.

Where an auditor disallows certain items in an account which have been allowed claimant by a paymaster, it amounts to a formal settlement of the account of such claimant, from which an appeal may be taken under section 8 of the act of July 31, 1894. II Compt. Dec., 4. Under section 8 of the act of July 31, 1894, appeals from disallowances by the auditors must be taken within a year from the date of the settlement. If taken after the expiration of a year, the Comptroller is without jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. Ibid., 510.

Warrants.

All warrants, when authorized by law and signed by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall be countersigned by the Comptroller of the Treasury, and all warrants for the payment of money shall be accompanied either by the Auditor's certificate, mentioned in section seven of this act, or by the requisition for advance of money, which certificate or requisition shall specify the particular appropriation to which the same should be charged, instead of being specified on the warrant, as now provided by section thirty-six hundred and seventy-five of the Revised Statutes; and shall also go with the warrant to the Treasurer, who shall return the certificate or requisition to the proper Auditor, with the date and amount of the draft issued indorsed thereon. Requisitions for the payment of money on all audited accounts, or for covering money into the Treasury, shall not hereafter be required. CLAIMS OF OFFICERS AND ENLISTED MEN FOR PROPERTY LOST AND DESTROYED.

Accounting officers to settle claims of officers and men in military service for property lost or destroyed.

221. The proper accounting officers of the Treasury are hereby authorized and directed to examine into, ascertain, and determine the value of the private property belonging to officers and enlisted men in the military service of the United States which has been, or may hereafter be, lost or destroyed in the military service, under the following circumstances:

When loss or destruction was without fault or negligence.

First. When such loss or destruction was without fault or negligence on the part of the claimant.¹

When shipped by order on unseaworthy vessel.

Second. Where the private property so lost or destroyed was shipped on board an unseaworthy vessel by order of any officer authorized to give such order or direct such shipment.²

of fact or material testimony discovered and produced. V Opin. Att. Gen., 664. A head of a department of the Government has no right to review the acts of his predecessors, except to correct an error of calculation. He can not recall a credit given or allowance made. Such action is for the judiciary. U. S. v. Bank of Metropolis, 15 Pet., 377.

The accounting officers of the Treasury have no jurisdiction to settle claims for unliquidated damages arising from the torts of the agents of the Government. II Compt. Dec., 174, 487; McKee v. U. S., 12 Ct. Cls., 556; Dennis v. U. S., 20 ibid, II; XIV Opin. Att. Gen., 24. Nor have the accounting officers such jurisdiction over a claim for unliquidated damages not arising from the tortious act of an officer of the Government. II Compt. Dec., 487; I ibid, 261; II ibid, 174.

¹ Clause first stands alone as an independent basis for a claim, and was intended 'o reach cases not covered by the other two clauses. This clause is broader in its scope than the two succeeding clauses, but absence of fault or negligence must be proven if the claim is made under it. Broad as this clause is, it does not cover every case of loss an officer or soldier might sustain in his "reasonable, useful, and necessary" property while he was in the military service. II Compt. Dec., 644, 647.

Stating the proposition in other words, it does not make the United States the absolute insurer, against all accidents and contingencies, of the reasonable, useful, and necessary property of officers and soldiers. To entitle a person to reimbursement under this clause the loss or destruction must be without fault or negligence, directly or indirectly, near or remote, of the owner, and must have been caused by, or resulted from, some exigency or necessity of the military service. It must reasonably be attributable to the fact that it was held in the military service, whereby the owner was deprived, in some degree, of the control over it which he would have in civil life, and where it would be subjected to dangers not ordinarily incident to its use in civil life. Under all conditions of a use of such personal property as is covered by the law it is subject to deterioration and loss; but in the military service the dangers are greater and peculiar because of the environments of that service. It was to provide against personal loss resulting from these special and peculiar dangers that this law was enacted. Any other view of the law would make the United States the insurer of all personal property necessarily used in its service by officers and soldiers. This can not have been the intent of Congress. If it be held that absence of fault or negligence is the only condition precedent to reimbursement an officer would be entitled to payment for a horse dying from old age, or a uniform, side arms, or household furniture worn out in use. III Compt. Dec., 637.

²The true construction of clause second is that the claimant is entitled to reimbursement without being required to show, affirmatively, that he was not guilty of negligence, "where the private property was shipped on board an unseaworthy vessel by order of any officer authorized to give such order or direct such shipment." The leading idea in this clause is that the loss would be attributable to the unseaworthiness of the vessel, and that the soldier sustaining the loss would have no

Settled accounts in the Treasury Department, where the United States have acted on the settlement and paid the balance therein found due, can not be opened or set aside years afterwards merely because some of the prescribed steps in the accounting which it was the duty of a head of a Department to see had been taken had in fact been omitted, or on account of technical irregularities when the remedy of the party against the United States is barred by the statute of limitation and the remedies of the United States are intact, owing to its not being subject to an act of limitation. U. S. v. Johnston, 124 U. S., 236, 1 Compt. Dec., 192.

July 17, 1862, c. 205, s. 2, v. 12, p. 610.

Sec. 3479, R. S.

236. The oath provided for in the preceding section may be taken before any justice of the peace, notary public, or other person who is legally authorized to administer an oath in the State or district where the same may be administered.

Claims of disloyalists.

Mar. 2, 1867, Res. 46, v. 14, p. 571.

Sec. 3480, R. S.

237. It shall be unlawful for any officer to pay any account, claim, or demand against the United States which accrued or existed prior to the thirteenth day of April, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, in favor of any person who promoted, encouraged, or in any manner sustained the late rebellion, or in favor of any person who during such rebellion was not known to be opposed thereto, and distinctly in favor of its suppression; and no pardon heretofore granted, or hereafter to be granted, shall authorize the payment of such account, claim, or demand, until this section is modified or repealed. But this section shall not be construed to prohibit the payment of claims founded upon contracts made by any of the Departments, where such claims were assigned or contracted to be assigned prior to the first day of April, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, to the creditors of such contractors, loyal citizens of loyal States, in payment of debts incurred prior to the first day of March, eighteen hundred and sixty-one.²

Claims for collecting, etc., volunteers to be presented prior to June 30, 1874.

Rules respecting attorneys, etc., to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

July 7, 1884, v. 23, p. 258. •

243. Every such suit shall be commenced within six years from the commission of the act, and not afterward.

244. The Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe rules and regulations governing the recognition of agents, attorneys, or other persons representing claimants before his Department, and may require of such persons, agents and attorneys, before being recognized as representatives of claimants, that they shall show that they are of good character and in good repute, possessed of the necessary qualifications to enable them to render such claimants valuable service, and otherwise competent to advise and assist such claimants in the presentation of their cases. And such Secretary may after due notice and opportunity for hearing suspend, and disbar from further practice before his Department any such person, agent, or attorney shown to be incompetent, disreputable, or who refuses to comply with the said rules and regulations, or who shall with intent to defraud, in any manner willfully and knowingly deceive, mislead, or threaten any claimant or prospective claimant, by work, circular, letter, or by advertisement. Act of July 7, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 258).

DEBTS DUE BY OR TO THE UNITED STATES.

Par.

245. Priority of debts due the United States established.

Par.

246. Liability of executors, etc.

247. Priority of sureties.

Priority of debts due the United States established.

Mar. 3, 1797, c. 20, s. 5, v. 1, p. 515;

Mar. 2, 1799, c. 22, s. 65, v. 1, p. 676.

Sec. 3466, R.S.

245. Whenever any person indebted to the United States is insolvent, or whenever the estate of any deceased debtor, in the hands of the executors or administrators, is insufficient to pay all the debts due from the deceased, the debts due to the United States shall be first satisfied; and the priority hereby established shall extend as well to cases in which a debtor, not having sufficient property to pay all his debts, makes a voluntary assignment thereof, or in debtor, by the oath of the debtor, which the Secretary, or any other person by him specially appointed, is authorized to administer, or otherwise, as the Secretary shall deem necessary and expedient, to ascertain the truth; and upon proof made to his satisfaction, that the debtor is unable to pay the debt for which he is imprisoned, and that he has not concealed or made any conveyance of his estate, in trust, for himself, or with an intent to defraud the United States, or to deprive them of their legal priority, the Secretary is authorized to receive from such debtor any deed, assignment, or conveyance of his real or personal estate, or any collateral security, to the use of the United States. Upon a compliance by the debtor with such terms and conditions as the Secretary may judge reasonable and proper, the Secretary must issue his order, under his hand, to the keeper of the prison, directing him to discharge the debtor from his imprisonment under such execution. The debtor shall not be liable to be imprisoned again for the debt; but the judgment shall remain in force, and may be satisfied out of any estate which may then, or at any time afterward, belong to the debtor. The benefit of this section shall not be extended to any person imprisoned for any fine, forfeiture, or penalty, incurred by a breach of any law of the United States, or for moneys had and received by any officer, agent, or other person, for their use; nor shall its provisions extend to any claim arising under the postal laws.¹

the President.
Mar. 3, 1817, c.
114, v. 3, p. 399.
Sec. 3472, E. S.

249. Whenever any person is imprisoned upon execution for a debt due to the United States, which he is unable to pay, and his case is such as does not authorize his discharge by the Secretary of the Treasury, under the preceding section, he may make application to the President, who, upon proof made to his satisfaction that the debtor is unable to pay the debt, and upon a compliance by the debtor with such terms and conditions as the President shall deem proper, may order the discharge of such debtor from his imprisonment. The debtor shall not be liable to be imprisoned again for the same debt; but the judgment shall remain in force, and may be satisfied out of any estate which may then, or at any time afterward, belong to the debtor.²

against officer.
May 15, 1820, c.
107, s. 2, v. 3, p.
593.
Sec. 3627, R. S.

253. The marshal authorized to execute any warrant of distress shall, by himself or by his deputy, proceed to levy and collect the sum remaining due, by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of such delinquent officer, having given ten days' previous notice of such intended sale, by affixing an advertisement of the articles to be sold at two or more public places in the town and county where the goods or chattels were taken, or in the town or county where the owner of such goods or chattels may reside. If the goods and chattels be not sufficient to satisfy the warrant, the same may be levied upon the person of such officer, who may be committed to prison, there to remain until discharged by due course of law.

254. If the delinquent officer absconds, or if goods and chattels belonging to him can not be found sufficient to satisfy the warrant, the marshal or his deputy shall proceed, notwithstanding the commitment of the delinquent officer, to levy and collect the sum which remains due by such delinquent, by the distress and sale of the goods and chattels of his sureties; having given ten days' previous notice of such intended sale, by affixing an advertisement of the articles to be sold at two or more public places in the town or county where the goods or chattels were taken, or in the town or county where the owner resides.

Levy to be a lien.
May 15, 1820, c.
107, s. 2, v. 3, p.
593.
Sec. 3629, R. S.

255. The amount due by any delinquent officer is declared to be a lien upon the lands, tenements, and hereditaments of such officer and his sureties, from the date of a levy in pursuance of the warrant of distress issued against him or them, and a record thereof made in the office of the clerk of the district court of the proper district, until the same is discharged according to law.

Sale of lands.
May 15, 1820, c.
107, s. 2, v. 3, p.
593.
Sec. 3630, R. S.

256. For want of goods and chattels of a delinquent officer or his sureties, sufficient to satisfy any warrant of distress issued pursuant to the foregoing provisions, the lands, tenements, and hereditaments of such officer and his sureties, or so much thereof as may be necessary for that purpose, after being advertised for at least three weeks in not less than three public places in the county or district where such real estate is situate, before the time of sale, shall be sold by the marshal of such district or his deputy.

Ibid.
Sec. 3631, R. S.

257. For all lands, tenements, or hereditaments sold in pursuance of the preceding section, the conveyance of the marshal or his deputy, executed in due form of law, shall give a valid title against all persons claiming under such delinquent officer or his sureties.

the part of the United States, and if, upon dissolving the injunction, it appears to the satisfaction of the judge that the application for the injunction was merely for delay, the judge may add to the lawful interest assessed on all sums found due against the complainant such damages as, with such lawful interest, shall not exceed the rate of ten per centum a year. Such injunction may be granted or dissolved by the district judge either in or out of court.

v. 16, p. 44.

Sec. 2637, R. S.

263. When the district judge refuses to grant an injunction to stay proceedings on a distress warrant, as aforesaid, or dissolves such injunction after it is granted, any person who considers himself aggrieved by the decision in the premises may lay before the circuit justice, or circuit judge of the circuit within which such district lies, a copy of the proceeding had before the district judge; and thereupon the circuit justice or circuit judge may grant an injunction, or permit an appeal, as the case may be, if, in his opinion, the equity of the case requires it. The same proceedings, subject to the same conditions, shall be had upon such injunction in the circuit court as are prescribed in the district court.

Sec. 8678, B.S.

No expenditures beyond appropriations.

271. All sums appropriated for the various branches of expenditure in the public service shall be applied solely to the objects for which they are respectively made, and for no others.¹

272. No Department of the Government shall expend, in any one fiscal year, any sum in excess of appropriations

¹ An appropriation by Congress of a given sum of money for a named purpose is not the designation of a specific fund for that purpose, but simply a legal authority to apply so much of any money in the Treasury to the indicated object. Every appropriation for the payment of a particular demand, or a class of demands, necessarily involves and includes the recognition by Congress of the legality and justice of each demand and is equivalent to an express mandate to the Treasury officers to pay it. This recognition is not affected by any previous adverse action of Congress, for the last expression by that body supersedes all such previous action. Hukill v. U. S., 16 Ct. Cls., 562, 585. When an appropriation has been made by Congress for a general purpose, contemplating a multitude of acts to be done by the Department, its agency is general within those limits. Leavitt v. U. S., 34 F. R., 623. When an alleged liability of the Government rests wholly upon an appropriation, they must stand or fall together, so that when the latter is exhausted the former comes to an end. Shipman v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls., 138.

The disposition of public money is in the discretion of Congress, and its reasons for passing an act of appropriation and the consideration thereof can not be inquired into nor its will thwarted by any executive officers or by the courts. Mumford v. U. S., 31 Ct. Cls., 210, 215; Jordan v. U. S., 19; Ibid., 108; 113, U. S., 418. In view of the requirements of this section a disbursing officer is not authorized to use public moneys advanced to him from one appropriation in the payment of liabilities arising under another appropriation. IV Comp. Dec., 569.

Administrative discretion in expenditures.—Ordinarily, where discretionary power is lodged in a judicial officer, his decision is not reviewable save by the court of which he is a member, and then only when there has been a clear abuse of the discretion committed to him. Far more cogent reasons exist why this rule should be applied to administrative officers, who are empowered to use their discretion as to the manner in which public moneys shall be expended, for great embarrassment and confusion might result if officers in one Executive Department could sit in judgment upon the decisions of the officers of another Executive Department in cases involving the exercise of judgment and discretion. III Comp. Dec., 21. Wherever the exercise of discretion by the War Department in disbursing moneys appropriated for the support of the Army is permitted by a statute, the manner in which such discretion has been exercised is a matter of administration with which the accounting officers have no concern. It is the province of the military authorities to determine the needs of a given military depot or post and the quantity of a specified article to be allotted to said depot or post, while it is the province of the accounting officers to determine whether or not Congress has made an appropriation covering a specific expenditure, or whether or not such expenditure was made in conformity with law. Ibid., 21. The degree of wisdom displayed in the exercise of the discretion given an officer of the Army, under the authority of the Secretary of War, is not a subject for review by the accounting officers. If the officer is responsible for his action in the premises to anyone, it is to the source from which he derived his authority. Ibid., 22.

The evidence required by the War Department from the disbursing officers and agents of the Army for administrative purposes is a matter peculiarly within the jurisdiction of the Secretary of War. Ibid., 497.

¹Permanent appropriations are those made for an unlimited period. Indefinite appropriations are those in which no amount is named. XIII Opin. Att. Gen., 289. A "permanent specific appropriation" is one which requires the money payable by virtue of it to be applied to an object specifically pointed out by law, and which may be so applied at any time in the future, and not merely for the service of the current fiscal year. It exists when the act of Congress which made it points out the purpose to which it applies, and shows that it was intended to be used in the future, without limit as to time. If the object to which it is to be applied has no reference to, or connection with, the service of any particular year, the appropriation may be considered as permanent, where such intention is apparent in the act making it. If it be for the discharge of an existing obligation having no connection with the service of the current year, and not in part discharge of a continuous service, it may reasonably be supposed that Congress intended the liability to be paid without reference to time. 2 Lawrence, Compt. Dec., 2d ed., 246; III Compt. Dec., 623, 625.

²By the act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 343), the clause of the above section making a permanent appropriation for the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers was repealed.

279. All balances of appropriations contained in the annual appropriation bills and made specifically for the service of any fiscal year, and remaining unexpended at the expiration of such fiscal year, shall only be applied to the payment of expenses properly incurred during that year, or to the fulfillment of contracts properly made within that year; and balances not needed for such purposes shall be carried to the surplus fund. All moneys heretofore appropriated for the construction of public buildings and now remaining to the credit of the same on the books of the Treasury Department, or which may hereafter be appropriated for such buildings, shall remain available until the completion of the work for which they are, or may be, appropriated. And upon the final completion of said buildings, and the payment of all outstanding liabilities therefor, the balance ¹The use of every fiscal-year appropriation is limited by section 3690 of the Revised Statutes and by its own terms to the payment of expenses properly incurred during the fiscal year for which it is made, or to the fulfillment of contracts properly made within that year; and balances not needed for such purposes must be carried to the surplus fund and covered into the Treasury in conformity with the provisions of section 5 of the act of June 20, 1874. (18 Stat. L., 110); 3 Dig., 2d Compt. Dec., par. 96. The use of any part of an appropriation made for one fiscal year for the payment of any liability incurred during a succeeding fiscal year is prohibited by section 3679 as well as by section 3690 of the Revised Statutes. Ibid., par. 99.

An appropriation is properly chargeable with all the expenses necessary to accomplish the object for which it is made, unless particular items of expense are specifically provided for by some other appropriation. IV Compt. Dec. 24, I ibid., 472, 517; II ibid., 74; III ibid., 623. There is no authority under an act of appropriation, made specifically for the service of a particular fiscal year, to enter into a contract for supplies, etc., for the service of a subsequent fiscal year, and therefore, as to that appropriation, such a contract is not "properly made within that year," within the meaning of section 3690, Revised Statutes. IV ibid., 553. While it is a rule that a specific appropriation excludes the use, for the same objects, of a general appropriation, yet when there are two appropriations both applicable to the same object they are to be treated as cumulative, and either or both can be used in the discretion of the head of the Department. Ibid., 121. See, also, I ibid., 533. The balance of an appropriation which has been treated as not limited to a fiscal year will, upon the accomplishment of the object for which it was made, be covered into the Treasury, in analogy to the practice required by law (a) in the case of balances of appropriations for the construction of public buildings. I Compt. Dec., 487.

An appropriation found in an annual appropriation act and made specifically for the service of a certain fiscal year is not available thereafter except in payment of expenses properly incurred, or in the fulfillment of contracts properly made within the year as provided in section 3690 of the Revised Statutes. DESIGNATED DEPOSITORIES.

289. All national banking associations, designated for that purpose by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall be depositories of public money, except receipts from customs, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary, but receipts derived from duties on imports in Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, and other islands under the jurisdiction of the United States may be deposited in such depositories subject to such regulations; and such depositories may also be employed as financial agents of the Government; and they shall perform all such reasonable duties as depositories of public moneys and financial agents of the Government as may be required of them. The Secretary of the Treasury shall require the associations thus designated to give satisfactory security, by the deposit of United States bonds and otherwise, for the safe-keeping and prompt payment of public money deposited with them, and for the faithful performance of their duties as financial agents of the Government. And every association so designated as receiver or depository of the public money shall take and receive at par all of the national currency bills, by whatever association issued, which have been paid into the Government for internal revenue or for loans or stocks. Act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 1448).

Although the acts prescribing the duties of the Attorneys-General do not declare the effect of their advice, it has been the practice of the Departments to heed it. It has been found greatly advantageous, if not absolutely necessary, to have uniformity of action upon analogous questions and cases; and that result is more likely to be attained under the guidance of a single Department, constituted for the purpose, than by a disregard of its opinions and advice. That the said _____ was duly enlisted as a soldier in the service of the United States at _____, _____, on _____, 1900, for a term of _____ years. [If the offense is fraudulent enlistment, this recital should be omitted.]

[Here state the offense. If it is fraudulent enlistment by representing himself to be of age, it may be stated as follows:]

That on the _____ day of _____, 1900, at _____, _____, the said _____, being then a minor, did fraudulently enlist in the military service of the United States for the term of _____ years, by falsely representing himself to be over twenty-one years of age, to wit: _____ years and _____ months; and has, since said enlistment, received pay and allowances (or either) thereunder.

That the said _____ deserted said service at _____, _____, on _____, 1900, and remained absent in desertion until he was apprehended at _____, _____, on _____, 1900, by _____, and was thereupon committed to the custody of the respondent as commanding officer of the post of _____.

The said _____ has been placed in confinement (or "arrest," as the case may be), charged with said offense, and formal charges against him therefor have been preferred, a copy of which is hereto annexed (or "are being prepared"), and that he will be brought to trial thereon as soon as practicable before a court-martial to be convened by the commanding general of the Department of _____ (or "convened by Special Orders, No. _____, dated Headquarters Department of _____, 1900, a copy of which order is hereto annexed").

That the said _____ was duly arraigned for said offense before a general court-martial, convened by Special Orders, No. _____, dated Headquarters Department of _____, 1900, was convicted thereof by said court, and was sentenced to be _____, which sentence was duly approved on the _____ day of _____, 1900, by the officer ordering the court (or "by the officer commanding said Department of _____ for the time being"), as required by the 104th article of war. A copy of the order promulgating said sentence is hereto attached.

In obedience, however, to the said writ of habeas corpus the respondent herewith produces before the court the body of the said _____, respectfully refers to the decisions cited in the annexed brief, and for the reasons set forth in this return prays this honorable court to dismiss the said writ.

Denial of return, counter-allegations, amendments.

Feb. 5, 1867, c. 28, s. 1, v. 14, p. 385.
Sec. 760, R. S.

Said denials or allegations shall be under oath. The return and all suggestions made against it may be amended, by leave of the court, or justice, or judge, before or after the same are filed, so that thereby the material facts may be ascertained.

will not be released under a writ of habeas corpus upon the ground that being a minor his enlistment was unlawful and contrary to the Revised Statutes of the United States."

In the Cosenow case the minor swore that he was twenty-one years and seven months old at the time of enlistment. He deserted and at the time of the filing of the petition was held in custody awaiting the action of the reviewing authority on the proceedings of the court-martial. His father sought the discharge of his son on the ground of infancy at the time of enlistment. The court refused to discharge him, holding that "an enlistment contrary to law is not void, but voidable;" that the court-martial had jurisdiction of the offense, and the soldier "must be remanded to await the result of his trial."

The Dowd case arose on the application of the mother for the release of her son, who was held under sentence of a summary court. The court held, quoting from the syllabus: "The enlistment of a minor in the Army without the consent of his parents or guardian, required by Revised Statutes, section 1117, is not void, but voidable only, and while he remains in the service under such enlistment the minor is amenable to the Articles of War, and can not be remanded to the custody of his parents by a civil court on a writ of habeas corpus while undergoing a sentence imposed on him by a court-martial for a violation of such articles."

In the Anderson case it appears that a minor enlisted without his father's consent, and being held for trial before a court-martial for desertion, his father sought his discharge on habeas corpus. The court refused to discharge the soldier, saying "he must abide by the decision of the latter court (court-martial) before the question of the validity of his enlistment can be determined in the civil courts on habeas corpus."

In McConologue's case the court said: "A minor's contract of enlistment is indeed voidable only and not void, and if, before a writ of habeas corpus is sued out to avoid it, he is arrested on charges of desertion, he should not be released by the court while proceedings for his trial by the military authorities are pending."

Under the custom of the service the parents or guardian of a minor who enlists without their consent can obtain his discharge upon application to the Secretary of War, prior to the commission of a military offense. Their rights under section 1117, Revised Statutes, are thus sufficiently protected; but when the minor has committed a military offense the interests of the public in the administration of justice are paramount to the right of the parent, and require that the soldier shall abide the consequences of his offense before the right to his discharge be passed upon. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 389-390.

The soldier should not be allowed to escape punishment for his offense, even though his parents assert their right to his services. A minor in civil life is liable to punishment for a crime or misdemeanor, even though his confinement may interfere with the rights of his parents.

An order from a subordinate in the War Department to an officer not to obey the writ by the production of the body, is no justification to the officer. Ex parte Field, 5 Blatchford, C. C., 63.

¹The purpose of the writ is to enable the court to inquire, first, if the petitioner is restrained of his liberty. If he is not, the court can do nothing but discharge the writ. If there is such restraint, the court can then inquire into the causes of it, and if the alleged cause is unlawful, it must then discharge the prisoner. * * * In the case of a man in the military or naval service, where he is, whether as an officer or private, always more or less subject in his movements, by the very necessity of military rule and subordination, to the orders of his superior officer, it should be quite clear that some unusual restraint upon his liberty of personal movement exists to justify the issue of the writ; otherwise every order of the superior officer directing the movements of the subordinate, which necessarily to some extent controls his freedom of will, may be held to be a restraint of his liberty and the party so ordered may seek relief from obedience by means of a writ of habeas corpus. Something more than moral restraint is necessary to make a case for habeas corpus. There must be actual confinement or the present means of enforcing it. Wales v. Whitney, 114 U. S., 564, 571. Where a court-martial has jurisdiction of the person and of the subject-matter and is competent to pass the sentence under which the prisoner is held, its proceedings can not be collaterally impeached, and a writ of habeas corpus can not be made to perform the function of a writ of error. Ex parte Reed, 100 U. Whitney*, 114 U. S., 564. Where a person is in custody under process from a State court of original jurisdiction for an alleged offense against the laws of such State, and it is claimed that he is restrained of his liberty in violation of the Constitution of the United States, the circuit court has a discretion whether it will discharge him upon a habeas corpus, in advance of his trial in the court in which he is indicted; that discretion, however, to be subordinated to any special circumstances requiring immediate action. When the State court has finally acted upon the case, the circuit court has still a discretion whether, under all the circumstances, the accused, if convicted, shall be put to his writ of error from the highest court of the State, or whether it will proceed, by writ of habeas corpus, summarily to determine whether the prisoner is restrained of his liberty in violation of the Constitution of the United States. Ex parte Royall, 117 U. 1. In the case of any person alleged to be restrained of his liberty in violation of the Constitution, or of any law or treaty of the United States.

2. In the case of any prisoner who, being a subject or citizen of a foreign State, and domiciled therein, is committed or confined, or in custody by or under the authority or law of the United States, or of any State, or process discharged, he can not afterwards be tried by the State courts. Cunningham v. Neagle, 135 U. S., 1. See, also, In re Boardman, 169 U. S., 39; Baker v. Grice, ibid., 284; Nishimura Ekin v. U. S., 142 ibid., 651, 166 U. S., 391; Iasigi v. Van de Curr, 166 U. S., 391.

Conflict of State and Federal authority.—The writ of habeas corpus is a high prerogative writ known to the common law, the great object of which is the liberation of those who may be imprisoned without sufficient cause. It is in the nature of a writ of error to examine the legality of the commitment. Ex parte Watkins, 3 Pet., 202. The Federal courts by whom, and the cases in which, it may be issued are described in sections 751, 752, 753, 754, 762, 763, 764, and 765 of the Revised Statutes. Subject to the paramount authority of the National Government, by its own tribunals, to inquire into the legality of custody of prisoners held by the United States courts or officers, the States may inquire into the grounds on which any person in their respective limits is restrained of his liberty. Robb v. Connolly, 111 U. S., 624. A State court has no jurisdiction by habeas corpus to release a prisoner held by order of Federal court. Ableman v. Booth, 21 How., 506. And a judicial officer of a State can not, by means of a writ of habeas corpus, take and discharge a person held by or under color of authority of the United States. If it appear upon the return to a writ of habeas corpus that the person is detained under color of the authority of the United States, the State court has no further jurisdiction. Tarble's case, 13 Wall., 397. We do not question the authority of the State court or judge who is authorized by the laws of the State to issue the writ of habeas corpus to issue it in any case where the party is imprisoned within its territorial limits, provided it does not appear, when the application is made, that the person imprisoned is in custody under the authority of the United States. The court or judge has a right to inquire, in this mode of proceeding, for what cause and by what authority the prisoner is confined within the territorial limits of the State sovereignty. And it is the duty of the marshal or other person having the custody of the prisoner to make known to the judge or court, by a proper return, the authority by which he holds him in custody. * * * But after the return is made and the State judge or court judicially apprised that the party is in custody under the authority of the United States, they can proceed no further. * * * And although, as we have said, it is the duty of the marshal or other person holding him to make known, by a proper return, the authority under which he detains him, it is at the same time imperatively his duty to obey the process of the United States, to hold the prisoner in custody under it, and to refuse obedience to the mandate or process of any other Government. And consequently it is his duty not to take the prisoner, nor suffer him to be taken, before a State judge or court upon a habeas corpus issued under State authority. No State judge or court, after they are judicially informed that the party is imprisoned under the authority of the United States, has any right to interfere with him, or to require him to be brought before them. And if the authority of a State, in the form of a judicial process or otherwise, should attempt to control the marshal or other authorized officer or agent of the United States, in any respect in the custody of his prisoner, it would be his duty to resist it and to call to his aid any force that might be necessary to

SUSPENSION OF THE PRIVILEGE OF THE WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS.

The privilege¹ of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in cases of rebellion or invasion the public safety may require it.²

When Congress permits regulations to be formulated and published and carried into effect year after year, the legislative ratification must be implied. Maddox v. U. S., 20 Ct. Cls., 193, 198.

³ The jurisdiction of the Court of Claims is confined to suits arising from contracts express or implied. Langford v. U. S., 101 U. S., 341. The United States can not be sued in the Court of Claims on equitable considerations merely. Bonner v. U. S., 9 Wall., 156. The language of the statutes which confer jurisdiction on the Court of Claims excludes, by the strongest implication, demands against the Government founded on torts. In such cases, where it is proper for the nation to furnish a remedy, Congress has wisely reserved the matter for its own determination. Gibbons v. U. S., 8 Wall., 269, 275; Reed v. U. S., 11 Wall., 591; Langford v. U. S., 101 U. S., 341. See, also, paragraphs 339-353, post.

CONTRACTS.

The Court of Claims, in the construction and enforcement of contracts, is bound to apply the principles which govern like contracts between individuals. U. S. v. Smoot, 15 Wall., 36; Curtis v. U. S., 2 Ct. Cls., 144; Brooke v. U. S., ibid., 180. All questions of salary are questions of contract, and whether the salary is fixed by law, or by order of a Department under authority of law, the Government contracts to pay the officer his salary, and, failing to do so, a suit therefor may be maintained in this court, whether the case arises under a revenue act or any other. Patton v. U. S., 7 Ct. Cls., 362. The United States can no more discharge its contracts by such performance than can an individual person do so. Congress may fail to appropriate, in whole or in part, the money required for payment of a public creditor, and thus leave the public officer without authority to draw money from the Treasury for that purpose, but the indebtedness and liability remain in force. Mitchell v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls., 281, 287; Graham v. U. S., 1 ibid., 380; Collins v. U. S., 15 ibid., 22; French v. U. S., 16 ibid., 419. An officer who has been wholly retired from the service, but in whose case the order of retirement has been revoked by the President, who directs his name to be placed on the retired list, is an officer de facto, and though illegally on such retired list, money paid him by way of salary, so long as he holds the office in good faith, can not be recovered back. When one claiming to be an officer renders no service and holds no official relations with the Government, money paid him for service may be recovered back. Miller v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls., 338. In an action in the Court of Claims to recover a balance claimed to be due on pay account, the United States can set up, as a counter claim, an alleged overpayment to him on account of pay, and can have judgment for its collection. U. S. v. Burchard, 125 U. S., 176; McElrath v. U. S., 102 U. S., 426.

An officer can only bind the Government by acts which come within a just exercise of his official power. Hunter v. U. S., 5 Pet., 173, 178; The Floyd Acceptances, 7 Wall., 666; Whiteside v. U. S., 93 U. S., 247. Unless the Government has ratified a contract of an officer in excess of his authority, or received the benefit of it, it is not liable. The ratification of some of a series of unauthorized acts is not to be construed to be an approval of any not specified. Pitcher v. U. S., 1 Ct. Cls., 7; De Celis v. U. S., 13 Ct. Cls., 117.

IMPLIED CONTRACTS.

To constitute an implied contract "there must have been some consideration moving to the United States; or they must have received the money, charged with a duty to pay it over; or the claimant must have had a lawful right to it when it was received, as in the case of money paid by mistake. Knote v. U. S., 95 U. S., 149, 156. A contract to reimburse is implied when the Government takes private property for public use. Such a taking of private property by the Government when the emergency of the public service in time of war, or impending public danger, is too urgent to admit of delay, is everywhere regarded as justified, if the necessity for the use of the property is imperative and immediate and the danger, as heretofore described,

Second. All set-offs,¹ counterclaims, claims for damages, whether liquidated or unliquidated, or other demands whatsoever, on the part of the Government of the United States against any person making claim against the Government in said court.

Third. The claim of any paymaster, quartermaster, commissary of subsistence, or other disbursing officer of the United States, or of his administrators or executors, for relief from responsibility on account of capture or otherwise, while in the line of his duty, of Government funds, vouchers, records, or papers in his charge, and for which such officer was and is held responsible.²

is impending; and it is equally clear that the taking of such property, under such circumstances, creates an obligation on the part of the Government to reimburse the owner to the full value of the service. Private rights, under such extreme and imperious circumstances, must give way, for the time, to the public good, but the Government must make full restitution for the sacrifice. U. S. v. Russell, 13 Wall., 623, 629. Beneficial volunteer service does not raise an implied contract, unless there has been an inducement, agreement, or ratification. Boston v. The District of Columbia, 19 Ct. Cls., 31. The court has jurisdiction of a suit by a patentee for the royalty agreed to be paid for the use of his invention by an authorized officer of the Government. Burns v. U. S., 12 Wall., 246.

A contract is implied from the fact that the Government manufactured a patented military device, without market value, on the solicitation of the patentee, that it should pay for the right to use the invention. Palmer v. U. S., 128 U. S., 262. The United States may be sued for use of a patented invention by its officers for its benefit if the right of the patentee is acknowledged. Hollister v. Benedict Manufacturing Co., 113 U. S., 59; U. S. v. Burns, 12 Wall., 246. When an officer of the Government is properly assigned to the work of devising something to be used in the public service, the Government meeting the expenses and paying the officer his usual salary, the Government is not liable for royalty on the invention, though it was made by the officer previous to the time he was assigned to the work, if the labor and expense of perfecting it was borne by the Government. Solomons v. U. S., 22 Ct. Cls., 335; 21 ibid., 479. The policy of the War Department of late years toward inventors has been one of neutrality, neither denying nor admitting legal rights, but taking inventions to perfect the Government arms, leaving inventors free to seek redress without prejudice before other tribunals than an Executive Department. Berdan v. U. S., 26 Ct. Cls., 48, 60. See, also, Clyde v. U. S., 13 Wall., 38; U. S. v. Russell, 13 Wall., 623; U. S. v. Bostwick, 94 U. S., 53; Fichera's case, 9 Ct. Cls., 254; Macauley's case, 11 Ct. Cls., 693; Clark's case, 11 Ct. Cls., 698; Roman et al. v. U. S., 11 Ct. Cls., 761; Campbell's case, 13 Ct. Cls., 470.

¹The right of set-off did not exist at common law, and is everywhere founded upon statutory regulation. Tillou v. U. S., 1 Ct. Cls., 454; 2 ibid., 588, and U. S. v. Eckford, 6 Wall., 484. State laws in such a case do not constitute the rule of decision, but the question arises, exclusively, under the act of Congress; and no local law nor usage can have any influence in its determination. Ibid.; Reeside v. Walker, 11 How., 272, 290.

²Under this provision relief has been afforded to a paymaster who was attacked and robbed by highwaymen. Broadhead v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls., 125. To a disbursing officer for loss by the failure of a national bank, which was a designated depository. Hobbs v. U. S., 17 ibid., 189. To a disbursing officer for money stolen from a safe. Scott v. U. S., 18 ibid., 1; Clark v. U. S., 11 ibid., 698; Howell v. U. S., 7 ibid., 512. To a quartermaster for money lost from his person, the money being carried in the way such officers usually carry it on similar occasions, under circumstances utterly free from suspicion and after diligent efforts had been made to recover the same. Whittlesey v. U. S., 5 ibid., 452. To a quartermaster for money stolen from his room, due precaution for its safety having been taken. Malone v. U. S., 5 ibid., 486; Norton v. U. S., 2 ibid., 523. To a paymaster for money contained in a treasure box stolen by soldiers at a garrison. Glenn v. U. S., 4 ibid., 501. To an engineer officer for money captured by the enemy. *Prince v. U. Claims for captured and abandoned property.

Mar. 12, 1863, c. 120, s. 3, v. 12, p. 820; July 2, 1864, c. 225, ss. 2, 3, v. 13, pp. 375, 376; July 27, 1868, c. 276, s. 3, v. 15, p. 243.

Fourth. Of all claims for the proceeds of captured or abandoned property, as provided by the act of March 12, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, chapter one hundred and twenty, entitled "An act to provide for the collection of abandoned property and for the prevention of frauds in insurrectionary districts within the United States," or by the act of July two, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, chapter two hundred and twenty-five, being an act in addition thereto: Provided, That the remedy given in cases of seizure under the said acts, by preferring claim in the Court of Claims, shall be exclusive, precluding the owner of any property taken by agents of the Treasury Department as abandoned or captured property in virtue or under color of said acts from suit at common law, or any other mode of redress whatever, before any court other than said Court of Claims.¹

Private claims in Congress, when transmitted to Court of Claims.

Mar. 3, 1863, c. 92, s. 2, v. 12, p. 765.

Sec. 1060, R. S.

363. All petitions and bills praying or providing for the satisfaction of private claims against the Government, founded upon any law of Congress, or upon any regulation of an Executive Department, or upon any contract, expressed or implied, with the Government of the United States, shall, unless otherwise ordered by resolution of the House in which they are introduced, be transmitted by the Secretary of the Senate or the Clerk of the House of Representatives, with all the accompanying documents, to the Court of Claims.

Judgments for set-off or counterclaim, how enforced.

up on the part of the Government against any person making claim against the Government in said court, the court shall hear and determine such claim or demand both for and against the Government and claimant; and if upon the whole case it finds that the claimant is indebted to the Government, it shall render judgment to that effect, and such judgment shall be final, with the right of appeal, as in other cases provided for by law. Any transcript of such judgment, filed in the clerk's office of any district or circuit court, shall be entered upon the records thereof, and shall thereby become and be a judgment of such court and be enforced as other judgments in such courts are enforced.¹

Mar. 3, 1863, c. 92, s. 3, v. 12, p. 765.
Sec. 1061, R. S.

365. Whenever the Court of Claims ascertains the facts of any loss by any paymaster, quartermaster, commissary of subsistence, or other disbursing officer, in the cases hereinbefore provided, to have been without fault or negligence on the part of such officer, it shall make a decree setting forth the amount thereof, and upon such decree the proper accounting officers of the Treasury shall allow to such officer the amount so decreed, as a credit in the settlement of his accounts.

Sec. 1062, R. S.

366. Whenever any claim is made against any Executive Department, involving disputed facts or controverted questions of law, where the amount in controversy exceeds three thousand dollars, or where the decision will affect a class of cases, or furnish a precedent for the future action of any Executive Department in the adjustment of a class of cases, without regard to the amount involved in the particular case, or where any authority, right, privilege, or exemption is claimed or denied under the Constitution of the United States, the head of such Department may cause such claim, with all the vouchers, papers, proofs, and documents pertaining thereto, to be transmitted to the Court of Claims, and the same shall be there proceeded in as if originally commenced by the voluntary action of the claimant; and the Secretary of the Treasury may, upon the certificate of any Auditor or Comptroller of the Treasury, direct any account, matter, or claim, of the character, amount, or class described in this section, to be transmitted, with all the vouchers, papers, documents, and proofs pertaining thereto, to the said court, for trial and adjudication: Provided, That no case shall be referred by any head of a Department unless it belongs to one of the several Procedure in cases transmitted by Departments.

June 25, 1868, c. 71, s. 7, v. 15, p. 76.

Sec. 1064, R. S.

367. All cases transmitted by the head of any Department, or upon the certificate of any Auditor or Comptroller, according to the provisions of the preceding section, shall be proceeded in as other cases pending in the Court of Claims, and shall, in all respects, be subject to the same rules and regulations.¹

Judgments in cases transmitted by Departments, how paid.

June 25, 1868, c. 71, s. 7, v. 15, p. 76.

Sec. 1065, R. S.

368. The amount of any final judgment or decree rendered in favor of the claimant, in any case transmitted to the Court of Claims under the two preceding sections, shall be paid out of any specific appropriation applicable to the case, if any such there be; and where no such appropriation exists, the judgment or decree shall be paid in the same manner as other judgments of the said court.

Claims growing out of treaties not cognizable therein.

Mar. 3, 1863, c. 92, s. 9, v. 12, p. 767.

Sec. 1066, R. S.

369. The jurisdiction of the said court shall not extend to any claim against the Government not pending therein on December one, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, growing out of or dependent on any treaty stipulation entered into with foreign nations or with the Indian tribes.

Claims pending in other courts not to be prosecuted in Court of Claims.

June 25, 1868, c. 71, s. 8, v. 15, p. 77.

Sec. 1067, R. S.

370. No person shall file or prosecute in the Court of Claims, or in the Supreme Court on appeal therefrom, any claim for or in respect to which he or any assignee of his has pending in any other court any suit or process against any person who, at the time when the cause of action alleged in such suit or process arose, was, in respect thereto, acting or professing to act, mediately or immediately, under the authority of the United States.

Aliens.

specifically that such fraud was practiced or attempted to be practiced, and thereupon to give judgment that such claim is forfeited to the Government, and that the claimant be forever barred from prosecuting the same.

New trial on motion of claimant.

Feb. 24, 1855, c. 122, s. 9, v. 10, p. 614.

Sec. 1087, R. S.

389. When judgment is rendered against any claimant, the court may grant a new trial for any reason which, by the rules of common law or chancery in suits between individuals, would furnish sufficient ground for granting a new trial.

New trial on motion of United States.

June 25, 1868, c. 71, s. 2, v. 15, p. 75.

Sec. 1088, R. S.

390. The Court of Claims, at any time while any claim is pending before it, or on appeal from it, or within two years next after the final disposition of such claim, may, on motion on behalf of the United States, grant a new trial and stay the payment of any judgment therein, upon such evidence, cumulative or otherwise, as shall satisfy the court that any fraud, wrong, or injustice in the premises has been done to the United States; but until an order is made staying the payment of a judgment, the same shall be payable and paid as now provided by law.¹

Payment of judgments.

Mar. 3, 1863, c. 92, s. 7, v. 12, p. 766.

Sec. 1089, R. S.

391. In all cases of final judgments by the Court of Claims, or, on appeal, by the Supreme Court, where the same are affirmed in favor of the claimant, the sum due thereby shall be paid out of any general appropriation made by law for the payment and satisfaction of private claims, on presentation to the Secretary of the Treasury of a copy of said judgment, certified by the clerk of the Court of Claims, and signed by the chief justice, or, in his absence, by the presiding judge of said court.

Mar. 3, 1863, c. 92, s. 7, v. 12, p. 766.

Sec. 1090, R. S.

392. In cases where the judgment appealed from is in favor of the claimant, and the same is affirmed by the Supreme Court, interest thereon at the rate of five per centum shall be allowed from the date of its presentation to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment as aforesaid, but no interest shall be allowed subsequent to the affirmation, unless presented for payment to the Secretary of the Treasury as aforesaid.

Interest on claims.

Mar. 3, 1863, c. 92, s. 7, v. 12, p. 766.

Sec. 1091, R. S.

393. No interest shall be allowed on any claim up to the time of the rendition of judgment thereon by the Court of Claims, unless upon a contract expressly stipulating for the payment of interest.

Payment of judgment a full discharge, etc.

Mar. 3, 1863, c. 92, s. 7, v. 12, p. 766.

Sec. 1092, R. S.

394. The payment of the amount due by any judgment of the Court of Claims and of any interest thereon allowed by law, as hereinbefore provided, shall be a full discharge to the United States of all claim and demand touching any of the matters involved in the controversy.

395. Any final judgment against the claimant on any claim prosecuted as provided in this chapter shall forever bar any further claim or demand against the United States arising out of the matters involved in the controversy.

THE BOWMAN ACT.

396. Whenever a claim or matter is pending before any committee of the Senate or House of Representatives, or before either House of Congress, which involves the investigation and determination of facts, the committee or House may cause the same, with the vouchers, papers, proofs, and documents pertaining thereto, to be transmitted to the Court of Claims of the United States, and the same shall there be proceeded in under such rules as the court may adopt. When the facts shall have been found, the court shall not enter judgment thereon, but shall report the same to the committee or to the House by which the case was transmitted for its consideration. Sec. 1, act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. L., 485).

Claims, etc., pending before Congress involving investigation to be referred to Court of Claims.
Sec. 1, Mar. 3, 1883, v. 22, p. 485.

397. That when a claim or matter is pending in any of the Executive Departments which may involve controverted questions of fact or law, the head of such Department may transmit the same, with the vouchers, papers, proofs, and documents pertaining thereto, to said court, and the same shall be there proceeded in under such rules as the court may adopt. When the facts and conclusions of law shall have been found, the court shall not enter judgment thereon, but shall report its findings and opinions to the Department by which it was transmitted for its guidance and action.¹ Sec. 2, ibid.

Certain claims pending in Executive Departments may be transmitted, etc. to Court of Claims.

398. The jurisdiction of said court shall not extend to or include any claim against the United States growing out of the destruction or damage to property by the Army or Navy during the war for the suppression of the rebellion, or for the use and occupation of real estate by any part of the military or naval forces of the United States in the operations of said forces during the said war at the seat of war; nor shall the said court have jurisdiction of any claim against the United States which is now barred by virtue of the provisions of any law of the United States. Sec. 3, ibid.

Claims not within jurisdiction of court.

Jurisdiction of Court of Claims.
R. S., sec. 1058, p. 195.

399. In any case of a claim for supplies or stores taken by or furnished to any part of military or naval forces of the United States for their use during the late war for the suppression of the rebellion, the petition shall aver that the person who furnished such supplies or stores, or from whom such supplies or stores were taken, did not give any aid or comfort to said rebellion, but was throughout that war loyal to the Government of the United States, and the fact of such loyalty shall be a jurisdictional fact; and unless the said court shall, on a preliminary inquiry, find that the person who furnished such supplies or stores, or from whom the same were taken as aforesaid, was loyal to the Government of the United States throughout said war, the court shall not have jurisdiction of such cause, and the same shall, without further proceedings, be dismissed. Sec. 4, ibid.

400. That the Attorney-General, or his assistants under his direction, shall appear for the defense and protection of the interests of the United States in all cases which may be transmitted to the Court of Claims under this act, with the same power to interpose counterclaims, offsets, defenses for fraud practiced or attempted to be practiced by claimants, and other defenses, in like manner as he is now required to defend the United States in said court. Sec. 5, ibid.

401. That in the trial of such cases no person shall be excluded as a witness because he or she is a party to or interested in the same. Sec. 6, ibid.

402. That reports of the Court of Claims to Congress under this act, if not finally acted upon during the session at which they are reported, shall be continued from session to session and from Congress to Congress until the same shall be finally acted upon.¹ Sec. 7, ibid.

THE TUCKER ACT.

403. That the Court of Claims shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine the following matters:

First. All claims founded upon the Constitution of the United States² or any law of Congress, except for pensions, or upon any regulation of an Executive Department, or upon any contract, expressed or implied, with the Government of the United States, or for damages, liquidated or unliquidated, in cases not sounding in tort, in respect of which claims the party would be entitled to redress against the United States either in a court of law, equity, or admiralty if the United States were suable: Provided, however, That nothing in this section shall be construed as giving to either of the courts herein mentioned jurisdiction to hear and determine claims growing out of the late civil war, and commonly known as "war claims," or to hear and determine other claims which have heretofore been rejected or reported on adversely by any court, Department, or commission authorized to hear and determine the same.

"War" and rejected claims excepted.

Second. All set-offs, counterclaims, claims for damages, whether liquidated or unliquidated, or other demands whatsoever on the part of the Government of the United States against any claimant against the Government in said court: Provided, That no suit against the Government of the United States shall be allowed under this act unless the same shall have been brought within six years after the right accrued for which the claim is made. Act of March 3, 1887, vol. 24, p. 505. Provided further, That no suit against the Government of the United States, brought by any officer of the United States to recover fees for services alleged to have been performed for the United States, shall be allowed under this act unless an account for said fees shall have been rendered and finally acted upon according to the provisions of the act of July 31, 1894,¹ unless the proper accounting officer of the Treasury fails to finally act thereon within six months after the account is received in said office. *Act of June 27, 1898 (30 Stat. Petitions for release from official bond.
Sec. 3, ibid.

405. That whenever any person shall present his petition to the Court of Claims alleging that he is or has been indebted to the United States as an officer or agent thereof, or by virtue of any contract therewith, or that he is the guarantor, or surety, or personal representative of any officer, or agent, or contractor so indebted, or that he, or the person for whom he is such surety, guarantor, or personal representative has held any office or agency under the United States, or entered into any contract therewith, under which it may be or has been claimed that an indebtedness to the United States has arisen and exists, and that he or the person he represents has applied to the proper Department of the Government requesting that the account of such office, agency, or indebtedness may be adjusted and settled, and that three years have elapsed from the date of such application and said account still remains unsettled and unadjusted, and that no suit upon the same has been brought by the United States, said court shall, due notice first being given to the head of said Department and to the Attorney-General of the United States, proceed to hear the parties and to ascertain the amount, if any, due the United States on said account. The Attorney-General shall represent the United States at the hearing of said cause. The court may postpone the same from time to time whenever justice shall require. The judgment of said court or of the Supreme Court of the United States, to which an appeal shall lie, as in other cases, as to the amount due, shall be binding and conclusive upon the parties. The payment of such amount so found due by the court shall discharge such obligation. An action shall accrue to the United States against such principal, or surety, or representative to recover the amount so found due, which may be brought at any time within three years after the final judgment of said court. Sec. 5, ibid.

407. That the plaintiff in any suit brought under the provisions of the second section of this act shall file a petition, duly verified, with the clerk of the respective court having jurisdiction of the case, and in the district where the plaintiff resides. Such petition shall set forth the full name and residence of the plaintiff, the nature of his claim, and a succinct statement of the facts upon which the claim is based, the money or any other thing claimed, or the damages sought to be recovered and praying the court for a judgment or decree upon the facts and law. Sec. 5, ibid.

Service.
Sec. 6, ibid.

408. That the plaintiff shall cause a copy of his petition filed under the preceding section to be served upon the district attorney of the United States in the district wherein suit is brought, and shall mail a copy of the same, by registered letter; to the Attorney-General of the United States, and shall, thereupon cause to be filed with the clerk of the court wherein suit is instituted an affidavit of such service and the mailing of such letter. It shall be the duty of the district attorney upon whom service of petition is made as aforesaid to appear and defend the interests of the Government in the suit, and within sixty days after the service of petition upon him, unless the time should be extended by order of the court made in the case to file a plea, answer, or demurrer on the part of the Government, and to file a notice of any counterclaim, set-off, claim for damages, or other demand or defense whatsoever of the Government in the premises: Provided, That should the district attorney neglect or refuse to file the plea, answer, demurrer, or defense, as required, the plaintiff may proceed with the case under such rules as the court may adopt in the premises; but the plaintiff shall not have judgment or decree for his claim, or any part thereof, unless he shall establish the same by proof satisfactory to the court. Sec. 6, ibid.

Sec. 7, ibid.

409. That it shall be the duty of the court to cause a written opinion to be filed in the cause, setting forth the specific findings by the court of the facts therein and the conclusions of the court upon all questions of law involved in the case, and to render judgment thereon. If the suit be in equity or admiralty, the court shall proceed with the same according to the rules of such courts. Sec. 7, ibid.

Interested parties may testify.
Sec. 8, ibid.

410. That in the trial of any suit brought under any of the provisions of this act, no person shall be excluded as a witness because he is a party to or interested in said suit; and any plaintiff or party in interest may be examined as a witness on the part of the Government.

Section ten hundred and seventy-nine of the Revised Statutes is hereby repealed. The provisions of section ten hundred and eighty of the Revised Statutes shall apply to cases under this act. Sec. 8, ibid.

Appeals and writs of error.
Sec. 9, ibid.

411. That the plaintiff or the United States, in any suit brought under the provisions of this act shall have the same rights of appeal or writ of error as are now reserved in the statutes of the United States in that behalf made, and upon the conditions and limitations therein contained.

Procedure.

The modes of procedure in claiming and perfecting an appeal or writ of error shall conform in all respects, and as near as may be, to the statutes and rules of court governing appeals and writs of error in like causes. Sec. 9, ibid.

Adverse judgments to United States to be certified to Attorney-General.
Sec. 10, ibid.

412. That when the findings of fact and the law applicable thereto have been filed in any case as provided in section six of this act, and the judgment or decree is adverse to the Government, it shall be the duty of the district attorney to transmit to the Attorney-General of the United States certified copies of all the papers filed in the cause, with a transcript of the testimony taken, the written findings of the court, and his written opinion as to the same; whereupon the Attorney-General shall determine and direct whether an appeal or writ of error shall be taken or not; and when so directed the district attorney shall cause an appeal or writ of error to be perfected in accordance with the terms of the statutes and rules of practice governing the same: Provided, That no appeal or writ of error shall be allowed after six months from the judgment or decree in such suit. From the date of such final judgment or decree interest shall be computed thereon, at the rate of four per centum per annum, until the time when an appropriation is made for the payment of the judgment or decree. Sec. 10, ibid.

rendered giving the date of each, and a statement of the costs taxed in each case. Sec. 11, ibid.

414. That when any claim or matter may be pending in any of the Executive Departments which involves controverted questions of fact or law, the head of such Department, with the consent of the claimant, may transmit the same, with the vouchers, papers, proofs, and documents pertaining thereto, to said Court of Claims, and the same shall be there proceeded in under such rules as the court may adopt. When the facts and conclusions of law shall have been found, the court shall report its findings to the Department by which it was transmitted.¹ Sec. 12, ibid.

by Departments.
Sec. 12, ibid.

415. That in every case which shall come before the Court of Claims, or is now pending therein, under the provisions of an act entitled "An act to afford assistance and relief to Congress and the Executive Departments in the investigation of claims and demands against the Government," approved March third, eighteen hundred and eighty-three, if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court, upon the facts established, that it has jurisdiction to render judgment or decree thereon under existing laws or under the provisions of this act, it shall proceed to do so, giving to either party such further opportunity for hearing as in its judgment justice shall require, and report its proceedings therein to either House of Congress or to the Department by which the same was referred to said court. Sec. 13, ibid.

452. The Secretary of the Interior is charged with the supervision of public business relating to the following subjects:

First. The census; when directed by law.

Second. The public lands, including mines.¹

Third. The Indians.²

Fourth. Pensions and bounty lands.

Fifth. Patents for inventions.³

Seventh. Education.

Eighth. Government Hospital for the Insane.⁴

Ninth. Columbia Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb.

453. The Secretary of the Interior shall hereafter exercise all the powers and perform all the duties in relation to the Territories of the United States that were, prior to March first, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, by law or by custom exercised and performed by the Secretary of State.

² By section 6 of the act of March 3, 1849 (9 Stat. L., 395), the supervising and appellate powers in respect to Indian affairs, formerly exercised by the Secretary of War, were transferred to the Secretary of the Interior. For statutes respecting the Indians see the chapter so entitled.

Commissioners to revise and consolidate the General Statutes of the United States. June 27, 1866, v. 14, p. 74.

¹The Revised Statutes must be accepted as the law on the subjects which they embrace as it existed on the 1st day of December, 1873, and were enacted to present the entire body of the laws in a concise and compact form. When the language of the Revised Statutes is plain and unambiguous, the grammatical structure simple and accurate, and the meaning of the whole intelligible and obvious, a court is not at liberty, by construction, to reproduce the law as it stood before the revision. U. S. v. Bowen, 100 U. S., 508. See also Wright v. U. S., 15 Ct. Cls., 80, 86; U. S. v. No. Am. Com. Co., 74 Fed. Rep., 145.

commissioners.
Sec. 2, ibid.

455. In performing this duty the commissioners shall bring together all statutes and parts of statutes which, from similarity of subject, ought to be brought together, omitting redundant or obsolete enactments, and making such alterations as may be necessary to reconcile the contradictions, supply the omissions, and amend the imperfections of the original text; and they shall arrange the same under titles, chapters, and sections, or other suitable divisions and subdivisions, with headnotes briefly expressive of the matter contained in such divisions; also with side notes, so drawn as to point to the contents of the text, and with references to the original text from which each section is compiled, and to the decisions of the Federal courts, explaining or expounding the same, and also to such decisions of the State courts as they may deem expedient; and they shall provide by a temporary index, or other expedient means, for an easy reference to every portion of their report. Sec. 2, ibid.

mitted to Congress.

456. That when the commissioners have completed the revision and consolidation of the statutes, as aforesaid, they shall cause a copy of the same, in print, to be submitted to Congress, that the statutes so revised and consolidated may be reenacted, if Congress shall so determine; and at the same time they shall also suggest to Congress such contradictions, omissions, and imperfections as may appear in the original text, with the mode in which they have reconciled, supplied, and amended the same; and they may also designate such statutes or parts of statutes as, in their judgment, ought to be repealed, with their reasons for such repeal.¹ Sec. 3, ibid.

¹ The act of June 27, 1866 (14 Stat. L., 74), was revived by the act of May 4, 1870, (16 Stat. L., 96), which authorized the President to appoint three commissioners to prosecute and complete the work prescribed by that statute. The work of revision was to be completed within three years from the date of passage of the act (May 4, 1870). The act of March 3, 1873 (17 Stat. L., 579), authorized the appointment of a joint committee of Congress to accept the draft of the revision of laws, so far as the same was completed at the expiration of the time designated for that purpose (May 4, 1873). The same statute authorized the existing joint committee to contract with some suitable person or persons to prepare a revision of the statutes, already reported by the commissioners, in the form of a bill to be presented at the opening of the Forty-third Congress. The publication of the first edition of the Revised Statutes was authorized by the act of June 20, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 113); pp. 401-403, post.

two of "An act providing for publication of the revised statutes and laws of the United States," approved June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, shall be made by the Secretary of State under the seal of the Department of State, and so much of said section as provides that such certificate shall be under the seal of the United States, is hereby repealed. Act of December 28, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 293).

SCOPE OF THE REVISED STATUTES AND REPEAL PROVISIONS.

Scope of Revised Statutes.
Sec. 5595, R.S.

462. The foregoing seventy-three titles embrace the statutes of the United States general and permanent in their nature, in force on the first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, as revised and consolidated by commissioners appointed under an act of Congress, and the same shall be designated and cited, as The Revised Statutes of the United States.¹

Repeal of acts embraced in revision.
Sec. 5596, R.S.

463. All acts of Congress passed prior to said first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, any portion of which is embraced in any section of said revision, are hereby repealed, and the section applicable thereto shall be in force in lieu thereof; all parts of such acts not contained in such revision having been repealed or superseded by subsequent acts, or not being general and permanent in their nature: Provided, That the incorporation into said revision of any general and permanent provision, taken from an act making appropriations, or from an act containing other provisions of a private, local, or temporary character, shall not repeal, or in any way affect any appropriation, or any provision of a private, local, or temporary character, contained in any of said acts, but the same shall remain in force; and all acts of Congress passed prior to said last-named day, no part of which are embraced in said revision, shall not be affected or changed by its enactment.

Accrued rights reserved.
Sec. 5597, R.S.

464. The repeal of the several acts embraced in said revision shall not affect any act done, or any right accruing or accrued, or any suit or proceeding had or commenced in any civil cause before the said repeal, but all rights and liabilities under said acts shall continue, and may be enforced in the same manner, as if said repeal had not been

465. All offenses committed, and all penalties or forfeitures incurred under any statute embraced in said revision prior to said repeal, may be prosecuted and punished in the same manner and with the same effect as if said repeal had not been made. Prosecutions and punishments. Sec. 5598, R. S.

466. All acts of limitation, whether applicable to civil causes and proceedings, or to the prosecution of offenses, or for the recovery of penalties or forfeitures, embraced in said revision and covered by said repeal, shall not be affected thereby, but all suits, proceedings, or prosecutions, whether civil or criminal, for causes arising or acts done or committed prior to said repeal, may be commenced and prosecuted within the same time as if said repeal had not been made. Acts of limitation. Sec. 5599, R. S.

467. The arrangement and classification of the several sections of the revision have been made for the purpose of a more convenient and orderly arrangement of the same, and therefore no inference or presumption of a legislative construction is to be drawn by reason of the title under which any particular section is placed. Arrangement and classification of sections. Sec. 5600, R. S.

468. The enactment of the said revision is not to affect or repeal any act of Congress passed since the 1st day of December, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, and all acts passed since that date are to have full effect as if passed after the enactment of this revision, and so far as such acts vary from or conflict with any provision contained in said revision, they are to have effect as subsequent statutes, and as repealing any portion of the revision inconsistent therewith. Acts passed since Dec. 1, 1873, not affected. Feb. 18, 1875, c. 84, v. 18, p. 329; Mar. 3, 1875, c. 130, s. 9, v. 18, p. 401. Sec. 5601, R. S.

SECOND EDITION OF THE REVISED STATUTES.

EDITION OF 1878.

469. That the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized to appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, one person, learned in the law, as a commissioner, for the purpose of preparing and publishing a new edition of the first volume of the Revised Statutes of the United States.¹ Act of March 2, 1877 (19 Stat. L., 268). Commissioner to prepare new edition of Revised Statutes. Mar. 2, 1877, v. 19, p. 268.

¹The second edition of the Revised Statutes is only a new publication; a compilation, containing the original law, with specific amendments incorporated therein according to the judgment of the editor. Wright v. U. S., 15 Ct. Cls., 80. The Revised Statutes did not affect statutes passed between December 1, 1873, and June 22, 1874. See note 1 to paragraph 405, ante.

Duty of commissioner.
Sec. 2, ibid.

Amendments.

References.

Revision of indexes.

Additional matter to be included.

470. That in performing this duty, said commissioner shall be required to incorporate into the text of the Revised Statutes as published in the year anno Domini eighteen hundred and seventy-five, under the act of June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, all the amendments which have been made in the revision so published since the first day of December, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, and all that shall be made up to the close of the present session of Congress, with marginal references to such amendatory acts, and to all the decisions of the several courts of the United States (as far as the same may have been published) which may have been made subsequent to those already cited in the margin of the present revision, and may include also citations to such judicial decisions of the various State courts as he may deem important; and he shall also make marginal references to the various statutes passed by Congress since the first day of December, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, not expressly therein declared to be amendments to the Revised Statutes, but which, in the opinion of said commissioner, may in any manner affect or modify any of the provisions of the said Revised Statutes, or any of the amendments thereto, indicating in such marginal notes by a difference in type the references to statutes of this kind, and he shall revise the indexes and incorporate therein references to the additions herein required. Sec. 2, ibid.

471. That there shall also be included in said edition the Articles of Confederation, the Declaration of our National Independence, the Ordinance of seventeen hundred and eighty-seven for the government of the Northwestern Territory, the Constitution of the United States, with footnotes referring to decisions of the Federal courts thereon, the "Act to provide for the revision and consolidation of the statute laws of the United States," approved June twenty-seventh, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, and the "Act providing for publication of the Revised Statutes and the laws of the United States," approved June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, as well as the present act. Sec. 3, ibid.

472. 473. That an act entitled "An act to provide for the preparation and publication of a new edition of the Revised Statutes of the United States," approved March second, ^{New edition of Revised Statutes to be prima facie evidence. ¹ Under the authority conferred by this statute the Hon. George S. Boutwell was appointed a commissioner to prepare the new edition. The following extract from the preface to the second edition of the Revised Statutes will explain its scope.

By an act of Congress approved March 2, 1877 (v. 19, c. 82, p. 268), authority was given for the appointment by the President of a commissioner, whose duty it should be to prepare and publish, subject to the examination and approval of the Secretary of State, a new edition of the first volume of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

The jurisdiction of the commissioner was defined and limited by the statute. He was directed to incorporate into the text of the first edition of the statutes all the amendments made since the first day of December, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, including those made by the Forty-fourth Congress, with marginal references to the acts of amendment and to the decisions of the several courts of the United States, with like references to all the statutes passed in the same period, which, in the opinion of the commissioner, might in any many affect or modify any of the provisions of the first edition of the Revised Statutes.

He was also directed to include in the new edition the Articles of Confederation, the Declaration of our National Independence, the Ordinance of Seventeen hundred and eighty-seven for the Government of the Northwestern Territory, and the Constitution of the United States, with footnotes referring to the decisions of the Federal courts thereon. These papers were not printed with the first edition of the statutes.

This edition is not in any proper sense a new revision of the statutes of the United States. The commissioner was not clothed with power to change the substance or to alter the language of the existing edition of the Revised Statutes, nor could he correct any errors or supply any omissions therein except as authorized by the several statutes of amendment. Of specific amendments there are, however, several hundred, which have been incorporated with the text. The portions of the statutes repealed are printed in italics and included in brackets, and the new matter introduced is printed in the ordinary roman letter and also included in brackets.

So much of the work as affects the text of the present edition has been examined under the direction of the Hon. William M. Evarts, Secretary of State, by Hon. Charles P. James, one of the commissioners by whom the first edition of the Revised Statutes was prepared.

The acts of Congress passed since the first edition of the Revised Statutes was issued, and affecting the text thereof, are referred to in the margin of the respective sections so affected.

In this edition full and, it is believed, complete notes of reference to the opinions of the Supreme Court of the United States will be found under the several para-the ninth and tenth lines of section four,¹ as published in the nineteenth volume of the Statutes at Large, the words “and conclusive;” and, in the tenth line, the words “and treaties;” and, by inserting after the word “Territories,” at the end of the eleventh line, the following words, to wit: “but shall not preclude reference to, nor control, in case of any discrepancy, the effect of any original act as passed by Congress since the first day of December, eighteen hundred and seventy-three.” Act of March 9, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 27).

graphs of the Constitution to which the opinions respectively relate, and reference is also made to the small number of decisions which interpret or in any manner touch the Ordinance for the Government of the Northwestern Territory.

The appendix contains the various statutes which provide for or relate to the “revision and consolidation of the statute laws of the United States,” and also a cross index by which the various provisions of the Revised Statutes may be traced to the original enactments in the Statutes at Large.

In the preparation of the index I have had the best assistance which I could command, and no labor has been avoided that could contribute in the least to the perfectness of the work. While it is not probable that the end sought has been attained I indulge the hope that the character of the index may, in some reasonable degree, meet the expectation of Congress, the executive officers of the Government, the judiciary, and the profession generally.

The analytical index to the Constitution was prepared by W. J. McDonald, esq., late Chief Clerk of the United States Senate.

The historical notes to the Declaration of Independence, the Articles of Confederation, and the Constitution are taken from a work entitled “The Organic Laws of the United States of America,” prepared by Maj. Ben: Perley Poore, and printed by authority of Congress.

² Under this resolution a supplement was published in 1881, entitled volume 1. It was then supposed that other volumes would be authorized, from time to time, by subsequent legislation. This proved not to be the case, as the act of April 9, 1890 (paragraph 420, post), provided for the continuation of the publication, to be issued in one volume and to embrace the general laws passed subsequent to the issue of the Revised Statutes and including those of the Forty-seventh, Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth, Fiftieth, and Fifty-first Congresses. See note 2 to paragraph 423, post.

487. President authorized to make and publish regulations for the Army.

President authorized to make and publish regulations for the Army.

Mar. 1, 1875, v. 18, p. 337.

487. That so much of the act approved July 15, 1870,¹ entitled "An act making appropriations for the support of the Army for the year ending June 30, 1871, and for other purposes" as requires the system of General Regulations for the Army therein authorized to be reported to Congress at its next session, and approved by that body be, and the same is hereby, repealed; and the President is hereby authorized, under said section, to make and publish regulations for the government of the Army in accordance with existing laws.² Act of March 1, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 337.)

¹Section 37 of the act of July 28, 1866 (14 Stat. L., 337), contained the following requirement: "The Secretary be and he is hereby directed to have prepared and to report to Congress, at its next session, a code of regulations for the government of the Army, and of the militia in actual service, which shall embrace all necessary orders and forms of a general character for the performance of all duties incumbent on officers and men in the military service, including rules for the government of courts-martial, the existing regulations to remain in force until Congress shall have acted on said report." No code of regulations was submitted to Congress in conformity to the terms of this statute, and it was subsequently held by the Attorney-General of the United States, in an opinion rendered in the case of Contract-Surgeon Bayne (XVII Opin. Att. Gen., 461), that the above section, if not repealed by the general repealing clause of the Revised Statutes (section 5596), was superseded by the act of March 1, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 337), (a) which in effect conferred authority to modify existing Army Regulations as well as to create new ones. It was also held by the same officer that the code of regulations prepared in conformity to the authority conferred by section 2 of the act of June 23, 1879, (b) which was approved and published to the Army on February 17, 1881 (Army Regulations of 1881), superseded the code of Army Regulations of 1863 (XVII Opin. Att. Gen., 461). See, also, U. S. v. Eaton, 144 U. S., 617, 688; Caha v. U. S., 152 U. S., 212, 219; Morrison v. U. S., 13 Ct. Cls., 1-6; Smith v. U. S., 23 ibid., 452; Low v. Harrison, 72 Maine, 104.

²The codification of the "Regulations of the Army and General Orders," prepared in conformity to section 2 of the Act of June 23, 1879 (21 Stat. L., 34), which was approved and promulgated to the Army on February 17, 1881 (Army Regulations of 1881), superseded the body of regulations similarly promulgated in 1863. XVII Opin. Att. Gen., 461.

The Army Regulations derive their force from the power of the President as Commander in Chief, and are binding upon all within the sphere of his legal and constitutional authority. Kurtz v. Moffatt, 115 U. S., 487, 503; U. S. v. Eliason, 16 Pet., 291; U. S. v. Freeman, 3 How., 558. The power of the Executive to establish rules and regulations for the government of the Army is undoubted. The power to establish implies, necessarily, the power to modify or repeal, or to create anew. The Secretary of War is the regular, constitutional organ of the President for the administration of the military establishment of the nation, and orders publicly promulgated through him must be received as the act of the Executive and, as such, be binding upon all within the sphere of his legal or constitutional authority. Such regulations can not be questioned or defied because they may be thought unwise or mistaken. U. S. v. Eliason, 16 Pet., 291, 302.

The term regulations of an Executive Department describes rules and regulations relating to subjects on which a department acts, which are made by the head under an act of Congress conferring that power, and thereby giving to such regulations 'the force of law. A mere order of the President or of a Secretary is not a regulation. Harvey v. U. S., 3 Ct. Cls., 38, 42; Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 494, and note 1; IV Compt. Dec., 225. A "regulation" affects a class of officers; an "instruction" is a direction to govern the conduct of the particular officer to whom it is addressed. Landram v. U. S., 16 Ct. Cls. 74. The Army Regulations when sanctioned by the President have the force of law, because it is done by him by the authority of law. U. S. v. Freeman, 3 How., 556; Gratiot v. U. S., 4 How., 80; Ex parte Reed, 100 U. S., 13; Smith v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cls., 452. When Congress permits regulations to be formulated and published and carried into effect from year to year, the legislative ratification must be implied. Maddox v. U. S., 20 Ct. Cls., 193, 198.

The authority of the head of an Executive Department to issue orders, regulations, and instructions, with the approval of the President, is subject to the condition, necessarily implied, that they must be consistent with the statutes which have been enacted by Congress. U. S. v. Symonds, 120 U. S., 46, 49; U. S. v. Bishop, idem., 51; Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 494, note 2; par. 6, p. 168. Regulations can have no retroactive effect. (U. S. v. Davis, 132 U. S., 334.) Provision of statute exists by which the statute regulations of the Army may, within certain limits, be altered by the Secretary of War, but there is no such provision in regard to the statute regulations of the Navy. VI Opin. Att. Gen., 10; 8 ibid., 337. The same discrepancy exists in the military law of Great Britain. Ibid.

Regulations prescribed and framed by the Secretary of War and which are intended for the direction and government of the officers of the Army and agents of the Department do not bind the Commander in Chief nor the head of the War Department. Burns v. U. S., 12 Wall., 246; Smith v. U. S., 24 Ct. Cls., 209, 215. But see Arthur v. U. S., 16 Ct. Cls., 422, and U. S. v. Barrows, 1 Abb., 351.

Regulations which heads of Departments are expressly authorized to make, in which the public is interested, become a part of that body of public records of which the courts take judicial notice. Caha v. U. S., 152 U. S., 211.

The purpose of a regulation is to carry into effect the law; but where rights, duties, and obligations are defined by statute they can not be taken away or abridged by regulations. Laurey v. U. S., 32 Ct. Cls., 259; U. S. v. Garlinger, 169 U. S., 316.

While regulations duly promulgated have the force of law in a limited sense, they can not enlarge or restrict the liability of the officer on his bond. Meads v. U. S., 81 Fed. Rep., 684.

Amendment and waiver of regulations.—Regulations made by the head of a Department may be amended or waived in their application to particular cases. III Compt. Dec., 305; IV, ibid., 40; I, ibid., 326. There must be a specific waiver, however, and in the absence of such specific waiver the regulation as it stands will be applied by the accounting officers in the settlement of accounts. III, ibid., 304; IV, ibid., 40.

¹The Secretary of War is expressly authorized by other enactments of Congress to prescribe regulations for the transportation, safe-keeping, and distribution of articles of supply purchased by the Quartermaster's and Subsistence Departments (sec. 219, R. S.); for the preparation, submission, and opening of bids, act of April 10, 1878 (20 Stat. Regulations may be divided into different classes with respect to the question of the power of the person making the regulation to authorize an exception to it. There are, or may be, those which have received the sanction of Congress, and it is evident that the Secretary of War would have no authority to make an exception to one of these. There are also those that are made pursuant to and in aid of a statute. These may be modified, but until this is done are binding as well on the authority that made them as on others. U. S. v. Barrows, 1 Abbott, 351.

There is also a large body of other regulations emanating from and depending solely on the authority of the President as Commander in Chief. With reference to such regulations it has, I believe, been sometimes claimed that the same rule should be applied to them that is applied to the regulations made pursuant to statute. But this has not been done in practice, and I do not think that it should be done, for the reason that it would seem to be an unnecessary, embarrassing, and perhaps unconstitutional limitation of the authority of the President as Commander in Chief. Opin. J. A. Gen., March 5, 1896.

HISTORICAL NOTE.

The first volume of Army Regulations, using that term in the sense in which it is now understood, was issued to the Army on May 1, 1813, under the authority conferred by the act of March 3 of that year.

From March 29, 1779, until May 1, 1813, the "Regulations for the Order and Discipline of the Troops of the United States" were in force. They were prepared by Major-General Baron Steuben, the Inspector-General of the Army during the latter part of the war of the Revolution, and consisted in great part of matter which would now be properly termed drill regulations. The work was first printed at Worcester, Mass., in 1778, and was formally approved and adopted by Congress on March 29, 1779. The last edition of the Steuben regulations appeared in 1809, and it continued in use as a drill book after it had ceased to have authority as a volume of army regulations. In 1808 a small volume was published, apparently with the sanction of the War Department, containing the Articles of War which had been enacted in 1806, to which were added such military laws as were then in force.

Section 5 of the act of March 3, 1813 (2 Stat. L., 819), required the Secretary of War to prepare general regulations which, "when approved by the President of the United States, shall be respected and obeyed until altered or revoked by the same authority." The volume of regulations issued in pursuance of this authority was entitled "Military laws and rules and regulations for the armies of the United States," and was approved by the President on May 1, 1813. It contained the Articles of War of 1806, together with the statutes relating to the military establishment and a small number of regulations, properly so called. Editions of this work were published in 1814 and 1815, the latter, however, without the authority of the War Department.

The act of April 24, 1816 (3 Stat. L., 298), provided that the "regulations in force before the reduction of the Army be recognized as far as the same shall be found applicable to the service, subject, however, to such alterations as the Secretary of War may adopt, with the approbation of the President." In accordance with this legislation a volume of regulations was issued in September, 1816, and in January, 1820, a new edition containing the orders of the War Department issued since September, 1816.

Section 14 of the act of March 2, 1821 (3 Stat. L., 616), contained a provision that "the system of regulations prepared by Major-General Scott shall be, and the same are hereby, approved and adopted for the government of the Army of the United States and of the militia when in the service of the United States." These regulations were approved by President Monroe and published to the Army in July, 1821. On May 7, 1822, section 14 of the act of March 2, 1821, was formally repealed, thus withdrawing the legislative sanction which had been conferred by the statute above cited. As to this enactment Attorney-General Wirt advised that, "notwithstanding such repeal, the regulations having received the sanction of the President, continued in force by the authority of the President in all cases where they did not conflict with positive legislation." 1 Opin. Att. Gen., 549. The Regulations of 1821 were revised under the direction of General Scott and a new edition was issued on March 1, 1825, which continued in force until 1835.

A volume of General Regulations, compiled under the direction of Major-General Macomb, was printed and prepared for issue on September 1, 1835, but was not formally approved and promulgated until December 31, 1836. A second edition of this work, with some modifications, was issued in 1841, and a third edition, containing alterations and amendments, which have been promulgated in orders or taken from former volumes of regulations, was issued to the Army on May 1, 1847.

On January 1, 1857, a volume of Army Regulations, containing a number of important modifications, together with a general rearrangement of paragraphs and subject-matter, was prepared under the direction of Secretary Davis, and published with the approval of the President on January 1, 1857. This volume continued in force until August 10, 1861, when it was replaced by a revised edition; a second edition of this work was issued on June 25, 1863, containing the "changes and laws affecting Army Regulations and Articles of War."

The thirty-seventh section of the act of July 28, 1866 (14 Stat. L., 337), directed the Secretary of War "to have prepared and to report to Congress at its next session a code of regulations for the government of the Army and of the militia in actual service, which shall embrace all necessary orders and forms of a general character for the performance of all duties incumbent on officers and men in the military service, including rules for the government of courts-martial; the existing regulations to remain in force until Congress shall have acted on said report." No code of regulations having been submitted, Congress provided, in section 20 of the act of July 15, 1870 (16 Stat. L., 319), that "the Secretary of War shall prepare a system of general regulations for the administration of the affairs of the Army, which, when approved by Congress, shall be in force and obeyed until altered or revoked by the same authority, and said regulations shall be reported to Congress at its next session: Provided, That the said regulations shall not be inconsistent with the laws of the United States."

In conformity to this legislation a code of regulations, which had been prepared by a board of officers of which Inspector-General Marcy was the president, was submitted to the House of Representatives on February 17, 1873, and was by that body referred to the Committee on Military Affairs and ordered to be printed. No steps looking to their adoption were taken during the remainder of the session, and the Fifty-second Congress adjourned without action. The question was taken up by the Military Committee of the House of Representatives in the Forty-third Congress, and the proposition of adopting a code of Army Regulations was carefully considered. The conclusion reached by the committee was that the power to make and amend or alter regulations had best be left to Executive discretion. To that end a recommendation was submitted, which was adopted by Congress and approved by the President on March 1, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 337). This enactment repealed section 20 of the act of July 15, 1870, and authorized the President "to make and publish regulations for the government of the Army in accordance with existing laws."

494. In every Official Army Register hereafter issued the lineal rank of all officers of the line of the Army shall be given separately for the different arms of the service; and if the officer be promoted from the ranks, or shall have served in the Volunteer Army, either as an enlisted man or officer, his service as a private and noncommissioned officer shall be given, and in addition thereto the record of his service as volunteer. Sec. 2, act of June 18, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 149).

Section 2 of the act of June 23, 1879 (21 Stat. L., 34), authorized and directed the Secretary of War "to cause all the regulations now in force to be codified and published to the Army," and provided that the expense attending the publication of the work should be defrayed from the appropriation for the contingent expenses of the Army for the current fiscal year. Under the authority thus conferred the Regulations of 1881 were prepared and issued to the Army, the order of promulgation bearing date February 17, 1881. A revision and condensation of this volume was issued by the Secretary of War on February 9, 1889. The Regulations now in force became effective on October 31, 1895, having received Executive approval on that date.

NATIVE TROOPS—TROOPS IN THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

501. That when in his opinion the conditions in the Philippine Islands justify such action the President is authorized to enlist natives of those islands for service in the Army, to be organized as scouts, with such officers as he shall deem necessary for their proper control, or as troops or companies, as authorized by this act, for the Regular Army. The President is further authorized, in his discretion, to form companies, organized as are companies of the Regular Army, in squadrons or battalions, with officers and noncommissioned officers corresponding to similar organizations in the cavalry and infantry arms. The total number of enlisted men in said native organizations shall not exceed twelve thousand, and the total enlisted force of the line of the Army, together with such native force, shall not exceed at any one time one hundred thousand. Sec. 36, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 757).

505. The President is authorized to organize and maintain one provisional regiment of not exceeding three battalions of infantry, for service in Porto Rico, the enlisted strength thereof to be composed of natives of that island as far as practicable. The regiment shall be organized as to numbers as authorized for infantry regiments of the Regular Army. The pay, rations, and clothing allowances to be authorized for the enlisted men shall be fixed by the Secretary of War, and shall not exceed those authorized for the Regular Army. The field officers shall be selected from officers of the next lower grades in the Regular Army and shall, while so serving in the higher grade, have the rank, pay, and allowances thereof. The company and regimental and battalion staff officers shall be appointed by the President. The President may, in his discretion, continue with their own consent the volunteer officers and enlisted men of the Porto Rico regiment, whose terms of service expire by law July first, nineteen hundred and one. Enlistments for the Porto Rico regiment shall be made for periods of three years, unless sooner discharged. The regiment shall be continued in service until further directed by Congress. Sec. 37, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 758).

INDIAN SCOUTS.

506. The President is authorized to enlist a force of Indians, not exceeding one thousand, who shall act as scouts in the Territories and Indian country. They shall be discharged when the necessity for their service shall cease, or at the discretion of the department commander. A proportionate number of noncommissioned officers may be appointed. And the scouts, when they furnish their own horses and horse equipments, shall be entitled to receive forty cents per day for their use and risk so long as thus employed.¹ *Act of August 12, 1876 (19 Stat. ¹ The act of July 24, 1876 (19 Stat. L., 97), which limited the number of Indian scouts to be employed to 300 was repealed by the act of August 12, 1876 (ibid., 131).

² The acts of June 1, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 73), March 3, 1875 (ibid., 452), July 24, 1876 (19 Stat. L., 77), November 21, 1877 (20 Stat. L., 2), and June 18, 1878 (ibid., 146), contained a provision limiting the number of enlisted men in the Army to 25,000, including hospital stewards and Indian scouts. The act of June 29, 1879 (21 Stat. L., 30), contained the requirement "that no money appropriated by this act shall be paid for recruiting the Army beyond the number of 25,000 enlisted men, including Indian scouts and hospital stewards; and thereafter there shall be no more than 25,000 enlisted men in the Army at any one time, unless otherwise authorized by law." This provision was repeated in the acts of May 4, 1880 (21 Stat. L., 110), February 24, 1881 (ibid., 346), June 30, 1882 (22 Stat. L., 117), March 3, 1883 (ibid., 456), July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 107), and March 3, 1885 (ibid., 357). The act of March 1, 1887 (24 Stat. L., 435), which provided that the enlisted force of the Hospital Corps should be in excess of the strength authorized by law, was expressly repealed by the act of their maximum strength, as fixed by this act, during the present exigencies of the service, or until such time as Congress may hereafter otherwise direct.¹ Sec. 30, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 756).

THE WAR ESTABLISHMENT.

THE REGULAR ARMY—THE VOLUNTEER ARMY.

THE REGULAR ARMY.

Par.	Par.
509. Increase in strength of troops, companies, and batteries.	512. Pay of enlisted men in time of war.
510. Batteries in time of war.	512. Pay of officers for increased commands.
511. Increase in second lieutenants.	513. Reduction of war establishment.

Increase in companies, etc.
April 26, 1898, s. 2, v. 30, p. 364.

509. Upon a declaration of war² by Congress, or declaration of Congress that war exists, the enlisted strength of a company, troop, and battery, respectively, may, in the discretion of the President, be increased to comprise not exceeding:³

For each company of infantry: One first sergeant, one quartermaster-sergeant, four sergeants, twelve corporals, two musicians, one artificer, one wagoner, and eighty-four privates; total enlisted, one hundred and six.

For each troop of cavalry: One first sergeant, one quartermaster-sergeant, six sergeants, eight corporals, two farriers and blacksmiths, two trumpeters, one saddler, one wagoner, seventy-eight privates; total enlisted, one hundred.

March 8, 1898 (30 Stat L., 261), which fixed the enlisted strength of the Army at 26,610.

² By the act of April 25, 1898, war was formally declared to exist with the Kingdom of Spain. The following is the text of the declaration: "First. That war be, and the same is hereby, declared to exist, and that war has existed since the twenty-first day of April, anno Domini eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, including said day, between the United States of America and the Kingdom of Spain.

"Second. That the President of the United States be, and he hereby is, directed and empowered to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States, and to call into the actual service of the United States the militia of the several States, to such extent as may be necessary to carry this act into effect." Act of April 25, 1898.

³ Under the authority conferred by this statute a third battalion was established by the President in each of the infantry regiments of the Regular Army on April 26, 1898. General Orders 27 and 32, A. G. O., 1898. The companies of cavalry, artillery, and infantry were ordered to be recruited to the war strength authorized by the act of April 26, 1898, by G. O. 27, A. G. O. of 1898. The three-battalion organization having been adopted for the infantry of the permanent establishment by section 10 of the act of February 2, 1901 (30 Stat. L., 750), the authority conferred by section 2, act of April 26, 1898, has ceased to be operative.

For each battery of heavy artillery: One first sergeant, twenty-two sergeants, ten corporals, two musicians, two artificers, one wagoner, one hundred and sixty-two privates; total enlisted, two hundred.

For each battery of field artillery: One first sergeant, one quartermaster-sergeant, one veterinary sergeant, six sergeants, fifteen corporals, two farriers, two artificers, one saddler, two musicians, one wagoner, one hundred and forty-one privates; total enlisted, one hundred and seventy-three.

For each company of engineers: One first sergeant, ten sergeants, ten corporals, ten musicians, sixty-four first-class privates, sixty-three second-class privates; total enlisted, one hundred and fifty. In time of war there shall be added to the Signal Corps of the Army ten corporals, one hundred first-class privates, and forty second-class privates, who shall have the pay and allowances of engineer troops of the same grade. Sec. 2, act of April 26, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 364).

510. In time of war the President shall cause the batteries of artillery authorized by law to be organized as heavy or field artillery, as in his judgment the exigencies of the service may require. Sec. 5, ibid.

Batteries in time of war.
Sec. 5, ibid.

511. When recruited to their war strength the President may add one second lieutenant to each battery of artillery; such offices to be filled by appointments, as prescribed by existing law. Sec. 4, ibid.

Increase in second lieutenants.
Sec. 4, ibid.

PAY AND ALLOWANCES.

512. In time of war the pay proper of enlisted men shall be increased twenty per centum over and above the rates of pay as fixed by law: Provided, That in war time no additional increased compensation shall be allowed to soldiers performing what is known as extra or special duty: Provided further, That any soldier who deserts shall, besides incurring the penalties now attaching to the crime of desertion, forfeit all right to pension which he might otherwise have acquired. Sec. 6, ibid.

war.
Sec. 6, ibid.

513. In time of war every officer serving with troops operating against an enemy who shall exercise, under assignment in orders issued by competent authority, a command above that pertaining to his grade, shall be entitled to receive the pay and allowances of the grade appropriate to the command so exercised: Provided, That a rate of pay exceeding that of a brigadier-general shall not be paid in any case by reason of such assignment. Sec. 7, ibid.

command.
Sec. 7, ibid.

REDUCTION OF WAR ESTABLISHMENT.

514. At the end of any war in which the United States may become involved the Army shall be reduced to a peace basis by the transfer in the same arm of the service or absorption by promotion or honorable discharge under such regulations as the Secretary of War may establish of supernumerary commissioned officers and the honorable discharge or transfer of supernumerary enlisted men; and nothing contained in this act shall be construed as authorizing a permanent increase in the commissioned or enlisted force of the Regular Army beyond that now provided by the law in force prior to the passage of this act, except as to the increase of twenty-five majors provided for in section one hereof. Sec. 7, ibid.

Temporary increase March 2, 1899, s. 12, v. 30, p. 979.

515. To meet the present exigencies of the military service the President is hereby authorized to maintain the Regular Army at a strength of not exceeding sixty-five thousand enlisted men, to be distributed amongst the several branches of the service, including the Signal Corps, according to the needs of each.² Sec. 12, act of March 2, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 979).

s. 5, v. 30, p. 361.

517. When it becomes necessary to raise a volunteer army, the President shall issue his proclamation stating the number of men desired, within such limits as may be fixed by law, and the Secretary of War shall prescribe such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with the terms of this Act, as may in his judgment be necessary for the purpose of examining, organizing, and receiving into service the men called for: Provided, That all men received into service in the Volunteer Army shall, as far as practicable, be taken from the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia and the Indian Territory in proportion to their population. And any company, troop, battalion, or regiment from the Indian Territory shall be formed and organized under such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of War.¹
Sec. 5, act of April 22, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 361).

Organization.
Sec. 6, ibid.

518. The Volunteer Army and the militia of the States when called into service of the United States shall be

¹ Under the authority conferred by the acts of April 20 and April 22, 1898, and in pursuance of the declaration of war with the Kingdom of Spain contained in the act of April 25, 1898, a call was addressed to the governors of the several States for a force of 125,000 volunteers. G. O. 30, A. G. O. 1898. For regulations respecting the enrollment, armament, and equipment of the volunteer forces thus called into the service of the United States, see General Orders 26, 31, 33, and 41, A. G. O. of 1898.

Section 6 of the act of April 22, 1898, conferred authority upon the President "to organize companies, troops, battalions, or regiments, possessing special qualifications, from the nation at large, not to exceed three thousand men, under such rules and regulations, including the appointment of the officers thereof, as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War." The act of May 11, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 405), authorized the organization of "a volunteer brigade of engineers from the nation at large, to consist of not more than three regiments and not more than three thousand five hundred men, possessing the special qualifications necessary for engineer troops, under such rules and regulations, including the appointment of the officers thereof, as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War." By the same enactment the organization of "an additional volunteer force of not exceeding ten thousand enlisted men possessing immunity from diseases incident to tropical climates" was also authorized. The officers of these forces were to be appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate, and they were not apportioned among the States and Territories, as required in section 5 of the act of April 22, 1898. The act of May 18, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 418), authorized the formation of a volunteer signal corps. This statute contained the requirement that "two-thirds of all officers below the rank of major and a like proportion of the enlisted men shall be skilled electricians or telegraph operators."

organized under, and shall be subject to, the laws, orders, and regulations governing the Regular Army. Section 6, ibid.

519. Each regiment of the Volunteer Army shall have one surgeon, two assistant surgeons, and one chaplain, and all the regimental and company officers shall be appointed by the governors of the States in which their respective organizations are raised. Ibid.

Medical staff.
Ibid.

520. When the members of any company, troop, battery, battalion, or regiment of the organized militia of any State shall enlist in the Volunteer Army in a body, as such company, troop, battery, battalion, or regiment, the regimental, company, troop, battery, and battalion officers in service with the militia organization thus enlisting may be appointed by the governors of the States and Territories, and shall when so appointed be officers of corresponding grades in the same organization when it shall have been received into the service of the United States as a part of the Volunteer Army. Ibid.

Militia organizations, officers.
Ibid.

521. The governor of any State or Territory may, with the consent of the President, appoint officers of the Regular Army in the grades of field officers in organizations of the Volunteer Army, and the President may appoint officers of the Regular Army in the grade of field officers in organizations of the Volunteer Army raised in the District of Columbia and the Indian Territory, and in the regiments possessing special qualifications, provided for in section six of an act of Congress approved April twenty-second, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, and in section two of the act of Congress approved May eleventh, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight; and officers thus appointed shall be entitled to retain their rank in the Regular Army:

Appointment, Retention of Regular Army rank.

Provided, That not more than one officer of the Regular Army shall hold a commission in any one regiment of the Volunteer Army at the same time: And provided further, That officers so appointed shall be entitled to receive only the pay and allowances of their rank in the volunteer organization.¹ Sec. 2, act of May 28, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 421).

Provided, That each member of the board shall be superior in rank to the officer whose qualifications are to be inquired into: And provided further, That if the report of such a board is adverse to the continuance of any officer, and the report be approved by the President, such officer shall be discharged from service in the Volunteer Army, at the discretion of the President, with one month's pay and allowances. Sec. 14, act of April 22, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 364).

zations.
April 26, 1898,
s. 3, v. 30, p. 364.

523. In the event of a call by the President for either volunteers or the militia of the country the President is authorized to accept the quotas of troops of the various States and Territories, including the District of Columbia and Indian Territory, as organized under the laws of the States and Territories, including the District of Columbia, in companies, troops, and batteries, each to contain so far as practicable the number of enlisted men authorized in this act for each arm of the service, and battalions of not less than three such companies and regiments of not less than ten nor more than twelve such companies. But this proviso shall apply to companies, troops, batteries, battalions, and regimental organizations and none other: Provided further, That in volunteer organizations received into the service under this act and existing laws, one hospital steward shall be authorized for each battalion. Sec. 3, act of April 26, 1898.

HISTORICAL NOTE.—The military establishment at the organization of the Government under the Constitution contained no officer of higher rank than lieutenant-colonel. Authority was conferred by the act of March 3, 1791 (1 Stat. L., 222), to appoint a major-general and a brigadier-general, should the President deem that course necessary, and, by the act of March 28, 1792 (ibid., 246), the number of brigadier-generals was to be increased to four, if, in the opinion of the President, such appointments would "be conducive to the good of the public service." This authority was withdrawn, however, by section 3 of the act of May 30, 1796 (ibid., 483). The number of brigadier-generals was reduced to one, and the office of major-general was abolished by the act of March 3, 1797 (ibid., 507). The act of May 28, 1798 (ibid., 558), passed in contemplation of war with France, conferred authority upon the President to appoint a lieutenant-general and a suitable number of major-generals; by section 3 of the act of July 16, 1798 (ibid., 604), the number of major-generals so appointed was restricted to two, and the number of brigadier-generals to four. The grade of lieutenant-general was abolished and replaced by that of General of the Armies of the United States, by section 9 of the act of March 3, 1799 (ibid., 752). The difficulties with France having been put in the way of settlement, recruiting was suspended until the further order of Congress by the act of February 20, 1800 (2 ibid., 7); military appointments were authorized to be suspended by the act of May 14, 1800 (ibid., 85), and at the reduction of 1802, the number of general officers was reduced to one brigadier-general. Section 3, act of March 16, 1802, 2 ibid., 132.

During the controversy with Great Britain which culminated in the war of 1812, the appointment of two additional brigadier-generals was authorized by section 3 of the act of April 12, 1808 (2 ibid., 481); by the act of December 24, 1811 (ibid., 669), the existing military establishment was ordered to be immediately completed, and by section 4 of the act of January 11, 1812 (ibid., 671), two major-generals and four brigadier-generals were authorized. By the act of February 24, 1813 (ibid., 801), six major-generals and six brigadier-generals were authorized in addition to those already in service. The act of March 3, 1815 (3 ibid., 224), fixing the military peace establishment, reduced the number of major-generals to two and the number of brigadier-generals to four; at the general reduction of 1821 these numbers were fixed at one and two, respectively (section 5, act of March 2, 1821, ibid., 615), at which number it remained until the outbreak of hostilities with Mexico in 1846. The act of May 13, 1846 (9 Stat. L., 9), providing for the prosecution of the existing war with Mexico, authorized the acceptance of 50,000 volunteers, and conferred power upon the President to organize the forces thus provided into divisions and brigades, and to apportion the general and staff officers among the respective States and Territories as he might deem proper. One major-general and two brigadier-generals, in addition to those already authorized by law, were added to the establishment by the act of June 13, 1846 (ibid., 17), with the proviso that the number of general officers was to be reduced to that existing at the outbreak of hostilities upon the termination of the war "by a definitive treaty of peace." With a view to determine the number of general officers to be appointed under the act of May 13, 1846, it was provided by the act of June 26, 1846 (ibid., 20), that brigades of volunteer troops should consist of not less than three regiments and divisions of not less than two brigades; and any reduction in the strength of the volunteer forces was to involve a corresponding reduction in the number of general officers, all of whom were to be mustered out at the close of the war. By the act of March 3, 1847 (ibid., 184) two major-generals and three brigadier-generals were authorized for the period of the war. The reduction at the close of the war was accomplished by a proviso in the act of July 19, 1848 (ibid., 247), which required that vacancies occurring in the grade of general officer, should not be filled until the numbers of major and brigadier general had been reduced to one and two, respectively.

At the outbreak of the war of the rebellion the President, by proclamations, dated April 15, 1861 (12 Stat. L., 1258), and May 3, 1861 (ibid., 1260), called forth a force of 75,000 militia and 42,034 volunteers; and Congress, by the act of July 22, 1861 (ibid., 268), authorized the enlistment of 500,000 volunteers, and made provision for their organization into brigades and divisions, and for the appointment of such numbers of general officers as were necessary to their command. By section 4 of the same act the President was authorized to select six major-generals and eighteen brigadier-generals from the line or staff of the Army, and the officers so appointed were allowed to retain their army rank. The number of general officers of volunteers was fixed by the act of July 5, 1862 (ibid., 506), which restricted the number of major-generals to forty and the number of brigadier-generals to two hundred. By section 9 of the act of July 28, 1866 (14 ibid., 333), the number of major-generals in the regular establishment was fixed at five and that of brigadier-generals at ten; by section 3 of the act of March 3, 1869 (15 ibid., 318), the number of brigadier-generals was reduced to eight; and by section 8 of the act of July 15, 1870 (16 ibid., 318), the number was still further reduced to six and that of major-generals to three.

555. From and after the approval of this act the Army of the United States shall consist of one Lieutenant-General, six major-generals, fifteen brigadier-generals. Act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 748). General officers. Feb. 2, 1901, v. 31, p. 748.

556. The Lieutenant-General may select from the Army two aids and one military secretary, who [shall] have the rank of lieutenant-colonel of cavalry while serving on his staff.¹ Lieutenant-General's aids and secretary. July 25, 1866, c. 232, s. 2, v. 14, p. 223; July 28, 1866, c. 299, s. 9, v. 14, p. 333; Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, v. 19, p. 241. Sec. 1097, R. S.

557. Each major-general shall have three aids, who may be selected by him from captains or lieutenants of the Army, and each brigadier-general shall have two aids, who may be selected by him from lieutenants of the Army.² Aids of major and brigadier generals. July 21, 1861, c. 24, s. 3, v. 12, p. 280; July 28, 1866, c. 299, s. 9, v. 14, p. 333. Sec. 1098, R. S.

² Section 5 of the act of March 2, 1821 (3 Stat. L., 615), contained the requirement that aids to major and brigadier generals should be appointed, by selection, from the subalterns of the Army. By section 8 of the act of June 18, 1846 (9 ibid., 17), captains were made eligible for selection as aids to major-generals. A major-general is allowed by law three aids, to be taken from captains or lieutenants of the Army. A brigadier-general is allowed two, to be taken from the lieutenants of the Army. An officer assigned to duty in accordance with his brevet rank as major-general or brigadier-general may, with the special sanction of the War Department, be allowed the aids of the grade. General officers may select their aids from officers serving in their commands, subject to the restrictions herein prescribed, but appointments as aids of officers serving without such limits must receive the approval of the Secretary of War. An officer will be appointed aid to a general officer only after he shall have actually served with troops for at least three of the five years immediately preceding such appointment. He will hold such appointment for no longer a period than four years, except that, upon the request of a general officer whose retirement by reason of age will occur within one year, the tour of four years may be extended by the Secretary of War to the date of such retirement. Par. 33, A. R., 1895.

For statutory provisions and executive regulations respecting the staffs of general officers when assigned to commands see the chapter entitled RANK AND COMMAND—TACTICAL AND TERRITORIAL ORGANIZATIONS.

¹The grade of "General of the Armies of the United States" was created by section 9 of the act of March 3, 1799 (1 Stat. L., 752). The office, though not expressly referred to in any of the acts for the reduction or disbandment of the forces raised in contemplation of war with France, ceased to exist in 1802, not having been mentioned in the act of March 16, 1802 (2 ibid., 132), which determined the military peace establishment. The grade was revived under the title of "General of the Army of the United States," by the act of July 25, 1866 (14 ibid., 223), and was conferred upon Lieutenant-General Grant; and was recognized and continued by section 9 of the act of July 28, 1866 (ibid., 333). Section 6 of the act of July 15, 1870 (16 ibid., 318), contained the requirement, however, that "the offices of General and Lieutenant-General shall continue until a vacancy shall exist in the same, and no longer, and when such vacancy shall occur in either of said offices immediately thereupon all laws and parts of laws creating said office shall become inoperative, and shall, by virtue of this act, from thenceforward be held to be repealed." The office ceased to exist, as a grade of military rank, at the death of Gen. W. T. Sherman on February 14, 1891. The act of March 3, 1885 (23 ibid., 434), authorized the appointment of a "General of the Army on the Retired List," which was conferred upon Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, and expired on the death of that officer on July 23, 1885. By the act of June 1, 1888 (25 ibid., 165), the grade of Lieutenant-General was discontinued and merged in that of General of the Army, which was conferred upon Lieut. Gen. P. H. Sheridan, and ceased to exist at the death of that officer on August 5, 1888.

CHIEF OF STAFF.—By the act of March 3, 1865 (13 Stat. L., 500), the office of chief of staff, with the rank of brigadier-general, was provided for the Lieutenant-General commanding the Army. By section 2 of the act of July 25, 1866 (14 ibid., 223), that officer was transferred to the staff of the General. The office was abolished by the act of April 3, 1869 (16 ibid., 6).

²The grade of Lieutenant-General was first established by the act of May 28, 1798 (1 Stat. L., 558); it was abolished, however, by section 9 of the act of March 3, 1799 (ibid., 752), and the command of the forces authorized to be raised, in contemplation of war with France, was vested in the "General of the Armies of the United States" authorized by that statute. The grade was revived by joint resolution No. 9 of February 15, 1855 (10 ibid., 723), and the rank was conferred by brevet on Maj. Gen. Winfield Scott; the office thus created ceased to exist at the death of that officer on May 29, 1866. The grade was again revived by the act of February 29, 1864 (13 ibid., 11), and conferred upon Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, and the office was recognized and continued by section 9 of the act of July 28, 1866 (14 ibid., 333), but was to cease to exist upon the occurrence of a vacancy, under the restriction imposed by section 6 of the act of July 15, 1870 (16 ibid., 318). The office was vacated and merged in that of General of the Army upon the promotion of Lieutenant-General Sheridan to that grade, under the authority conferred by the act of June 1, 1888 (25 ibid., 165). It was revived a third time by joint resolution No. 9 of February 5, 1895 (28 ibid., 968), and was conferred, subject to the restriction therein contained, upon Maj. Gen. John M. Schofield, and the office continues to exist as a grade of military rank on the retired list. The rank, pay, and allowances of Lieutenant-General were conferred upon "the senior major-general of the line commanding the Army" by section 2 of the act of June 6, 1900 (31 ibid., 655); the office was revived as a grade of military rank by section 1, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 748).

559. The President of the United States is hereby authorized to select from the brigadier-generals of volunteers two volunteer officers, without regard to age, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint them brigadier-generals, United States Army, for the purpose of placing them on the retired list. Sec. 33, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 756).

And the President is also hereby authorized to select from the retired list of the Army an officer not above the rank of brigadier-general who may have distinguished himself during the war with Spain, in command of a separate army, and to appoint, and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, the officer so selected to be major-general, United States Army, with the pay and allowances established by law for officers of that grade on the retired list. Ibid.

561. If, upon marches, guards, or in quarters, different corps of the Army happen to join or do duty together, the officer highest in rank¹ of the line of the Army, Marine Corps, or militia, by commission, there on duty or in quarters, shall command² the whole, and give orders for what ¹The terms "rank" and "command" have received executive interpretation in paragraphs 7 and 13 of the Army Regulations of 1901.

Military rank is that character or quality bestowed on military persons which marks their station and confers eligibility to exercise command or authority in the military service within the limits prescribed by law. It is divided into degrees or grades, which mark the relative positions and powers of the different classes of persons possessing it. Par. 7, A. R., 1901.

Rank is generally held by virtue of office in a regiment, corps, or department, but may be conferred independently of office, as in the case of retired officers and of those holding it by brevet. Par. 8, A. R., 1901.

A determination by the legislative and executive branches of the Government, as to the relation or superior authority among military officers, is conclusive upon the judiciary. De Celis v. U. S., 13 Ct. Cls., 117.

from competent authority an officer can not put himself on duty by virtue of his commission alone, except as contemplated in the twenty-fourth and one hundred and twenty-second articles of war. Par. 13, A. R., 1901.

The following are the commands appropriate to each grade:

1. For a captain, a company.
2. For a major or lieutenant-colonel, a battalion or squadron.
3. For a colonel, a regiment.
4. For a brigadier-general, two regiments.
5. For a major-general, four regiments. Par. 14, A. R., 1901.

The functions assigned to any officer in these regulations by title of office devolve upon the officer acting in his place, except when otherwise specified. An officer in temporary command shall not, except in urgent cases, alter or annul the standing orders of the permanent commander without authority from the next higher commander. Par. 15, A. R., 1901.

An officer who succeeds to any command or duty stands in regard to his duties in the same situation as his predecessor. The officer relieved will turn over to his successor all orders in force at the time and all the public property and funds pertaining to his command or duty, and will receive therefor duplicate receipts showing the condition of each article. Par. 16, A. R., 1901.

When an officer is charged with directing an expedition or making a reconnoissance, without having command of the escort, the commander of the escort will consult him touching all arrangements necessary to secure the success of the operation. Sec. 1210, R.S.

565. In fixing relative rank³ between officers of the same grade and date of appointment and commission, the time which each may have actually served as a commissioned officer of the United States, whether continuously or at different periods, shall be taken into account. And in computing such time, no distinction shall be made between service as a commissioned officer in the Regular Army and service since the 19th day of April, 1861, in the volunteer forces, whether under appointment or commission from the President or from the governor of a State.

567. Engineers shall not assume nor be ordered on any duty beyond the line of their immediate profession, except by the special order of the President.⁴ They may, at the discretion of the President, be transferred from one corps to another, regard being paid to rank.

³ Officers of the Regular Army, Marine Corps, and volunteers when commissioned or mustered into the service of the United States, being upon equal footing, take precedence in each grade by date of commission or appointment. Militia officers, when employed with the regular or volunteer forces of the United States, take rank next after all officers of like grade in those forces. Par. 10, A. R., 1901.

Between officers of the same grade and date of appointment or commission, other than through promotion by seniority, relative rank is determined by length of service, continuous or otherwise, as a commissioned officer of the United States, either in the Regular Army or, since April 19, 1861, in the volunteer forces. When periods of service are equal, precedence will, except when fixed by order of merit on examination, be determined, first, by rank in service when appointed; second, by former rank in the Army or Marine Corps; third, by lot, among such as have not been in the military service of the United States. Par. 11, A. R., 1901.

568. Officers of the Medical Department of the Army shall not be entitled, in virtue of their rank, to command in the line or in other staff corps.¹

Medical officers not to command in line or in other staff departments.

TACTICAL ORGANIZATIONS.

570. In the ordinary arrangement of the Army two regiments of infantry or of cavalry shall constitute a brigade, and shall be the command of a brigadier-general, and two brigades shall constitute a division, and shall be the command of a major-general; but it shall be in the discretion of the commanding general to vary this disposition whenever he may deem it proper to do so.²

² Paragraph 189 of the Army Regulations of 1895 contains the provision that, in time of peace, army corps, divisions, and brigades will not be formed except for purposes of instruction. Section 9 of the act of July 17, 1862 (12 Stat. L., 594), authorized the President to establish and organize army corps according to his discretion. Section 10 of the same act provided for the staff of an army corps. Such legislation was not necessary, however, the organization of separate armies, army corps, grand divisions, wings, reserves, and the like, in time of war, being a matter within the discretion of the President as the Commander in Chief. For regulations respecting the organization of armies in the field in time of war, see the volume entitled TROOPS IN CAMPAIGN; see, also, Scott's Dig., pp. 244, 245. For the war organization of the military forces of the United States, see next paragraph.

³ The clerks and messengers above referred to and provided for were first authorized by the Act of August 6, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 236); they replace the force of "General service clerks and messengers" created by the act of July 29, 1886 (24 Stat. L., 167), but discontinued by the act of August 6, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 233). Their numbers and compensation are determined in the annual acts of appropriation for the support of the Army.

In time of peace our army has been habitually distributed into geographical commands, styled, respectively, military divisions, departments, and districts—the districts, as organized prior to 1815, corresponding to the commands now designated as departments. These divisions and departments can be established only by the President; but, within their respective departments, commanding generals have from time to time grouped adjacent posts into temporary commands, which are now known as districts.

Military divisions, each embracing two or more departments, have obtained from May 17, 1815, to June 1, 1821; from May 19, 1837, to July 12, 1842; from April 20, 1844, to October 31, 1853; from July 25 to August 17, 1861; and from October 13, 1863, to July 2, 1891.

Department organizations have been continuous since 1815. (a) Scott's Dig., p. 244.

THE COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE ARMY.

The command exercised by the commanding general of the Army, not having been made the subject of statutory regulation, is determined by the order of assignment. It has been habitually composed of the aggregate of the several territorial commands that have been or may be created by the President.

The military establishment is under the orders of the commanding general of the Army in that which pertains to its discipline and military control. The fiscal affairs of the Army are conducted by the Secretary of War, through the several staff departments. Par. 205, A. R., 1901.

All orders and instructions from the President or Secretary of War relating to military operations or affecting the military control and discipline of the Army will be promulgated through the commanding general. Par. 206, A. R., 1901. See, also, paragraph 11, ante.

TERRITORIAL DEPARTMENTS.

Territorial departments are established and their commanders assigned by direction of the President. In time of peace, army corps, divisions, or brigades will not be formed except for purposes of instruction. Par. 189, A. R., 1895.

The commander of a department commands all the military forces of the Government within its limits, whether of the line or staff, which are not specially excepted ^aSection 6 of the act of June 18, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 150), contained the requirement that thereafter, "in time of peace, all military headquarters, except Army headquarters, shall be established and maintained at points where the Government own buildings or barracks, within the several departments and divisions, and in such buildings or barracks, and not otherwise, unless the Secretary of War shall, by an order in writing, otherwise direct." This requirement was expressly repealed by the act of June 23, 1879 (21 Stat. L., 35).

from his control by the War Department. The infantry and cavalry school at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and the cavalry and light artillery school at Fort Riley, Kans., in matters pertaining to the courses of instruction; the Military Academy; the artillery school; the engineer establishment at Willets Point; the arsenals; the general depots of supply; the general-service recruiting stations; such permanent fortifications as may be in process of construction or repair, and officers employed on special duty under the Secretary of War, are exempted from the supervision of department commanders. But when an emergency demands it, all military men and material within the limits of their jurisdiction come under their control. Par. 208, A. R., 1901.

Purchasing commissaries, officers on duty at general depots of supply, and others indicated in the preceding paragraph, whether reporting by letter to department commanders or not, are subject to their orders for court-martial or other duty in an emergency only; and officers on duty with the commands at Fort Leavenworth, Fort Monroe, and Fort Riley will not be detached without the orders of the Secretary of War or the commanding general of the Army. Par. 209, A. R., 1901.

A department commander is charged with the administration of all the military affairs of his department, and the execution of all orders from higher authority. He will report to the commanding general of the Army all matters relating to the general welfare of his command, including such change of station of troops as he may deem desirable, but will obtain the approval of the commanding general of the Army before ordering the movement. If it be necessary to move troops to meet emergencies, such movements and all the circumstances will be reported at the earliest possible moment. Par. 210, A. R., 1901.

Each department commander will inspect the troops under his command at least once each year, and for this purpose he may be accompanied by one officer of his personal or the department staff. He will assure himself by personal examination and observation that all officers and men under his control are efficient in the performance of duty, that the troops are thoroughly drilled and instructed in their field duties and tactical exercises, that supplies are properly distributed, that proper care is exercised in the purchase and preservation of public property, and that strict economy is exercised in all public expenditures. In his annual report the results of these inspections will be summarized. From time to time he will report, for the information of the commanding general of the Army and the Secretary of War, the names of any and all officers belonging to his command who are believed to be incompetent or permanently unable, from any cause, to perform all the duties of their several grades, both in garrison and in active service; he will also report any errors, irregularities, or abuses requiring the action of higher authority. Par. 211, A. R., 1901.

Department commanders are expected to determine controversies arising within the limits of their jurisdiction and decide questions referred to them on appeal. Par. 212, A. R., 1901.

Although a department commander may continue to discharge the more important functions of his command while beyond its territorial limits, his absence therefrom requires the sanction of the Secretary of War, and if intending to leave his headquarters for an absence within his department, he will report to the Adjutant-General of the Army his intention, the duration of, and his address during, his proposed absence. Par. 195, A. R., 1895.

STAFF OF DEPARTMENT COMMANDERS.

The personal staff of a department commander will consist of the authorized aids. The department staff will be limited to the officers detailed by the Secretary of War from appropriate staff departments or corps, or of officers of the line detailed by the same authority to act in their stead, and their official designations will be as follows: Adjutant-general, chief quartermaster, chief commissary, chief surgeon, chief paymaster, judge-advocate, and artillery inspector, the last appointed as prescribed in paragraph 350; also, when necessary, an engineer officer, an ordnance officer, and a signal officer, each detailed from his corps; but when any of these officers are not assigned, or when any department staff officer is temporarily absent or disabled, the duties of his position will be performed by other members of the department or personal staff. The chief quartermaster and chief commissary will each have charge of the depot of his department, at the place where headquarters are located, and will, when practicable, make purchases. The chief surgeon will, when practicable, perform the duty of attending surgeon. The chief paymaster will make a proportion of the payments in the command. The duties prescribed in Small-Arms Firing Regulations for the inspector of small-arms practice will be performed by an aid or by the adjutant-general. Par. 214, A. R., 1901.

HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS;¹ APPOINTMENTS AND DETAILS.

Vacancies, how filled. Feb. 2, 1901, s. 26, v. 31, p. 755.	575. When vacancies shall occur in the position of chief of any staff corps or department the President may appoint to such vacancies, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, officers of the Army at large not below the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and who shall hold office for terms of four years. When a vacancy in the position of chief of any staff corps or department is filled by the appointment of any officer below the rank now provided by law for said office, said chief shall, while so serving, have the same rank, pay, and allowances now provided for the chief of such corps or department. Sec. 26, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 755).
The same, restriction. Ibid.	576. So long as there remain in service officers of any staff corps or department holding permanent appointments, the chief of such staff corps or department shall be selected from the officers so remaining therein. Ibid.
The same, retirement. Ibid.	577. Any officer now holding office in any corps or department who shall hereafter serve as chief of a staff

APPOINTMENTS.

578. Appointments to fill original vacancies in the lowest grade in the Adjutant-General's Department, the Inspector-General's Department, and Judge Advocate-General's Department, and in the grade of captain in the Quartermaster's Department, Subsistence Department, and Pay Department may be made from officers of volunteers commissioned since April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, and the age limit prescribed as to chaplains shall not apply to persons who served as chaplains of volunteers after said date who were under forty-two years of age when originally appointed. Act of March 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 900).

581. All officers so detailed shall serve for a period of four years, at the expiration of which time they shall return to duty with the line, and officers below the rank of lieutenant-colonel shall not again be eligible for selection in any staff department until they shall have served two years with the line. Ibid.

582. Each position vacated by officers of the line transferred to any department of the staff for tours of service under this act shall be filled by promotion in the line until the total number detailed equals the number authorized for duty in such department. Thereafter vacancies caused by details from the line to the staff shall be filled by officers returning from tours of staff duty. If under the operation of this act the number of officers returned to any particular arm of the service at any time exceeds the number authorized by law in any grade, promotions to that grade shall cease until the number has been reduced to that authorized. Sec. 27, ibid.

583. That the President be, and he is hereby, authorized to prescribe a system of examination of all officers of the Army below the rank of major to determine their fitness ¹See, also, section 1 of the act of October 1, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 252). So much of section 1194, Revised Statutes, as prohibited appointments and promotions in the Adjutant-General's, Inspector-General's, Pay, Quartermaster's, Subsistence, Ordnance, and Medical Departments was repealed; as to the Adjutant-General's Department, by the act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 478); as to the Inspector-General's Department, by the act of June 23, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 244); as to the grade of major in the Pay Department, by the act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 524), and the act of March 3, 1877 (19 Stat. L., 270); as to the Quartermaster's Department, by the act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 338); as to the Ordnance, Subsistence, and Medical Departments, by section 8 of the act of June 23, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 245). The act of March 3, 1877 (19 Stat. L., 270), declared that this section "now applying only to the grades in the Pay Department of the Army above the rank of major is hereby repealed" (19 Stat. L., 270).

The act of June 23, 1874, contained the provision that as vacancies shall occur in any of the grades of the Ordnance and Medical Departments, no appointments shall be made to fill the same until the numbers in such grade shall be reduced to the numbers which are fixed for permanent appointments by the provisions of this act; and thereafter the number of permanent officers in said grades shall continue to conform to said reduced numbers, and all other grades in said Ordnance and Medical Departments than those authorized by the provisions of this act shall cease to exist as soon as the same shall become vacant by death, resignation, or otherwise; and no appointment or promotion shall hereafter be made to fill any vacancy which may occur therein.

The same statute also provided that no officer now in the service shall be reduced in rank or mustered out by reason of any provision of law herein made reducing the number of officers in any department or corps of the staff.

584. If any officer fails to pass a satisfactory examination and is reported unfit for promotion, the officer next below him in rank, having passed said examination, shall receive the promotion: And provided, That should the officer fail in his physical examination and be found incapacitated for service by reason of physical disability contracted in line of duty he shall be retired with the rank to which his seniority entitled him to be promoted; but if he should fail for any other reason he shall be suspended from promotion for one year, when he shall be reexamined, and in case of failure on such reexamination he shall be honorably discharged with one year's pay from the Army.

588. When the exigencies of the service of any officer who would be entitled to promotion upon examination require him to remain absent from any place where an examining board could be convened, the President is hereby authorized to promote such officer, subject to examination, and the examination shall take place as soon thereafter as practicable. If upon examination the officer be found disqualified for promotion, he shall, upon the approval of the proceedings by the Secretary of War, be treated in the same manner as if he had been examined prior to promotion. *Sec. 32, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. Sec. 1158, R. S.

590. Engineers shall not assume nor be ordered on any duty beyond the line of their immediate profession, except by the special order of the President. They may, at the discretion of the President, be transferred from one corps to another, regard being paid to rank.

PROMOTIONS AFTER FOURTEEN YEARS' SERVICE.

591. When any lieutenant of the Corps of Engineers or Ordnance Corps or Signal Corps has served fourteen years' continuous service as lieutenant, he shall be promoted to the rank of captain, on passing the examination provided by the preceding section, but such promotion shall not authorize an appointment to fill any vacancy, when such appointment would increase the whole number of officers in the corps beyond the number fixed by law; nor shall any officer be promoted before officers of the same grade who rank him in his corps. *Sec. 7, act of October 1, 1890. This section does not apply to all commissioned officers of the Army who may be required to act as disbursing officers, but to such only as are regularly appointed disbursing officers and who are required, as such, to give bonds. Ex parte Randolph, 2 Brockenhough, 447. when it is accepted by the Government, and is to be regarded as of that date. Moses v. U. S., 166 U. S., 571. A surety on the bond of one in official relation with the Government is himself in contract relation with it, and, as he is liable to be sued by it, he has the right to sue it whenever a balance is due from it to which, on the principle of subrogation, he will ultimately be entitled. Shwarz v. U. S., 35 Ct. Cls., 303; Behan v. U. S., 18 ibid., 687, 110 U. S., 338; Hitchcock v. U. S., 27 Ct. Cls., 185, 164 U. S., 227; Pope v. U. S., 14 ibid., 446. No jurisdiction is conferred upon the Comptroller of the Treasury to render a decision, at the request of the head of a Department, upon the question whether the filing of a new bond relieves the sureties on a prior bond of the same official from liability after the date of the new bond, such a question not involving a payment to be made under the head of the Department. Section 8, act of July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 20).

The giving of bond is not necessary to entitle persons appointed to office in the Army requiring the disbursement of money, to begin to receive pay; they are entitled, like other officers, to be paid upon the acceptance of their appointments, according to par. 1448, Army Regulations, whether they have at that time furnished their bonds or not. XVI Op. Att. Gen., 38. The expense incurred by an officer in furnishing the bond required by law of all disbursing officers of the Government, is not a proper charge against the Government, even though the officer serves without compensation. II Compt. Dec., 262; U. S. v. Van Duzee 140 U. S., 171.

Section 1191, Revised Statutes, requires bonds only of certain disbursing officers specifically named. In the absence of any express provision of law, prescribing that bonds shall be furnished by other disbursing officers, the President, in his discretion, and for the better security of the public funds, may, through the head of the proper department, require such bonds to be furnished. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 544.

A bond can not be extended beyond the period of the original obligation so as to continue to bind the sureties, without their consent. Nor can an expired bond be revived so as to bind the sureties without their consent. The Secretary of War (or President) has no power to release the sureties in an official bond from their liability to the United States. (b) A neglect by the Government to institute suit on a bond does not discharge the sureties; laches not being in such cases imputable to the United States. (c) Ibid., par. 549.

One of two (or several) sureties can not withdraw independently from his obligation; and if allowed to do so by the obligee, the other surety (or sureties) will be released as to him. But the Secretary of War is not empowered to release the sureties on a disbursing officer's bond. Ibid., par. 554.

The law of the place at which a contract is made governs as to its interpretation, except where the contract is to be performed elsewhere, in which case the law that governs in this respect is the law of the place of performance. An official bond, made to the United States, wherever actually signed, is—as has been held by the Supreme Court (a)—a contract made and to be performed at Washington; and by the laws of the District of Columbia the contract of a married woman as surety is not binding. Moreover, it is not the practice of the War Department to accept a feme covert as a surety, and before a female surety will be accepted she is required to make oath that she is single in addition to justifying as required of other sureties. Ibid., par. 550.

If after the execution of a bond a material change be made in the name or description of the principal, by erasure, interlineation, or otherwise, without the assent of the sureties or a surety, even though such change be made to correct a mistake, the surety or sureties not consenting will be released. In a case of such an alteration, recommended that a new bond be required. Ibid., par. 555. See, also, ibid., paragraphs 554–560.

While departmental regulations duly promulgated have the force of law, in a limited sense, they can not enlarge or restrict the liability of an officer on his bond. Meads v. U. S., 81 Fed. Rep., 684.

^a Bonds may be required by the Government from officers appointed to places of trust, though there is no statutory authority to take such bonds, and they will be valid as common-law obligations. In a bond with sureties, given by an officer of the Government, it is sufficient to make the bond valid as a common-law obligation that it is voluntarily given and that the office and the duties assigned to the officer and covered by the bond are duly authorized by law. U. S. v. Tingey, 5 Pet., 115; U. S. v. Bradley, 10 id., 343, 360; U. S. v. Rogers, 28 Fed. Rep., 607; VI Opins. At. Gen., 24.

595. No such company shall do business under the provisions of this act beyond the limits of the State or Territory under whose laws it was incorporated and in which its principal office is located nor beyond the limits of the District of Columbia, when such company was incorporated under its laws or the laws of the United States and its principal office is located in said District, until it shall, by poration may make and use any seal, in its discretion, in the same manner as a private individual. Ibid., par. 544.

Justification of sureties.—Of two or more sureties to an official bond, each, according to the regulation, should justify separately; a justification in joint form is irregular and improper. An affidavit of justification should properly be expressed in the first person; not in the third. Ibid., par. 540.

The affidavit of justification of a surety should be dated, so that it may appear when he was worth the amount specified. The names of the sureties in the justifications should be identical with those inserted in the body of the bond. Their names should not be omitted to be recited in the bond with the name of the principal. Ibid., par. 551.

The affidavit of justification should be taken before some officer, like a notary public, having authority to administer oaths for general purposes and whose official character is authenticated by his seal. (a) But as the justification is no part of the bond, and the administration of the oath by an official not competent to administer it does not affect the validity of the bond, the irregularity of the justification, where there is nothing to show that the oath was not taken in good faith by the surety, may be waived by the Secretary of War, and in practice it is now (May, 1893) waived, and the bond accepted if otherwise valid. And in case where the seal of the notary was omitted, recommended that the instrument be returned to have the seal impressed upon the certificate, for the purpose of such authentication, which would be wanting without it. Ibid., par. 553.

Sureties.—The obligation of each surety must be for the whole amount of the penalty; the regulation requiring that the sureties “shall be jointly and severally bound for the whole amount of the bond.” So, where the penalty in a quartermaster’s joint and several official bond was $10,000, and the sureties, in executing the same, assumed to be bound only in the sum of $5,000 each, the words “for five thousand dollars” being written under each signature—held that the instrument was contradictory, did not conform to the regulations, and should not be accepted. And similarly held in a case of a bond with a penalty of $40,000, where the sureties wrote opposite their signatures, respectively, “for $35,000,” “for $5,000.” Sureties can not qualify their obligation by thus limiting their personal liabilities. Ibid., par. 535.

There is no statute or regulation prohibiting an officer of the Army from acting as a surety on the official bond of another officer. Such a relation, however, is not one to be favored. Ibid., par. 536.

Par. 572 of the Regulations contemplates plural sureties with bonds of disbursing officers. A justification of a surety, however, is no part of the bond, and as the object of the justification is to satisfy the Secretary of War that the surety is good for double the penalty, the Secretary, where amply satisfied that one certain person offered or executing as surety is pecuniarily sufficient for such amount, would be authorized to accept him (on his properly justifying) as sole surety, and to waive any further surety or sureties with the instrument. A subordinate of course can have no such authority. In view, however, of the terms of the regulation and of the practice under it, this authority would of course most rarely be exercised in cases of disbursing officers’ bonds. Ibid., par. 537.

A captain of the commissary department having given bond in a penalty of $12,000, one of his sureties deceased. Par. 563, Army Regulations, 1895, prescribes that “the sureties to bonds given by disbursing officers shall be bound jointly and severally.” The officer offered a new bond with one surety in a penalty of $6,000. Held that such security would not be legally sufficient, but that a new joint and several bond in the penalty of $12,000 would be required. Ibid., par. 552.

The regulations of the Treasury Department are imperative, and expressly prohibit the transfer of funds of any character for which an officer is accountable from one bond to another, and when this regulation is violated it becomes necessary for the officer to deposit the sum transferred as a credit to his first bond, or else procure the admission of the sureties on the second bond that the officer actually had the sum in hand when it was executed, and that they are liable on said bond for the same. 3 Dig. ² In accordance with the provisions of the above sections any public money advanced to disbursing officers of the United States must be deposited immediately to their respective credits, with either the United States Treasurer, some assistant treasurer, or by special direction of the Secretary of the Treasury with a national bank depository nearest or most convenient, except—

(1) Any disbursing officer of the War Department specially authorized by the Secretary of War, when stationed on the extreme frontier or at places far remote from such depositories, may keep, at his own risk, such moneys as may be intrusted to him for disbursement.

(2) Any officer receiving money remitted to him upon specific estimates may disburse it accordingly, without waiting to place it in a depository, provided the payments are due and he prefers this method to that of drawing checks. Treas. Circ. of 1898. G. O. 59, A. G. O., 1897.

Every disbursing officer, when opening his first account, before issuing any checks, will furnish the depository on whom checks are drawn with his official signature duly verified by some officer whose signature is known to the depository. Ibid.

Any check drawn by a disbursing officer upon moneys thus deposited must be in favor of the party, by name, to whom the payment is to be made, and payable to "order," or "bearer," with these exceptions:

(1) To make payments of individual pensions, checks for which must be made payable to "order," (2) to make payments of amounts not exceeding twenty dollars, (3) to make payments at a distance from a depository, and (4) to make payments of fixed salaries due at a certain period; in either of which cases except the first, any disbursing officer may draw his check in favor of himself, or "order," or "bearer," for such amount as may be necessary for such payment, but in the last-named case the check must be drawn not more than two days before the salaries become due.

Any disbursing officer or agent drawing checks on moneys deposited to his official credit, must state on the face or back of each check the object or purpose to which the avails are to be applied, except upon checks issued in payment of individual pensions, the special form of such checks indicating sufficiently the character of disbursement. Such statement may be made in brief form, but must clearly indicate the object of the expenditure, as, for instance, "pay," "pay roll," or "payment of troops," adding the fort or station; "purchase of subsistence" or other supplies; "on account of construction," mentioning the fortification or other public work for which the payment is made; "payments under $20," etc.

Checks will not be returned to the drawer after their payment, but the depository with whom the account is kept shall furnish the officer with a monthly statement of his deposit account. Ibid.

No allowance will be made to any disbursing officer for expenses charged for collecting money on checks.

Whenever any disbursing officer of the United States shall cease to act in that capacity he will at once inform the Secretary of the Treasury whether he has any public funds to his credit in any office or bank, and, if so, what checks, if any, he has drawn against the same, which are still outstanding and unpaid. Until satisfactory information of this character shall have been furnished, the whole amount of such moneys will be held to meet the payment of his checks properly payable therefrom.

In case of the death, resignation, or removal of any disbursing officer, checks previously drawn by him will be paid from the funds to his credit, unless such checks have been drawn more than four months before their presentation, or reasons exist for suspecting fraud. Any check previously drawn by him and not presented for payment within four months of its date will not be paid until its correctness shall have been attested by the Secretary or Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. Ibid.

Deposits to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States on account of repayment of disbursing funds must be made with the office or bank in which such funds are to the credit of the disbursing officer. Ibid.

For every deposit made by a disbursing officer, to his official credit, a receipt in form as below shall be given, setting forth its serial number and the place and date of issue; the title of each officer shall be expressed, and the title of the disbursing account shall also show for what branch of the public service the account is kept, as it is essential for the proper transaction of departmental business that accounts of moneys advanced from different bureaus to a disbursing officer serving in two or more distinct capacities be kept separate and distinct from each other, and be so reported to the Department both by the officer and the depository, the receipt to be retained by the officer in whose favor it is issued.

The President is authorized, if in his opinion the interest of the United States requires the same, to regulate and increase the sums for which bonds are, or may be, required by law, of all district attorneys, collectors of customs, naval officers, and surveyors of customs, navy agents, receivers and registers of public lands, paymasters in the Army, commissary-general, and by all other officers employed in the disbursement of the public moneys, under the direction of the War or Navy Departments.

EXCHANGES OF FUNDS.

609. No exchange of funds shall be made by any disbursing officer or agent of the Government, of any grade or denomination whatsoever, or connected with any branch of the public service, other than an exchange for gold, silver, United States notes, and national-bank notes; and every such disbursing officer, when the means for his disbursements are furnished to him in gold, silver, United States notes, or national-bank notes, shall make his payments in the money so furnished; or when they are furnished to him in drafts, shall cause those drafts to be presented at their place of payment, and properly paid according to law, and shall make his payments in the money so received for the drafts furnished, unless, in either case, he can exchange the means in his hands for gold and silver at par. And it shall be the duty of the head of the proper Department immediately to suspend from duty any disbursing officer or agent who violates the provisions of this section, and forthwith to report the name of the officer or agent to the President, with the fact of the violation, and all the circumstances accompanying the same, and within the knowledge of the Secretary, to the end that such officer or agent may be promptly removed from office or restored to his trust and the performance of his duties, as the President may deem just and proper.

¹ In the case of disbursing officers the policy of the Government has been to acknowledge no payments as made on its behalf save those which are authorized by law. If an officer makes a mistake of law the payment is disallowed when his accounts come in for settlement and charged to him as if the money were still in his hands. McKim v. U. S., 12 Ct. Cls., 504, 532. Such officers are special agents with very limited authority. Their duties are ministerial; they are to pay the money according to the law and the facts in each case, and if they make mistakes in either they are personally liable themselves, and the Government may also, without doubt, maintain an action to recover back the money from the person wrongfully receiving it. No discretion or authority to decide controverted questions of law is intrusted to such officers. See dissenting opinion of Richardson, J., in McKee v. U. S., 12 Ct. Cls., 504, 551.

A disbursing officer is prohibited by section 3648, Revised Statutes, from paying more than a proper proportion of the entire contract price agreed upon for the transportation of public property when only a portion of the property has been delivered. III Compt. Dec., 221. See, also, ibid., 187.

An advance of public money made by a paymaster of the Army to an officer ordered to a distant station, when made by direction of the President as provided by section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, to provide for the pay of such officer for a future period, is not a payment for services for the correctness of which the paymaster is responsible, but an advance of public money to the officer in question for which he, and not the paymaster, is accountable to the United States. IV ibid., 250.

The payment of express charges in advance is prohibited by this section. Ibid., 544.

When one appropriation is available for a specific object a second appropriation can not be used for the same work, unless from the second appropriation it clearly appears that it was the intention of Congress that such second appropriation should be available in addition to the specific appropriation. PECUNIARY RESPONSIBILITY OF OFFICERS.

An officer will have credit for an expenditure of money made in obedience to the order of his commanding officer. Every order issued by any military authority which may cause an expenditure of money in a staff department will be given in writing. One copy thereof will be forwarded by the officer receiving it to the head of his Department, and the other will be filed by the disbursing officer with his voucher for the disbursement. If the expenditure be disallowed it will be charged to the officer who ordered it. Par. 735, A. R., 1901.

Where purchases of army supplies are made in pursuance of an order issued by competent military authority, said order, or a certified copy thereof, should be filed with the first voucher on which payment for supplies is made and reference be made thereto on all the others. 3 Compt. Dec., 1, 287.

Where there is a plain direction or prohibition spread upon the statute books, which is as well known to the inferior as to a superior officer, it is clearly binding upon both officers, and unless it can be affirmatively shown that the inferior called the attention of the superior to the infringement of law in the order, and that thereupon the superior renewed the order, the inferior officer must be held liable. III Dig. Dec. 2d Compt., 9, par. 3.

If a payment made on the certificate of an officer as to the facts is afterwards disallowed for error of fact in the certificate, it will pass to the credit of the disbursing officer and be charged to the officer who gave the certificate; but the disbursing officer can not protect himself in an erroneous payment made without due care by charging lack of care against the officer who gave the certificate. Par. 736, Army Regulations of 1901.

Paragraph 654 of the Army Regulations of 1895 provides that accounts paid on a certificate and afterwards disallowed for error of fact in the certificate shall pass to the credit of the disbursing officer and be charged to the officer who gave the certificate: Held, That it is the duty, however, of the disbursing officer to exercise the utmost care and vigilance in the disbursement of the public funds intrusted to him, and it is his imperative duty to see that the entire amount claimed is due and that payment thereof is fully warranted from the data given on the muster roll or final statement. If the information is not sufficient he must seek for more. He can not protect himself, in an erroneous payment made without due care, by charging a similar lack of care against the officer who gave the certificate. III Dig. 2d Compt. Dec., 10, par. 9.

RULES FOR THE PREPARATION OF VOUCHERS.

1. Vouchers must be stated in the name of the person, firm, company, or corporation rendering the service or furnishing the articles for which payment is made.

2. If the payee be a firm; the receipt to the voucher should be in the usual firm signature, signed by a member of the firm; if an incorporated or unincorporated company, the receipt should be in the company name, followed by the autograph signature of the officer (with his title) authorized to receive the money and receipt therefor.

3. Evidence of the authority of the officer receipting for an incorporated or unincorporated company must accompany the voucher, unless the payment is made by a check drawn on a United States depository to the order of the company, and that fact, with the date and number of the check and name of the depository, is stated in the voucher.

4. When a disbursing officer is satisfied that an attorney or agent is authorized to receipt for his principal, whether an individual, firm, company, or corporation, the receipt of the principal by the attorney or agent will be sufficient, without proof of authority accompanying the voucher, provided that payment is made by a check drawn on a United States depository and payable to the order of the principal, and the memorandum required in the preceding paragraph is made upon the voucher.

5. These regulations will not affect any additional regulations of the several Departments, but are intended as a statement of all that is required by the accounting officers as proof that payments are made to the proper persons. Regulations of the Comptroller of the Treasury of May 20, 1896; II Compt. Dec., 666; G. O. 37, A. G. O., 1896.

The word "voucher" can not be construed as synonymous with the word "receipt," it having a far broader signification in law. Any written evidence which establishes facts entitling a disbursing officer to credit is a voucher. "The word 'voucher' would seem to imply evidence, written or otherwise, of the truth of a fact." The People v. Green, 5 Daly, N. Y., 194; 3 Compt. Dec., 378.

MONEY VOUCHERS. (a)

The term "voucher," when used in connection with the disbursement of moneys, implies some written or printed instrument in the nature of a receipt, note, account, bill of particulars, or something of that character, which shows on what account or by what authority a particular payment has been made, and which may be kept or filed away, by the party receiving it, for his own convenience or protection, or that of the public. People v. Brinkerhoff 107, Ill., 495.

The presentation by a disbursing officer of a voucher properly receipted by the person entitled to payment is but prima facie evidence of actual payment by him, and will not entitle him to credit unless the amount has been actually paid to the proper person or his representative. I Compt. Dec., 228. The receipt of a witness to a pay roll is valid although written with a pencil, and not with ink, as required by the regulations and practice of the Department. Ibid., 419.

What shall be considered proper vouchers and the extent and character of the evidence necessary to support a claim must, of course, depend upon the circumstances of each case. I think, however, that the term "proper vouchers" must be construed to mean the vouchers ordinarily required in the transaction of business of this character. Presumptions should not be accepted in the place of proof where the latter can be procured. V Compt. Dec., 140. See, also, VI ibid., 14, 97.

Every voucher signed on behalf of any person, firm, or corporation by an agent or attorney should bear the name of the proper firm, person, or corporation, followed by the name of the agent or attorney. 3 Dig. 2d Compt. Dec., 379.

Under a resolution of the executive committee of the Western Union Telegraph Company passed November 24, 1886, any person in charge of any office of said company is authorized to receive and receipt for payments to said company, and receipts by such persons for such payments are to be held as binding upon said company. Ibid.

Section 3477 of the Revised Statutes does not prohibit a disbursing officer from accepting the receipt of an agent or attorney of an individual, firm, or corporation, and receiving credit for a voucher so receipted, provided it appears thereon that the check issued in payment was made payable to the order of the individual, firm, or corporation. 2 Compt. Dec., 295.

An order from the court appointing a receiver and showing his authority to act as such should be filed with or referred to in every voucher or claim presented by him for payment. 3 Dig. 2d Compt. Dec., 378.

Receipts for small amounts for occasional service paid to corporations, such as railroad, telegraph, turnpike, transfer, express, steamboat, hotel, newspaper, and ice companies, may be signed by the local agent in charge of the business of the company at the place where the service is rendered, or where it begins or terminates, and the certificate of the officer making payment that the person to whom payment was thus made was then the local agent of the company, in charge of its business at the place designated, will be sufficient evidence of the agent's authority to receive and receipt for the money paid. Ibid.

The term "small amounts," as used in the Second Comptroller's decision of March 14, 1887, applies only to occasional payments of amounts deemed too insignificant to justify the Government in demanding written evidence of an agent's authority to receive and receipt for moneys, in accordance with the general rule. Ibid.

All vouchers in support of payments of percentages retained under contracts must be accompanied, as contemplated by section 277 of the Revised Statutes, by satisfactory evidence, either primary or secondary, that the several amounts thereon paid have been retained, have since become payable, and have not previously been paid. Ibid., 379.

Hereafter vouchers in support of partial payments, or vouchers on which the retention of percentages are noted, must be made in triplicate instead of duplicate. One of said vouchers is to be retained by the disbursing officer and the other two to be transmitted with his accounts to the accounting officers. The two vouchers so transmitted are to be examined and compared when the officer's accounts are adjusted and settled, one of them to be subsequently withdrawn by the Auditor and filed as a subvoucher with and in support of the voucher on which the final payment is made. Ibid.

It will be deemed a sufficient compliance with the requirement as to vouchers in support of partial payments, including those on which percentages are retained, if the vouchers intended to be withdrawn by the Third Auditor, after the necessary action of the accounting officers thereon and filed as subvouchers with the proper vouchers in support of final payments, be made without receipts and without copies of any subvouchers which may be filed with the original vouchers, but complete in all other respects and certified to by the proper officers. Ibid.

Vouchers on which percentages are retained, and which might otherwise be suspended under the decisions relating to such vouchers, may be passed to the credit of the disbursing officer or agent rendering them when the vouchers on which the retained percentages are paid are embraced in the same settlement with those on which the percentages are retained. Ibid., 380.

When a payment has been made to correct an error appearing in a previous voucher, the voucher on which the error was made, or other sufficient evidence of the error, should be transmitted with the accounts in which the disbursing officer claims credit. Ibid.

It is within the power of the accounting officers, in the settling of accounts of disbursing officers, where it appears that an expenditure has been made from the wrong appropriation, if the expenditure be right in itself and correct otherwise, to charge the amount to the appropriation for which the expenditure is liable. If at the time of the settlement the appropriation to which the expenditure is chargeable is exhausted, the amount should be disallowed against the disbursing officer, and he should be required to apply to Congress for relief. 3 ibid., 36.

Where one Department receives from another Department supplies which are within the scope of appropriations belonging to each a reimbursement of the appropriation of the one from the appropriation of the other, of the cost of the supplies, is not a violation of section 3678, Revised Statutes; nor do the provisions of section 3618, Revised Statutes, apply to such case. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to issue and publish regulations to enforce the speedy presentation of all Government drafts, for payment, at the place where payable, and to prescribe the time, according to the different distances of the depositaries from the seat of government, within which all drafts upon them, respectively, shall be presented for payment, and, in default of such presentation, to direct any other mode and place of payment which he may deem proper; but, in all these regulations and directions, it shall be his duty to guard, as far powers are undisputed and have not been revoked, either by the voluntary action of the principal or by his death. Ibid., 142, 431.

The assignment of a quartermaster's voucher, unless made "after the allowance of such a claim" and in conformity with all the other requirements of section 3477 of the Revised Statutes, is "absolutely null and void." The exigencies of the war and of the Government service immediately after the war, which at one time were relied upon to support the practice of paying the assignees of such vouchers, can not be made available in deciding cases now arising. 3 Dig. 2nd Compt. Dec., 156.

Transfers and assignments of claims.—The restrictions of the Comptroller of the Treasury in regard to the allowance of credits to disbursing officers for payments made by them on powers of attorney or other forms of transfer or assignment being so great as to amount practically to a prohibition of such payments, disbursing officers will refuse to pay the assignee of any claim, except as to assignments authorized by paragraphs 1300 and 1388 of the Army Regulations of 1895.

When claims or vouchers which have been assigned are presented for payment, the holders will be informed that disbursing officers have no authority to make payments to them as assignees, and that payments can only be made to the original persons to whom the money is due. Decision Asst. Sec. War, Nov. 7, 95—27033, A. G. O., 95. Circ. 13, A. G. O., 1895.

Assignments of pay by officers and enlisted men.—The assignment of their pay accounts by any officers, after the same become due, is authorized by paragraph 1300, Army Regulations of 1895, and is legal. III Second Compt. Dec., 45; ibid., 47. Such transfers are accomplished in accordance with paragraphs 1300 and 1388, Army Regulations of 1895. For a full discussion of the subject of assignments see notes to paragraph 196 ante.

Attachments.—An attachment can not be enforced against public money in the hands of a disbursing officer of the Government, and he is authorized to pay the Government's creditor without regard to such attempted levy. I Compt. Dec., 171; Buchanan v. Alexander, 4 How., 20.

631. Whenever any original check is lost, stolen, or destroyed, disbursing officers and agents of the United States are authorized, after the expiration of six months, and within three years from the date of such check, to issue a duplicate check; and the Treasurer, assistant treasurers, and designated depositaries of the United States are directed to pay such duplicate checks, upon notice and proof of the loss of the original checks, under such regulations in regard to their issue and payment, and upon the execution of such bonds, with sureties, to indemnify the United States, as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe. This section shall not apply to any check exceeding in amount the sum of twenty-five hundred dollars.¹ Act of February 16, 1895 (23 Stat. L., 306).

"When an original check of a disbursing officer, not exceeding $2,500 in amount, has been lost or destroyed, a duplicate check may be issued by him, after six months and within three years of the date of the original, upon the owner filing with him the notice and proof of loss and the indemnity bond required by sections 3646 and 3647, Revised Statutes, and act of February 16, 1885. In case the disbursing officer who issued the original check is no longer in the service, the notice and proof of loss and the indemnity bond will be sent to the Secretary of the Treasury prior to the issue of a duplicate check. The proper accounting officer of the Treasury will state an account in favor of the owner of said check and charge the amount thereof to the account of such officer. ¹ The forms for the rendition of accounts are prescribed by the Comptroller of the Treasury. See, also, section 4 of the act of August 30, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 413), which required such accounts to be rendered quarterly. The requirement of section 4, act of August 30, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 413), that accounts opened thereafter be rendered quarterly, was repealed by section 6 of the act of July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 206).

² An account is something which may be adjusted and liquidated by an arithmetical computation. One set of Treasury officers examine and audit the accounts; another set is intrusted with the power of reviewing that examination and with the further power of determining whether the laws authorize the payment of the account when liquidated. But no law authorizes Treasury officials to allow and pass in accounts a number not the result of arithmetical computation upon a subject within the operation of the mutual part of a contract. Power v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls., 263, 275. A voucher given by an officer of the Government, in the regular and ordinary course of his business, for services rendered or articles purchased for the public service, within the scope of his authority and the line of his duty unimpeached, is prima facie evidence of indebtedness on the part of the United States, as therein stated. Parish v. U. S., 2 Ct. Cls., 341; Solomon v. U. S., 19 Wall., 17, and 9 Ct. Cls., 54. In this respect the executive officers who are authorized to make contracts, employ services, or purchase property for the public service, and whose duty it is to see to it that the money certified by them to be due has been actually and fairly earned, within their own knowledge, while acting in their official capacity, differ from the certified balances of the accounting officers.

shall be required to furnish satisfactory evidence of having complied with the provisions of this section. Nothing herein contained shall, however, be construed to restrain the heads of any of the Departments from requiring such other returns or reports from the officer or agent, subject to the control of such heads of Departments, as the public interest may require.

Should there be any delinquency in this regard at the time of the receipt by the Auditor of a requisition for an advance of money, he shall disapprove the requisition, which he may also do for other reasons arising out of the condition of the officer's accounts for whom the advance is requested; but the Secretary of the Treasury may overrule the Auditor's decision as to the sufficiency of these latter reasons. *Sec. 12, act of July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. Auditor may disapprove requisitions on delinquency, etc.

In the examination of claims in the Treasury Department these accounting officers act wholly upon the evidence presented to them by others, and have themselves no personal knowledge of the facts upon which the claims are founded. It is one of the fundamental principles upon which that Department is established—and a useful and nice one it is—that the executive officers who pass upon public accounts shall be different from those who are authorized to make contracts and incur liabilities in the expenditure of public money. McCann v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls. 445, 447. The accounts under a contract remain open so long as anything remains to be adjusted or paid. Parker v. U. S., 26 Ct. Cls. 344.

The first clause of section 3622 of the Revised Statutes, which requires the rendition of accounts monthly, is applicable to every officer who receives advances of public money to be disbursed, and also to every officer who collects and receives fees and revenues which it is his duty to account for. XIX Opin. Att. Gen., 557.

The requirement that officers render their accounts monthly is not subject to the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, excepting in extraordinary cases, where he shall be of opinion that the statutory period ought to be enlarged to meet the special circumstances of such cases. XIX Opin. Att. Gen., 557.

For other statutory regulations in respect to the disbursement of and accounting for the public moneys, see sections 3643, 3648, 3678, and 3679 of the Revised Statutes, paragraphs 617, 619, 620, and 621 ante; see, also, the acts of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 113), and May 28, 1896 (29 ibid., 148), paragraphs 622, and 623 ante. For a definition of the term "account" as used in connection with the receipt and disbursement of the public money, see note 3, supra.

Secretary of the Treasury to prescribe rules for rendition of accounts.

639. The Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe suitable rules and regulations, and may make orders in particular cases relaxing the requirement of mailing or otherwise sending accounts as aforesaid within ten or twenty days, or waiving delinquency, in such cases only in which there is, or is likely to be, a manifest physical difficulty in complying with the same, it being the purpose of this provision to require the prompt rendition of accounts without regard to the mere convenience of the officers, and to forbid the advance of money to those delinquent in rendering them. Ibid.

Delays in submitting accounts.

640. Should there be a delay by the administrative Departments beyond the aforesaid twenty or sixty days in transmitting accounts, an order of the President [or, in the event of the absence from the seat of government or sickness of the President, an order of the Secretary of the Treasury] in the particular case shall be necessary to authorize the advance of money requested: And provided further, That this section shall not apply to accounts of the postal revenue and expenditures therefrom, which shall be rendered as now required by law.¹ Ibid.

¹ Amended by the insertion of the clause in brackets by section 4 of the act of March 2, 1895 (28 Stat. L., 807).

Under the authority vested in him by this statute, the Secretary of the Treasury relaxed the requirements in respect to the mailing of accounts by extending the time of mailing the accounts of disbursing officers as set forth therein.

Such period of relaxation was still further extended to December 31, 1900 (see General Orders, No. 211, A. G. O., of December 29, 1899, and the orders therein cited). Under this permission the date of mailing as fixed by A. R. 709, has been temporarily changed to the 20th day of each month for all accounts, whether rendered in this country or in the island possessions.

The exigency which required this temporary change having now ceased in the Subsistence Department at all depots, posts, and stations in the United States, except at the purchasing depots at New York, Chicago, and San Francisco, the relaxation of the law as to time of rendition of accounts is hereby withdrawn to take effect May 1, 1900, from all but the excepted depots, and accounts will thereafter be mailed on or before the 10th day of the month as required by A. R. 627. At the excepted depots the mailing of accounts may continue to be delayed until the 20th day of the month until further orders, or until December 31, 1900.

In the island possessions of Cuba; Porto Rico, and Hawaii the relaxation is hereby withdrawn as of date May 1, 1900, from all officers in those islands engaged in the receipt or disbursement of subsistence funds, and their accounts will thereafter be mailed on or before the 10th day of the month, as required by A. R. 709.

The mailing of the accounts of officers receiving and disbursing subsistence funds in the Philippines may continue to be delayed until the 20th day of the month until further orders, or until December 31, 1900.

Officers receiving and disbursing subsistence funds on United States transports will, after May 1, 1900, mail their accounts and returns at the port at which they may be when the ten days' limit will expire, or, if they should be at sea when the ten days' limit expires, they will mail their accounts and returns at the next United States or island port at which a stop is made.

Returns of subsistence stores and subsistence property will be rendered and mailed at all places concurrently with the rendering and mailing of accounts current and vouchers.

An officer delinquent in mailing his subsistence account current and vouchers or his returns within the time hereinabove limited will transmit with them at the time

REPORT OF DELINQUENTS.

641. The Secretary of the Treasury shall, on the first Monday of January in each year, make report to Congress of such officers and administrative departments and offices of the Government as were, respectively, at any time during the last preceding fiscal year delinquent in rendering or transmitting accounts to the proper offices in Washington and the cause therefor, and in each case indicating whether the delinquency was waived, together with such officers, including postmasters and officers of the Post-Office Department, as were found upon final settlement of their accounts to have been indebted to the Government, with the amount of such indebtedness in each case, and who, at the date of making report, had failed to pay the same into the Treasury of the United States.¹ Sec. 4, act of May 28, 1896 (29 Stat. L., 179).

REVISION OF ACCOUNTS.

642. The balances which may from time to time be certified by the Auditors to the division of bookkeeping and warrants, or to the Postmaster-General, upon the settlement of public accounts, shall be final and conclusive upon the executive branch of the Government, except that any person whose accounts have been settled, the head of an Executive Department to which the account pertains, or the Comptroller of the Treasury, may, within a year, obtain a revision of the said account by the Comptroller of the Treasury, whose decision upon such revision shall be final and conclusive upon the executive branch of the Government: Provided, That the Secretary of the Treasury may, when in his judgment the interests of the Government require it, suspend payment and direct the reexamination of any account.² Sec. 8, act of July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 207).

of mailing a full explanation of the causes of delay for the action of the proper authorities. G. O. 42, A. G. O., 1900.

The time for examination of monthly accounts by the bureaus and offices of the War Department after the date of actual receipt and before transmitting the same to the Auditor for the War Department was extended from twenty to sixty days for the period of one year from December 20, 1899, by the act of December 20, 1899 (31 Stat. L., 1.)

¹This provision replaces the requirement of section 12 of the act of July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 209), that "the Secretary of the Treasury shall, on the first Monday in January in each year, make report to Congress of such officers as are then delinquent in the rendering of their accounts, or in the payment of balances found due from them for the last preceding fiscal year."

Suits to recover money.

Mar. 3, 1797, c. 20, s. 1, v. 1, p. 512.
Sec. 3624, E. S.

643. Whenever any person accountable for public money neglects or refuses to pay into the Treasury the sum or balance reported to be due to the United States upon the adjustment of his account, the Comptroller of the Treasury shall institute suit for the recovery of the same, adding to the sum stated to be due on such account the commissions of the delinquent, which shall be forfeited in every instance where suit is commenced and judgment obtained thereon, and an interest of six per centum per annum from the time of receiving the money until it shall be repaid into the Treasury.¹

passed upon and settled by the Auditor, and, until the Auditor has settled the account, the Comptroller is without jurisdiction to revise it.

(3) The settlement of an account by the Auditor, so far as the claimant's right or power before the accounting officers is concerned, is final and conclusive, except that any person whose account may have been settled by the Auditor may, within a year, obtain a revision of said account by the Comptroller.

(4) The person who may obtain such revision is the person whose account has been settled by the Auditor. V Compt. Dec., 333, 334.

The Comptroller has the exclusive right to reopen an account which has been revised by himself or his predecessors. IV Compt. Dec., 303. After the expiration of a year from the date of settlement an Auditor has the exclusive right to reopen an account settled by himself or his predecessors. Ibid. Before the expiration of a year the right of revision by the Comptroller is exclusive, and an Auditor can not reopen an account within that period. Ibid. After the expiration of six months from the date of settlement by the Second Auditor, under the act of July 1, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 194), no appeal having been taken within that period, the Auditor for the War Department has the exclusive right to reopen the settlement. Ibid, 471.

Section 8 of the act of July 31, 1894, specifies the officers and persons by whom the revision of accounts by the Comptroller may be obtained, and it must be construed to be exclusive. IV Compt. Dec., 723. Under section 8 of the act of July 31, 1894, the Comptroller of the Treasury is authorized to revise, upon his own motion, all items embraced in an account, including items upon which payment has been accepted; and in particular instances, where justice requires it, such authority may be exercised in favor of a claimant. Ibid, 22.

The accounting officers are not authorized to reopen accounts which have been settled, except for the purpose of correcting mistakes of fact arising from errors of calculation, or upon the production of newly discovered material evidence. VI Compt. Dec., 236. The accounting officers are not authorized to reopen accounts for the purpose of correcting decisions upon questions of law subsequently held to be erroneous. Ibid, 91.

The right of the accounting officers to reopen accounts which have been settled, either by themselves or their predecessors, for the purpose of correcting mistakes of fact arising from errors of calculation, or upon the production of newly discovered material evidence, or for fraud or collusion, has received the sanction of the courts and of the law-making power. The act of July 31, 1894, does not take away or modify that right. IV Compt. Dec., 303.

Where the Comptroller has made a final settlement of a claim from the War Department, an order of the Secretary that the accounts be reexamined has no validity. B. & O. R. R. Co. v. U. S. 31, Ct. Cls., 484.

² Section 5495 of the Revised Statutes provides that the refusal of any person charged with the disbursement of public moneys promptly to transfer or disburse the funds in his hands, "upon the legal requirement of an authorized officer, shall be deemed, upon the trial of any indictment against such person for embezzlement, as prima facie evidence of such embezzlement." Applying this rule to a military case, it is clear that in the event of such a refusal by a disbursing officer of the Army the burden of proof would be upon him to show that his proceeding was justified and that it would not be for the prosecution to show what had become of the funds. So, where an acting commissary of subsistence, on being relieved, failed to turn over the public moneys to his successor, or to his post commander, when ordered to do so, or to produce such moneys, exhibit vouchers for the same, or otherwise account for their use, when required to do so by the department commander, held, that he was properly chargeable with and convicted of embezzlement under this article (sixtieth article of war). ² The Adjutant-General's Department is the bureau of orders and records of the Army.

Orders and instructions emanating from the War Department or Army Headquarters and all general regulations are communicated to troops and individuals in the military service through the Adjutant-General. His office is the repository for the records of the War Department which relate to the personnel of the permanent military establishment and militia in the service of the United States, to the military history of every commissioned officer and soldier thereof, and to the movements and operation of troops.

The records of all appointments, promotions, resignations, deaths, and other casualties in the Army, the preparation and distribution of commissions, and the compilation and issue of the Army Register and of information concerning examinations for appointment and promotion, pertain to the Adjutant-General's Office.

The Adjutant-General is charged, under the direction of the Secretary of War, with the management of the recruiting service, the collection and classification of military information in regard to our own and foreign countries, the preparation of instructions to officers detailed to visit encampments of militia, and the digesting, arranging, and preserving of their reports; also the preparation of the annual returns of the militia required by law to be submitted to Congress. Requests for military information, which require action on the part of any military attaché of the United States, will be made to the Adjutant-General of the Army. Par. 833, A. R., 1901.

In the Adjutant-General's Office the names of all enlisted soldiers are enrolled, enlistments and descriptive lists filed, deaths, discharges, desertions, etc., recorded, the general returns of the Army consolidated, returns of regiments and posts and all muster rolls, and the inventories of effects of deceased officers and soldiers preserved. Par. 834, ibid. But, see, as to the custodianship of certain rolls, returns, and records of the volunteer forces called into service during the recent war with Spain, section 8 of the act of April 22, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 362), paragraph 1238, post.

The act of appropriation of March 15, 1898, contained the following requirement: "For contingent expenses of the Military Information Division of the Adjutant-General's Office, and of the military attachés at the United States embassies and legations abroad, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War, three thousand six hundred and forty dollars. Act of March 15, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 327). For pay of a clerk attendant on the collection and classification of military information, one thousand five hundred dollars." Ibid., 320. The superior limit was established at thirty-five years and the inferior limit at eighteen years by section 4 of the act of March 3, 1899 (ibid., 977).

HISTORICAL NOTE.—The office of Adjutant-General, which had existed during the government under the Articles of Confederation, was created by section 7 of the act of March 5, 1792 (1 Stat. L., 241), which made provision for an adjutant who was to do the duty of an inspector: section 3 of the act of May 30, 1796 (ibid., 483), contained a similar provision for an inspector who was to do the duty of adjutant-general, but who was to continue in service until March 4, 1797, and no longer. Temporary provision seems to have been made for the performance of the duties of the department from March 4, 1797, until May, 1798, when, in anticipation of war with France, an increase of the military establishment was authorized and provision made in section 6 of the act of May 28, 1798 (ibid., 538), for the appointment of an adjutant-general with the rank and pay of a brigadier-general. Section 14 of the act of March 3, 1799 (ibid., 749), contained the requirement that the adjutant-general of the Army should be, ex officio, assistant inspector-general, and that deputy inspectors-general should be, ex officio, deputy adjutants-general, and should perform the duties of adjutants-general.

volition throw off the garments he has once put on, nor can he, the State not objecting, renounce his relations and destroy his status on the plea that if he had disclosed truthfully the facts the other party, the State, would not have entered into the new relations with him, or permitted him to change his status. U. S. v. Grimley, 137 U. S., 147.

Volunteer recruiting service.—The method of enlistment in the case of volunteers is regulated by section 5 of the act of April 22, 1898 (30 Stat. L. 361), which confers authority upon the Secretary of War "to prescribe such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with the terms of this act, as may in his judgment be necessary for the purpose of examining, organizing, and receiving into service the men called for." Under the authority thus conferred regulations were prepared by the Secretary of War and promulgated to the Army in a circular from the Adjutant-General's Office under date of June 3, 1898. Section 12 of the act of March 2, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 977), authorized the recruitment of a force of 35,000 volunteers, "without restriction as to citizenship or educational qualifications." For orders regulating the enlistment and organization of this force see General Orders, No. 122 and 150, A. G. O., of 1899.

¹This provision has become practically obsolete, as funds for the payment of the premiums therein authorized are no longer provided for in the annual acts of appropriation for the support of the military establishment.

During the period of the war of the rebellion the amount authorized by the statute was paid, not to the person bringing the recruit, but to the recruit himself as a part of the bounty due him at enlistment. By Circular No. 24, A. G. O., of 1866, this practice was discontinued and the premium was required to be paid to any military person or civilian who brought an accepted recruit to the rendezvous; but these payments were finally suspended, until further orders, by a circular dated February 11, 1868.

in the armies to which they might be assigned. These officers were disbanded on June 15, 1800, in pursuance of a requirement to that effect contained in the act of May 14, 1800 (2 ibid., 85). Section 3 of the act of March 16, 1802 (ibid., 132), provided for an adjutant and inspector of the Army, who was to be taken from the field officers. Section 4 of the act of January 11, 1812 (ibid., 671), created the office of Adjutant-General, with the rank and pay of a brigadier-general, which continued to exist until the close of the war, when it was discontinued in the reduction accomplished by the act of March 3, 1815 (3 ibid., 224). The duties of the department were again performed by officers temporarily detailed for the purpose for a little more than a year, when, by the act of April 24, 1816 (3 ibid., 297), the temporary establishment was made permanent and the strength of the department was fixed at one Adjutant and Inspector-General (brigadier-general), one assistant adjutant-general (colonel) for each division, and one assistant adjutant-general (major) for each brigade. At the general reduction of 1821 the department was reduced to a single officer—an Adjutant-General of the Army—with the rank of a colonel of cavalry. By section 7 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 ibid., 256), two assistant adjutants-general (brevet majors) and four brevet captains were added to the department. By section 6 of the act of June 18, 1846 (9 ibid., 17), four assistant adjutants-general were added for the period of the existing war; by section 2 of the act of March 3, 1847 (ibid., 184), one lieutenant-colonel and two brevet captains were authorized under the same restriction as to tenure of office. By section 3 of the act of July 19, 1848 (ibid., 247), the limitation contained in the two acts last cited was removed, and the establishment, as it existed at the close of the war with Mexico, was made permanent; the vacancies were not to be filled, however, until the further order of Congress; but, by section 4 of the act of March 2, 1849 (ibid., 351), this restriction was repealed and the President was authorized to make appointments and promotions in the department as then constituted by law.

At the outbreak of the war of the rebellion the department was reorganized, its composition being fixed by the act of August 3, 1861 (12 Stat. L., 287), at 1 brigadier-general, 1 colonel, 2 lieutenant-colonels, 4 majors, and 12 captains. By section 22 of the act of July 17, 1862 (ibid., 597), 1 colonel, 2 lieutenant-colonels, and 9 majors were added to the establishment, with the requirement that vacancies in the grade of major should thereafter be filled by selections from captains in the Army. By section 10 of the act of July 28, 1866 (14 ibid., 333), the composition of the department was fixed as follows: One brigadier-general, 2 colonels, 4 lieutenant-colonels, and 13 majors. The grade of captain not being provided for in this enactment was thenceforward discontinued. This statute contained the requirement that vacancies in the office of Adjutant-General should thereafter be filled by selection from the officers of the department. By section 2 of the act of March 3, 1869 (15 ibid., 318), promotions and appointments in the department were forbidden until the further order of Congress, but by Joint Resolution, No. 12, of April 10, 1869 (16 ibid., 53), this statute was suspended in its operation as to vacancies which had existed on March 3, 1869. By the act of March 3, 1873 (17 ibid., 578), the appointment of 1 major to the department was authorized and, by the act of March 3, 1875 (18 ibid., 478), the restriction upon appointments and promotions, imposed by the act of March 3, 1869, was removed, and the composition of the department fixed at 1 brigadier-general, 2 colonels, 4 lieutenant-colonels, and 10 majors. By the act of February 28, 1887 (24 ibid., 434), the grades of rank of the officers constituting the department were rearranged so as to consist of 1 brigadier-general, 4 colonels, 6 lieutenant-colonels, and 6 majors, the vacancies created by the act to be filled by promotion according to seniority. By the act of August 6, 1894 (28 ibid., 234), the number of majors in the department was reduced to 4. By the act of May 18, 1898 (30 ibid., 419), the appointment of 1 colonel and 1 major was authorized, with the proviso that, upon the muster out of the volunteer forces, no promotions or appointments should be made until the number of officers of the above grades had been reduced to that authorized by the law in force prior to the passage of the act. By section 3 of the act of June 6, 1900 (31 ibid., 655), the rank of major-general was conferred upon the Adjutant-General "during the service of the present incumbent." By section 13 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 ibid., 751), the permanent strength of the department was fixed at 1 adjutant-general with the rank of major-general, until a vacancy shall occur in the office on the expiration of the service of the present incumbent, by retirement or otherwise, and thereafter with the rank of brigadier-general, 5 assistant adjutants-general with the rank of colonel, 7 assistant adjutants-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and 15 assistant adjutants-general with the rank of major. A system of details was also established, by the operation of which the permanent commissioned personnel of the department will be gradually replaced, as vacancies occur, by officers detailed from the line of the Army for duty in the Adjutant-General's Department.

² For statutory provisions respecting the mileage of this officer see the act of February 27, 1893 (27 Stat. L., 480). Par. 847, post.

³ The duties of inspectors-general are defined in the following paragraphs of the Army Regulations of 1895 (see also G. O. 80 and 91, A. G. O. of 1898):

Officers of the Inspector-General's Department will inspect once in each year all military commands, garrisoned posts, and camps, and once in two years such ungarrisoned posts and national cemeteries as can be visited without departing materially from the routes of other prescribed inspections. (Par. 867, A. R., 1895.)

Inspections of the Military Academy will be made only under specific instructions given in each case by the Secretary of War, and inspections of the service schools, in so far as they are distinct from posts, under similar instructions given by the Secretary of War or the Commanding General of the Army. (Par. 869, ibid.)

The military department of civil institutions of learning at which officers of the Army are detailed will be inspected annually, near the close of the college year, under specific instructions. The inspecting officer, upon his arrival at the institutions, will apply to the president or the administrative officer thereof for such aid or facilities as he may require. His report will be sent to the Inspector-General of the Army, then to the Adjutant-General of the Army for note and return, and a copy furnished the president of the institution by the War Department. (Par. 870, ibid.)

The sphere of inquiry of the Inspector-General's Department includes every branch of military affairs, except when specially limited in these regulations or in orders. Inspectors-general and acting inspectors-general will exercise a comprehensive and general observation within their respective districts over all that pertains to the efficiency of the Army, the condition and state of supplies of all kinds, of arms and equipments, of the expenditure of public property and moneys, and the condition of accounts of all disbursing officers of every branch of the service; of the conduct, discipline, and efficiency of officers and troops, and report with strict impartiality in regard to all irregularities that may be discovered. From time to time they will make such suggestions as may appear to them practicable for the cure of any defect that may come under their observation. Par. 857, ibid.

Inspectors-general and acting inspectors-general are under the orders of the Secretary of War and the Commanding General of the Army only, and all orders not confidential will be issued from the Adjutant-General's Office and transmitted to them through the Inspector-General of the Army. They will make the general inspections within the limits of their respective districts, and will each be allowed the necessary clerks and one messenger, who will be assigned by the Secretary of War. (Par. 858, ibid.)

formity to the law appropriating the money; also to ascertain whether the disbursing officers of the Army comply with the law in keeping their accounts and making their deposits; such inquiries to be made by officers of the Inspection Department of the Army, or others detailed for that purpose: Provided, That no officer so detailed shall be in any way connected with the department or corps making the disbursement. Act of April 20, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 33).

686. That the reports of such inspections shall be made out and forwarded to Congress with the annual report of the Secretary of War. *Ibid.*¹ Reports of inspections.

687. Hereafter no portion of the appropriation for mileage to officers traveling on duty without troops shall be expended for inspections or investigations, except such as are especially ordered by the Secretary of War, or such Limitation on mileage. Aug. 6, 1894, v. 28, p. 237.

Inspectors-general and acting inspectors-general will exercise a comprehensive and general observation within their respective districts over all that pertains to the efficiency of the Army, the condition and state of supplies of all kinds, of arms and equipments, of the expenditure of public property and moneys, and the condition of accounts of all disbursing officers of every branch of the service; of the conduct, discipline, and efficiency of officers and troops, and report with strict impartiality in regard to all irregularities that may be discovered. From time to time they will make such suggestions as may appear to them practicable for the cure of any defect that may come under their observation. Par. 857, ibid.

The inspection contemplated in this provision is that required by the act of April 20, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 33). See also Chapter XLI, entitled THE NATIONAL HOME FOR DISABLED VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS.

All depots, armories, arsenals, and public works of every kind under charge of officers of the Army, except works of engineering conducted under the direction of the Secretary of War and supervision of the Chief of Engineers, will be inspected annually by officers of the Inspector-General's Department. These inspections will include military and business administration and methods, but will not extend to the scientific or technical character of work, for which the officer in charge is responsible, through the head of his department, to the Secretary of War. Par. 868, A. R., 1895.

The inspection of disbursements and money accounts of disbursing officers required by act of April 20, 1874, will be made by officers of the Inspector-General's Department or others detailed for that purpose, and, as far as practicable, at irregular intervals, but no officer so detailed shall be in any way connected with the corps or staff department making the disbursement. The frequency of these inspections will be regulated by the Secretary of War. Par. 871, ibid.

Inspectors-general and acting inspectors-general will inquire as to the necessity, economy, and propriety of all disbursements, their strict conformity to the law appropriating the money, and whether the disbursing officers comply with the law in keeping their accounts and making their deposits. A statement of receipts and expenditures and of the distribution of funds, with a list of outstanding checks, on forms furnished by the Inspector-General of the Army, will be submitted by the disbursing officer to the inspector, who should immediately transmit the list of outstanding checks to the several depositories. Upon return from a depository, balances will be verified and noted on the inspection report, which will then be forwarded to the Inspector-General. The list of outstanding checks will be retained by the inspector, and a copy, with indorsements thereon, sent to the Inspector-General. Par. 876, ibid.

When an officer ceases to act as a disbursing officer he will submit to the officer to whom the inspection of his accounts has been assigned a statement of his money accounts from date of last inspection to and including the closing of his accounts, with a list of outstanding checks. If an inspection be impracticable, the statement will be forwarded to the Inspector-General of the Army. Par. 877, ibid.

² The act of January 19, 1891 (26 Stat. L., 722), required an officer of this Department, at least once each year, to visit the military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, "for the purpose of examining into the books and all the affairs thereof, and ascertaining whether the laws, rules, and regulations relating thereto are complied with, the officers are competent and faithful, and the convicts properly governed and employed, and at the same time treated with humanity and kindness. And it shall be the duty of the inspector, at once, to make full report thereof to the Secretary of War."

HISTORICAL NOTE.—The Inspector-General's Department had existed during the war of the Revolution, the office of Inspector-General having been held by Baron Steuben, whose appointment was approved by Congress in a resolution dated May 25, 1778. During the incumbency of Baron Steuben a system of drill regulations was prepared and introduced, which continued in use until replaced, in part, by the system prepared by Col. Alexander Smyth in 1810, being finally superseded by the drill regulations prepared by Major-General Scott in 1821. On June 25, 1788, in conformity to a resolution of Congress of that date, the Inspector's Department ceased to exist, and the inspection of the troops was conducted for a time by officers of the line detailed for the purpose. By section 4 of the act of April 30, 1790 (1 Stat. L., 119), the appointment of one Inspector was authorized for the establishment created by that enactment. The act of March 5, 1792 (ibid., 241), merged the duties of the Adjutant and Inspector-General's Departments and made provision for an Adjutant who was to do the duty of an Inspector; section 3 of the act of May 30, 1796 (ibid., 483), made similar provision for an Inspector who was to do the duty of an Adjutant. The acts of March 3, 1797 (ibid., 507), and May 22, 1798 (ibid., 557), authorized the detail of an officer of the line to perform the duties of Inspector-General. Section 6 of the act of May 28, 1798 (ibid., 588), passed in contemplation of war with France, authorized the appointment of an Inspector-General with the rank of major-general, and on July 18, 1798, Gen. Alexander Hamilton was appointed to the vacancy. The temporary military establishment thus authorized, which was never fully completed, was disbanded by the acts of February 20, 1800 (2 ibid., 7), and May 14, 1800 (ibid., 85) and the duties of the Department were again performed by detail until the office of Inspector was created by section 4 of the act of March 16, 1802 (ibid., 132); by section 3 of the act of April 12, 1808 (ibid., 481), two brigade inspectors were authorized to be detailed from the line with increased rank; by the act of December 24, 1811 (ibid., 669), the office of Inspector-General (brigadier-general) was created and two assistants (lieutenant-colonels) were authorized; the duties of the Department were defined in regulations approved by the Secretary of War on November 4, 1812. By the act of March 3, 1813 (ibid., 819), the Adjutant and Inspector-General's Departments were again merged. The act of March 3, 1815 (3 ibid., 224), fixing the peace establishment, made no express provision for these Departments, their duties being performed by officers temporarily detailed for the purpose. By section 10 of the act of April 24, 1816 (ibid., 297), however, the temporary establishment which had existed since 1815 was made permanent. Provision was also made for an Adjutant and Inspector-General of the Army, together with an inspector-general to each division and an assistant to each brigade, which were to be filled by detail of officers from the line. At the general reduction of 1821 the Inspector-General's Department was recognized and continued by section 6 of the act of March 2, 1821 (ibid., 615), its composition being fixed at two inspectors-general with the rank and pay of colonels of cavalry. By section 4 of the act of August 23, 1842 (5 ibid., 512), the Department was reduced to one officer; the disbanded officer was restored, however, by the act of June 12, 1846 (9 ibid., 2), and the composition of the Department, as thus established, underwent no change until the outbreak of the war of the rebellion.

By section 2 of the act of August 3, 1861 (12 ibid., 287), five majors were added to the Department; by section 4 of the act of August 6, 1861 (ibid., 318), two colonels were authorized; and provision for the inspection service of the armies in the field was made by section 10 of the act of July 17, 1862 (ibid., 299), which authorized the rank and pay of lieutenant-colonel of cavalry to be conferred upon the inspectors-general of Army corps. By section 11 of the act of July 28, 1866 (14 ibid., 334), the composition of the Department was fixed as follows: Four colonels, three lieutenant-colonels, and two majors. Section 6 of the act of March 3, 1869 (15 ibid., 318), contained the requirement that there should be no promotions or appointments in the staff until otherwise directed by law; by the acts of June 8, 1872 (17 ibid., 338), and June 16, 1874 (18 ibid., 77), promotions were authorized to correct inequalities in the rank of officers of the Department. By the act of June 23, 1874 (ibid., 244), the restriction contained in the act of March 3, 1869, was removed and the strength of the Department fixed at one Inspector-General with the rank of colonel, two inspectors-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and two inspectors-general with the rank of major; authority was also conferred for the detail of four officers from the line of the Army for service as assistant inspectors-general, who were to receive the mounted pay of their grades, and no appointments were to be made to the grade of major until the number of officers in the Department had been reduced to five. By the act of December 12, 1878 (20 ibid., 257), the rank of brigadier-general was conferred upon the senior inspector-general. By the act of February 5, 1885 (23 ibid., 297), the composition of the Department was fixed as follows: One Inspector-General (brigadier-general), two colonels, two lieutenant-colonels, and two majors. It was also provided that the Inspector-General should be selected from the officers of the corps, that promotions should be by seniority in the Department, and that appointments to the grade of major should be made from the captains in the line of the Army. By the act of July 7, 1898 (30 ibid., 720), one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, and one major were added to the Department under the conditions above set forth.

By section 14 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 ibid., 751), the permanent strength of the Department was fixed at one Inspector-General with the rank of brigadier-general, four inspectors-general with the rank of colonel, four inspectors-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and eight inspectors-general with the rank of major. A system of details was also established, by the operation of which the permanent commissioned personnel of the Department will be gradually replaced, as vacancies occur, by officers detailed from the line of the Army for duty in the Inspector-General's Department.

The act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 899), modified the organization prescribed in the act of February 2, 1901, by the insertion of the requirement that, upon the occurrence of a vacancy in the grade of colonel, after the present lieutenant-colonels shall have been promoted or retired, the vacancy shall not be filled and thereafter the number of officers authorized for the Department shall be as follows: One Inspector-General with the rank of brigadier-general, three inspectors-general with the rank of colonel, four inspectors-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and nine inspectors-general with the rank of major.

697. Judge-advocates shall perform their duties under the direction of the Judge-Advocate-General.

¹The work done in his office and for which this officer is responsible consists mainly of the following particulars: Reviewing and making reports upon the proceedings of trials by court-martial of officers, enlisted men, and cadets, and the proceedings of courts of inquiry; making reports upon applications for pardon or mitigation of sentence; preparing and revising charges and specifications prior to trial, and instructing judge-advocates in regard to the conduct of prosecutions; drafting of contracts, bonds, etc.; as also for execution by the Secretary of War of deeds, leases, licenses (see License), grants of rights of way, approvals of location of rights of way, approvals of plans of bridges and other structures, notices to alter bridges as obstructions to navigation, etc.; framing of bills, forms of procedure, etc.; preparing of opinions upon questions relating to the appointment, promotion, rank, pay, allowances, etc., of officers, enlisted men, etc., and to their amenability to military jurisdiction and discipline; upon the civil rights, liabilities, and relations of military persons and the exercise of the civil jurisdiction over them; upon the employment of the Army in execution of the laws; upon the discharge of minors, deserters, etc., on habeas corpus; upon the administration of military commands, the care and government of military reservations, and the extent of the United States and State jurisdictions over such reservations or other lands of the United States; upon the proper construction of appropriation acts and other statutes; upon the interpretation and effect of public contracts between the United States and individuals or corporations; upon the validity and disposition of the varied claims against the United States presented to the War Department; upon the execution of public works under appropriations by Congress; upon obstructions to navigation as caused by bridges, dams, locks, piers, harbor lines, etc., upon the riparian rights of the United States and of States and individuals on navigable waters, etc.; and the furnishing to other departments of the Government of statements and information apposite to claims therein pending, and to individuals of copies of the records of their trials under the one hundred and fourteenth article of war. The matter of the submitting to the Judge-Advocate-General of applications for opinions is regulated by paragraph 853, Army Regulations of 1901.

The Judge-Advocate-General's Department is the Bureau of Military Justice. The Judge-Advocate-General is the custodian of the records of all general courts-martial, courts of inquiry, and military commissions, and of all papers relating to the title of lands under the control of the War Department, except the Washington Aqueduct and the public buildings and grounds in the District of Columbia. The officers of this department render opinions upon legal questions when called upon by proper authority. Par. 991, A. R., 1901.

The original proceedings of all general courts-martial, courts of inquiry, and military commissions, with the decisions and orders of the reviewing authorities made thereon, and the proceedings of all general courts-martial, courts of inquiry, and military commissions which require the confirmation of the President, but which have not been appointed by him, will be forwarded direct to the Judge-Advocate-General. One copy of the order promulgating the action of the court and a copy of every subsequent order affecting the case will be forwarded to the Judge-Advocate-General, with the record of each case. When more than one case is embraced in a single order, a sufficient number of copies will be forwarded to enable one to be filed with each record. The proceedings of all courts and military commissions appointed by the President will be sent direct to the Secretary of War. Par. 993, A. R., 1901.

Applications of officers, enlisted men, and military prisoners for copies of proceedings of general courts-martial, to be furnished them under the one hundred and fourteenth article of war, will, when received by post or other commanders, be forwarded direct to the Judge-Advocate-General. Par. 995, A. R., 1910.

Communications relating to proceedings of military courts on file in the Judge-Advocate-General's Department will be addressed and forwarded direct by department commanders to the Judge-Advocate-General. In routine matters the Judge-Advocate-General and judge-advocates may correspond with each other direct. Par. 996, A. R., 1901.

The reports which the Judge-Advocate-General may render upon cases received by him, and which require the action of the President, will be addressed to the Secretary of War and will be forwarded, through the Commanding General of the Army, for such remarks and recommendations as he may see fit to make. Par. 997, A. R., 1901.

HISTORICAL NOTE.—The office of Judge-Advocate of the Army was created during the war of the Revolution, having been established by resolution of Congress of July 25, 1775 (Journals of Cong.), soon after the enactment of the Articles of War on June 29 of the same year. In the reenactment of the Articles, in 1776, this officer was styled the Judge-Advocate-General of the Army and was empowered to prosecute in the name of the United States or to conduct such prosecutions by deputy. The office of Judge-Advocate ceased to exist at the disbandment of the Revolutionary armies, but was revived by section 2 of the act of March, 3, 1797 (1 Stat. L., 507), which made provision for a Judge-Advocate, to be taken from the commissioned officers of the line, who was to receive the same pay and allowances as the brigade major (adjutant) and inspector therein authorized. This office, with other offices in the general staff, was discontinued by the act of March 16, 1802 (2 ibid., 132). Section 19 of the act of 1812 (ibid., 674), passed in contemplation of war with England, made provision for one judge-advocate, with the rank of major, to each division, and this number was increased to three by section 2 of the act of April 24, 1816 (3 ibid., 397). At the reduction of 1818 these officers were disbanded (act of April 14, 1818, 3 ibid., 426), and the office of Judge-Advocate of the Army was discontinued by the act of March 2, 1821 (ibid., 615).

By section 4 of the act of March 3, 1849 (9 ibid., 351), the office of Judge-Advocate of the Army was reestablished, with the rank and pay of major of cavalry. By section 5 of the act of July 17, 1862 (12 ibid., 598), the office of Judge-Advocate-General was created, with the rank and pay of brigadier-general; by this enactment the duties of the office were defined. By section 5 of the same statute provision was made for a corps of judge-advocates, one of whom was to be assigned to duty at the headquarters of each army in the field. By section 5 of the act of June 20, 1864 (13 ibid., 145), the Bureau of Military Justice was established, to which the Judge-Advocate-General was transferred, and an Assistant Judge-Advocate-General, with the rank of colonel of cavalry, was authorized. By section 12 of the act of July 28, 1866 (14 ibid., 334), the composition of the department was fixed at one Judge-Advocate-General (brigadier-general), one Assistant Judge-Advocate-General (colonel), and ten judge-advocates were added to the military establishment, who were to be selected by the Secretary of War from the corps of judge-advocates authorized by the act of July 17, 1862. By this statute the office of Solicitor of the War Department was discontinued, the duties of the office being merged in the Bureau of Military Justice. By section 3 of the act of March 3, 1869 (15 Stat. L., 318), all appointments and promotions in the several departments of the staff were prohibited until otherwise directed by law; but this restriction was removed, as to the Bureau of Military Justice, by the act of April 10, 1869 (16 ibid., 44), which fixed the number of judge-advocates at eight. By section 2 of the act of June 23, 1874 (18 ibid., 244), the office of Assistant Judge-Advocate-General was discontinued, and it was provided that there should be no appointments to the grade of major until the number of officers of that grade had been reduced to four. By the act of July 5, 1884 (23 ibid., 113), the Bureau of Military Justice and the corps of judge-advocates were consolidated and merged in the Judge-Advocate-General's Department, the composition of which was fixed as follows: One Judge-Advocate-General (brigadier-general), one Assistant Judge-Advocate-General (colonel), three deputy judge-advocates-general (lieutenant-colonels), and three judge-advocates (majors). Promotion to the grade of colonel was to be by seniority, and provision was made for the detail of officers of the line as judge-advocates of military departments, who were to have, while so serving, the rank and pay of captains mounted.

By section 15 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 ibid., 751), the permanent strength of the Department was fixed at one Judge-Advocate-General with the rank of brigadier-general, two judge-advocates with the rank of colonel, three judge-advocates with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and six judge-advocates with the rank of major. The system of details of officers of the grade of captain or first lieutenant to serve as acting judge-advocates, and, while so serving, to have the rank, pay, and allowances of captains mounted, as established by the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 113), was recognized and continued.

¹The transportation of organized bodies, or detachments of troops under orders from competent authority directing travel to be performed, is regulated by the requirements of this section, as modified from time to time by the provisions of the annual acts of appropriation for the support of the Army. The allowance of sleeping-car accommodation to officers traveling with troops is regulated by the following requirements of General Orders No. 3, A. G. O., of 1899:

The following persons are entitled, at public expense, to a double berth in a sleeping car, or to the customary stateroom accommodations on steamers where extra charge is made for the same: Officers of the Army traveling on duty with troops; army nurses, civilian clerks and agents in the military service, when traveling under orders on public business; sergeant-majors, ordnance, commissary (post or regimental), quartermaster (post or regimental), and electrician sergeants, hospital stewards, chief musicians, chief trumpeters, principal musicians, and sergeants of the Signal Corps, when traveling under orders on public business without troops; also invalid soldiers, when so traveling on the certificate of a medical officer showing the necessity therefor.

When the number of officers traveling with troops is too small to justify the hire by the Quartermaster's Department of a standard sleeping car for their accommodation, they shall be furnished with such part of a tourist sleeping car, or other suitable sleeping car, properly curtained off for their accommodation, as the Quartermaster's Department may provide for their use during the journey.

REIMBURSEMENT OF CIVILIANS FOR TRAVELING EXPENSES.

The transportation of civilian employees and their reimbursement for traveling expenses are controlled by the following paragraphs of the Army Regulations of 1895:

TRAVELING EXPENSES.

For authorized journeys of civilian employees of any branch of the military service transportation requests will be obtained when practicable, but will be obtained in every case for travel over bond-aided railroads. Par. 813, A. R., 1901.

Reimbursement of actual expenses when traveling under competent orders will be allowed under the following heads, to civilians in the employ of any branch of the military service, excepting the expert accountant of the Inspector-General's Department, paymasters' clerks, and those mentioned in the next succeeding paragraph, viz:

1. Cost of transportation (excluding parlor-car fare) over the shortest usually traveled route, when it was impracticable to furnish transportation in kind on transportation requests.

2. Cost of transfers to and from railroad stations, not exceeding 50 cents for each transfer.

3. Cost of one double berth in a sleeping car, or customary state-room accommodation on boats and steamers when extra charge is made therefor.

4. Cost of meals, not exceeding $3 per day, while en route, when meals are not included in the transportation fare paid; and not exceeding $3 per day for meals and lodgings during necessary delay en route.

5. Cost of meals and lodgings, not exceeding $3 per day, while on duty at places designated in the orders for the performance of temporary duty. Par. 814, ibid.

Veterinary surgeons of cavalry regiments traveling under proper orders, in accordance with paragraph 185, are not entitled to reimbursement under the fifth heading above given. Par. 730, A. R. 1895.

Laborers, teamsters, and employees of similar character, traveling under competent orders, will be entitled to such actual and necessary expenses of travel and subsistence as may be authorized by the chief of bureau which pays the accounts. Those in receipt of a ration under paragraph 1252 will not be allowed commutation therefor. If it be impracticable for them to carry rations in kind, rations will not be drawn for the period during which they are traveling. Par. 815, A. R. 1901.

None but the authorized items of traveling expenses of civilians will be allowed. They will in all cases be set forth in detail in each voucher for reimbursement supported by oath and, when practicable, by receipts. Par. 816, ibid.

Paymasters' clerks and the expert accountant of the Inspector-General's Department, when traveling on duty, will, when transportation in kind can not be furnished by the Quartermaster's Department, be reimbursed for cost of transportation paid by them, exclusive of parlor or sleeping car fares or transfers, and will receive in addition thereto, for all travel whether or not on transportation requests, 4 cents per mile for each mile necessarily traveled by them in the performance of duty—distance to be computed over the shortest usually traveled route. Par. 818, ibid.

Actual traveling expenses, as contemplated in the preceding paragraphs, are paid by the following departments, viz:

Pay Department.—To paymasters' clerks, the expert accountant of the Inspector-General's Department, civilians summoned as witnesses before, and authorized reporters of, military courts.

Ordnance Department.—To employees at arsenals and armories (cost of transportation included) from appropriations for the service of the Ordnance Department.

Engineer Department.—To employees on public works and fortifications (cost of transportation included) from appropriations made specifically for the work.

Quartermaster's Department.—To employees of the Quartermaster's and Subsistence and the transportation so furnished shall be a charge against the officers' mileage account, to be deducted at the rate of three cents per mile by the paymaster paying the account, the amount so deducted to be turned over to the authorized officer of the Quartermaster's Department for the credit of the appropriation for transportation of the Departments, and other employees of the Army not above provided for. Par. 819, ibid. This department also furnishes transportation to maimed soldiers, etc., to enable them to procure artificial limbs (see paragraphs 948 and 949, post), and to soldiers who have been admitted to the Soldiers' Home.

When officers of the staff departments change station the transfer of clerks or other employees to the new stations at the expense of the United States is prohibited, except in cases of urgent necessity, for which the sanction of the Secretary of War will first be obtained. The Pay Department is excepted from this regulation. Par. 820, ibid.

The appropriation for the transportation of the Army is not applicable to the permanent repair of a public highway under the jurisdiction of a State. V Compt. Dec., 673.

TRANSPORTATION OF BAGGAGE.

In changing station an officer's authorized allowance of baggage (a) will be turned over to a quartermaster for transportation as freight by ordinary freight lines, unless otherwise ordered by the department commander or higher authority. No reimbursement will be made to an officer who under such circumstances sends packages by express or ships and pays for the transportation of his baggage. Par. 1118, A. R., 1895.

The baggage to be transported at public expense, including mess chests and personal baggage, upon change of station, will not exceed the following weights:

Rank.	In the field.	Changing station.
	Pounds.	Pounds.
Major-general	1,000	3,500
Brigadier-general.....	700	2,800
Field officer.....	500	2,400
Captain.....	200	2,000
First lieutenant.....	150	1,700
Second lieutenant and veterinarian.....	150	1,500
Acting assistant surgeon.....	150	1,200
Post and regimental noncommissioned staff officer, hospital steward, chief musician, sergeant of the Signal Corps, squadron and battalion sergeant-majors, each.....	500

These allowances are in excess of the weights transported free of charge under the regular fares by public carriers. They may be reduced pro rata by the commanding officer, if necessary, and may, in special cases, be increased by the War Department on transports by water. Shipments of officers' allowance of baggage will in all cases be made at carrier's risk, including those over roads where tariffs provide for extra charge therefor. Par. 1242, A. R. 1901.

The Quartermaster's Department will transport the authorized change of station allowance of baggage and professional books and papers for officers or enlisted men upon retirement, or who die in the service, from their last duty stations to such places within the limits of the United States as may be the homes of their families, or as may be designated by their legal representatives or executors. Par. 1243, ibid.

Transportation of change of station allowance of baggage is authorized for such contract surgeons as may be employed, when they join for duty under the first order, and also on return to their homes on the termination of their contracts, if provided for in the contracts. Graduates of the Military Academy and officers promoted from the ranks will be furnished with transportation for field allowance of baggage on their first assignment to duty as commissioned officers. With these exceptions, transportation of baggage at public expense is not authorized for officers joining for duty on first appointment to military service, nor upon reinstatement or reappointment, nor to effect transfers from one company or regiment to another at the request of parties transferred. Officers ordered on temporary duty and officers going abroad as military attachés (a) are not entitled to such transportation. An officer detailed as attaché, however, is entitled to have his full allowance transported from the post he leaves to his home, or to the nearest convenient place of storage, and upon resuming duty in this country from such place of storage to his post of duty. While on journeys as an attaché the cost of transporting his personal baggage can not be paid by the Quartermaster's Department. (b) Par. 1121, A. R., 1895.

The Quartermaster's Department will furnish transportation for the prescribed regimental and company desks, for the books, papers, and instruments of staff officers necessary to the performance of their duties, and for the medical chests of medical officers; also for the professional books of officers changing station, officers ordered home for retirement, graduates of the Military Academy, and officers joining on first appointment, which they certify belong to them and pertain to their official duties; also the professional books of hospital stewards changing station, not exceeding two hundred pounds in weight. Invoices of packages turned over to the shipping officer will be accompanied by the certificate of the officer as to character of books, and a certified copy will be attached to the bill of lading issued at the initial point of shipment. The certificate as to the character of the books of a hospital steward will be given by the medical officer under whom he last served. Par. 1245, A. R., 1901.

The Quartermaster's Department will transport, for officers changing station, the number of horses for which they are legally entitled to forage, and an attendant to accompany the horses when necessary, subject to the following restrictions:

(1) That the expense paid by the United States shall not exceed $50 for each horse transported. The cost of such shipment will be ascertained in advance, and if found to exceed $50 for each horse, including transportation of attendant, if any, the excess must be prepaid by the owner, who must also pay all the expenses of the attendant other than his transportation.

(2) That the horses are owned by the officer and were used by him in the public service at the station from which he is ordered to move.

(3) The horses of retired officers or officers ordered to their homes to await retirement, or officers ordered on recruiting service or college detail, or to attend schools of instruction as student officers, or to effect a voluntary transfer, will not be transported at public expense. Par. 1069, A. R., 1895.

The Quartermaster's Department may provide transportation of baggage for enlisted men traveling under orders without troops, not to exceed the following weights:

Noncommissioned officers.....	pounds..	100
Privates of the Hospital Corps	do.....	100
Other privates	do.....	50

This allowance will accompany each man on the conveyance by which he is transported, and will include the number of pounds of baggage carried free on the passage ticket. Par. 1224, A. R., 1901.

Deduction from
Ibid.

723. When transportation is furnished by the Quartermaster's Department, or when the established route of travel is over any of the railroads above specified, there shall be deducted from the officers' mileage account, by the paymaster paying the same, three cents per mile for the distance for which transportation has been or should have been furnished.¹ Ibid.

TRANSPORTATION BY LAND-GRANT AND BOND-AIDED RAILROADS.

Payment of land-grant roads, etc.
Mar. 2, 1901, v.
p. 31, 907.

725. For the payment of army transportations lawfully due such land-grant railroads as have not received aid in Government bonds (to be adjusted in accordance with the decisions of the Supreme Court in cases decided under such land-grant acts), but in no case shall more than fifty per centum of full amount of service be paid: Provided, That such compensation shall be computed upon the basis of the tariff or lower special rates for like transportation performed for the public at large, and shall be accepted as in full for all demands for such service: Provided further, That in expending the money appropriated by this act, a railroad company which has not received aid in bonds of the United States, and which obtained a grant of public land to aid in the construction of its railroad on condition that such railroad should be a post route and military road, subject to the use of the United States for postal, military, naval, and other Government services, and also subject to such regulations as Congress may impose restricting the charge for such Government transportation, having claims against the United States for transportation of troops and munitions of war and military supplies and property over such aided railroads, shall be paid out of the moneys appropriated by the foregoing provision only on the basis of such rate for the transportation of such troops and munitions of war and military supplies and property as the Secretary of War shall deem just and reasonable under the foregoing provision, such rate not to exceed fifty per

FUEL AND FORAGE.

Allowance of
fuel and forage.
Sec. 8, June 17,
1878, v. 20, p. 150.

740. Allowance of or commutation for fuel to commissioned officers is hereby prohibited; but fuel may be furnished to the officers of the Army by the Quartermaster's Department, for the actual use of such officers only, at the rate of three dollars per cord for standard oak wood, or at an equivalent rate for other kinds of fuel, according to the regulations now in existence; and forage in kind may be furnished to the officers of the Army by the Quartermaster's Department, only for horses owned and actually kept by such officers in the performance of their official military duties when on duty with troops in the field or at such military posts west of the Mississippi River, as may be from time to time designated by the Secretary of War, and not otherwise as follows:

To the General, five horses;

To the Lieutenant-General, four horses;

To a major-general, three horses;

To a brigadier-general, three horses;

To a colonel, two horses;

To a lieutenant-colonel, two horses;

To a major, two horses;

To a captain (mounted), two horses;

To a lieutenant (mounted), two horses;

To an adjutant, two horses;

To a regimental quartermaster, two horses.¹ Sec. 8, act of June 17, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 150).

River.
Feb. 24, 1881, v.
21, p. 347.

741. There shall be no discrimination in the issue of forage against officers serving east of the Mississippi River, provided they are required by law to be mounted, and actually keep and own their animals. Act of February 24, 1881 (21 Stat. L., 347).

¹This statute, which replaces section 1271, Revised Statutes, contains the added condition that horses shall not only be "actually kept" but "owned" by officers in the performance of their military duties.

The right conferred upon officers of the Army by the act of June 18, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 150), to purchase fuel for their actual use only, in the manner and at the terms prescribed by said act, pertains to all officers of the Army, irrespective of the nature of the duties upon which they are engaged. No part of the cost of fuel so sold is properly chargeable to the appropriation for any public work, unless provision is expressly made therein for such cost. 3 Dig. 2d Compt. Dec., par. 655. For allowances of fuel as established by regulation, see table in note 5 to par. 738, ante.

The forage ration for a horse is 14 pounds of hay and 12 pounds of oats, corn, or barley; for a mule, 14 pounds of hay and 9 pounds of oats, corn, or barley. Department commanders will reduce the forage ration when necessary. Par. 1154, A. R., 1901.

One hundred pounds of straw per month is allowed for bedding to each horse or mule in public service. At posts where straw is not furnished, hay will be issued and used for bedding. Par. 1162, ibid.

Forage is furnished only to officers for the horses owned and actually kept by them

Par. 1157, ibid.

Mounted officers will not use public horses and at the same time draw forage for those they own; nor will they use public animals except as authorized by regulations. Should circumstances render it necessary, an officer may be temporarily furnished public horses, but during such period he will not be permitted to draw forage for a private horse. Par. 1158, ibid.

An officer not mounted may purchase forage for two horses kept for his own use, for which he will be charged cost, including transportation. The sale of forage to mounted officers is forbidden. Par. 1159, ibid.

For a case, in which certain officers of the Army were ordered by the Secretary of War to make restitution to the United States of certain sums of money representing quantities of fuel which had been consumed by them without being paid for as required by law, see Gen. Court-martial Orders No. 85, War Dept., of 1882.

¹WORKING PARTIES—EXTRA AND SPECIAL DUTY MEN.

Troops will not be employed in labors that interfere with their military duties except in cases of necessity. Par. 181, A. R., 1901.

Enlisted men detailed to perform specific services which remove them temporarily from the ordinary duty roster of the organization to which they belong will be reported on extra duty if receiving increased compensation therefor, otherwise, on special duty. They will not be placed on extra duty, except as bakers or to perform the necessary routine services in the Quartermaster's and Subsistence Departments, without the sanction of the department commander, nor will they be employed on extra duty for labor in camp or garrison which can be properly performed by fatigue parties. Allotments of funds for the payment of extra-duty men at department headquarters and depots under the control of department commanders will be made only with the approval of the Secretary of War. Duty of a military character must be performed without extra compensation. Par. 164, A. R., 1895.

The provisions of section 6 of the act approved April 26, 1898, abolishing extra-duty pay in time of war, applies to enlisted men in every department of the Army, and, as war existed when the act was passed, enlisted men ceased to be entitled to extra-duty pay upon the date of its approval. Circular 15, A. G. O., 1898. See, also, G. O. 77, A. G. O., 1898.

The detail of a noncommissioned officer on extra duty other than that of overseer will not be made without the approval of the Secretary of War. A noncommissioned officer will not be detailed on any duty inconsistent with his rank and position in the military service. Par. 166, A. R., 1895.

Company artificers, farriers, blacksmiths, saddlers, and wagoners will not receive extra-duty pay unless detailed on extra duty in the Quartermaster's Department, wholly disconnected from their companies. Par. 186, A. R., 1901.

Soldiers on extra duty will be paid the extra rates of pay allowed by law for the duty performed and for the exact number of days employed; and no greater number of men will be employed on extra duty at any time than can be paid the full legal rates for the time employed from the funds provided. Payments made in violation of the above rules will be charged against the officers who ordered the details. Par. 187, ibid.

Extra-duty men will be held to such hours of labor as may be expedient and necessary; but, except in case of urgent public necessity, as in military operations, eight hours will be considered a day's work. For all hours employed beyond that number the soldier will receive additional compensation—the extra hours being computed as fractions of a day of eight hours' duration. Par. 189, ibid.

Details of enlisted men for extra and special duty will be limited to actual necessities, which will be determined by post commanders in accordance with limits published in orders from the War Department. Allotments to posts of funds for extra-duty pay are made by department commanders from allotments made to departments for the purpose, and must not be exceeded without special authority from department commanders. Par. 190, ibid.

¹Enlisted men of the several staff departments are not entitled to extra-duty pay for services rendered in the department to which they belong. To entitle them to such compensation they must be detailed by competent orders and must have performed duty in another department than that in which they are enlisted. Under existing orders enlisted men of the Ordnance Department are entitled to extra-duty pay when performing duty in the Quartermaster's Department. Circular II, A. G. O., 1886; I, ibid., 1887, and par. 185, A. R., 1901.

Clerical services at Army, division, and department headquarters have, since the act of July 29, 1886 (24 Stat. L., 167), been performed by a corps of general-service clerks and messengers. By the act of August 6, 1894, this force ceased to exist as a part of the enlisted strength of the Army.

The act of March 15, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 323), and prior acts of appropriation fix the sum that may be expended for the pay of extra-duty men at $200,000 per annum; they also contain the requirement that "no payment of extra-duty pay shall be made at any greater rate per day than is fixed by law for the class of persons employed and the work done therein."

CIVILIAN EMPLOYEES.

748. The number of and total sum paid for civilian employees in the Quartermaster's Department, including those paid from the funds appropriated for regular supplies, incidental expenses, barracks and quarters, army transportation, clothing, camp and garrison equipage, shall be limited to the actual requirements of the service, and no employee paid therefrom shall receive a salary of more than one hundred and fifty dollars per month, except upon the approval of the Secretary of War.¹ *Act of March 2, 1901 (31 Stat. ¹ The act of March 3, 1885 (23 Stat. L., 359), restricted the number of civilian employees in this Department to 1,000; the act of February 12, 1895 (28 ibid., 661), restricted the payments for the services of civilian employees to $1,000,000, and provided that no employee should receive as salary more than $150 per month without the specific authority of law.

The amount to be expended for the payment of civilian employees was fixed at $1,600,000 by the act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. L., 459); at $1,500,000 by the acts of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 111), March 3, 1885 (23 Stat. L., 360), and June 30, 1886 (24 Stat. L., 98); at $1,300,000 by the acts of February 9, 1887 (24 Stat. L., 399), September 22, 1888 (25 Stat. Sec. 1302, R. S.

752. The money value of all clothing overdrawn by the soldier beyond his allowance shall be charged against him, every six months, on the muster roll of his company, or on his final statements if sooner discharged, and he shall receive pay for such articles of clothing as have not been issued to him in any year, or which may be due to him at the time of his discharge, according to the annual estimated value thereof. soldier, as in the case of a man who dies away from his proper command and under circumstances rendering such issues imperatively necessary, the expense of the issue will be borne by the United States, and the clothing will be dropped from the returns of the issuing officer on the orders of the commanding officer, which must recite the necessity for the issue. Par. 1320, ibid.

Where the clothing of certain enlisted men of volunteers was destroyed near Santiago, Cuba, in 1898, by order of the proper military authority, on account of having been exposed to contagion, and replaced by new clothing which was charged to the enlisted men receiving it on their clothing accounts, it was decided by the Comptroller of the Treasury, November 28, 1900, that the issue was proper under the circumstances of the case, and that the charges therefor in the clothing accounts were erroneous and should be canceled. Circular No. 51, A. G. O., 1900.

Each soldier's clothing account will be kept by the company or detachment commander in the company clothing book. The account will show the money value of the clothing received by the soldier at each issue, and his receipt therefor will be taken in the book. Par. 1303, ibid.

Company and detachment commanders will settle the clothing account of every enlisted man of their respective commands six months after the date of his enlistment, and thereafter on June 30 and December 31 of each year. The entire amount found due the United States for the periods embracing the dates of settlement will be charged to the soldier upon the pay rolls. The money allowance of clothing for the first year will be allotted by half years. Par. 1304, ibid.

The balance due the soldier at either of these dates will be credited to him upon the company clothing book. It will not be placed upon the pay rolls, but the final balance due at date of discharge will be entered upon his final statements. In case of transfer the balance due the soldier or the United States will be entered on the descriptive list. All balances of this character will be stated in words and figures. Par. 1305, ibid.

The clothing account of a soldier who deserts should be settled in full to the date of desertion. The balance due him or the United States will be entered on the next pay rolls after date of desertion. The amount due the United States or the soldier at date of desertion should be ascertained by crediting the soldier with clothing allowance from date of last clothing settlement to the date of desertion (excluding the day of desertion) and debiting him with the money value of all cloth-

(ibid., 610); and by section 6 of the same enactment, the corresponding power was withdrawn from the purveyor of public supplies, the purpose of the statute being to vest the power of purchase in the Secretary of War and that of auditing the vouchers of purchase in the accounting officers of the Treasury. By the act of March 3, 1809 (2 ibid., 535), a method of making purchases and of accounting for the same was prescribed by statute.

The Quartermaster's Department, eo nomine, was established by the act of March 28, 1812 (2 Stat. L., 690), and consisted of a Quartermaster-General with the rank of brigadier-general, four deputy quartermasters, and as many assistant deputy quartermasters as, in the opinion of the President, the public service might require; in section 3 the duties of the department were defined. A commissary-general of purchases was also authorized, and a purchasing department was established, to consist of a commissary-general of purchases, a deputy for each division, six assistant commissaries of issues, and as many military storekeepers as the service might require. The duties of the purchasing department, which were to some extent in conflict with those prescribed for the Quartermaster's Department, appear to have been restricted to the procurement of subsistence stores and supplies, leaving the purchase of forage, the provision of transportation, etc., to the Quartermaster-General. The act of April 23, 1812 (ibid., 710), established a corps of artificers as a component part of the Quartermaster's Department; and by the act of May 22, 1812 (ibid., 742), a force of barrack masters was authorized, and officers of the department were required to give bond for the faithful expenditure of public moneys and accounting for all public property which might come into their hands. The office of superintendent-general of military supplies was created by the act of March 3, 1813 (ibid., 816), and charged with the duty of supervising the rendition and audit of accounts and returns from officers in the military service; this office was abolished by the act of March 3, 1817 (3 ibid., 366), the duties of audit being transferred to the accounting officers of the Treasury.

In the reorganization of the staff, which was accomplished by the act of April 24, 1816 (3 Stat. L., 297), the services of the Quartermaster-General were retained and a deputy quartermaster-general was authorized for each division and an assistant for each brigade, who were to supersede the existing quartermasters of brigades. By section 3 of the act of April 14, 1818 (ibid., 426), the department was to consist of a Quartermaster-General (brigadier-general), four assistant deputy quartermasters-general, and as many additional assistants as the President might deem proper. At the general reduction of 1821 the strength of the department was fixed at a Quartermaster-General (brigadier-general), two quartermasters (majors of cavalry), and ten assistant quartermasters, to be detailed from the line with $10 per month additional compensation. By section 4 of the act of May 18, 1826 (4 ibid., 173), two quartermasters and ten assistants were added, who were also to be taken from the line. This statute imposed upon the department the duty of distributing (but not purchasing) the clothing, camp and garrison equipage required for the use of the troops. By section 9 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 ibid., 256), two assistant quartermasters-general (lieutenant-colonels), and eight assistant quartermasters (captains) were added, and officers already in the department were placed on the same footing in respect to rank, pay, and emoluments (that of officers of dragoons of corresponding rank) as those therein authorized; forage and wagon masters, not to exceed twenty in all, were also authorized. The office of commissary-general of purchases was abolished by section 3, act of August 23, 1842 (5 ibid., 512), and its duties were merged in those required to be performed by the Quartermaster's Department.

At the outbreak of the war with Mexico provision was made for the expansion of the department in section 5, act of June 18, 1846 (9 Stat. L., 17), by the appointment of a quartermaster (major) for each brigade and an assistant quartermaster (captain) for each regiment. By section 10, act of February 11, 1847 (ibid., 126), four quartermasters and ten assistant quartermasters were added to the department; by section 10, act of July 19, 1848 (ibid., 247), so much of the act of February 11, 1847, as required the discharge of the additional officers therein authorized was repealed. Five military storekeepers were added by the act of March 3, 1857 (11 ibid., 200).

For the volunteer forces called into the service at the commencement of the war of the rebellion, brigade quartermasters (captains) were authorized for each brigade, and the permanent force of the department was increased by the addition of one colonel, two lieutenant-colonels, four majors, and twenty captains by section 3 of the act of August 3, 1861 (12 Stat. L., 287); captains after fourteen years' service were to be advanced to the grade of major, and wagon masters and teamsters were authorized with the pay and allowances of sergeants and corporals, respectively. The number of military storekeepers was increased to twelve by section 8 of the act of 1862

(ibid., 610); and by section 6 of the same enactment, the corresponding power was withdrawn from the purveyor of public supplies, the purpose of the statute being to vest the power of purchase in the Secretary of War and that of auditing the vouchers of purchase in the accounting officers of the Treasury. By the act of March 3, 1809 (2 ibid., 535), a method of making purchases and of accounting for the same was prescribed by statute.

The Quartermaster's Department, eo nomine, was established by the act of March 28, 1812 (2 Stat. L., 690), and consisted of a Quartermaster-General with the rank of brigadier-general, four deputy quartermasters, and as many assistant deputy quartermasters as, in the opinion of the President, the public service might require; in section 3 the duties of the department were defined. A commissary-general of purchases was also authorized, and a purchasing department was established, to consist of a commissary-general of purchases, a deputy for each division, six assistant commissaries of issues, and as many military storekeepers as the service might require. The duties of the purchasing department, which were to some extent in conflict with those prescribed for the Quartermaster's Department, appear to have been restricted to the procurement of subsistence stores and supplies, leaving the purchase of forage, the provision of transportation, etc., to the Quartermaster-General. The act of April 23, 1812 (ibid., 710), established a corps of artificers as a component part of the Quartermaster's Department; and by the act of May 22, 1812 (ibid., 742), a force of barrack masters was authorized, and officers of the department were required to give bond for the faithful expenditure of public moneys and accounting for all public property which might come into their hands. The office of superintendent-general of military supplies was created by the act of March 3, 1813 (ibid., 816), and charged with the duty of supervising the rendition and audit of accounts and returns from officers in the military service; this office was abolished by the act of March 3, 1817 (3 ibid., 366), the duties of audit being transferred to the accounting officers of the Treasury.

In the reorganization of the staff, which was accomplished by the act of April 24, 1816 (3 Stat. L., 297), the services of the Quartermaster-General were retained and a deputy quartermaster-general was authorized for each division and an assistant for each brigade, who were to supersede the existing quartermasters of brigades. By section 3 of the act of April 14, 1818 (ibid., 426), the department was to consist of a Quartermaster-General (brigadier-general), four assistant deputy quartermasters-general, and as many additional assistants as the President might deem proper. At the general reduction of 1821 the strength of the department was fixed at a Quartermaster-General (brigadier-general), two quartermasters (majors of cavalry), and ten assistant quartermasters, to be detailed from the line with $10 per month additional compensation. By section 4 of the act of May 18, 1826 (4 ibid., 173), two quartermasters and ten assistants were added, who were also to be taken from the line. This statute imposed upon the department the duty of distributing (but not purchasing) the clothing, camp and garrison equipage required for the use of the troops. By section 9 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 ibid., 256), two assistant quartermasters-general (lieutenant-colonels), and eight assistant quartermasters (captains) were added, and officers already in the department were placed on the same footing in respect to rank, pay, and emoluments (that of officers of dragoons of corresponding rank) as those therein authorized; forage and wagon masters, not to exceed twenty in all, were also authorized. The office of commissary-general of purchases was abolished by section 3, act of August 23, 1842 (5 ibid., 512), and its duties were merged in those required to be performed by the Quartermaster's Department.

At the outbreak of the war with Mexico provision was made for the expansion of the department in section 5, act of June 18, 1846 (9 Stat. L., 17), by the appointment of a quartermaster (major) for each brigade and an assistant quartermaster (captain) for each regiment. By section 10, act of February 11, 1847 (ibid., 126), four quartermasters and ten assistant quartermasters were added to the department; by section 10, act of July 19, 1848 (ibid., 247), so much of the act of February 11, 1847, as required the discharge of the additional officers therein authorized was repealed. Five military storekeepers were added by the act of March 3, 1857 (11 ibid., 200).

For the volunteer forces called into the service at the commencement of the war of the rebellion, brigade quartermasters (captains) were authorized for each brigade, and the permanent force of the department was increased by the addition of one colonel, two lieutenant-colonels, four majors, and twenty captains by section 3 of the act of August 3, 1861 (12 Stat. L., 287); captains after fourteen years' service were to be advanced to the grade of major, and wagon masters and teamsters were authorized with the pay and allowances of sergeants and corporals, respectively. The number of military storekeepers was increased to twelve by section 8 of the act of 1862

(ibid., 509). The office of the Quartermaster-General was reorganized into eight divisions, and six inspectors and ten chief quartermasters of armies and departments (colonels) and division quartermasters with the rank of major were authorized for the period of the war.

At the general reorganization of 1866, the strength of the department was increased to the following: One Quartermaster-General (brigadier-general), six assistant quartermasters-general (colonels), ten deputy quartermasters-general (lieutenant-colonels), fifteen quartermasters (majors), and forty-four assistant quartermasters (captains), section 13, act of July 28, 1866 (14 Stat. L., 334). The vacancies created by the act were to be filled by the appointment of persons who had served in the Quartermaster's Department during the war of the rebellion; so soon as the vacancies created by the act had been once filled, however, there were to be no appointments or promotions to the grades of captain and major until the number of officers in those grades had been reduced to twelve and thirty respectively. Promotions and appointments were prohibited until the further order of Congress by section 6, act of March 3, 1869 (15 Stat. L., 318, sec. 1194, R. S.), but this prohibition was removed by the act of March 3, 1875 (18 ibid., 330), which provided the following permanent organization for the department: One Quartermaster-General (brigadier-general), four assistant quartermasters-general (colonels), eight deputy quartermasters-general (lieutenant-colonels), fourteen quartermasters (majors), and thirty assistant quartermasters (captains); no more military storekeepers were to be appointed, and the office was eventually to cease to exist upon the death or retirement of the storekeepers then in service. Appointments to the grade of captain from civil life were authorized, in the discretion of the President, by the act of March 3, 1883 (22 ibid., 456), but this requirement was repealed by the act of August 6, 1894 (28 ibid., 234), which restricted such appointments to officers of the next lower grade in the line of the Army. The corps of quartermaster-sergeants was added by the act of July 5, 1884 (23 ibid., 107), and the corps of army service men was attached to the department by the act of June 20, 1890 (26 ibid., 163). At the outbreak of the war with Spain the Secretary of War was authorized, by the act of July 7, 1898 (30 ibid., 714), to assign four officers of the department to duty as inspectors, and these officers, together with the four principal assistants in the office of the Quartermaster-General, the heads of the divisions in the same office, and the officers in charge of the principal depots, not exceeding twelve in number, were to have, during such assignment, the rank and pay one grade higher than that actually held by them in the regular or volunteer service; such increase in rank, however, was in no case to exceed that of colonel, and was to continue for a period not exceeding one year after the close of the war. Two colonels, two lieutenant-colonels, three majors, and twenty captains were added to the volunteer force of the department for the period of the existing war. The corps of post quartermaster-sergeants was increased to a total strength of one hundred and five by the act of July 8, 1898 (ibid., 728).

By section 16 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L. 751), the permanent strength of the department was fixed at one Quartermaster-General with the rank of brigadier-general, six assistant quartermasters-general with the rank of colonel, nine deputy quartermasters-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, twenty quartermasters with the rank of major, and sixty quartermasters with the rank of captain mounted. A system of details was also established by the operation of which the permanent commissioned personnel of the department will be gradually replaced, as vacancies occur, by officers detailed from the line of the Army for duty in the Quartermaster's Department.

Section 2 of the act of July 7, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 715), authorized the Subsistence Department of the volunteer service to be increased "during the present war, and not to exceed one year thereafter, eight majors and twelve captains for the discharge of such subsistence duties as may be assigned to them by the Secretary of War, to be nominated and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to be appointed by the President."

The same statute contained the requirement that "during the existence of the present war, and for not exceeding one year thereafter, every commissary of subsistence, of whatever rank, who shall be assigned to the duty of purchasing and shipping subsistence supplies at important depots, shall have the rank next above that held by him and not above colonel, but the number so assigned shall only be such as may be found necessary, not exceeding twelve; also that the two commissaries of subsistence who may be detailed as assistants to the Commissary-General of Subsistence, shall have the rank of colonel: Provided, That when any such officer is relieved from said duty, his temporary rank, pay, and emoluments shall cease, and he shall return to his lineal rank in the Department."

These statutes were repealed by section 11, act of March 2, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 979). For the volunteer subsistence staff, see the act of March 2, 1899 (30 ibid., 979).

762. The Secretary of War is authorized to select from the sergeants of the line of the Army who shall have faithfully served therein five years, three years of which in the grade of noncommissioned officers, as many commissary-sergeants as the service may require, not to exceed one for each military post or place of deposit of subsistence supplies, whose duty it shall be to receive and preserve the subsistence supplies at the posts, under the direction of

CIVIL EMPLOYEES.

The employment of civilians in the Subsistence Department is regulated by the annual acts of appropriation. The amount to be expended for such services was fixed at $105,000 in the acts of March 3, 1883, July 5, 1884, March 3, 1885, and June 30, 1886; at $110,000 by the acts of February 9, 1887, September 22, 1888, March 2, 1889, June 13, 1890, February 24, 1891, July 16, 1892, and February 27, 1893, and at $100,000 by the acts of August 6, 1894, February 12, 1895, and March 16, 1896.

the proper officers of the Subsistence Department, and under such regulations as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of War. The commissary-sergeants hereby authorized shall be subject to the rules and articles of war, and shall receive for their services the same pay and allowances as ordnance-sergeants.¹

The act of June 30, 1882 (22 Stat. L., 123), authorizes the detail of one commissary-sergeant to act as assistant to the commissary of cadets at the Military Academy. By General Orders No. 17, A. G. O., of February 16, 1900, the number of post commissary-sergeants was fixed at 165; by General Orders No. 59, A. G. O., of May 3, 1900, the number was increased to 200. General Orders No. 1, A. G. O., of 1900, contains the requirement that "at military posts and stations and in the field the regimental commissaries and regimental commissary-sergeants of cavalry and infantry regiments will perform the necessary work of their respective offices in the subsistence department at the stations of the headquarters of their regiments, and no commissary-sergeants of the general staff will be assigned to posts at which there is a regimental headquarters, except under unusual conditions."

² The Subsistence Department, under the direction of the Secretary of War, provides for the distribution and expenditure of funds appropriated for subsisting enlisted men and for purchasing articles kept for sale to officers and enlisted men. The Commissary-General furnishes lists of articles authorized to be kept for sale, and gives instructions for procuring, distributing, issuing, selling, and accounting for all subsistence supplies. Par. 1351, A. R., 1901.

(1) Subsistence stores, consisting of articles composing the ration and those furnished for sale to officers and enlisted men, also lantern candles for stable use, forage for beef cattle, and coarse salt for public animals and rebrining.

(2) Subsistence property, consisting of the necessary means for handling, preserving, issuing, selling, and accounting for these stores. Par. 1355, ibid.

767. No officer belonging to the Subsistence Department, or doing the duty of a subsistence officer, shall be concerned, directly or indirectly, in the purchase or sale of any article entering into the composition of the ration allowed to troops in the service of the United States, or of any article designated by the inspectors-general of the Army, and furnished for sale to officers and enlisted men at cost prices, or of tobacco furnished for sale to enlisted men, except on account of the United States; nor shall any such officer take or apply to his own use any gain or emolument for negotiating or transacting any business connected with the duties of his office, other than that which may be allowed by law.

Purchases.

768. Hereafter, except in cases of emergency or where it is impracticable to secure competition, the purchase of all supplies for the use of the various departments and posts of the Army and of the branches of the army service shall only be made after advertisement, and shall be purchased where the same can be purchased the cheapest, quality and cost of transportation and the interests of the Government considered; but every open-market emergency purchase made in the manner common among business men which exceeds in amount two hundred dollars shall be reported for approval to the Secretary of War under such regulations as he may prescribe.¹ Act of March 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 905).

¹ The object of this provision is to secure the Government the benefit arising from competition. It is expected that this benefit will manifest itself in the selection of the best and most suitable supplies for the least expenditure of public money. Where the prices for supplies are fixed and uniform it is unusual and impracticable to advertise for proposals. Such cases are not within the meaning of the statute. 3 Dig. 2nd Compt. Dec., par. 1112. Expenditures for water and gas are not expenditures for supplies within the meaning of this act. Ibid., 1111. So held also as to street-car tickets. Ibid., 1124.

THE RATION.¹

Par.	Par.
769. President to prescribe components.	771, 772. Issues to enlisted men.
770. The garrison ration, the field ration, the emergency ration; meat issues, proportions; the same, substitutions.	773. Issues to matrons and nurses.
	774. Issues to Indians.
	775, 776. Sugar and coffee.
	777. The same, commutation.

769. The President is hereby authorized to prescribe the kinds and quantities of the component articles of the army ration, and to direct the issue of substitutive equivalent articles in place of any such components whenever, in his opinion, economy and due regard to the health and comfort of the troops may so require.² Sec. 40, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 758).

President to prescribe components of ration.

Feb. 2, 1901, s. 40, v. 31, p. 758.

to the lowest bidder in every instance, but only to the lowest responsible bidder for the best and most suitable article, in case the right to reject "any and all bids," which the statute reserves, is not exercised. Ibid., 433.

Evidence of compliance with the requirements of this statute should accompany all contracts filed in the Second Comptroller's Office. Ibid., 426.

Whenever an officer of the Army enters into a contract on behalf of the Government for the purchase of quartermaster's or subsistence supplies, under the authority conferred by this statute, it should be made to appear by the certificate of the officer that the supplies were required for immediate use. The officer should also certify as to the time and manner of the advertisement, and that the award was made to the lowest responsible bidder for the best and most suitable article. Ibid., 428.

Under the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 109), there are four classes of purchases of army supplies made by the Quartermaster and Subsistence Departments, namely: First "emergency purchases," which must be at once reported to the Secretary of War for his approval; second, purchases of "small amounts for immediate use," which must be made "by contract after public notice of not less than ten days;" third, purchases of the great bulk of army supplies, which must be made under the general rule prescribed by the Army Regulations, that is, after public notice of not less than thirty days; and, fourth, unusual and important purchases, where the Secretary of War deems public notice of from thirty to sixty days advisable. Ibid., 1119.

In all cases where purchases of regular or miscellaneous supplies for the Army are made by the Quartermaster's Department or by the Subsistence Department after public notice of ten days or more, without executing formal written contracts, the vouchers therefor must be accompanied by the following evidence, namely: First, a copy of the public notice for bids; second, a certificate as to the time and manner of the public notice for bids; third, the accepted bid; fourth, a copy of the letter accepting the bid, and, fifth, a certificate that the award was made to the lowest responsible bidder for the best and most suitable article. Ibid., p. 1122.

The object of this legislation is to secure for the Government the benefit of competition in obtaining supplies and to prevent favoritism in making the purchases thereof. It contemplates one general mode of purchase, namely, by contract, after advertisement, with "the lowest responsible bidder for the best and most suitable article," with but a single exception, and that is where an "emergency" exists requiring the purchase to be otherwise made. Such emergency may arise not only before the required public notice can be given, but after it has once been given, in consequence of the failure to receive any bids or proposals; in either case the purchase thereupon would be an emergency purchase, and come within the requirement of the statute for an immediate report to the Secretary of War for his approval. This requirement is, I think, designed to extend to all purchases which are not made agreeably to the general mode above indicated, and hence it applies to the purchase of parts of machinery, or parts of stoves or ranges, for repairs, or of patented articles, when the same is (as in cases of emergency, and those only, it may be) made in open market. XVIII Opin. Att. Gen., 349.

² This enactment replaces the requirement of section 1146, Revised Statutes, which authorized the President to "make such alterations in the component parts of the ration as a due regard to the health and comfort of the Army and economy may require."

770. In accordance with the provisions of section 40 of the act entitled "An act to increase the efficiency of the permanent military establishment of the United States," approved February 2, 1901, which authorizes the President to "prescribe the kinds and quantities of the component articles of the army ration, and to direct the issue of substitutive equivalent articles in place of any such components whenever, in his opinion, economy and a due regard to the health and comfort of the troops may so require," the following is promulgated for the information and guidance of all concerned:

The kinds and quantities of articles composing the army ration and the substitutive equivalent articles which may be issued in place of such components shall be as follows:

a The issue of liquid coffee to troops when traveling by rail is governed by paragraph 1388 of the Army Regulations of 1901.

4. For troops traveling on vessels of the United States army transport service.

Food on transports for troops traveling will be prepared from the articles of subsistence stores which compose the ration for troops in garrison, varied by the substitution of other articles of authorized subsistence stores of equal money value when required. No savings will be allowed to troops on transports.

5. For use of troops on emergent occasions in active campaign (emergency ration).

An emergency ration, prepared under direction of the War Department, will be issued to troops on active campaign, but will not be used at any time or place where regular rations are obtainable. It will be packed in a conveniently shaped package, and will be carried in the haversack or saddlebags and accounted for at inspection, etc., by the soldier.

6. Proportions of meat issues.

Fresh meats will ordinarily be issued seven days in ten, and salt meats three days in ten. If fish (dried, pickled, or canned) is issued it will be in substitution of salt meat. The proportions of the meat issues may be varied at the discretion of department commanders, not, however, without due consideration being given to the equitable rights of contractors engaged in furnishing fresh meats to the troops under their commands.

7. Substitute when the issue of both fresh meat and vegetables is impracticable.

Whenever the issue of both the fresh meat and vegetable components is impracticable there may be issued in lieu of them canned fresh-beef-and-vegetable stew, at the rate of 28½ ounces to the ration.

Issues of rations to civilian employees are governed by the requirements of paragraph 1398, Army Regulations, 1901, which provides that "issues of rations to civilians employed with the Army will be made on ration returns signed by the officers in charge of the employees, when ordered by the commanding officer."

Rations furnished for the use of the Army, being the public property of the United States, can only be disposed of or issued in accordance with law. Issues to destitute citizens not being so authorized are made on the responsibility of the officer ordering the same. In this connection, see paragraph 1405, A. R., 1901.

Private persons not connected with the Army are not entitled to be subsisted at the expense of the United States, either while in quarantine hospitals or otherwise. 5 Comp. Dec., 191.

A civilian employee of the Army engaged to accompany a scientific expedition at a salary of $125 per month is not entitled to subsistence, but, like a commissioned officer, must subsist himself. Herendeen v. U. S., 28 Ct. Cls., 348.

¹ The acts of June 23, 1879, and May 4, 1880, contained the requirement that 10 per cent of the cost price should be added to the cost of all stores (except tobacco) sold to officers and enlisted men, to cover wastage, transportation, and other incidental charges (21 Stat. L., 32, 111). This provision was repealed by the act of July 5, 1884, above cited. To a civilian employed with the Army at a remote place, where food can not otherwise be procured, stores will be sold for cash, in limited quantities, for his own use, at invoice or contract prices with 10 per cent added. Under the act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 410), the proceeds of all sales of subsistence supplies, being exempt from being covered into the Treasury, revert to the appropriation "Subsistence of the Army," out of which they were originally expended, and are applicable to the purpose for which they are appropriated by law, namely, the purchase of fresh supplies only during the fiscal year for which the appropriation to which they revert is available, for which purpose they are immediately available without the intervention of a repay warrant. Ibid.

The subsistence supplies contemplated by the provision of the act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 410), declaring the proceeds of all sales of such supplies immediately available for the purchase of fresh supplies, comprise not only the supplies denominated "subsistence stores," but also the necessary means for handling, preserving, issuing, selling, and accounting for these supplies, as tools, scales, measures, utensils, stationery, safes, office furniture, etc. Ibid., 1336.

² Section 1233, Revised Statutes, which required cooks to be detailed, in turn, from the privates of each company was repealed by the act of June 29, 1879 (20 Stat. L., ch. 24, p. 276). See G. O. 94, A. G. O., 1898. The act of July 7, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 721), authorized the enlistment of one cook in each company composing the military establishment. Such cook was to have the rank and receive the pay of a corporal. This statute was replaced by the act of March 2, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 977), which authorized two cooks to be enlisted in each troop of cavalry, battery of artillery, and company of infantry of the Regular and Volunteer establishments. By section 9 of the act of March 2, 1899, the cooks so enlisted were to have the pay of sergeants of infantry.

COMMUTATION OF RATIONS.

Coffee and sugar. 789. For each ration of sugar and coffee not issued, nor commuted for the extract of coffee combined with milk July 5, 1838, s. 17, v. 5, p. 258. Sec. 1294, R. S. and sugar, enlisted men shall be paid in money.¹

Authority to establish the rates of the allowance for commutation of rations has not been given by statute, but these rates have been left to be fixed by Army Regulations. But these amounts are recognized and sanctioned in the provisions of the Army appropriation acts relating to the Subsistence Department. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1957.

Paragraph 1273, Army Regulations, 1895, in directing that commutation in lieu of rations shall not be allowed to soldiers where subsistence in kind is provided by the Government, excepts cases where the same is specially authorized by the Secretary of War. Held, that this part of the Regulations was substantially superseded by the statutory provision of the existing army appropriation act of February 27, 1893, which enumerates several specific classes of enlisted men as persons to whom the payment may be made without reserving to the Secretary of War any authority to extend the privilege. Par. 1958, ibid.

The allowance for commutation of rations, made payable by the army appropriation act of February 27, 1893, "to enlisted men traveling on detached duty, when it is impracticable to carry rations," etc., held to be restricted to the period covered by the travel, and not to be payable to a soldier for commutation of rations consumed at the destination where he was placed by his orders on detached duty, viz, for four days' board at a hotel at the terminus of his travel. Par. 1959, ibid.

A claim for commutation of rations on furlough can not be allowed without the production of the furlough issued, or other satisfactory evidence that payment has not been made. The burden of proof rests upon the claimant to establish the validity of his claim by something more than his unsupported statements. 1 Comp. Dec., 513.

Commutation of rations may be allowed at the following rates, under the conditions mentioned, viz:

Conditions.	Rate. per day each.
1. To a soldier at the conclusion of his furlough, provided that on or before the last day thereof he has reported at his proper station or has been discharged	$0.25
2. To sergeants of the post noncommissioned staff (and soldiers acting as such) on duty at forts and stations where there are no other troops40
3. To a soldier on detached duty, stationed in a city or town where subsistence is not furnished by the Government75
4. To a soldier traveling under orders from a place or station at which his rations have been regularly commuted	1.50
5. To enlisted men traveling under orders (when the journey can not be performed in twenty-four hours and it is impracticable to carry rations of any kind), as follows:
To an enlisted man traveling alone	1.50
To two enlisted men traveling as a detachment or traveling as a guard to an insane patient or military prisoner, each	1.50
To an insane patient or military prisoner traveling under guard of one or two enlisted men, to be paid, on the order of the commanding officer, in advance to, and to be receipted for by, the person to whose charge the patient or military prisoner is committed by the order	1.50

Par. 1272, A. R., 1895.
Commutation of rations will not be allowed to enlisted men serving where subsistence is furnished by the Government; or traveling under orders when they can carry and cook their rations, or can carry cooked or travel rations; or traveling under orders by steamboat or steamship where the passage rates include meals; or failing to report at their proper stations on or before the last day of furlough unless discharged; or recruiting parties at their stations; nor to civil employees. Par. 1273, ibid.

A soldier who has been granted a furlough to expire upon the arrival of his regiment in the United States, is entitled to commutation of rations until he receives notice of its arrival and for a time thereafter sufficient to enable him to join it. 5 Comp. Dec., 941.

790. Every noncommissioned officer and private of the Regular Army, and every officer, noncommissioned officer, and private of any militia or volunteer corps in the service of the United States who is captured by the enemy, shall be entitled to receive during his captivity, notwithstanding the expiration of his term of service, the same pay, subsistence¹ and allowance to which he may be entitled while in the actual service of the United States; but this provision shall not be construed to entitle any prisoner of war of such militia corps to any pay or compensation after the date of his parole, except the traveling expenses allowed by law.

HISTORICAL NOTE.—The office of Commissary-General of Supplies and Purchases was created during the war of the Revolution by a resolution of Congress dated July 19, 1775, and on the recommendation of General Washington, Jonathan Trumbull, of Connecticut, was appointed to the office. The methods of supplying the Army with provisions having proved inadequate, however, the matter was investigated by a committee of the Congress, and the department was reorganized by a resolution of Congress dated June 10, 1777. Under the new arrangement the duties of purchase and distribution were separated and intrusted to independent bureaus under the Commissary-General of Purchases and the Commissary-General of Issues. The duties of the Commissary-General of Issues were defined in the resolution of Congress of June 10, 1777; those of the Commissary-General of Purchases were made the subject of occasional modifications, and will be found in the resolutions of June 10, 1777, and November 30, 1780. By the resolution of July 10, 1781, the departments of purchases and issues were merged in the office of Superintendent of Finance, under whose direction a system of supplying the Army by contracts was established. By a subsequent resolution, dated May 28, 1784, the office of Superintendent of Finance was abolished, its duties being merged in the Board of the Treasury created by that enactment. Under this arrangement, which continued in force after the organization of the Government under the Constitution, all subsistence supplies for the Army were purchased by the Treasury Department under contracts entered into under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury (sec. 5, act of May 8, 1792, 1 Stat. L., 280; act of February 23, 1795, ibid., 419). By the acts of July 16, 1798 (ibid., 610), and March 3, 1809 (2 ibid., 535), the present methods of purchasing supplies for the Army, and accounting for the same, were established.¹ The contract system continued to exist until the reorganization of the staff, which was accomplished by the act of April 4, 1818 (3 ibid., 426), when it was replaced by the present Subsistence Department.

At the reduction of 1802 a system of military agencies was established in connection with the procurement and distribution of subsistence stores and supplies. Three military agents and such number of assistant military agents, not exceeding one to each military post, as the service might require, were authorized by section 3 of the act of March 16, 1802 (2 Stat. L., 132); the assistants were to be selected from the line of the Army and were to receive additional monthly compensation. By section 4 of the act of March 28, 1812 (ibid., 696), the military agency system was abolished, and the duty of procuring military supplies was vested in the Commissary-General of Purchases and in the Quartermaster's Department thereby created. By section 2 of the act of April 4, 1818 (3 ibid., 426), the office of Commissary-General was created with the rank and pay of a colonel of ordnance, and provision was made for as many assistant commissaries as the service might require; these officers were to be detailed from the line, and were to receive twenty dollars per month additional pay. The duties of the department thus created were restricted to the purchase and issue of subsistence stores and supplies; and the system, which was experimental in character, was to continue for five years from the passage of the act.

At the general reduction of 1821² the organization of the department was somewhat modified, the office of Commissary-General of Subsistence being created and provision made for as many assistant commissaries as the service might require, not exceeding fifty, who were to be taken from subalterns of the line, and were to receive, in addition to their monthly pay, certain sums, to be regulated by the Secretary of War, and to be not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty dollars in amount; they were to perform duty in both the Subsistence and Quartermaster's Departments, as might be required under the orders of the Secretary of War. By the act of June 23, 1823 (3 ibid., 721), the existing arrangement of the department was continued for five years. Two assistant commissaries with the rank of major were added to the department by the act of March 3, 1829 (4 ibid., 360), and the system was to be continued for a third period of five years. By section 5 of the act of March 3, 1835 (ibid., 780), the Subsistence Department, which had hitherto been in an experimental stage, was placed upon a permanent basis. By section 11 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 ibid., 256), there were added to the department one assistant commissary-general of subsistence with the rank and pay of a lieutenant-colonel of dragoons, one commissary of subsistence with the rank and pay of quartermaster, and three commissaries with the rank and pay of assistant quartermasters.

No further change in the composition or duties of the department was made until the outbreak of the war with Mexico, when, by section 5 of the act of June 18, 1846 (9 ibid., 17), the President was authorized to appoint as many additional officers, not exceeding one commissary (major) to each brigade, and one assistant commissary (captain) to each regiment, as he might deem necessary; these appointments, however, were not to extend beyond the period of the existing war. By the act of September 26, 1850 (9 ibid., 469), four commissaries of subsistence (captains) were added to the existing establishment, and these appointments were to be made from the line of the Army.

At the commencement of the war of the rebellion a commissary of subsistence (captain) was allowed for each brigade of the volunteer forces authorized to be raised by the act of July 22, 1861 (12 Stat. L. 269), and four commissaries of subsistence (majors) and eight commissaries of subsistence with the rank of captain were added to the permanent establishment by the act of August 3, 1861 (ibid., 287); by section 10 of the act of July 17, 1862 (ibid., 599), a commissary of subsistence for each army corps, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, was also authorized. By the act of February 9, 1863 (ibid., 648), the department was reorganized, the rank of brigadier-general being conferred upon the Commissary-General of Subsistence, who was to be selected from the department, and one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, and two majors were added. These offices were to be filled by regular promotion.

The peace establishment of the department was fixed by section 16 of the act of July 28, 1866 (14 ibid., 335), as follows: One Commissary-General of Subsistence (brigadier-general), two assistant commissaries-general of subsistence (colonels), two deputy commissaries-general of subsistence (lieutenant-colonels), eight commissaries (majors), and sixteen commissaries of subsistence (captains). The repealing clause of the act of July 28, 1866, having been regarded as including within its scope the provision for additional compensation to officers detailed from the line, which had been authorized by section 3 of the act of March 3, 1821 (3 ibid., 615), it was provided by section 24 of the act of July 15, 1870 (16 ibid., 320), that lieutenants of the line detailed to perform the duties of acting commissaries of subsistence should receive $100 additional pay per annum. Section 6 of the act of March 3, 1869 (15 ibid., 318), contained the requirement that there should be no more promotions or appointments in the staff of the Army until otherwise directed by law, but this restriction was removed, as to the Subsistence Department, by section 3 of the act of June 23, 1874, which reorganized the department and fixed its commissioned strength at one brigadier-general, two colonels, three lieutenant-colonels, eight majors, and twelve captains. By the act of February 12, 1895 (28 ibid., 656), the number of captains was reduced to eight. The requirement of the act of March 3, 1883 (22 ibid., 457), authorizing captains in this department to be appointed from civil life was repealed by the act of August 6, 1894 (28 ibid., 234), and appointments to the lowest grade are now required to be made from the line of the Army. The act of June 30, 1882 (22 ibid., 118), and subsequent acts of appropriation have made provision for the payment of $100 additional pay to officers detailed from the line to perform the duties of acting commissaries of subsistence. A corps of post commissary-sergeants was added to the department by the act of March 3, 1873 (17 ibid., 485; section 1142, Revised Statutes). They were to be appointed by the Secretary of War in such number as the service might require, but were not to exceed one for each military post.

By section 2 of the act of July 7, 1898 (30 ibid., 715), there were added to the strength of the department during the war with Spain eight majors and twelve captains of volunteers, and the two assistants to the Commissary-General of Subsistence and the officers in charge of important depots were given one grade of rank and pay in addition to that actually held by them; such increase, however, was not to exceed the rank of colonel in any case, and was to continue for a period not exceeding one year after the close of the existing war.

By section 17 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 752), the permanent strength of the department was fixed at one Commissary-General with the rank of brigadier-general, three assistant commissaries-general with the rank of colonel, four deputy commissaries-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, nine commissaries with the rank of major, and twenty-seven commissaries with the rank of captain mounted; the existing force of commissary-sergeants was recognized and continued in service and were thereafter to be designated as post commissary-sergeants. A system of details was also established by the operation of which the permanent commissioned personnel of the department will be gradually replaced, as vacancies occur, by officers detailed from the line of the Army for duty in the Subsistence Department.

The army ration.—The army ration, as established by the act of April 30, 1790 (1 Stat. L., 121); section 8, act of March 3, 1795 (ibid., 434); and section 13, act of May 30, 1796 (ibid., 484); consisted of 1 pound of fresh or salt beef, or three-quarters of a pound of pork or bacon; 1 pound of flour, one-half a gill of spirits, and to each 100 rations 1 quart of salt, 2 quarts of vinegar, 2 pounds of soap, and 1 pound of candles. By section 3 of the act of June 7, 1794 (ibid., 242); section 6, act of January 2, 1795 (ibid., 400), and section 11, act of May 30, 1796 (ibid., 484), sundry additions were made to meat, bread, and seasoning components of the ration in the case of troops employed on frontier service. The ration was increased by section 6 of the act of July 16, 1798 (ibid., 605), so as to consist of 1½ pounds of fresh or salt beef, or three-quarters of a pound of pork or bacon; 1 pound and 2 ounces of flour; 1 gill of spirits; and to each 100 rations 2 quarts of salt, 2 quarts of vinegar, 4 pounds of soap, and 1½ pounds of candles; and the ration, as thus constituted, was made permanent by section 6 of the act of March 16, 1802 (2 ibid., 134). By section 22 of the act of March 3, 1799 (1 ibid., 749), the regular spirit ration was reduced to one-half gill, and commanding officers were authorized to make extra issues of spirits, at the rate of one-half gill per ration, "in cases of fatigue service or other extraordinary occasions."¹ The spirit ration was replaced by coffee and sugar at the rate of 6 and 12 pounds, respectively, per hundred rations, by section 17 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 ibid., 256), and the ration of coffee and sugar was increased to 10 and 15 pounds, respectively, by section 4 of the act of June 21, 1860 (12 ibid., 68); by section 10, act of July 5, 1862 (ibid., 510), the extract of coffee was authorized to be issued in lieu of the coffee and sugar ration.¹ A vegetable component, consisting of 15 pounds of beans or peas, or 10 pounds of rice or hominy, was added to the ration by Executive order, under the authority conferred by section 8 of the act of April 14, 1818 (3 ibid., 426), paragraph —, Army Regulations of 1847). An increase in the components of the ration to the following extent was authorized by section 13 of the act of August 3, 1861 (12 ibid., 289); the ration of bread or flour was increased to 22 ounces, and an alternate issue of 1 pound of hard bread authorized, and a vegetable ration, to consist of 1 pound of potatoes, was required to be issued "at least three times per week, if practicable." This increase was to terminate at the close of the war, when the ration was to be reduced to the articles and quantities as authorized by law or regulation on July 1, 1861. Pepper was added as one of the seasoning components, at the rate of 4 ounces to the hundred rations, by section 11, act of March 3, 1863 (12 ibid., 744), and section 2 of the act of June 20, 1864 (13 ibid., 144), contained the requirement that the ration should thereafter be the same as provided by law and regulation on the 1st day of July, 1861, with the addition of the pepper ration authorized by the act of March 3, 1863; the components of beans (or peas), or rice (or hominy), at the rate of 15 and 10 pounds, respectively, to the hundred rations, having been added by Executive regulation, were included in the operation of the act of July 1, 1864, and became part of the authorized ration. By section 5 of the act of June 16, 1890 (26 ibid., 158), 1 pound of vegetables was added to the ration, "the proportion to be fixed by the Secretary of War."

By the act of March 2, 1819 (3 Stat. L., 488), an "extra gill of whisky or spirits" was allowed to enlisted men engaged in the construction of fortifications or the execution of surveys, but by the act of May 19, 1846 (9 Stat. L., 14), this ration was allowed to be commuted in money. Upon the discontinuance of the spirit ration in 1838, section 22 of the act of March 3, 1799 (1 Stat. L., 754), became operative, which authorized the issue of spirits "in case of fatigue service or other extra occasions." This placed the spirit ration upon the basis of an extra issue; such issues, therefore, being discretionary with the Executive. They were discontinued by General Orders No. 120, War Department, of 1865.

807. The officers of the Army shall be entitled to the pay² herein stated after their respective designations:³

The General, thirteen thousand five hundred dollars a year.⁴

The Lieutenant-General, eleven thousand dollars a year.

Major-general, seven thousand five hundred dollars a year.

¹ For travel allowances of paymasters' clerks see paragraph 847, post. Salaries of clerks to paymasters are now graded according to length of service. See next paragraph for rates of pay for periods of service.

² Pay is the monthly pecuniary compensation of officers and soldiers of the Army, as fixed by sections 1261, 1280, etc., Revised Statutes. It is quite distinct from "allowances." Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1894; X Opin. Att. Gen., 285. The right to pay begins and ends with the period of legal service. Except by special authority of Congress an officer or soldier can not be paid for military service rendered before appointment, enlistment, or muster in. See note 3 to paragraph 821, post. 1. In the form of increased rank, accompanied by the pay or allowances of a higher grade in lieu of the pay and allowances of the grade which the officer holds under his commission, as in the case a lieutenant, or captain dismounted detailed as an acting judge-advocate, or as in the case of the superintendent and commandant of cadets at the Military Academy.

2. In the form of a higher salary, without change in rank or grade, as in the case of a lieutenant detailed as regimental adjutant or quartermaster, prior to March 2, 1899 (sec. 1261, R. S.), or as is the case with certain assistant professors and instructors of tactics at the Military Academy.

3. In the form of a specific sum allowed by law, in addition to the pay and allowances of the grade or rank held by the officer under his commission, as in the case of aids to major-generals or brigadier-generals. See 5 Compt. Dec., 971, 975.

⁴A mounted officer is one who, by statute, regulations, or army organization, is "required" to be mounted at his own expense. Harold v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cls., 295. An officer of a battery designated by the President as a "light battery" is entitled to mounted pay from the date of such designation. Ibid. Officers are not assigned to duty "requiring them to be mounted" when no order or authorization requiring them to mount themselves has been issued by the War Department, and they have merely been riding Government horses, by permission, and have been furnished with Government equipments. Forbes v. U. S., 17 Ct. Cls., 32. Nor are officers so assigned within the meaning of the act of February 12, 1877, where they are simply mounted on Government horses captured from Indians, and do not furnish, at their own expense horses, saddles, bridles, sabers, pistols, spurs, and other cavalry equipments. Ibid.; Carter v. U. S., 22 ibid., 73; see also Eskridge v. U. S., 30 ibid., 290.

The following officers, in addition to those whose pay is fixed by law, are entitled to pay as mounted officers: Officers of the staff corps below the rank of major, officers serving with troops of cavalry, officers of a light or siege battery duly organized and equipped, authorized aids duly appointed, officers serving as military attachés to the embassies and legations of the United States at foreign capitals, officers serving with companies of mounted infantry, and officers on duty which requires them to be mounted and which is so certified to by the Secretary of War or the department or corps commander on their first pay vouchers while on such duty, the certificate being cited by the officers on their subsequent vouchers. Officers ceasing to draw mounted pay will file with the last pay voucher a copy of the order relieving them from duty which required them to be mounted. Acting judge-advocates of military departments, duly detailed, are entitled while so serving to the rank, pay, and allowances of captains of cavalry. Par. 1450, A. R., 1901.

The act of July 17, 1862 (12 Stat. L., 594), allowed to officers "assigned to duty which required them to be mounted" certain increased pay. So section 1261, Revised Statutes, entitles captains and lieutenants, when "mounted," to receive respectively $200 and $100 per annum of pay more than when "not mounted." Held, that to entitle officers to the increase of pay under these statutes it was not, and is not, essential that the duties required of them should make it absolutely necessary that they should be mounted, but that it was, and is, sufficient if these duties were, or are, such as are usually and appropriately performed by mounted officers, and such as can not be performed effectively or without material embarrassment and inconvenience to the service except by such officers (note in this connection the construction in Griswold v. Hepburn, 2 Duvall, 20, of the provision in Art. I, sec. 8 § 18 of the Constitution, that Congress shall have the power "to make all laws which shall be necessary," etc., for the execution of its special powers—as meaning not indispensable but appropriate and conducive to the purpose); and further that the certificate of the proper commander of an officer (as of the Chief Signal Officer in a case of an officer engaged in signal duty, or of the Superintendent at West Point in a case of an acting quartermaster stationed at that post), that the duties of the officer properly required (in the sense above indicated) that he should be mounted, would (the Secretary of War approving) be sufficient to entitle him to receive the additional pay. Held, that a captain or lieutenant detailed as a professor in a college, under section 1225, was not entitled to mounted pay. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1909.

Where the duty to which an infantry officer is assigned, in the opinion of the department commander, requires him to be mounted, and such officer furnishes horses and forage, he is entitled to be paid as a mounted officer until he is notified of the changed opinion of the department commander. Eskridge v. U. S., 30 Ct. Cls., 290.

An officer of a battery of artillery, designated by the President as a mounted battery, is entitled to mounted pay from the date of such designation, though the battery was not equipped until a later date. Harrold v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cls., 295.

A captain detailed as regimental adjutant or regimental quartermaster under section 2 of the act of March 2, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 977), is entitled to the pay of a captain mounted. 5 Compt. Dec., 761.

² The act of May 2, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 420) had contained the same provision.

INCREASED PAY TO OFFICERS EXERCISING COMMANDS HIGHER THAN THEIR GRADES.

Pay of grade appropriate to command exercised in time of war.

Sec. 7, Apr. 16,
1898, v. 30, p. 364.

814. In time of war every officer serving with troops operating against an enemy who shall exercise, under assignment in orders issued by competent authority, a command above that pertaining to his grade shall be entitled to receive the pay and allowances of the grade appropriate to the command so exercised: Provided, That a rate of pay exceeding that of a brigadier-general shall not be paid in any case by reason of such assignment.¹
Sec. 7, act of April 26, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 364).

¹ Under section 7 of the act of Congress approved April 26, 1898, an officer is not entitled to the pay and allowances of the grade appropriate to a command exercised by him above that pertaining to his grade except when "serving with troops operating against an enemy" and exercising the command of the higher grade "under assignment in orders issued by competent authority." It has been held by the Secretary of War that troops serving within the limits of the United States at a time when there is no foreign army within said limits are not operating against an enemy, notwithstanding the existence of war conditions. For the purpose of restricting assignments to command under this section to "competent authority," it has also been decided that such authority can be exercised only by the Secretary of War, or by the commanding general of an army "operating against an enemy." Circular 18, A. G. O., 1898. See also G. O. 86, A. G. O., 1898.

The command prescribed by law for an officer of the Army must be held to be the appropriate command of that grade, and such command is not subject to change by Executive order, or regulation, except as provided by law. 5 Compt. Dec., 354.

An officer of the Army who, under assignment in orders issued by his superior officer, exercises a command above that pertaining to his grade exercises such command under competent authority within the meaning of section 7 of the act of April 26, 1898. Ibid., 354.

Under section 7 of the act of April 26, 1898, an officer of the Army serving in time of war with troops operating against an enemy, who is required by the Army Regulations, upon a specified contingency, to exercise a command above that pertaining to his grade, must be regarded as exercising such "command under assignment in orders issued by competent authority," and is entitled to the pay of the higher grade. Ibid., 639.

The office of an officer of the Army and his rank are not necessarily identical. Wood v. U. S., 107 U. S., 414; 5 Compt. Dec., 280.

A captain in the Army while performing duty as chief quartermaster does not exercise a command within the meaning of section 7 of the act of April 26, 1898, and is not entitled to increased pay for exercising a command above that pertaining to his grade. 5 Compt. Dec., 137. A judge-advocate who is assigned by a corps commander to act as judge-advocate on his staff does not thereby acquire any higher rank and is not entitled to any additional pay. Ibid., 168.

A major of infantry who, on the assignment of the lieutenant-colonel to the command of the regiment, was assigned to the command of a battalion was not assigned to a command above that pertaining to his grade, and is not entitled to the increase of pay provided by the act of April 26, 1898, for exercising a command above that pertaining to his grade. Ibid., 862.

The fact that a major of the Army was for a time assigned to the command of a post garrisoned by two batteries of artillery does not make such a command the appropriate command of a major, and a captain assigned to such a command is not entitled to the pay of a major. Ibid., 891.

There is no law authorizing the allowance of additional pay to an enlisted man for performing the duties of a commissioned officer, and a claim for such pay can not be allowed. 4 Compt. Dec., 120.

A second lieutenant of the Army who exercised the command of a first lieutenant did not "exercise a command above that pertaining to his grade," within the meaning of the act of April 26, 1898, and he is not entitled to the pay of the higher grade. 6 Compt. Dec., 905.

Where an officer of the Army exercised a higher command and, under section 7

INCREASED PAY FOR FOREIGN SERVICE.

816. Hereafter the pay proper of all officers and enlisted men serving beyond the limits of the States comprising the Union and Territories of the United States contiguous thereto shall be increased ten per centum for officers and twenty per centum for enlisted men over and above the rates of pay proper as fixed by law for time of peace, and the time of such service shall be counted from the date of departure from said States to the date of return thereto.^{Increase for foreign service. of the act of April 26, 1898, is entitled to the pay and allowances of the grade appropriate to the command so exercised, and, under section 1262, Revised Statutes, is also entitled to increased pay for length of service; such increased pay to be computed on the pay of the grade appropriate to such higher command. Ibid., 710.

The act does not make any change in the regular pay or allowance of the Army, but makes provision for a special or extra allowance to officers and enlisted men of the Army while they are serving in the places named in the act. It obviously applies only to service rendered on and after the date of the act.

The provisions of the various laws, to wit, section 11, act of June 20, 1864 (13 Stat. L., 145), section 1265, Revised Statutes, act of May 8, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 43), and act of July 29, 1876 (19 Stat. L., 102), authorizing leaves of absence to be allowed to officers for specified periods "without deduction of pay or allowances" have not been construed to entitle an officer while on leave to allowances the payment of which was conditioned upon the performance of some particular service, such as payment of $100 a year as acting assistant commissary under section 1261, Revised Statutes, or pay for exercising a higher command under section 7, act of April 26, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 365).

The 10 per cent increase on pay proper being allowed by the act only to officers serving in the places named therein, I am of the opinion that an officer on duty in one of the places named in the act, who is relieved from duty and given a sick leave or an ordinary leave, is not entitled to the 10 per cent increase in computing his pay after the date on which he leaves the place where the increased pay for service therein is authorized by law. 6 Comp. Dec., 948.

The provisions of the act in respect to the 10 per cent increase therein provided were special and peculiar, and while the 10 per cent increase would undoubtedly be included in the term "pay" as to officers serving in places named in the act, it would not be included in either of the terms "pay" or "allowances" as to officers not serving in such places.

In all the laws relating to contract surgeons they are clearly distinguished from officers of the Army. See sections 1 and 2, act of May 12, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 406); section 7, act of March 2, 1899, to increase the efficiency of the Army (30 Stat. L., 979), and the acts providing for mileage to officers traveling without troops and to con-

821. On and after the passage of this act, all officers of the Army of the United States who have served as officers in the volunteer forces during the war of the rebellion, or as enlisted men in the armies of the United States, regular or volunteer, shall be, and are hereby, credited with the full time they may have served as such officers and as such enlisted men in computing their service for longevity pay and retirement.³ *Sec. 7, act of June 18, 1878 (20 Stat. tract surgeons, acts of January 5, 1899, and March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 775, 1068), and act of May 26, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 210), and section 1342, Revised Statutes.

It has been uniformly held that a contract surgeon, also called acting assistant surgeon, is neither an officer nor an enlisted man and is not a member of the Army, but has the status of a civilian employee. See 26 Ct. Cls., 302; Dig. 2d Compt. Dec., vol. 3, sections 929, 932; 4 Compt. Dec., 631, 632; 5 Compt. Dec., 86, 275; 6 Compt. Dec., 356, 376, 403.

As a contract surgeon is neither an officer nor an enlisted man he is not entitled to increased pay under the act of May 26, 1900, supra. Dec. Compt. Treas., Oct. 19, 1900, Cir. 42 A. G. O., 1900.

² Longevity pay is founded upon the equivalent of increased judgment and capacity acquired by the experience of continued service. Brown v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls., 545. Acts authorizing longevity pay are remedial statutes, and officers are entitled to a liberal interpretation of them, the language used being given as broad a meaning as Congress may be presumed to have intended. Hendee v. U. S., 22 Ct. Cls., 134; 19 ibid., 153.

The date on which a volunteer officer, appointed by the President, formally accepts his appointment should be considered as the date of the commencement of his military service. No such officer should be recognized as having been in the military service of the United States, under his appointment, because of any service that may have been rendered by him prior to his formal acceptance of that appointment.—Decision Sec. War, June 28, 1899. Circular 32, A. G. O., 1899.

⁵ An officer of the Army who has been retired is entitled to the pay provided for a retired officer only, even though he may not have been relieved from active duty. 5 Compt. Dec., 53. Retired officers being in the military service of the Government, the increased pay of 10 per cent for each five years' service applies to the years so passed in the service after retirement as well as before. *U. sence on full pay.

July 29, 1876,
v. 19, p. 102.

827. All officers on duty shall be allowed, in the discretion of the Secretary of War, sixty days' leave of absence without deduction of pay or allowance: Provided, That the same be taken once in two years: And provided further, That the leave of absence may be extended to three months, if taken once only in three years, or four months if taken only once in four years.³ Act of July 29, 1876 (19 Stat. L., 102).

¹T provision of section 1275, Revised Statutes, that an officer wholly retired shall receive, upon retirement, one year's pay and allowances, entitles such an officer to receive a sum equal to the total of one year's pay and all the pecuniary allowances of an officer of his rank. And held that the fact that an officer, at the time of being wholly retired, was under a sentence of suspension from rank and pay, did not affect his right to receive such full sum upon the retirement. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2198.

²Section 1265 of the Revised Statutes provides that an officer absent without leave shall forfeit all pay unless the absence is excused as unavoidable; the rule prevails whether a court-martial declares a forfeiture or not. Dodge v. U. S., 33 Ct. Cls., 28. The pay of an officer absent without leave is not absolutely forfeited, but only when it has been made to appear that the absence was not unavoidable. Smith v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cls., 452. A statement by the Adjutant-General that an officer was "absent without leave" is conclusive as to his status, and is not affected by statements made by officers of the War Department implying the belief that the officer was not responsible for his absence. 3 Dig., 2d Compt. Dec., par. 2. The act of March 3, 1863, section 1265, Revised Statutes, provides that an officer absent without leave shall forfeit his pay. If payment has been made it may be recovered. Lapse of time does not preclude the Government from charging an officer with a payment made to him contrary to law. Crowell v. U. S., 22 Ct. Cls., 69.

Section 31 of the act of March 3, 1863 (12 Stat. L., 736), does not apply to an officer ordered to proceed to his home and there await orders, though the order was issued at his own request. An officer "absent with leave" is at liberty to go where he will; an officer ordered to a particular place, there to await orders, must remain in that place and continue as much under orders as though assigned to any ordinary military duty. Williamson v. U. S., 10 Ct. Cls. 50, and 23 Wall., 411; Phisterer v. U. S., 11 Ct. Cls. 98, and 94 U. S., 219.

An officer ordered home to await orders may change his place of residence, reporting the fact to the War Department. Phisterer v. U. S., 12 Ct. Cls. 98. An officer ordered home to await orders can not make his home ambulatory by simply reporting from the places where he may chance to be. Chilson v. U. S., 11 Ct. Cls. 691.

¹Leaves of absence will be granted in terms of months and days as "one month," "one month and ten days." Leave for one month, beginning on the first day of a calendar month, will expire with the last day of the month, whatever its number of days. Commencing on an intermediate day, the day will expire the day preceding the same day of the next month. The day of departure, whatever the hour, is counted as a day of duty; the day of return as a day of absence. Par. 63, A. R., 1901.

A leave of absence commences on the day following that on which the officer departs from his proper station. The expiration of his leave must find him at his post, except as indicated in paragraphs 1467 and 1484. A leave of absence granted an officer in the field, or on special duty, will take effect on the termination of the campaign, or on the completion of such duty, unless in the opinion of the department commander his services can sooner be spared, in which case it will take effect at such time as the department commander may direct. In all other cases an officer is expected to avail himself of a leave as soon as proper facilities offer, unless a specific date is stated in the order, and if unable to do so, he will report the fact to the authority granting the leave. Par. 64, ibid.

Held (1871), that an officer ordered to his home to await orders did not occupy the status of an officer on leave of absence, and was not therefore on half pay during the period of thus awaiting orders, but was entitled for such period to the full pay of his rank. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1906. This opinion was affirmed in the same case (United States v. Williamson) by the Court of Claims in 1873 (9 Ct. Cl. 503,) and by the Supreme Court in the next year (23 Wallace 411). But in the United States v. Phisterer, 4 Otto, 219, it was held that an officer ordered to his home to await orders was not entitled to commutation for quarters and fuel, his home not being a "station" in the sense of par. 1080, Army Regulations. See G. O. 78, Hdqrs. of Army, 1877, issued in consequence of this decision. But see the recent case of United States v. Lippitt, 10 Otto, 663, where the officer was ordered to the headquarters of a military department to await orders.

830. At all posts and stations where there are public quarters belonging to the United States, officers may be furnished with quarters in kind in such public quarters, and not elsewhere, by the Quartermaster's Department, assigning to the officers of each grade, respectively, such number of rooms as is now allowed to such grade by the rules and regulations of the Army: Provided, That at places where there are no public quarters, commutation¹ and acquittal, their right to pay for the time of such absence is restored. Par. 1464, A. R., 1901.

The fact that an officer or soldier is under charges does not by military law deprive him of his pay, although under the application of military rules exceptions may arise to this rule. Dodge v. U. S., 33 Ct. Cls., 28.

The pay of officers detained by the civil authorities continues, but an officer absent without leave in willful disregard of his obligation must be held responsible for the results. Ibid.

¹ Commutation in the military or naval service is money paid in substitution of something to which an officer, sailor, or soldier is entitled; being regulated by statutes and regulations, it can not be allowed by inferior authority. Jaegle v. U. S., 28 Ct. Cls. 133. The right of an officer of the Army to commutation of fuel and quarters springs out of the general authority of the War Department, and has been indirectly sanctioned by Congress from the origin of the Government. This usage has been so long practiced in the Army, and so often sustained by Congress in appropriations for the payment of such commutations, that the right of officers under the regulations of the Army can not now be questioned. Whittlesey v. U. S., 5 Ct. Cls., 99. Since the foregoing decision was rendered the allowance of quarters for the several grades of officers of the Army and the monthly rate of commutation therefor having been fixed by statute the practice can no longer be said to rest upon usage or upon the authority of regulations. See acts of June 18, 1878, and June 23, 1879. See also Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1941.

Officers on the active list detailed as professors of colleges and engineer officers engaged upon civil works are entitled to commutation of quarters and to purchase fuel under the provisions of section 9 of the act of June 17, 1878. When a military officer is ordered to the headquarters of a military department to await further orders and pursuant to the order remains there, performing no duty, he is entitled to commutation of quarters. If such headquarters are in a large city where there are quarters assignable to officers on duty it is not necessary for him to demand that quarters be assigned him. Lippitt v. U. S., 14 Ct. Cls., 148, and 100 U. S., 663.

An officer who has quarters in kind at one station does not by a change of station acquire a right to other quarters or commutation therefor until he vacates quarters at the former station, and amounts received for such commutation are a proper charge against him. 3 Dig. 2d Comp. Dec., par. 1139.

Temporary absence from his station on duty which requires an officer of the Army to travel during a considerable portion of the time does not amount to a change of station, and the officer does not lose his rights or acquire other rights respecting quarters by such absence. If there are available quarters at his station he is not entitled to commutation. Ibid., 1141.

Officers temporarily on duty in the field shall not lose their right to quarters or commutation thereof at their permanent stations while so temporarily absent. Act of July 16, 1892, 27 Stat. L., 176.

Where an army paymaster has paid an officer a sum as a commutation allowance through an error of law the United States is not bound by such payment, and may recover the money so paid in a proper action, with interest from the date when the officer's accounts were settled by the Treasury Department, at the rate established by the laws of the State in which the action is brought. U. S. v. Dempsey, 104 Fed. Rep., 197.

¹ Under the authority conferred by the act of March 3, 1901, it has been decided by the Secretary of War that "officers on duty in the War Department, at army and other general headquarters, attending surgeons and other officers on duty in cities and other places where public quarters are not furnished, but where enlisted men are on duty only as guards, orderlies, clerks, and messengers, and recruiting officers at city stations are regarded as being on duty without troops within the meaning of the laws and regulations." ² The act of June 28, 1882 (22 Stat. An officer relieved from duty at a station where he had quarters in kind and ordered to report in person for duty at a college during vacation is not entitled to commutation of quarters prior to the date on which he reports in person at the college. 4 Compt. Dec., 254.

An officer is not entitled to reimbursement for the amount paid for quarters when serving at a post where there are public quarters to which he could have been assigned by the Quartermaster's Department. 2 Compt. Dec., 187. Officers can not base claims to commutation of quarters on refusal or failure to occupy public quarters provided for their use. Ibid., 223.

Officers of the Army on the retired list who, upon their own application, are detailed to educational institutions, in accordance with the provisions of the act of November 3, 1893, are entitled to the full pay of their rank. 6 Compt. Dec., 120. Such officers are not entitled to commutation of quarters. Ibid., 506.

The act of May 12, 1898, which limits the compensation of contract surgeons to $150 per month, by implication prohibits the payment of commutation of quarters to contract surgeons. 6 Compt. Dec., 403. An officer who has been relieved from duty and directed to proceed to his home to await orders is not entitled to commutation of quarters. Ibid., 233.

Section 1268 of the Revised Statutes, requires that officers shall be paid monthly; section 3848, Revised Statutes, in effect, forbids their being paid in advance. Their right, however, to assign their monthly pay, when duly accrued, has long been admitted. XV Opin. Att. Gen., 611. The prohibition by Army Regulations of the transfer of pay accounts before they are due implies the right to transfer them when or after due. XV Opin. Att. Gen., 271. The pay of an officer authorized to receive it can be paid by a paymaster only to the officer himself or his proper assignee. Where two or more persons produce assignments of an officer's pay, or of a portion or portions of the same, the paymaster should refuse to pay at all. The Government can not undertake to decide such controversies. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1923.

An officer will not hypothecate nor transfer a pay account not actually due. ^a When due it may be transferred by indorsement, naming the party to whom transferred, and may be paid by the proper paymaster if satisfied of the genuineness of the officer's signature and if no stoppage or other disability as to pay prevents. The date of transfer, certified by the officer whose account it is, will appear in the indorsement. When an officer transfers a pay account, he will, at the time of transfer, communicate the fact to the chief paymaster of the department, through the paymaster who is expected to pay it. If the officer be on leave, or if his accounts be payable

^a Note in this connection the opinion of the Attorney-General, in XVI Opins., 191, to the effect that an approved account or voucher issued to a contractor for an amount due him under his contract is "not in any proper sense negotiable paper."

An officer's "pay account" is not commercial paper, but, in its legal aspect, a mere receipt. ¹ Section 1273, Revised Statutes, fixed the allowance of mileage at 10 cents per mile, to be computed over the nearest post route and to be paid by the Pay Department. The act of June 16, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 72), discontinued mileage as a method of reimbursement for expenses incurred in traveling on duty, and substituted therefor the payment of actual expenses in all cases of travel under orders. This provision was repeated in the act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L. 452). The mileage allowance was restored and fixed at the rate of 8 cents per mile by the act of July 24, 1876 (19 Stat. L. 97), but was not payable when actual transportation had been furnished by the Quartermaster's Department, or in a conveyance owned or chartered by the United States, or on any railroad over which the troops and supplies of the United States were entitled to be transported free of charge; the distance in each case was to be computed by the shortest usually traveled route. Section 1273 was repealed by the act of July 24, 1876, above cited. The act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. L., 456), contained the requirement that mileage should be computed over the shortest usually traveled routes between the points named in the order, and that the necessity for travel should be certified to, in each case, in the order directing the journey. The act of June 30, 1886 (24 Stat. L., 95), fixed the rate of mileage at 4 cents per mile, and, in addition thereto, the cost of transportation actually paid, exclusive of sleeping and parlor car fares. The act of February 9, 1887 (24 Stat. L., 396), contains the following provision: "That in disbursing this amount the maximum sum to be allowed and paid to an officer shall be four cents per mile, distance to be computed over the shortest usually traveled routes, and, in addition thereto, upon the officer's certificate that it was not practicable to obtain transportation from the Quartermaster's Department the cost of the transportation actually paid by the officer over said route or routes, exclusive of sleeping or parlor car fare and transfers: And provided further, That when any officer so traveling shall travel in whole or in part on any railroad on which the troops and supplies of the United States are entitled to be transported free of charge he shall be allowed for himself only four cents per mile as a subsistence fund for every mile necessarily traveled over any such last-named railroad. All the money hereinbefore appropriated except the appropriation for mileage to officers when traveling on duty without troops when authorized by law shall be disbursed and accounted for by the Pay Department as pay of the Army, and for that purpose shall constitute one fund," which was repeated in the acts of September 22, 1888 (25 Stat. L., 483), March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. L., 827), June 13, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 151), February 24, 1891 (26 Stat. L., 773), July 14, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 177), and February 27, 1893. The acts of February 12, 1895 (28 Stat. L., 657), and March 16, 1896 (29 ibid., 60), contain the same requirements. The act of March 2, 1897 (29 ibid., 612, 614), provided that actual transportation should be furnished by the Quartermaster's Department to officers traveling under orders, and that mileage only should be paid by the Pay Department. The act of March 15, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 318), contained the requirement that "the maximum sum to be allowed and paid to any officer of the Army shall be seven cents per mile, distances to be computed by the shortest usually traveled route." By the act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 1068), the foregoing requirement was made permanent. The act of March 15, 1898, also contained the proviso that "officers who, by reason of the decision of the accounting officers of the Treasury, have been compelled to pay from their own means one-half of the cost of their travel fare over railroads known as fifty per centum railroads shall be reimbursed the same by the Pay Department, and paymasters against whom disallowances have been made by the accounting officers of the Treasury, under such decision, shall have the amount so disallowed passed to their credit." For requirements of regulation in respect to travel on the public business, see paragraphs 77-84 and 1472-1488, Army regulations of 1901. See also pars. 842 to 851 post.

² This replaces a similar requirement in the act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 1068). In conformity to a decision of the Comptroller of the Treasury dated March 3, 1899, troops and supplies of the United States are entitled to be transported free of charge, or over any of the bond-aided Pacific railroads, or over any fifty per centum land-grant railroad, officers traveling as herein provided for shall, for the travel over such roads, be furnished with transportation requests, exclusive of sleeping and parlor car accommodations, by the Quartermaster's Department. Ibid.

Deduction.
Ibid.

845. When transportation is furnished by the Quartermaster's Department, or when the established route of travel is over any of the railroads above specified, there shall be deducted from the officer's mileage account by the paymaster paying the same three cents per mile for the distance for which transportation has been or should have been furnished.¹ Ibid.

Restriction on

28, p. 237.

846. Hereafter no portion of the appropriation for mileage to officers traveling on duty without troops shall be expended for inspections or investigations, except such as are especially ordered by the Secretary of War, or such as are made by army and department commanders in visiting their commands, and those made by Inspector-General's Department in pursuance of law, army regulations, or orders issued by the Secretary of War or the Commanding General of the Army; and all orders involving the payment of mileage shall state the special duty enjoined.² Act of August 6, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 237).

² It is a well-established fact that persons traveling on Government business are entitled to be reimbursed for their expenses. This is done either by a mileage allowance, a fixed sum as a commutation of expenses, or an itemized statement showing actual expenses. Prior to 1874 mileage was the most usual measure of allowances. 4 Compt. Dec., 421. Mileage is a form of reimbursement, and "public business" is the foundation on which it rests. Perrimond v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls., 509. Allowances for travel and subsistence are payable to officers and agents of the United States only when they are employed at other places than their places of residence. Test v. U. S., ibid., 357. In fact, mileage is merely a commutation for traveling expenses. U. S. v. Smith, 158 U. S., 350.

The mileage allowance to an officer of the Army on the active list is fixed by law, the law in effect at the time the travel is performed and not the law in effect when the order for the travel is issued. 1 Compt. Dec., 29.

Except in cases of emergency, the right to mileage can not be conferred by an order issued after the journey has been performed. 4 Compt. Dec., 175. The law and regulations requiring a specific order prior to the commencement of the journey must be strictly complied with, and the officer must make the journey within a reasonable time in accordance with the order to acquire a right to mileage. Ibid.

An order to travel to a designated point, perform certain duty and return, is, in effect, two distinct orders, and the mileage allowances for each trip is fixed by the law at the time the travel in each case was commenced. 1 Compt. Dec., 29.

It is not necessary that an order to travel should specifically designate places and routes. It may leave them to the discretion of the officer, and the subsequent approval of the Department will be conclusive upon the accounting officers. Billings v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cls., 166. If public business was an element in an officer's circuitry

MILEAGE TO PAYMASTERS' CLERKS AND TO THE EXPERT ACCOUNTANT OF THE INSPECTOR-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

817. That hereafter the maximum sum to be allowed paymasters' clerks and the expert accountant of the Inspector-General's Department when traveling on duty shall be four cents per mile, and, in addition thereto, when transportation can not be furnished by the Quartermaster's Department the cost of same actually paid by them, exclusive of sleeping or parlor car fare and transfers. Act of February 27, 1893 (27 Stat. L., 480).

of route, he is entitled to mileage therefor; if it was not, the Government is not answerable for the increased distance. Du Bose v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls., 514.

Where the route is left to the discretion of the officer, his mileage should be calculated by the shortest usually traveled route, unless some good reason be shown for deviation. Crosby v. U. S., 22 Ct. Cls., 13. 2 Compt. Dec., 544.

The question as to the shortest usually traveled route between any two points is a question of fact, and to be determined by the best obtainable evidence. * * * The time required in making the journey, the rates of fare, and the fact that an officer should be absent from his post of duty for the shortest possible period are important elements in determining the shortest usually traveled route in any particular case.

Evidence should accompany the voucher on which payment is made, to establish the fact that the distance is computed by the route which, for the time and occasion, is the shortest usually traveled route. Mileage can in no case be allowed for any distance in excess of the distance actually traveled, and if the distance actually traveled exceed the distance by the shortest usually traveled route, mileage can be allowed only for the distance by the shortest usually traveled route. 1 Compt. Dec., 115.

The mileage of an officer of the Army is to be computed by the shortest usually traveled route regardless of the number of miles actually traveled, unless the orders under which he travels, or the necessities of the service (and not the mere convenience of the officer), require the use of a route longer than that usually traveled. 2 ibid., 544. See also 1 ibid., 118, 209; 4 ibid., 74; 5 ibid., 196.

When it appears that an army officer was directed to travel on military duty and had no order to stop over, or delay on his journey, it must be presumed by the accounting officers that he was directed to go by the shortest usually traveled route, without unnecessary delay, and he will be allowed only the cost of "through limited tickets" for such travel. The accounting officers look to the officer's orders as to the necessity for delay en route, not questioning the authority of the War Department to determine whether the officer's duty requires that he shall stop over on his journey. 3 Dig. Dec., 2nd Compt., par. 1426.

The law relating to the cost of transportation contemplates that army officers traveling on duty without troops shall travel over the usually traveled routes in the mode usually adopted and by the conveyances usually employed. The exigencies of the service should be of an unusual character, not admitting of even the possibility of delay, to justify the officer in engaging the more costly transportation on fast or limited trains. Ibid., 1429.

An officer ordered home, at his own request, to await orders, is entitled to mileage from his post to his home, such a journey constituting travel under orders. Williamson v. U. S., 23 Wall., 411; Phisterer v. U. S., 12 Ct. Cls., 98, and 94 U. S., 219. Where an officer who has received but has not yet taken advantage of a leave of absence is ordered to convey prisoners to another post his leave is to that extent suspended, and he is entitled to mileage. Andrews v. U. S., 15 Ct. Cls., 264.

The Army Regulations provide that the expiration of an officer's leave of absence must find him at his station. His station means his permanent station, not a place to which he was temporarily ordered and at which he accepted his leave of absence. Andrews v. U. S., 15 Ct. Cls., 264. An officer's proper station can not be changed by his being ordered to perform a temporary duty while on leave of absence. Ibid. If an officer on leave of absence be ordered to temporary duty at the place where he may happen to be, and he be kept there until after his leave of absence expires and

An officer who voluntarily quits the military service is not entitled to travel pay. 1 Compt. Dec., 370.

An officer whose resignation, tendered on the ground of physical disability, is accepted, becomes entitled to travel pay, provided the disability did not exist at the time of his entering the service, or was not incurred on account of his own misconduct during service. The length of service is material evidence in determining whether the disability existed prior to entry into the service. Ibid.

¹ All subsequent acts of appropriation for the support of the Army have contained a similar provision. The acts of appropriation of May 26, 1900, and March 3, 1901, except from the foregoing clause the appropriations for mileage of officers when authorized by law.

While the act of March 15, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 318), does not make it the duty of officers to use those railroads from which a benefit will accrue to the Government, it is no doubt within the authority of the Secretary of War, by regulation, to direct their use whenever practicable. 5 Compt. Dec., 196. An officer who actually travels over any of the railroads mentioned in the act, and having failed to secure transportation in kind, pays his own fare, is entitled to be reimbursed so much as it would have cost the Government had a request been used. When an officer travels over any of the railroads included in the act it will be presumed, in the absence of affirmative evidence to the contrary, that he has been furnished with a transportation request. Ibid. The cost of a local ticket, of the class obtained, between points for which transportation in kind is furnished should be deducted from the mileage allowance. Ibid.

An officer of the Army traveling under orders and using a conveyance upon which transportation and subsistence are furnished or paid for by the Government is not entitled to mileage. 4 Compt. Dec., 429. See also Ibid., 86.

Sleeping-car service is not a necessary incident to transportation, but must usually be considered as lodging, yet special circumstances may appear showing a legislative intent to include such service as a part of transportation. In ordinary cases where subsistence is excluded from traveling expenses such exclusion must be held to cover sleeping-car service on the ground that it is lodging and a part of subsistence. 4 Compt. Dec., 420.

The provision in the act of March 15, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 321), that the maximum sum to be allowed and paid to "any officer of the Army" shall be 7 cents per mile applies to all officers of the Army, including officers of the Corps of Engineers. 4 Compt. Dec., 711.

¹ An officer who voluntarily quits the military service is not entitled to travel pay. 1 Compt. Dec., 370.

An officer whose resignation, tendered on the ground of physical disability, is accepted, becomes entitled to travel pay, provided the disability did not exist at the time of his entering the service, or was not incurred on account of his own misconduct during service. The length of service is material evidence in determining whether the disability existed prior to entry into the service. Ibid.

Under section 1289 of the Revised Statutes an officer of the Volunteer Army is entitled to travel pay from the place of his discharge to the place where he accepted his appointment, but is not entitled to mileage on his discharge. 5 Compt. Dec., 113.

An officer or soldier who is discharged for his own convenience is not entitled to travel pay or allowances. Ibid., 113.

An officer who is ordered to proceed to his home and is discharged, to take effect at a subsequent date, is entitled to mileage, but not to travel pay. Ibid., 87. See also ibid., 705.

Under section 1289 of the Revised Statutes, an officer of the Volunteer Army is entitled to travel allowances from the place of his discharge to the place where he accepted his appointment, but is not entitled to mileage on his discharge. Ibid., 113.

An order retiring an officer from active service in the Army, which contains no direction for him to proceed to his home, can not be regarded as an order directing him to perform the journey so as to confer a right to mileage. 4 ibid., 175.

² The pay of an officer or soldier can not be subjected to stoppage except by the authority of a statute or regulation specifically authorizing the same or of a sentence of court-martial imposing a forfeiture or fine as a punishment, or where the party has become indebted to the United States on account. In a case of supposed liability to stoppage, resulting from a neglect or an act chargeable as a military offense, and as to which the facts are disputed, it is in general preferable to have the case investigated and the actual pecuniary liability, if any, fixed by a trial by court-martial. A superior is not authorized to stop against the pay of an inferior the value of property charged to have been criminally misappropriated; and it is the experience of the Judge-Advocate-General that most or many of the cases of loss of or injury to public property in which the facts have been investigated and the damage assessed by boards of survey, would have been more profitably passed upon by courts-martial, by which, instead of a stoppage, a forfeiture could have been imposed, as a punishment, by sentence. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., 719, par. 1. See also ibid., p. 720, pars. 2, 4, 5; 721 ibid., par. 8.

By operation of law, indeed, under certain express statutory provisions, an officer's or soldier's pay may be withheld altogether, or temporarily, or be subjected to certain charges and thus reduced. Thus, by section 1265, Revised Statutes, an officer absent without leave forfeits all pay during the period of his absence, unless the same be excused as unavoidable. By section 1266, an officer dropped from the rolls for an unauthorized absence of three months is required to "forfeit all pay due or to become due." Section 1766 prohibits the payment of his compensation to any person while he continues "in arrears to the United States." Sections 1303 and 1304 require in effect that the cost of damage done to arms, etc., and the value of military stores found deficient, shall, except where the loss is occasioned by no personal fault of the party, be charged against the pay of the officer or soldier responsible for the damage or deficiency. Ibid., par. 1901.

¹The power given to the Secretary of War to order a stoppage of pay against a delinquent officer is exclusive and discretionary, but is not to be asserted against an officer acting under an order which he is bound to obey, and as to which he is expressly relieved from personal liability. Such an abuse of power would not tend to preserve but to subvert military order and discipline. The refusal of the Secretary of War to stop an officer's pay is not a decision upon the merits; it will not bind the Government nor preclude the Comptroller from causing a suit to be brought against the officer; it merely determines that the officer is so far without fault that the harsh and summary remedy of stopping his pay should not be resorted to. Smith v. U. S., 24 Ct. Cls., 209, 215; Billings v. U. S., 23 ibid., 166, 175.

Where a paymaster receives no notice of stoppage and innocently pays an officer, the overpayment must be recovered from the officer. Smith v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cls., 452.

When an officer has been overpaid, or is indebted to the United States for money or property, or has failed properly to account for the same, the chief of the bureau concerned will promptly notify him of the amount of his indebtedness, or his failure to account. If after such notice he does not refund, or make satisfactory explanation, or take proper action within a reasonable time, the matter will be reported to the Secretary of War. Par. 1497, A. R., 1901.

On the order of the Secretary of War, stoppages may be made against the pay of officers for overpayments, illegal disbursement, or loss through fraud or neglect of the public funds, and for deficiencies in, loss of, or damage to, military supplies, unless proof be furnished that the deficiency, loss, or damage was not occasioned by any fault on their part. Par. 1498, ibid.

The notice of stoppage of officers' pay will be prepared in the form of a monthly circular to paymasters, advising them of stoppages outstanding at its date. This circular will be submitted to the Secretary of War for his approval prior to its publication. When an officer's name is borne thereon, no payment of salary will be made to him which is not in accordance with the stoppage entry made against his name. Par. 1499, ibid.

Overpayments to an officer will be deducted on the first payment after a notice of stoppage against him is received, even if the pay accounts have been assigned. Par. 1500, ibid.

That so much of the army appropriation act of twenty-fourth July, eighteen hundred and seventy-six, as limits the number of Indian scouts to three hundred is hereby repealed; and sections ten hundred and ninety-four and eleven hundred and twelve of the Revised Statutes, authorizing the employment of one thousand Indian scouts, are hereby continued in force: Provided, That a proportionate number of noncommissioned officers may be appointed. And the scouts, when they furnish their own horses and horse equipments, shall be entitled to receive forty cents per day for their use and risk so long as thus employed. Act of August 12, 1876 (19 Stat. L., 131).

³ By the terms of section 3, act of August 1, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 216), chief musicians, artificers, and wagoners theretofore excluded from the benefits of the act of May 15, 1872 (paragraphs 643, 644 post), became entitled to said benefits.

PAY OF ENLISTED MEN IN CONFINEMENT BY CIVIL AUTHORITY.

In view of the "pay status of (officers and) enlisted men withdrawn from duty by arrest and confinement by the civil authorities," as established by par. 1464, A. L., 903).* Foreign service. Mar. 2, 1901, v. 31, p. 903.

RETAINED PAY.³

867a. Hereafter no pay shall be retained; but this provision shall not apply to deductions authorized on account of the Soldiers' Home. Act of March 16, 1896 (29 Stat. L., 60). No pay to be retained hereafter Mar. 16, 1896, v. 19, p. 50.

² This enactment replaces a requirement in pari materia which was contained in the act of May 26, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 211). The act of March 3, 1901, also contains a provision that "the officers and enlisted men who have served in China at any time since the twenty-sixth day of May, nineteen hundred, shall be allowed and paid for such service the same increase of pay proper as is herein provided for." The statute last named also contains the requirement that "enlistments in the Regular Army on and after April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, from which date war was declared to have existed between the United States and Spain, up to and including April twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, shall be deemed enlistments for the war with Spain, and shall entitle men so enlisting to the extra pay and on the same conditions granted to men who enlisted in the Regular Army subsequent to the declaration of war, for the war only, as provided by an act approved March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, entitled "An act making appropriations for the support of the Regular and Volunteer Army for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred."

²The right of a soldier, under section 1284 of the Revised Statutes, to $1 per month additional pay for ten years' service does not depend merely upon the ten years' service, but upon an honorable discharge and a second reenlistment. The increase can be allowed only for services rendered after the enlistment, and the principle applies to subsequent reenlistments. 1 Compt. Dec., 459; 3 Dig. Dec. 2d Compt., 967; Webb v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cls., 58. By section 1286, Revised Statutes, $2 per month additional pay was allowed to certain noncommissioned officers who served in the war with Mexico.

² Page 863, ante. Section 1283, Revised Statutes, contains the provision that enlisted men, now in the service, shall receive the rates of pay established in this chapter according to the length of their service.

The act of February 27, 1893 (27 Stat. L., 478), which prohibited the reenlistment of privates of over ten years' service or who were over 35 years old, except such as had served as enlisted men for twenty years or upward, was repealed by the act of August 1, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 215), and the provisions of section 1284, Revised Statutes, were extended to all enlisted men in the Army, except general-service clerks and messengers. See also pars. 1528, 1529, and 1530, A. R., 1901.

Held that the additional pay upon reenlistment accorded to soldiers by section 1284, Revised Statutes, was intended as a compensation for long and continued military service, without reference to the kind of service or the corps in which it was rendered; and therefore that, where this additional pay had once begun to accrue to a soldier by reason of his having entered, in accordance with the provisions of the section, upon a second term of five years' service in the infantry, his continued right to the same was not interrupted by his being discharged from the infantry and (on the next day) enlisted in the Ordnance Corps. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1911.

A soldier who reenlisted more than three months after the expiration of his previous term of enlistment is not entitled to the additional pay provided by section 1281, Revised Statutes, as amended by section 3 of the act of August 1, 1894, for reenlisting within three months, notwithstanding that, by reason of sickness, his reenlistment was antedated, by direction of the Major-General Commanding the Army, so as to bring it within the limitation of three months; nor to regular pay prior to his actual reenlistment. 6 Compt. DEPOSITS.

879. Any enlisted man of the Army may deposit his savings, in sums not less than five dollars, with any army paymaster, who shall furnish him a deposit book, in which shall be entered the name of the paymaster and of the soldier, and the amount, date, and place of such deposit. The money so deposited shall be accounted for in the same manner as other public funds, and shall pass to the credit of the appropriation for the pay of the Army, and shall not be subject to forfeiture by sentence of court-martial, but shall be forfeited by desertion, and shall not be permitted to be paid until final payment on discharge, or to

³ For regulations respecting deposits, see paragraphs 1371-1378, Army Regulations of 1895.

Held, under section 1306, Revised Statutes, that a soldier, having savings on deposit as authorized by section 1305, Revised Statutes, was not entitled to interest on the same after the date of the approval of a sentence imposing upon him a dishonorable discharge; although such discharge, by reason of the soldier being subjected to a term of confinement adjudged by the same sentence, was not delivered personally to the soldier but to the commanding officer to retain in trust for him pending his confinement. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1052.

Section 1305, Revised Statutes, provides for the deposit by an enlisted man of his savings with a paymaster, to be paid over to him upon discharge. Held that this statute provided for voluntary deposits only; and that an officer, however laudable his motive, was not legally authorized in thus depositing, against the will of a soldier, certain money in his hands belonging to the latter. Ibid., par. 1913.

loughs to the enlisted men in such numbers and for such time as he shall deem consistent with the good of the service. Every officer commanding a regiment, or an independent troop, battery, or company, in the field, may grant furloughs, not exceeding thirty days at one time, to five per centum of the enlisted men for good conduct in the line of duty, but subject to the approval of the commander of the forces of which said enlisted men form a part. Every company officer of a regiment, commanding any troop, battery, or company not in the field, or commanding in any garrison, fort, post, or barrack, may, in the absence of his field officer, grant furloughs to the enlisted men, for a time not exceeding twenty days in six months, and not to more than two persons to be absent at the same time.¹ Eleventh Article of War.

885. Any soldier who absents himself from his troop, battery, or company, or detachment, without leave from his commanding officer, shall be punished as a court-martial may direct.² Thirty-second Article of War.

Absence without leave.
Thirty - second Article of War.

² An enlisted man who has absented himself from his post or company without authority is subjected to the forfeiture of pay and allowances prescribed by paragraph 144 of the Army Regulations of 1901, although not brought to trial for his absence as an offense. The forfeiture is a stoppage by operation of law, irrespective of any punishment that may be imposed, and whether any be imposed or not. Thus a soldier acquitted under a charge of desertion is acquitted of the absence without leave involved in the charge, and can not be punished therefor; but, if he has been absent without leave in fact, he incurs the forfeiture specified in the regulation. And a soldier brought to trial for, and convicted of, an absence without leave is subject to the forfeiture, though none be adjudged in the sentence. Otherwise, however, if the findings be disapproved as not sustained by the testimony. But the stoppage incurred under paragraph 137, Army Regulations of 1901, is enforced only upon a conviction by court-martial. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 140, par. 3; see also pars. 137 and 144, 1556, 1557, and 1558, Army Regulations of 1901.

The forfeiture specified in paragraph 133, Army Regulations of 1895, should not be enforced for absences of less than one day, but the soldier should be left to be punished by sentence of summary court. Thus where the unauthorized absence was for but seven and a half hours a forfeiture of a day's pay would deprive the soldier of pay for sixteen and a half hours which he had actually earned. Held, therefore, that a stoppage of one day's pay in such a case was not warranted. Ibid., 141, par. 4.

In paragraphs 144, 1557 and 1558, Army Regulations of 1901, it is directed that no enlisted man shall receive pay or allowances for any time during which he has been absent without leave (unless he shall furnish to his commanding officer a satisfactory excuse for such absence), and, further, that a deserter shall forfeit all pay and allowances due him at the time of his desertion. These forfeitures are incurred by operation of law, upon the commission of the offense, independently of any punishment for the same by sentence of court-martial, and it is not essential to their taking effect that the offense should have been found by a military court. In general, however, they can not safely be enforced in the absence of an ascertainment of the guilt of the party by a trial and conviction. Only such pay is affected by these regulations as is expressly specified therein. Thus a deserter forfeits both pay due at the time of his offense and pay for the period of his unauthorized absence, so that, upon his apprehension or surrender, nothing whatever is due him. But here the forfeiture by operation of law ends; from this date his pay begins to run anew; and unless his sentence (in the case of his trial and conviction) includes a forfeiture of pay due he will be entitled to his pay (less any legal stoppages or deductions) from such date (which is considered to be that of his return to service) to the date of his discharge, whether this be a dishonorable discharge adjudged by the sentence and executed forthwith, or—the sentence not imposing such punishment—an honorable discharge given him in the usual manner after a further period of service. Paragraph 140, indeed, provides that this pay shall not be rendered to him prior to trial, but it does not affect his right to receive it when the trial is completed, and it is found not to be forfeited by the sentence of the court.

886. Every noncommissioned officer and private of the Regular Army, and every officer, noncommissioned officer, and private of any militia or volunteer corps in the service of the United States who is captured by the enemy shall be entitled to receive during his captivity, notwithstanding the expiration of his term of service, the same pay, subsistence, and allowance to which he may be entitled while in the actual service of the United States; but this provision shall not be construed to entitle any prisoner of war of such militia corps to any pay or compensation after the date of his parole, except the traveling expenses allowed by law.

An officer or soldier brought to trial for desertion or absence without leave, and acquitted, can not of course be subjected to any of these forfeitures; nor can one who has been convicted but whose conviction has been disapproved by the competent reviewing authority. An acquittal of desertion, or a disapproval of a conviction of desertion, includes of course an acquittal, or a legal nullifying of the conviction, of the offense of absence without leave included in the desertion.

So, where a charge of desertion against a soldier was removed in orders, as unfounded, and he was granted an honorable discharge, held that the forfeiture prescribed by these regulations could not be enforced. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 562, par. 9.

Under section 1290, Revised Statutes, as modified by the act of February 27, 1877 (19 Stat. L., 244), it has been held that where a soldier's first discharge is followed by his reenlistment within a few days, so that his service is practically continuous, and his second discharge occurs at the place of his original enlistment, he is not entitled to commutation for travel and subsistence to the place of his second enlistment. *U. A stoppage is distinguished from a forfeiture or fine; and an executive stoppage, and pay of lieutenant-colonel was conferred upon the incumbent of the office of Paymaster-General, and deputy paymasters were authorized, in addition to the regimental paymasters. By section 3 of the act of March 16, 1802 (2 ibid., 132), passed with a view to reduce and fix the military peace establishment, provided for a paymaster of the Army; he was to be assisted by seven paymasters and two assistants, who were to be attached to districts; the deputy paymasters and assistants were to be detailed from the line, and were to receive additional pay at the rate of $30 and $10 per month, respectively.

The distribution of clothing to the Army was vested in the Pay Department by section 8 of the act of March 16, 1802 (2 ibid., 132), and section 9 of the act of January 11, 1812 (ibid., 671); this duty continued to be performed by the Pay Department until it was transferred to the Quartermaster's Department by the act of May 18, 1826 (4 ibid., 173).

Provision was made for the payment of the troops during the war of 1812 by the appointment of as many district paymasters as the President might deem necessary; if taken from the line these officers were to receive $30 per month additional pay; if appointed from civil life, they were to receive the pay and emoluments of majors of infantry. Act of May 16, 1812, 2 Stat. L., 735. The Pay Department was established, eo nomine, by section 3 of the act of April 24, 1816 (3 ibid., 297), and was to consist of a Paymaster-General, who, with the regiment and battalion paymasters, was to constitute the Pay Corps. The regimental and battalion paymasters were given the rank of majors of infantry, and were to be selected from subalterns of the line or from civil life; provision was made in this act for clerical service by a clause authorizing the detail of noncommissioned officers as paymasters' clerks, who, while so employed, were to receive double pay. Fourteen paymasters were added to the department by the act of March 2, 1821 (ibid., 615), and three by the act of July 4, 1836 (5 ibid., 117). The twenty-fifth section of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 ibid., 256), made provision for the expansion of the department, to meet the emergency of a sudden increase in the strength of the Army, by authorizing the President to appoint such number of additional paymasters as he might deem necessary "to pay the troops with sufficient punctuality;" such increase, however, was not "to exceed one for every two regiments of militia or volunteers," and the additional paymasters were to be continued in service only so long as their services might be required to pay militia and volunteers. The substance of this requirement was subsequently incorporated in the Revised Statutes as section 1184 of that enactment. By section 3 of the act of July 4, 1836, the President was authorized to assign any officer of the Army to duty as a paymaster, and the officer so assigned was to give bond, but was entitled to receive the pay and emoluments allowed by law to paymasters. By section 4 of the act of August 23, 1842 (ibid., 512), the number of majors in the department was reduced to fourteen.

The duties of the officers of the Pay Department were defined by section 4 of the act of April 24, 1816 (3 ibid., 297), and by the act of July 14, 1832 (4 ibid., 580), bonds were required and paymasters brought under the Articles of War by section 6 of the act of April 24, 1816 (3 ibid., 297). The rank indicated by their pay and allowances was conferred upon officers of this department by section 13 of the act of March 3, 1847 (9 ibid., 184), and the restriction in respect to the exercise of command, which is embodied in section 1183 of the Revised Statutes, appeared originally in the same enactment. By section 12 of the same act two deputy paymasters-general (lieutenant-colonels) were added to the establishment. At the close of the war with Mexico the organization of the department was fixed at one Paymaster-General (colonel), two deputy paymasters-general (lieutenant-colonels), and twenty-five paymasters with the rank of major, and the officers of the department were placed upon the same footing in respect to tenure of office as officers of other disbursing departments of the Army. By the same enactment the bonds of paymasters were required to be renewed at least once in every four years, and as much oftener as the President might direct.

The needs of the department were met during the period of the war of the rebellion by the appointment of additional paymasters under the authority conferred by section 25 of the act of July 5, 1838 (sec. 1184, Revised Statutes). At the general reorganization of the Army in 1866 the personnel of the department was established at one Paymaster-General (brigadier-general), two assistant paymasters-general (colonels), two deputy paymasters-general (lieutenant-colonels), and sixty paymasters with the rank of major. The Paymaster-General was to be selected from the corps, and the vacancies in the grade of major were to be filled by the appointment of persons who had served as additional paymasters during the war of the rebellion. Secs. 18 and 23, act of July 28, 1866, 14 Stat. L., 335. At the reduction of 1869 it was provided by section 6 of the act of March 3, 1869 (15 ibid., 318), that there should be no more appointments or promotions in the department until the further order of Congress, but this requirement was modified by the act of June 4, 1872 (17 ibid., 219), which authorized the appointment of a Paymaster-General with the rank of colonel to fill an existing vacancy, and by the act of March 2, 1875 (18 ibid., 338), and joint resolution No. 7 of March 2, 1875 (ibid., 524), which fixed the number of paymasters at fifty. The rank of brigadier-general was restored to the office of Paymaster-General by the act of July 22, 1876 (19 ibid., 95), and the restriction established by the act of March 3, 1869, was finally removed by the act of March 3, 1877 (ibid., 270).

A gradual reduction in the strength of the department was provided for in the acts of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. L., 451), and July 5, 1884 (23 ibid., 108), by authorizing the voluntary retirement of paymasters of over twenty years' service, and by a requirement that there should be no more original appointments to the grade of lieutenant-colonel and major until the number of officers in the department had been reduced to thirty-five and the organization of the department was thereafter to be as follows: one paymaster-general (brigadier-general), two assistant paymasters-general (colonels), three deputy paymasters-general (lieutenant-colonels), and twenty-nine paymasters (majors). By the act of July 16, 1892 (27 ibid., 175), the number of majors was reduced to twenty-five, by the act of February 12, 1895 (28 ibid., 655), it was still further reduced to twenty, which was declared to be the number authorized by law.

By section 21 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 754), the permanent strength of the department was fixed at one paymaster-general with the rank of brigadier-general, three assistant Paymasters-General with the rank of colonel, four deputy paymasters-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, twenty paymasters with the rank of major, and twenty-five paymasters with the rank of captain, mounted. A system of details was also established by the operation of which the permanent commissioned personnel of the department will be replaced, as vacancies occur, by officers detailed from the line of the Army for duty in the Pay Department.

¹This enactment replaces section 2 of the act of May 12, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 400), in pari materia. The office of contract surgeon was first established by regulation, but their compensation has been provided for in the annual acts of appropriation for the support of the Army. Such provision ceased to be made in the act of July 16, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 175), and, until May 12, 1898, when their employment was again authorized by law.

A "contract" or "acting assistant" surgeon is not a military officer and has no military rank or status. He is amenable, indeed, to the military jurisdiction when employed with the Army in the field in time of war, but he is in fact no part of the military establishment, but is simply a civilian employed by the United States, under a special contract for his personal services as a medical attendant to the troops. When not serving with troops before the enemy he has no other relation to the military organization or the Government than that established by the terms of his contract, made in accordance with the Army Regulations. He is not subject to military orders in general, like an officer or soldier, but only to such orders or directions as properly pertain to the performance of his particular duties. He is of course not eligible to be detailed as a member of a military court. As a civilian, however, he is entitled to the per diem allowance, etc., when duly attending a court-martial as a witness. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 384.

to their fitness for assignment, under the direction of the Surgeon-General, to the special service of conducting the examination and supervising the operations of the others; and for such special service an extra compensation of sixty dollars per month will be allowed: Provided further, That dental-college graduates now employed in the Hospital Corps, who have been detailed for a period of not less than twelve months to render dental service to the Army, and who are shown by the reports of their superiors to have rendered such service satisfactorily, may be appointed contract dental surgeons without examination.¹ Ibid.

¹ For regulations fixing the status and regulating the employment and duties of contract and dental surgeons see par. 1574 to 1589, Army Regulations, of 1901.

² The Medical Department, under the direction of the Secretary of War, is charged with the duty of investigating the sanitary condition of the Army and making recommendations in reference thereto, with the duty of caring for the sick and wounded, making physical examinations of officers and enlisted men, the management and control of military, the recruitment, instruction and control of the Hospital Corps and of the Army Nurse Corps (female), and furnishing all medical and hospital supplies, except for public animals. Par. 1570, A. R., 1901.

The medical officer of a command is responsible (within reasonable limits) for the health of the men composing it. Where, in the course of the proper and regular performance of his function, he excuses men from duty on account of sickness or disability, the commanding officer should almost as a matter of course accept his action as conclusive and final. If he refuses to do so and orders on duty a soldier thus excused, he assumes the responsibility of any material injury that may thus result to the individual or the service, and, if injury results in fact, is amenable to trial for the military offense involved. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1658.

HISTORICAL NOTE.—The medical and surgical needs of the troops composing the revolutionary armies were, at first, supplied by the surgeons who were attached to the several regimental organizations, and no provision seems to have been made for medical or surgical supervision, for the procurement and distribution of supplies, or for the establishment of a general hospital service until 1775, when, by a resolution of Congress dated July 27, 1777, the office of Director-General was established, who was charged with the duties subsequently performed by the Purveyor-General of Medical Supplies. The same enactment provided for a medical staff composed of four surgeons and twenty surgeon's mates, for an apothecary and two storekeepers, and for hospital attendance at the rate of one nurse for every ten patients. Under the authority thus conferred several general hospitals were established at points conveniently near to the several theaters of military operations. The medical establishment thus created was modified by subsequent resolutions of Congress; the changes caused by the resolution of April 22, 1777, being so extensive as to constitute a complete reorganization of the department. As thus modified, however, the department continued in existence until the disbandment of the revolutionary armies in 1783. For the ten years succeeding the organization of the Government under the Constitution the medical and surgical necessities of the troops were met by the medical officers attached to the several organizations constituting the military establishment.

The act of March 2, 1799 (1 Stat. L., 721), passed in contemplation of a war with France, but which was never fully executed, made provision for a complete medical establishment consisting of a physician-general, an apothecary-general, and a purveyor, together with such numbers of hospital surgeons and mates as the service might require, who were made liable to duty in the field as well as in the hospitals provided for in the statute. The act of March 2, 1799, was repealed and a Medical Department established by section 3 of the act of February 23, 1802 (2 ibid., 133), which fixed the strength of the department at two surgeons and twenty-five surgeon's mates, who were "to be attached to garrisons and posts, and not to corps." During the war of 1812 the necessities of the case were met by a temporary increase of the department and by the allowance of surgeons to regiments called into the service for the period of the war. By section 7 of the act of March 3, 1813 (ibid., 819), a physician and Surgeon-General was authorized, whose powers and duties were to be prescribed by the President of the United States. The office of apothecary-general was created by the act of April 24, 1816 (3 ibid., 297), but was abolished by the act of March 3, 1821. The office of Surgeon-General was created by section 2 of the act of April 14, 1818 (ibid., 426).

At the general reduction of 1821 the Medical Department was reorganized and made to consist of one Surgeon-General, eight surgeons, and forty-five assistant surgeons. Sec. 2, act of March 2, 1821, 3 ibid., 615. By the act of June 28, 1832 (4 ibid., 500), four surgeons and ten surgeon's mates were added. The act of June 30, 1834 (ibid., 714), contained a requirement that all candidates for appointment, or for promotion to the grade of surgeon, should pass a professional examination as a condition precedent to such appointment or promotion. By this enactment the pay of surgeons was fixed at that allowed to majors, assistant surgeons were to receive for the first five years' service the pay of first lieutenants, and after five years' service the pay of captains. The examination for promotion to the grade of surgeon was to take place after five years' service in the grade of assistant surgeon. By section 33 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 ibid., 256), seven additional surgeons were authorized, but by section 4 of the act of August 23, 1842 (ibid., 512), a reduction of two surgeons and ten assistant surgeons was ordered, the displaced officers being allowed three months' pay when honorably discharged.

At the outbreak of the war with Mexico, under authority conferred by section 6 of the act of February 11, 1847 (9 ibid., 123), two surgeons and twelve assistant surgeons were added to the regular establishment, and regimental medical officers were authorized for the volunteer troops at the rate of one surgeon and one assistant surgeon to each regiment, their service being restricted to the period of the existing war. By the act of March 3, 1849 (ibid., 351), ten assistant surgeons were authorized, and the requirement of the act of July 19, 1848, prohibiting the filling of vacancies in the department was repealed. By the act of August 16, 1850 (11 ibid., 51), four surgeons and eight assistant surgeons were added to the establishment; the force of hospital stewards was increased to such number as the service might require, not to exceed one to each military post; and cooks and nurses, detailed from the enlisted men, were, for the first time, allowed extra-duty pay for service in post hospitals.

At the outbreak of the war of the rebellion regimental medical officers were again authorized, one surgeon and one assistant being allowed to each regiment; by the act of July 2, 1862 (12 Stat. L., 502), an additional assistant was authorized.

By section 3 of the act of July 22, 1861 (ibid., 269), one surgeon to each brigade was authorized, but by the act of July 2, 1862 (ibid., 502), these officers were merged in the corps of forty surgeons and one hundred and twenty assistant surgeons created by that statute for the period of the war.

By the act of June 21, 1861 (ibid., 378), four surgeons and four assistant surgeons were added to the department. By the act of April 16, 1862 (ibid., 378), the rank of brigadier-general was conferred upon the Surgeon-General; the office of assistant surgeon-general, with the rank and pay of colonel of cavalry was created and the addition of ten surgeons and twenty assistant surgeons was authorized; a corps of medical inspectors was created, consisting of one inspector-general of hospitals (colonel) and eight assistants (lieutenant-colonels), whose duties were defined by law, and who were to hold office during the continuance of the war. By the act of December 27, 1862 (ibid., 633), eight medical inspectors were added and authority was conferred upon these officers to discharge enlisted men for disability contracted in the military service. By this statute a corps of medical cadets was established which continued to exist until its gradual disbandment was brought about by the passage of the general act of reorganization in 1866. By the act of May 20, 1862 (ibid., 378), six medical storekeepers were authorized. By the act of February 25, 1865 (13 ibid., 437), medical directors of armies in the field and of military departments were allowed the rank and pay of colonels, and those attached to army corps the rank and pay of lieutenant-colonels.

An ambulance service for the armies in the field was provided by the act of March 11, 1864 (13 ibid., 20). It was composed of officers and enlisted men detailed from the several army corps and was carried on under the direction of their respective medical directors. The duties of the corps were regulated by statute, and had to do, exclusively, with the transportation of the sick and wounded and the removal of the wounded from the battlefield. The corps ceased to exist at the disbandment of the volunteer armies in 1865.

At the general reorganization of 1866 (sec. 17, act of July 28, 1866, 14 ibid., 334), the strength of the department was fixed at one Surgeon-General, one assistant surgeon-general, one chief medical purveyor, and four assistant purveyors (lieutenant-colonels), sixty surgeons (majors), one hundred and fifty assistant surgeons, and five medical storekeepers; it was also provided that three years' service, instead of five, should be required of assistant surgeons before attaining the grade of captain. The act of March 3, 1869 (15 ibid., 318), contained a requirement prohibiting appointments and promotions in the staff until otherwise ordered by Congress; but this requirement was repealed as to the Medical Department by section 4 of the act of June 23, 1874 (18 ibid., 244), which fixed the strength of the medical establishment as follows: One Surgeon-General, one assistant surgeon-general, and one chief medical purveyor (colonel), two assistant medical purveyors (lieutenant-colonels), fifty surgeons, and one hundred and fifty assistant surgeons, who were to receive the rank of captain after five years' service, and five medical storekeepers; the number of contract surgeons was fixed in this statute at seventy-five. By the act of June 26, 1876 (19 ibid., 61), the number of assistant surgeons was fixed at one hundred and twenty-five, and the corps of medical storekeepers was discontinued, the reduction in both cases being accomplished by a requirement forbidding the filling of vacancies until the prescribed limit of numbers had been reached. By this statute the number of surgeons with the rank of colonel was increased to four, and the number with the rank of lieutenant-colonel to eight, the vacancies thus created to be filled by promotion according to seniority.

By the act of March 1, 1887 (24 ibid., 435), the Hospital Corps was created; by the act of July 27, 1892 (27 ibid., 276), the titles of office in the Medical Department were rearranged, officers holding the rank of colonels being arranged as assistant surgeons-general and those having the rank of lieutenant-colonels as deputy surgeons-general, and thereafter medical officers were to be assigned by the Secretary of War to such duties as the necessities of the service might require. By the act of August 18, 1894 (28 ibid., 403), the number of assistant surgeons was reduced to one hundred and ten; but by the act of May 12, 1898 (30 ibid., 406), the number of officers of this grade was increased to one hundred and twenty-five, and authority was conferred upon the Surgeon-General to employ such number of contract surgeons as might be necessary.

By section 18 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 752), the permanent strength of the department was fixed at one Surgeon-General with the rank of brigadier-general, eight assistant surgeons-general with the rank of colonel, twelve deputy surgeons-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, sixty surgeons with the rank of major, and two hundred and forty assistant surgeons with the rank of captain and first lieutenants mounted. A Nurse Corps (female), and a corps of dental contract surgeons were also added to the department.

1. One company of bombardiers, sappers, and miners was authorized by the act of April 29, 1812 (2 Stat. L., 720), to be officered from the Corps of Engineers; this company was disbanded at the general reduction of 1821, act of March 2, 1821 (2 ibid., 615). A similar company, to be officered in the same manner, was authorized by the act of May 15, 1846 (9 ibid., 12); three additional companies were provided for in section 4 of the act of August 6, 1861 (10 ibid., 317). A sergeant-major, quartermaster-sergeant, and commissary-sergeant were authorized by section 4 of the act of June 20, 1864 (11 ibid., 144). By section 20 of the act of July 28, 1866 (14 ibid., 335), the enlisted establishment of the Corps of Engineers was fixed at five companies, with the battalion sergeant-major and quartermaster-sergeant already authorized by law. The grade of battalion commissary-sergeant was discontinued by section 10 of the act of July 15, 1870 (15 ibid., 318). Section 7 of the act of March 2, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 979), contained the requirement that the battalion of engineers and the officers serving therewith should constitute a part of the line of the Army; this provision was reenacted in section 22 of the act of February 1, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 754); by section 11 of the same enactment the enlisted force of the Engineer Corps was increased to three battalions of engineer troops and a band.

2. For the organization of the infantry band, see paragraph 964, ante.

970. The enlisted men of the engineer battalion shall be instructed in and perform the duties of sappers, miners, and pontoniers, and shall aid in giving practical instruction in those branches at the Military Academy. They may be detailed by the Chief of Engineers to oversee and aid laborers upon fortifications and other works in charge of the Engineer Corps, and, as fort keepers, to protect and repair finished fortifications. 990. For the care and maintenance of the Washington Monument and the operation of the elevator and machinery connected therewith, namely: For one custodian, at one hundred dollars per month, one steam engineer, at eighty dollars per month; one assistant steam engineer, at sixty dollars per month; one fireman, at fifty dollars per month; one assistant fireman, at forty-five dollars per month; one conductor of car, at seventy-five dollars per month; one attendant on floor, at forty-five dollars per month; one attendant on top, at forty-five dollars per month; three night and day watchmen, at sixty dollars each per month; * * * to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War, who is hereby and hereafter charged with the custody, care, and protection of the monument. Act of October 2, 1888 (25 Stat. L., 533).

991. The joint commission created by the act of August second, eighteen hundred and seventy-six, for the completion of the Washington Monument, having completed the work intrusted to it, is, at its own request, dissolved, and the unexpended balances of appropriations for this work, as well as the amount herein appropriated, shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War. Ibid.

1011. Within twenty days after the approval of this act the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, is hereby authorized to appoint two persons, who, with an officer of the Corps of Engineers of the United States Army, whose lineal rank shall be above that of captain, shall be Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and who, from and after July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, shall exercise all the powers and authority now vested in the Commissioners of said District, except as are hereinafter limited or provided, and shall be subject to all restrictions and limitations and duties which are now imposed upon said Commissioners. The Commissioner who shall be an officer detailed, from time to time, from the Corps of Engineers, by the President, for this duty, shall not be required to perform any other, nor shall he receive any other compensation than his regular pay and allowances as an officer of the Army.¹ Sec. 2, act of June 11, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 103).

1012. The two persons appointed from civil life shall, at the time of their appointment, be citizens of the United States, and shall have been actual residents of the District of Columbia for three years next before their appointment, and have, during that period, claimed residence nowhere else, and one of said three Commissioners shall be chosen president of the Board of Commissioners at their first meeting, and annually and whenever a vacancy shall occur thereafter; and said Commissioners shall each of them, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, take an oath or affirmation to support the Constitution of the United States, and to faithfully discharge the duties imposed upon him by law. Ibid.

1013. Said Commissioners appointed from civil life shall each receive for his services a compensation at the rate of five thousand dollars per annum, and shall, before entering upon the duties of the office, each give bond in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, with surety as is required by existing law. The official term of said Commissioners appointed from civil life shall be three years, and until their successors are appointed and qualified; but the first appointment shall be one Commissioner for one year and one for two years, and at the expiration of their respective terms their successors shall be appointed for three years. Neither of said Commissioners, nor any officer whatsoever of the District of Columbia, shall be accepted as surety upon any bond required to be given to the District of Columbia; nor shall any contractor be accepted as surety for any officer or other contractor in said District. Ibid.

1014. Hereafter the Engineer Commissioner shall be entitled to receive such compensation, in addition to his army pay and allowances, as will make his compensation

1015. Hereafter such Engineer Commissioner may, in the discretion of the President of the United States, be detailed from among the captains or officers of higher grade having served at least fifteen years in the Corps of Engineers of the Army of the United States. Joint resolution No. 7, December 24, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 1113).

Three assistants authorized.

Aug. 7, 1894, v. 28, p. 246.

1016. The President of the United States may detail from the Engineer Corps of the Army not more than three officers, juniors to the engineer officer belonging to the Board of Commissioners of said District, to act as assistants to said Engineer Commissioner in the discharge of the special duties imposed upon him by the provisions of this act.¹ Act of August 7, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 246).

Estimates. June 11, 1878, v. 20, p. 104.

1017. The said Commissioners shall submit to the Secretary of the Treasury for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, and annually thereafter, for his examination and approval, a statement showing in detail the work proposed to be undertaken by them during the fiscal year next ensuing, and the estimated cost thereof; also the cost of constructing, repairing, and maintaining all bridges authorized by law across the Potomac River within the District of Columbia, and also all other streams in said District; the cost of maintaining all public institutions of charity, reformatories, and prisons belonging to or controlled wholly or in part by the District of Columbia, and which are now by law supported wholly or in part by the United States or District of Columbia; and also the expenses of the Washington Aqueduct and its appurtenances; and also an itemized statement and estimate of the amount necessary to defray the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for the next fiscal year: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed as transferring from the United States authorities any of the public works within the District of Columbia now in the control or supervision of said authorities. Act of June 11, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 104).

Powers of District Commissioners. Limitation.

June 10, 1879, v. 21, p. 9.

1018. The Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall have all the powers and be subject to all the duties and limitations provided in chapter eight of the Revised Statutes of the United States relating to the District of 1019. With the exceptions hereinafter provided, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall have the ^{Control of wharf property, etc.} exclusive charge and control of all wharf property belonging to the United States or to the District of Columbia within said District, including all the wharves, piers, bulkheads, and structures thereon and waters adjacent thereto within the pier lines, and all slips, basins, docks, water fronts, land under water, and structures thereon, and the appurtenances, easements, uses, reversions, and rights belonging thereto, which are now owned or possessed by the United States or the District of Columbia, or to which they or either of them is or may become entitled, or which they or either of them may acquire under the provisions hereof or otherwise; and said Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall have exclusive charge and control of the repairing, building, rebuilding, maintaining, altering, strengthening, leasing, and protecting said property and every part thereof, and all the cleaning, dredging, and deepening necessary in and about the same within the pier lines. Said Commissioners are also hereby authorized and empowered to make all needful rules and regulations for the government and control of all wharves, piers, bulkheads, and structures thereon, and waters adjacent thereto within the pier lines, and all the basins, slips, and docks, with the land under water, in said District not owned by the United States or the District of Columbia: Provided, That the following-described property shall be placed under the immediate jurisdiction and control of the Chief of Engineers of the United States: The banks of the Potomac River from the north line of the Arsenal Grounds to the southern curb line of N street south; also five hundred linear feet of shore line in the Flushing Reservoir at the foot of Seventeenth street west, and west from the western curb of said street, including a levee one hundred feet wide.² Act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 1377).

Mississippi River Commission.
v. 21, p. 37.

1030. The President of the United States shall, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint seven commissioners, three of whom shall be selected from the Engineer Corps of the Army, one from the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and three from civil life, two of whom shall be civil engineers. And any vacancy which may occur in the commission shall in like manner be filled by the President of the United States; and he shall designate one of the commissioners appointed from the Engineer Corps of the Army to be president of the commission.

Composition.

It shall be the duty of said commission to direct and complete such surveys of said river, between the Head of the Passes near its mouth to its head waters, as may be in progress, and to make such additional surveys, examinations, and investigations, topographical, hydrographical, and hydrometrical, of said river, and its tributaries, as may be deemed necessary by said commission to carry out the objects of this act. And to enable said commission to complete such surveys, examinations, and investigations, the Secretary of War shall, when requested by said commission, detail from the Engineer Corps of the Army such officers and men as may be necessary, and shall place in the charge and for the use of said commission such vessel or vessels and such machinery and instruments as may be under his control and may be deemed necessary. And the Secretary of the Treasury shall, when requested by said commission, in like manner detail from the Coast and Geodetic Survey such officers and men as may be necessary, and shall place in the charge and for the use of said commission such vessel or vessels and such machinery and instruments as may be under his control and may be deemed necessary. And the said commission may, with the approval of the Secretary of War, employ such additional force and assistants, and provide, by purchase or otherwise, such vessels or boats and such instruments and means as may be deemed necessary. Sec. 3, act of June 28, 1879 (21 Stat. L., 37).

1033. It shall be the duty of said commission to take into consideration and mature such plan or plans and estimates as will correct, permanently locate, and deepen the channel and protect the banks of the Mississippi River; improve and give safety and ease to the navigation thereof; prevent destructive floods; promote and facilitate commerce, trade, and the postal service; and when so prepared and matured, to submit to the Secretary of War a full and detailed report of their proceedings and actions, and of such plans, with estimates of the cost thereof, for the purposes aforesaid, to be by him transmitted to Congress: Provided, That the commission shall report in full upon the practicability, feasibility, and probable cost of the various plans known as the jetty system, the levee system, and the outlet system, as well as upon such others as they may deem necessary.¹

Duties.

Report.

Sec. 4, ibid.

Held, that the Mississippi River Commission derived no authority, from the statutes relating to its functions, to make allotments of the moneys appropriated by Congress for the improvements proposed. Its province is to indicate to Congress what improvements are needed and how much should be appropriated therefor. It has no authority to disburse money appropriated. An allotment made by it is to be treated by the Secretary of War as a recommendation only. The Secretary may adopt the recommendation, but in the disbursement should not omit any of the works specially designated by Congress in the appropriation act. Ibid., par. 2270.

Held, that the maps prepared by the Mississippi Commission, under appropriations by Congress, may legally be disposed of at the discretion of the commission, it being evidently intended by Congress that the information therein contained should be made public and circulated for the public use and benefit. Ibid., par. 2269.

Held (January, 1891), that the allowances for the traveling expenses of the civilian members of the Mississippi and Missouri River commissions were not regulated by any order of the War Department regulating the allowances of civil employees of the military establishment, but were such as are fixed by statute. They are not thus necessarily $4 per diem, since the statute law provides for the reimbursement of their actual necessary outlay, which may be more or less than this allowance. Ibid., par. 2271.

The salaries and traveling expenses of the members of the Mississippi River Commission who are appointed from civil life (Congress having failed to make a specific appropriation therefor) can not lawfully be defrayed out of the fund for the Mississippi River improvement. The application of such fund to that object would be inconsistent with section 3678, Revised Statutes. XVIII Opin. Att. Gen. 463.

The traveling expenses of the three civilian members of the Mississippi River Commission and of the member appointed from the Coast and Geodetic Survey include their actual traveling expenses only for all authorized travel on public duty. 3 Dig. Compt. Dec., 219.

In making appropriations for the improvement of the Mississippi River, Congress evidently contemplates that there shall be provided at public expense, on the vessel transporting the members of the Mississippi River Commission on their trips of

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS RESPECTING THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER.

Material for improvements authorized, how obtained.

1037. Whenever in the prosecution and maintenance of the improvement of the Mississippi River and other rivers, inspection, such table comforts only as are generally provided by steamboat companies for the traveling public. Ibid.

When an appropriation is available for the payment of accounts for "salaries and traveling expenses of the Mississippi River Commission, and for salaries and traveling expenses of assistant engineers, and for office expenses and contingencies," the following expenses are properly payable therefrom under existing laws: (1) The salaries of the three members of the commission appointed from civil life, at the rate of $3,000 each per annum, and of those only, the salaries of the other members being otherwise provided for; (2) the salaries of all civilian assistant engineers employed under the commission, but not that of the secretary of the commission or of any other assistant engineer detailed from the Corps of Engineers; (3) the actual traveling expenses only, for all authorized travel on public duty, of the three civilian members of the commission and of the member appointed from the Coast and Geodetic Survey; (4) the actual traveling expenses only, for all authorized travel on public duty, of all civilian assistant engineers employed under the commission; (5) the mileage of the three members of the commission appointed from the Engineer Corps of the Army, at the rate of 8 cents per mile, only under circumstances when mileage is authorized by law, for all travel required of them by the commission pertinent to the objects for which it was constituted, travel so required being travel under orders within the meaning of section 2 of the act of July 24, 1876, chapter 226; (6) the mileage of the secretary of the commission and of any other assistant engineer detailed from the Corps of Engineers and employed under the commission, at the rate of 8 cents per mile, only when mileage is authorized by law, for all travel required of them by the commission pertinent to the objects for which it was constituted; (7) the office expenses of the commission; (8) the contingent expenses of the commission. Ibid., p. 217.

The salaries accruing to the civilian members of the Mississippi River Commission, during a period when the regular appropriation for their payment is not available, can not legally be paid from funds appropriated for the improvement of the Mississippi River, unless provision is specifically made therefor in the act appropriating such funds. Ibid., p. 218. See, also, XVIII Opin. Att. Gen., p. 463.

harbors, and public works for which appropriations are herein made it becomes necessary or proper, in the judgment of the Secretary of War, to take possession of material found on bars and islands within the river banks, or other material lying adjacent or near to the line of any of said works and needful for their prosecution or maintenance, the officers in charge of said works may, when they can not agree as to the price with the owners thereof, in the name of the United States take possession of and use the same after first having paid or secured to be paid the value thereof, which may have been ascertained in the mode provided by the laws of the State wherein such property or material lies: Provided, however, That when the owner of such property or material shall fix a price for the same which in the opinion of said officer in charge, shall be reasonable, he may take the same at such price without further delay. The Department of Justice shall represent the interests of the United States in the legal proceedings under this act. Sec. 6, act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 148).

1038. The Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed to have water gauges established, and daily observations made of the rise and fall of the Lower Mississippi River and its chief tributaries, at or in the vicinity of Saint Louis, Cairo, Memphis, Helena, Napoleon, Providence, Vicksburgh, Red River Landing, Baton Rouge, and Carrollton, on the Mississippi, between the mouth of the Missouri and the Gulf of Mexico; and at or in the vicinity of Fort Leavenworth, on the Missouri; Rock Island, on the Upper Mississippi; Louisville, on the Ohio; Florence, on the Tennessee; Jacksonport, on the White River; Little Rock, on the Arkansas, and Alexandria, on the Red River, and at such other places as the Secretary of War may deem advisable. The expenditure for the same shall be made from the appropriation for the improvement of rivers and harbors, but the annual cost of the observations shall not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars.

1039. The owners of sawmills on the Mississippi River and the Saint Croix River in the States of Wisconsin and Minnesota are authorized and empowered, under the direction of the Secretary of War, to construct piers or cribs in front of their mill property on the banks of the river, for the protection of their mills and rafts against damage by floods and ice: Provided, however, That the piers or cribs

Par.

1047. Supervision of expenditures.

1048. Annual report.

1044. A commission to be called the Missouri River Commission is hereby created, to consist of five members. Creation.

1045. The President shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint five commissioners, three of whom shall be selected from the Corps of Engineers of the Army and two from civil life, one of whom at least shall be a civil engineer; and he shall in like manner fill any vacancy in said commission; and he shall designate one of the commissioners appointed from the Corps of Engineers to be president of the commission. The commissioners appointed from the Corps of Engineers shall receive no other pay or compensation than is allowed them by law, and the other two commissioners shall each receive for their services pay at the rate of two thousand five hundred dollars per annum, out of any money appropriated for the Missouri River; and all said commissioners shall remain in office subject to removal by the President of the United States.¹ Ibid.

Composition.

Duties.
Ibid.

1046. It shall be the duty of said commission to superintend and direct such improvement of said river and to carry into execution such plans for the improvement of the navigation of said river from its mouth to its head waters as may now be devised and in progress, and to continue and complete such surveys as may now be in progress, and to make such additional surveys, examinations, and investigations, topographical, hydrographical, and hydrometrical, and to consider, devise, and mature such additional plan or plans, and all such estimates as may be deemed necessary and best, to obtain and maintain a channel and depth of water in said river sufficient for the purposes of commerce and navigation and to accomplish the objects of this act; and to enable the commission to perform the duties assigned them the Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed to transfer to and place under the control and superintendence of said commission all such vessels, barges, machinery, and instruments, and such plant as may now be provided, devised, or in use on said river, from appropriations heretofore made for said river, or other sources, and when thereto requested by said commission to detail from the Corps of Engineers such officers and men as may be necessary, and to place in the charge of said commission any such vessels, machinery, and instruments under his control as may be deemed necessary. And said commission may, with the approval of the Secretary of War, employ such additional force and assistants, and provide, by purchase or otherwise, such additional vessels, boats, machinery, instruments, and means as may be deemed necessary; to be paid for by appropriations made or to be made for said river. Ibid.

Supervision of
appropriations.
Ibid.

1047. The said commission shall, under the direction and with the approval of the Secretary of War, superintend, control, and expend for the purposes of this act all appropriations or unexpended balances heretofore made for the improvement of said river, and which may hereafter be made for said river, or so much thereof as may be necessary, and shall prepare and submit, through the Chief of the Engineer Corps, to the Secretary of War, to be by him transmitted to Congress at the beginning of the regular session in December of each year, a full and detailed report of all their proceedings and actions, and of all such plans and systems of work as may now be devised and in progress and carried out by them, and of all such additional plans and systems of works as may be devised and matured by them, with full and detailed estimates of the cost thereof, and statements of all expenditures made by them; and the Secretary of War may detail from the Corps of Engineers or other corps of the Army an officer to act as secretary of the commission, to aid them in their work; and all money hereby or hereafter appropriated for the improvement of said Missouri River shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War in accordance with the plans, specifications, and recommendations of said commission when such plans, specifications, and recommendations shall have been approved by Congress.¹ Ibid.

1048. The Secretary of War shall cause the manuscript of the * * * Missouri River Commission to be placed in the hands of the Public Printer on or before the fifteenth day of October in each year. Sec. 8, act of August 11, 1888 (25 Stat. L., 400).

¹The duties, under the law, of the Missouri River Commission, composed partly of civilians, relate exclusively to certain work quite other than the establishing of harbor lines. It is therefore not, as a body, subject to the directions of the Secretary of War in the matter of establishing harbor lines, nor are the civilian members subject individually to his orders. Thus, while they may consent to establish such lines, it is preferable for the Secretary to cause such work to be done through engineer officers of the Army. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 684, par. 2272.

and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint the commission from officers of the Corps of Engineers, United States Army. Vacancies occurring therein shall be filled in like manner. It shall have the authority and exercise the powers hereinafter set forth, under the supervision of the Chief of Engineers and direction of the Secretary of War.¹ Act of March 1, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 507).

1050. Said commission shall organize within thirty days after its appointment by the selection of such officers as may be required in the performance of its duties, the same to be selected from the members thereof. The members of said commission shall receive no greater compensation than is now allowed by law to each, respectively, as an officer of said Corps of Engineers. It shall also adopt rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, to govern its deliberations and prescribe the method of procedure under the provisions of this act. Sec. 2, ibid.

Sec. 2, ibid.

Jurisdiction.

1051. The jurisdiction of said commission, in so far as the same affects mining carried on by the hydraulic process, shall extend to all such mining in the territory drained by the Sacramento and San Joaquin river systems in the State of California. Hydraulic mining, as defined in section eight hereof, directly or indirectly injuring the navigability of said river systems, carried on in said territory other than as permitted under the provisions of this act is hereby prohibited and declared unlawful. Sec. 3, ibid.

Sec. 4, ibid.

1052. It shall be the duty of said commission to mature and adopt such plan or plans, from examinations and surveys already made and from such additional examinations and surveys as it may deem necessary, as will improve the navigability of all the rivers comprising said systems, deepen their channels, and protect their banks. Such plan or plans shall be matured with a view of making the same effective as against the encroachment of and damage from débris resulting from mining operations, natural erosion, or other causes, with a view of restoring, as near as practicable and the necessities of commerce and navigation demand, the navigability of said rivers to the condition existing in eighteen hundred and sixty, and permitting mining by the hydraulic process, as the term is understood in said State, to be carried on, provided the same can be accomplished without injury to the navigability of said rivers or the lands adjacent thereto. Sec. 4, ibid.

1053. It shall further examine, survey, and determine the utility and practicability, for the purposes hereinafter indicated, of storage sites in the tributaries of said rivers and in the respective branches of said tributaries, or in the plains, basins, sloughs, and tule and swamp lands adjacent to or along the course of said rivers, for the storage of débris or water or as settling reservoirs, with the object of using the same by either or all of these methods to aid in the improvement and protection of said navigable rivers by preventing deposits therein of débris resulting from mining operations, natural erosion, or other causes, or for affording relief thereto in flood time and providing sufficient water to maintain scouring force therein in the summer season; and in connection therewith to investigate such hydraulic and other mines as are now or may have been worked by methods intended to restrain the débris and material moved in operating such mines by impounding dams, settling reservoirs, or otherwise, and in general to make such study of and researches in the hydraulic mining industry as science, experience, and engineering skill may suggest as practicable and useful in devising a method or methods whereby such mining may be carried on as aforesaid. Sec. 5, ibid.

Sec. 5, ibid.

Inspection of hydraulic and other mines, etc.

1054. The said commission shall from time to time note the conditions of the navigable channels of said river systems, by cross-section surveys or otherwise, in order to ascertain the effect therein of such hydraulic mining operations as may be permitted by its orders and such as is caused by erosion, natural or otherwise. Sec. 6, ibid.

Noting condition of navigable channels.
Sec. 6, ibid.

1055. Said commission shall submit to the Chief of Engineers, for the information of the Secretary of War, on or before the fifteenth day of November of each year, a report of its labors and transactions, with plans for the construction, completion, and preservation of the public works outlined in this act, together with estimates of the cost thereof, stating what amounts can be profitably expended thereon each year. The Secretary of War shall thereupon submit same to Congress on or before the meeting thereof. Sec. 7, ibid.

Sec. 8, ibid.

1056. For the purposes of this act "hydraulic mining" and "mining by the hydraulic process," are hereby declared to have the meaning and application given to said terms in said State. Sec. 8, ibid.

Hydraulic miners must file petition with commission.

1057. The individual proprietor or proprietors, or in case of a corporation its manager or agent appointed for that purpose, owning mining ground in the territory in the State of California mentioned in section three hereof, which it is desired to work by the hydraulic process, must file with said commission a verified petition, setting forth such facts as will comply with law and the rules prescribed by said commission. Sec. 9, ibid.

Joint petition by mining claim owners requiring a common dumping ground, etc.

1058. Said petition shall be accompanied by an instrument duly executed and acknowledged, as required by the law of the said State, whereby the owner or owners of such mine or mines surrender to the United States the right and privilege to regulate by law, as provided in this act or any law that may hereafter be enacted, or by such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by virtue thereof, the manner and method in which the débris resulting from the working of said mine or mines shall be restrained, and what amount shall be produced therefrom; it being understood that the surrender aforesaid shall not be construed as in any way affecting the right of such owner or owners to operate said mine or mines by any other process or method now in use in said State: Provided, That they shall not interfere with the navigability of the aforesaid rivers. Sec. 10, ibid.

Contents of petition.

1059. The owners of several mining claims situated so as to require a common dumping ground or dam or other restraining works for the débris issuing therefrom in one or more sites may file a joint petition setting forth such facts in addition to the requirements of section nine hereof; and where the owner of a hydraulic mine or owners of several such mines have and use common dumping sites for impounding débris or as settling reservoirs, which sites are located below the mine of an applicant not entitled to use same, such fact shall also be stated in said petition. Thereupon the same proceedings shall be had as provided for herein. Sec. 11, ibid.

Notice of petition, etc., to be published.

1060. A notice, specifying briefly the contents of said petition and fixing a time previous to which all proofs are to be submitted, shall be published by said commission in some newspaper or newspapers of general circulation in the communities interested in the matter set forth therein. If published in a daily paper such publication shall continue for at least ten days ; if in a weekly paper, in at least three issues of the same. . Pending publication thereof said com-^{Examination of mine.} mission or a committee thereof shall examine the mine and premises described in such petition. On or before the time^{Affidavits, plans, etc., may be filed.} so fixed all parties interested, either as petitioners or contestants, whether miners or agriculturists, may file affidavits, plans, and maps in support of their respective claims. Further hearings, upon notice to all parties of record, may^{Hearings.} be granted by the commission when necessary. Sec. 12, ibid.

1061. In case a majority of the members of said com-^{Favorable decisions within thirty days. Sec. 13, ibid.} mission, within thirty days after the time so fixed, concur in a decision in favor of the petitioner or petitioners, the said commission shall thereupon make an order directing the methods and specifying, in detail, the manner in which operations shall proceed in such mine or mines ; what restraining or impounding works, if facilities therefor can be found, shall be built and maintained ; how and of what material ; where to be located ; and, in general, set forth such further requirements and safeguards as will protect the public interests and prevent injury to the said navigable rivers and the lands adjacent thereto, with such further conditions and limitations as will observe all the provisions of this act in relation to the working thereof and the payment of taxes on the gross proceeds of the same : Provided, That all expense incurred in complying with said order shall be borne by the owner or owners of such mine or mines. Sec. 13, ibid.

1063. No permission granted to a mine owner or owners^{Conditions, etc., as to commencing operations. Sec. 15, ibid.} under this act shall take effect, so far as regards the working of a mine, until all impounding dams or other restraining works, if any are prescribed by the order granting such permission, have been completed, and until the impounding dams or other restraining works or settling reservoirs provided by said commission have reached such a stage as, in the opinion of said commission, it is safe to use the same: Provided, however, That if said commission shall be of the opinion that the restraining and other works already constructed at the mine or mines shall be sufficient to protect the navigable rivers of said systems and the work of said commission, then the owner or owners of such mine or mines may be permitted to commence operations.¹ Sec. 15, ibid.

In the event of a petition being filed after the entry of such order, or in case the impounding dam or dams or other restraining works have already been constructed and accepted by said commission, the commission shall fix such amount as may be reasonable for the privilege of dumping therein, which amount shall be divided between the original owners of such impounding dams or other restraining works in proportion to the amount respectively paid by each party owning same. The expense of maintaining and protecting such joint dams or works shall be divided among mine owners using the same in such proportion as the commission shall determine. In all cases where it is practicable, restraining and impounding works are to be provided, constructed, and maintained by mine owners near or below the mine or mines before reaching the main tributaries of said navigable waters. Sec. 16, ibid.

1065. At no time shall any more debris be permitted to be washed away from any hydraulic mine or mines situated on the tributaries of said rivers and the respective branches of each, worked under the provisions of this act, than can be impounded within the restraining works erected. Sec. 17, ibid.

1073. All sums of money paid into the Treasury under this section shall be set apart and credited to a fund to be known as the "Débris fund," and shall be expended by said commission under the supervision of the Chief of Engineers and direction of the Secretary of War, in addition to the appropriations made by law, in the construction and maintenance of such restraining works and settling reservoirs as may be proper and necessary: Provided, That said commission is hereby authorized to receive and pay into the Treasury from the owner or owners of mines worked by the hydraulic process, to whom permission may have been granted so to work under the provisions hereof, such money advances as may be offered to aid in the construction of such impounding dams or other restraining works, or settling reservoirs, or sites therefor, as may be deemed necessary by said commission to protect the navigable channels of said river systems, on condition that all moneys so advanced shall be refunded as the said tax is paid into the said débris fund: And provided further, That in no event shall the Government of the United States be held liable to refund same except as directed by this section. Ibid.

1074. For the purpose of securing harmony of action and economy in expenditures in the work to be done by the United States and the State of California, respectively, the former in its plans for the improvement and protection of the navigable streams and to prevent the depositing of mining débris or other materials within the same, and the latter in its plans authorized by law for the reclamation, drainage, and protection of its lands, or relating to the working of hydraulic mines, the said commission is empowered to consult thereon with a commission of engineers of said State, if authorized by said State for said purpose, the result of such conference to be reported to the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army, and if by him approved shall be followed by said commission. Sec. 24, ibid.

1075. Said commission, in order that such material as is now or may hereafter be lodged in the tributaries of the Sacramento and San Joaquin river systems, resulting from mining operations, natural erosion, or other causes, shall be prevented from injuring the said navigable rivers or such of the tributaries of either as may be navigable and the land adjacent thereto, is hereby directed and empowered, when appropriations are made therefor by law, or sufficient money is deposited for that purpose in said débris fund, to build at such points above the head of navigation in said rivers and on the main tributaries thereof, or branches of such tributaries, or at any place adjacent to the same which, in the judgment of said commission will effect said object (the same to be of such material as will insure safety and permanency), such restraining or impounding dams and settling reservoirs, with such canals, locks, or other works adapted and required to complete same. Sec. 25, ibid.

1078. For the purpose of carrying out the following provision of the river and harbor act of eighteen hundred and ninety-six: "For the construction of restraining barriers for the protection of the Sacramento and Feather rivers in California, two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, such restraining barriers to be constructed under the direction of the Secretary of War in accordance with the recommendations of the California Débris Commission, pursuant to the provisions of and for the purposes set forth in section twenty-five of the act of the Congress of the United States entitled, 'An act to create the California Débris Commission and regulate hydraulic mining in the State of California,' approved March first, eighteen hundred and ninety-three: Provided, That the Treasurer of the United States be, and he is hereby, authorized to receive from the State of California, through the débris commission of said State, or other officer thereunto duly authorized, any and all sums of money that have been or may hereafter be appropriated by said State for the purposes herein set forth. And said sums when so received and hereby appropriated for the purposes above named, to be expended in the manner above provided," and for the further purpose of making available to the United States the appropriation, or any part thereof, made by the provisions of an act of the legislature of the State of California, approved March seventeenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-seven, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to provide for the appointment, duties, and compensation of a débris commissioner, and to make appropriation to be expended under his directions in the discharge of his duties as such commissioner, approved March twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and ninety-three," and of said amended act, the Secretary of War is hereby authorized, in the preparation for and construction of the proposed works authorized and appropriated for by the aforesaid provisions, to enter into an agreement that the contractor shall look solely to the State of California for one-half of such expense, to be paid out of said State appropriation, and the United States shall in no manner be liable for said one-half. *Act of July 1, 1898 (30 Stat. 1079. The provisions of an act of Congress entitled "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, and for other purposes," approved July first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, authorizing the Secretary of War, in expending certain specified appropriations in the preparation for and construction of certain works for the restraining or impounding of mining débris in the State of California, to enter into a contract or contracts wherein the contractor or contractors shall look solely to that State for one-half of such expense, and that the United States shall in no wise be liable for said one-half, are hereby extended to any appropriations, when made, that may hereafter be made for said purposes.¹ Act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 1148).

Contractor to look to State of California for one-half of cost of works. Mar. 3, 1899, v. 30, p. 1148.

1080. The Secretary of War, in carrying out the provisions of any act of Congress providing for the restraining or impounding of mining débris in California, may, in his discretion, when in his judgment the aggregate of appropriations already made by said State and Congress and available therefor are sufficient to complete the same, undertake the works necessary thereto by hired labor and by purchase of supplies and materials therefor, and may accept payments on account thereof as the work progresses under and according to the provisions of the acts of the legislature of said State for such purposes. Ibid.

Work may be done by hired labor. Ibid.

1081. Officers of the commission traveling on duty in connection with the commission's work may be paid their actual traveling expenses in lieu of mileage allowed by law, and shall hereafter receive no mileage. Act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 1109).

Actual expenses allowed for travel. Mileage prohibited. Ibid.

1082. The President of the United States of America be, and he is hereby, authorized and empowered to make full and complete investigation of the Isthmus of Panama with a view to the construction of a canal by the United States across the same to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans; that the President is authorized to make investigation of any and all practicable routes for a canal across said Isthmus of Panama, and particularly to investigate the two routes known respectively as the Nicaraguan route and the Panama route, with a view to determining the most practicable and feasible route for such canal, together with the proximate and probable cost of constructing a canal at each of two or more of said routes. And the President is further authorized to investigate and ascertain what rights, privileges and franchises, if any, may be held and owned by any corporations, associations, or individuals, and what work, if any, has been done by such corporations, associations, or individuals in the construction of a canal at either or any of said routes, and particularly at the so-called Nicaraguan and Panama routes, respectively; and likewise to ascertain the cost of purchasing all of the rights, privileges, and franchises held and owned by any such corporations, associations, and individuals in any and all of such routes, particularly the said Nicaraguan route and the said Panama route; and likewise to ascertain the probable or proximate cost of constructing a suitable harbor at each of the termini of said canal, with the probable annual cost of maintenance of said harbors, respectively. And generally the President is authorized to make such full and complete investigation as to determine the most feasible and practicable route across said Isthmus for a canal, together with the cost of constructing the same and placing the same under the control, management, and ownership of the United States. *Sec. 3, act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. The act of February 10, 1875, contained the following provision: "For torpedoes for harbor defenses and the preservation of the same, and for torpedo experiments in their application to harbor and land defense, and for instruction of engineer battalion in their preparation and application, fifty thousand dollars: Provided, That the money herein appropriated for torpedoes shall only be used in the establishment and maintenance of torpedoes to be operated from shore stations for the destruction of an enemy's vessel approaching the shore or entering the channels and fairways of harbors," which was repeated in the acts of February 10, 1875, June 20, 1876, March 3, 1877, March 23, 1878, March 3, 1879, May 4, 1880, March 3, 1881, and May 19, 1882. The act of March 3, 1883, contained the requirement that "one-half of the money herein appropriated may be used in the purchase of torpedoes of the latest improvement."

If, in the opinion of the Chief of Engineers, a contemplated building will be an appliance necessary in the operation of submarine mines for the defense of harbors, or will, when completed, be used in operating such mines, or in such a way as to render their operation possible for the defense of harbors, the cost of its erection is chargeable to the appropriation for torpedoes for harbor defense. 3 Compt. ² A proceeding to condemn lands for the use of the United States under this statute is properly brought in a district court of the United States. In such proceeding the practice should be in substantial conformity with that pursued in the courts of the State in which the lands are situated, when similar proceedings are there instituted. U. S. v. Engeman, 45 Fed. Rep., 546.

The manner in which the power of eminent domain of the United States shall be exercised is a matter of legislative discretion, and Congress, by the act of August 1, 1888 (25 Stat. L., 357), has vested in the United States circuit and district courts of the district in which land is situated jurisdiction of proceedings authorized to be instituted by any public officer to condemn such land for public purposes. By the act of August 18, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 316), the Secretary of War is authorized to cause proceedings to be instituted for the condemnation of land for military purposes "in any court having jurisdiction of such proceedings." Held, that said acts are in pari materia, and upon an application by the Secretary of War, under the latter act, the Attorney-General may, at his election, cause proceedings to be instituted for the condemnation of land for military purposes in either the State or Federal courts. Chappell v. U. S., 81 Fed. Rep., 764.

No alterations will be made in any fortification or in its casemates, quarters, barracks, magazines, storehouses, or any other building belonging to it, nor will any building of any kind or work of earth, masonry, or timber be erected within the fortification or within a mile of its exterior, except under the direction of the Chief of Engineers United States Army and by authority of the Secretary of War. Par. 1691, A. R., 1901.

¹The doctrine of the common law as to the navigability of waters has no application in this country. Here the ebb and flow of the tide do not constitute the usual test, as in England, or any test at all of the navigability of waters. The test by which to determine the navigability of waters in our rivers is found in their navigable capacity. Those rivers are navigable rivers in law which are navigable in fact. Rivers are navigable in fact when they are used, or are susceptible of being used, in their ordinary condition, as highways for commerce, on which trade and travel are, or may be conducted, in the customary modes of trade and travel on waters; and they constitute navigable waters of the United States, within the meaning of the acts of Congress, in contradistinction from the navigable waters of the States, when they form,

The Iowa river. July 13, 1868, Res. No. 55, v. 15, p. 257; May 6, 1870, c. 92, v. 16, p. 121. 1093. So much of the Iowa River within the State of Iowa as lies north of the town of Wapello shall not be deemed a navigable river or public highway, but dams Sec. 5248, R.S. and bridges may be constructed across it.

in their ordinary condition, by themselves, or by uniting with other waters, a continued highway over which commerce may be carried on with other States or foreign countries in the customary modes in which such commerce is conducted by water. The Daniel Ball, 10 Wall., 557; The Montello, 11 Wall., 411; Ex parte Boyer, 109 U. S., 629.

If a river is not of itself a highway for commerce with other States or foreign countries, or does not form such highway by its connection with other waters, and is only navigable between different places within the State, it is not a navigable water of the United States, but only a navigable water of a State. The Montello, 11 Wall., 411.

The right to regulate commerce includes the right to regulate navigation, and hence to regulate and improve navigable rivers and ports on such rivers. So. Car. v. Ga., 93 U. S., 4; Gilman v. Philadelphia, 3 Wall., 713.

In the case of the Willamette Bridge Co. v. Hatch (125 U. S., 1), it was held that clauses similar to that contained in the ordinance of 1787 (1 Stat. L., 52, note) to the effect that "the navigable waters leading into the Mississippi and the St. Lawrence, and the carrying places between them, shall be common highways and forever free, as well to the inhabitants of the said territory as to the citizens of the United States and those of any other States that may be admitted into the Confederacy, without any tax, impost, or duty therefor" (see also act of February 14, 1859, 11 Stat. L., 383), do not refer to physical obstructions, but to political regulations which would hamper the freedom of commerce, * * * and can not be regarded as establishing the police power of the United States over such river, or as giving the Federal courts jurisdiction to hear and determine, according to Federal law, every complaint that may be made of an impediment in, or an encroachment upon, the navigation of these rivers. * * * Nor does the expenditure of money in improving navigation of such rivers import an assumption of police power.

When Congress, in the exercise of its exclusive power to direct how the public money shall be employed, has appropriated a certain sum to be devoted, without exceptions or provisos, to a certain specific internal improvement, it devolves upon the Executive Department of the Government, charged as it is with the execution of the laws enacted by the Legislature, to proceed with the work under the appropriation, without entertaining any question as to the expediency of the expenditure. Thus where Congress had made in general terms an appropriation of a specific amount for improving a certain river, advised that it was for the officer charged with the improvement simply to do the work, without delaying, to raise or consider questions or claims of title to the land, etc., to be affected by the improvement; such matters being quite beyond the province of an executive official under the circumstances. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1487.

The United States is not the owner of the soil of the beds of navigable waters [see the definition of the term "navigable waters of the United States," in The Daniel Ball, 10 Wall., 557; Ex parte Boyer, 109 U. S., 629], nor of the shores of tide waters below high-water mark, nor of the shores of waters not affected by the tide below the ordinary water line of the same, except as it may have become grantee of such soil from the State or from individuals. The property and jurisdiction in and over the beds and shores of navigable waters is in general in the State, or in the individual riparian owner [Pollard v. Hagan, 3 How., 212; Barney v. Keokuk, 94 U. S., 337; Gilman v. Philad., 3 Wall., 713; South Carolina v. Georgia, 93 U. S., 4; VI Opin. Att. Gen., 172; VII ibid., 314; XVI ibid., 479]. But under the power to regulate commerce Congress may assume, as it has recently assumed, the power so to regulate navigation over navigable waters within the States as to prohibit its obstruction and to cause the removal of obstructions thereto, and such power when exercised is "conclusive of any right to the contrary asserted under State authority. [Wisconsin v. Duluth, 96 U. S., 379]. In exercising this power it can not divest rights of title or occupation in a State or individuals, but these rights are left to be enjoyed as before, subject, however, to the paramount public right of freeing navigation from obstruction possessed and exercised by the United States through Congress. In the execution of the laws relating to obstructions to navigation the Secretary of War has no general authority, but only such as may have been vested in him by legislation of Congress, especially in the river and harbor appropriation acts. Ibid., par. 1773.

As between the United States and a State, the soil of the bed of navigable waters and of the shores of tide waters below high-water mark, or—on rivers not reached by the tide—the soil of the shores below the ordinary water line (as not affected by freshet or unusual drought) belongs to the State. But natural accretions to land owned by private individuals belong to the owners of the land. Thus, held, that the accretions to Hog Island, in the mouth of the Missouri River, belonged, not to the United States or to the State of Missouri, but to the owner of the island. Ibid., pars. 1559, 1711 and 1712.

Where the title to tide lands along the shores of a State is vested in such State by virtue of its sovereignty, and tide lands along the shores of any Territory are held in trust by the General Government for the future State, nevertheless the rule now is that, during the Territorial period, the United States holds the permanent title to tide lands and may make grants thereof. Carroll v. Prince, 81 Fed. Rep., 138; Shively v. Bowlby, 152 U. S., 1; Mann v. Land Co., 153, ibid., 273.

Held, that it was doubtful whether "floatable" streams, i. e., streams capable only of being used for floating saw logs, timber, etc., not being navigable in a general sense, were included in the term "navigable waters of the United States," as employed in statutes providing that dams shall not be constructed in such waters without the permission of the Secretary of War. But held, that it was clearly competent for Congress, under the commerce clause of the Constitution, to exercise legislation over such streams as highways of interstate commerce. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1793. See also Martin v. Waddell, 16 Pet., 367; Pollard v. Hagan, 3 How., 212; Pennsylvania v. Wheeling Bridge Co., 13 How., 518; Den v. Jersey Co., 15 How., 426.

POWER OF THE STATES.

Until the dormant power of the Constitution is awakened and made effective by appropriate legislation the reserved power of the State is plenary, and its exercise in good faith can not be made the subject of review by this court. Gilman v. Philadelphia, 3 Wall., 713. The power to construct work of rivers and harbor improvement in the navigable waters of the United States, as an incident of the power to regulate commerce "covering as it does a wide field, and embracing a great variety of subjects, some of which will call for uniform rules and national legislation, while others can best be regulated by rules suggested by the varying circumstances of differing places, and limited in their operation to such places respectively; and to the extent required by these last cases, the power to regulate commerce may be exercised by the States." Ibid. However, Congress may interpose whenever it shall be deemed necessary, by either general or special laws. It may regulate all bridges over navigable waters, remove offending bridges, and punish those who shall thereafter erect them. Ibid. It is for Congress to determine when its full power shall be brought into activity, and as to the regulations and sanctions which shall be provided. U. S. v. New Bedford Bridge, 1 Woodbury and Minot, 420, 421; U. S. v. Cornet, 12 Pet., 72; N. Y. v. Milne, 11 Pet., 102, 155; The Wheeling Bridge Cases, 13 How., 518; 18 ibid., 521.

A State has power to change the channels of rivers within the State for purposes of internal improvement. Withers v. Buckley, 20 How., 84; So. Car. v. Ga., 93 U. S., 4. In the absence of legislation by Congress, a State statute authorizing the erection of a dam across a navigable river which is wholly within its limits is not unconstitutional. Wilson v. Blackbird Creek Marsh Co., 2 Pet., 245; Pound v. Turck, 95 U. S., 459.

Acts of Congress merely making appropriations for the improvement of a river lying within a State do not operate as an inhibition against State legislation authorizing the construction of booms, dams, piers, etc., so as to make unlawful such structures when erected under State authority. U. S. v. Bellingham Bay Boom Co., 81 Fed. Rep., 658. To bring obstructions and nuisances in navigable waters lying within a State within the cognizance of the Federal courts, there must be some statute of the United States directly applicable to such streams. Ibid., 58; *Wilson v. 1095. The Tennessee, Coosa, Cahawba, and Black Warrior Rivers, within the State of Alabama, shall be forever free from toll for all property belonging to the United States, and for all persons in their service, and for all citizens of the United States, except as to such tolls as may be allowed by act of Congress.¹

diction, was not retroactive so as to make unlawful the continuance of a boom constructed prior to its passage, under the authority of a State law. U. S. v. Bellingham Bay Boom Co., 81 Fed. Rep., 658; U. S. v. Burns, 54 Fed. Rep., 351, 362.

The authority conferred upon the Secretary of War by the act of June 29, 1888 (25 Stat. L., 209), does not extend to the waters of the Hudson River as far distant as Troy, Albany, and New Baltimore. The term "tributary waters," as used in that act, covers only such parts of the river as, in a broad sense, can be regarded as connected with that harbor. XIX Opin. Att. Gen., 317.

The waters of the East River comprise navigable waters of the United States lying wholly within the limits of a State. XX Opin. Att. Gen., 479.

The Chicago River is navigable and under control of Congress; but until that body acts the State of Illinois has authority, and may vest in the city of Chicago jurisdiction over the construction of a bridge within the city limits. Escanaba Co. v. Chicago, 107 U. S., 678. The State of Michigan authorized the improvement of a river wholly within that State, and the exaction of the tolls for the use of the river so improved. Held, that the statute did not impair the contract contained in the ordinance of 1787, giving the people the right to use the waters leading into the St. Lawrence free of duty, tax, or impost. Sands v. Manistee River Imp. Co., 123 U. S., 288; Ruggles v. The same, ibid., 297.

¹ Tide lands.—In this country waters to be navigable in law must be capable of navigation in fact as a highway for commerce. [Where evidence as to the character of a stream is conflicting, whether it is a navigable stream within the meaning of section 3 of the act of July 13, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 110), is a question of law and fact for the jury. Leovy v. U. S., 92 Fed. Rep., 344.] A bay or arm of one of the Great Lakes, some 4,000 acres in extent, of the average depth of not more than 2 feet and rarely more than 3 feet, covered with grass and rushes in summer, and which was surveyed and patented to the State as swamp land is not navigable water, but merely a marsh, and subject to private ownership. Toledo Liberal Shooting Club v. Erie Shooting Club Co., 90 Fed. Rep., 680; Barney v. Keokuk, 94 U. S., 324; The Daniel Ball, 10 Wallace, 557-563; The Montello, 20 Wallace, 430-441.

The title to tide lands along the shores of a State is vested in such State by virtue of its sovereignty, and tide lands along the shores of any Territory are held in trust by the General Government for the future State; nevertheless, the rule now is that during the Territorial period the United States holds the permanent title to tide lands, and may make grants thereof. Carroll v. Price, 81 Fed. Rep., 137; Shively v. Bowlby, 152 U. S., 1; Mann v. Land Co., 153 U. S., 273.

Marshes and mud shoals on the sides of harbors and streams within the influence of the tides may be granted by the State to private parties when this can be done without interfering with the public rights of navigation in the streams and harbors themselves, and in South Carolina marsh lands of this character have always been treated as subject to grant. But as to public navigable streams themselves, the sovereign holds them in trust for the public use, and can make no valid grant thereof, such as would hinder or impede the rights of the public therein. Chisolm v. Caines, 7 Fed. Rep., 285; Illinois Central R. R. Co., 14 U. S., 45; Shively v. Bowlby, 152 U. S., 548; Lowndes v. Board, 153 ibid., 758; Hardin v. Jordan, 140 ibid., 371; City of Hoboken v. Pennsylvania R. R. Co., 124 ibid., 56.

Wharves come within admiralty jurisdiction. In England wharf property may extend to low-water mark; in this country to the point of navigability. Cliffords Case, 34 Ct. Cls., 223.

² Riparian rights.—The rights of riparian owners of land situated upon navigable rivers are to be measured by the rules and decisions of the courts of the State in which the land is situated, whether it be one of the original States or a State admitted

Carpenter*, 77 Wisconsin, 288, 300; Shively v. Bowlby, 152 U. S., 1.

The royal charters granted by the English Crown to the founders of the Atlantic colonies conveyed to the grantees both the territory described and the powers of government; and, under such charters, the dominion or property in the navigable waters and in the soil under them passed as a part of the prerogative rights annexed to the political powers conferred on the patentees, and in their hands were intended to be a trust for the common use and benefit of the new communities, and not as private property which could be parceled out and sold; and, on the Revolution, such rights became vested in the several States for like purposes, where such as were not surrendered by the Constitution to the Federal Government remain. Morris v. U. S., 174 U. S., 196.

Taking of lands for public use.—When the Government, for the purpose of improv-ing the navigation of a river, takes possession of submerged land which is in the use and possession of a citizen under a right derived from the State, it takes private prop-erty for a public use, and must compensate the owner therefor. Brown v. U. S., 81 Fed. Rep., 55.

Acts done in the proper exercise of governmental powers, and not directly encroach-ing upon private property, although their consequences may impair its use, are not a taking within the meaning of the constitutional provision which forbids the taking of such property for public use without just compensation therefor. Transportation Co. v. Chicago, 99 U. S., 635; XVIII Opin. Att. Gen., 64. The United States may occupy and use soil within the bed of a river for the improvement of the navigation of such river, such occupation and use not giving rise to a question under the law of eminent domain, the soil being held by its owners subject to the higher right of the United States in respect to the navigation of the river. The report above required was furnished to Congress by the Chief of Engineers on May 13, 1898. Document No. 482, H. R., 55th Congress, 2d session.

Section 2 of the act of June 3, 1896 (29 Stat. ²The acts of July 13, 1892 (27 Stat. ¹ The appropriation of money for the improvement of a harbor on a navigable river confers discretionary power upon the Secretary of War as to the means by which such improvement shall be effected. So. Car. v. Ga., 93 U. S., 4. The operations of the Government in this regard have been conducted by the Bureau of Engineering, as part of the War Department, to which Congress has confided the execution of its wishes in all those matters. * * * It can not be necessary to say that, when a public work of this character has been inaugurated or adopted by Congress and its management placed in control of its officers, there exists no right in any other branch of the Government to forbid the work or to require the undoing of what has been done or to prescribe the manner in which it shall be conducted. Wisconsin v. Duluth, 96 U. S., 379. For these purposes Congress possesses all the powers which existed in the States before the adoption of the Constitution, and which have always existed in the Parliament of England. Gilman v. Philadelphia, 3 Wall., 713.

Where an officer or agent, charged under the Secretary of War and the Chief of Engineers with the duty of making purchases out of the appropriations for river and harbor improvements, certifies that the prices paid were the lowest market rates and the mode of expenditure adopted the most economical and advantageous to the Government, and the Chief of Engineers approves his account so far as relates to the necessity and expediency of the expenditures and the prices paid, it is not within the province of the accounting officers to call in question the degree of wisdom or skill which may have accompanied the exercise of administrative discretion. 3 Compt., Dec. 22. It is the duty of the proper officers of the War Department to determine when such an emergency exists requiring immediate delivery of property necessary for river and harbor improvements as will authorize its purchase in open market without advertisement. Discretionary power in this respect is vested by law in the War Department, and the exercise of such discretion is not properly reviewable by the accounting officers. 3 Dig. 2nd Compt., Dec., par. 1116.

Appropriations for continuing the improvement of rivers and harbors, not being limited to a particular fiscal year and being made, by section 5 of the act of June 20, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 110), available until otherwise ordered by Congress, may be used for the payment of expenses properly incurred at any time after the work for which they are made was authorized. II Compt. Dec., 496.

An appropriation made for the improvement of a river by dredging can not be used to build a training wall as part of the improvement. III Compt. Dec., 32; see also II Compt. Dec., 256.

Contractors making rock excavations on Government property for river improvements are to be considered, so far as regards their duty to avoid injuring third persons, as owners of the premises, and are not required to use extraordinary care, such as covering their blasts, but only ordinary care. Passengers on river steamboats, which are permitted to land near the place where such blasting is carried on with the express understanding that the boat owner must assume all responsibility, are to be regarded as there by mere permission or sufferance and at their own peril, if ordinary care is used. *Smith v. is going on there, assumes the risks incident to the prosecution of the work with ordinary care, though he is there by the sufferance or permission of the contractors. Smith v. Day et al., 86 Fed. Rep., 62.

The surgical and hospital expenses of a civil employee injured in the course of his service upon a Government work are not a proper charge against the Government in the absence of express statutory provision therefor. 1 Compt. Dec., 2; ibid., 181; ibid., 271.

The continuous-contract system.—By the act of June 3, 1896 (29 Stat. L., 207), the construction of works of river and harbor improvement by the continuous-contract system was authorized by Congress. The practice has been followed in subsequent acts of appropriation. The application of this system to a particular work involves the establishment of a limit of cost in the act authorizing it to be undertaken, and the authorization of the execution of contracts for the whole or a part of the work of construction, subject to the restriction that the amount expended in any fiscal year shall not exceed the sum specifically appropriated by Congress, such sum being in general a certain per cent of the entire estimated cost of construction.

In a suit brought in a United States court to condemn land for use in connection with the work of improving a river, the expenses of taking the jury to view the land are payable from the appropriation of the Department of Justice made for the expenses of the United States courts, and not from the War Department appropriation for the improvement in connection with which the land is needed. ¹ Held (April, 1887), that under the acts appropriating money for the improvement of the Columbia River, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War, the Secretary, while authorized to make regulations for the prosecution and protection of the works of improvement, was not empowered to require, by such regulations, the removal of fish-traps and pound nets as obstructions to navigation; that it was not within the province of the Secretary of War to determine what is or what may become an obstruction to navigation, and cause to be removed the one or prohibited the other by a mere order or regulation, in the absence of authority given by specific legislation of Congress. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1781.

A fish weir, so constructed as in a measure to obstruct the navigation of navigable waters, can not legally be placed in such waters without the authority of the Secretary of War, who, by section 7, act of September 19, 1890, is empowered to grant permission for the purpose. Officers of the Corps of Engineers, or those on engineer duty, traveling on service connected with fortifications or works of public improvement, will be paid their travel allowances from the special appropriations for the work. When traveling on any other duty, the mileage will be paid by that branch of the service intrusted with such payments for the Army. Par. 1693, A. R., 1901.

The provision in the act of March 15, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 321), that "the maximum sum to be allowed and paid to any officer of the Army shall be seven cents per mile," applies to all officers of the Army, including officers of the Corps of Engineers. 4 *Compt. The movements of an army officer assigned to duty requiring him to move from place to place within the area of the district where his duties lie, for which he is furnished Government transportation, do not constitute "travel" within the meaning of the law allowing mileage for travel under orders. Ibid., 86.

The expense for transportation to a point not located on a railroad, incurred by an officer of the Inspector-General's Department in inspecting unserviceable river and harbor material, is properly payable from the appropriation for the river and harbor work. 3 Compt. Dec., 3.

¹The indefinite appropriation made by section 4 of the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 147), is not applicable to river and harbor improvements generally, but only to a particular class of public works, such as canals, locks, etc., in the use of which both operating expenses and expenses for repairs are necessarily incurred. XVIII Opin. Att. Gen., 188.

The effect of this statute is to repeal so much of sections 5245, 5247, 5249, and 5255, Revised Statutes, as authorizes the imposition of tolls or other charges for the use of canals or other works of river and harbor improvement erected at the expense of the United States. Section 5255 vested the management of the Louisville and Portland Canal in the Secretary of the Treasury at reduced rates of toll. The tolls were still further reduced by the act of May 11, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 43), and the control of the canal transferred to the Secretary of War, who, by the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 148), was given authority to make, post, and enforce regulations for the use of the canal, and this legislation was repeated in the act of September 30, 1888 (25 Stat. L., 497). The acts of May 18, 1880 (21 Stat. L., 141), and August 2, 1882 (22 Stat. L., 209), contained a provision that no tolls or operating charges should be levied upon or collected from vessels, dredges, or other water craft passing through any canal or other improvement of navigation belonging to the United States.

²Section 7 of the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 148), authorized the Secretary of War to prescribe rules and regulations for the use and administration of the Des Moines Rapids Canal, the Saint Marys Falls Canal, and the Louisville and Portland Canal. Section 14 of the act of September 19, 1890 (27 Stat. L., 455), provides that the dry dock constructed at the Des Moines Rapids Canal shall constitute an integral part of the said canal, and makes the provisions of section 7, above cited, applicable to the same. ¹ In view of the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of the United States v. Eaton (144 U. S., 677), it may be doubted whether regulations prepared in conformity to this statute can have the penal character which it undertakes to confer. It was held in that case that "regulations prescribed by the President and by heads of Departments, under authority of Congress, may be regulations prescribed by law so as to lawfully support acts done under them and in accordance with them; but it does not follow that a thing required by them is a thing so required by law as to make a neglect to do the thing a criminal offense in a citizen, where a statute does not distinctly make the neglect in question a criminal offense." U. S. v. Eaton, 144 U. S., 88; Caha v. U. S., 152 U. S., 212, 220. It is a principle of the criminal law that an offense which may be the subject of criminal procedure is an act "committed or omitted in violation of a public law, either forbidding or commanding it." U. S. v. Eaton, 144 U. S., 87; IV American and English Cyclopaedia of Law, 642; IV Blackstone Com., 5. In Morrill v. Jones (106 U. S., 466), it was held that the Secretary of the Treasury could not alter or amend a statute by executive regulation; "much more does this principle apply to a case where it is sought substantially to prescribe a criminal offense by the regulation of a Department." That Congress can not delegate legislative power to the President is a principle universally recognized as vital to the integrity and maintenance of the system of government. Field v. Clark, 143 U. S., 649. The enforcement of the law may be made to depend upon a condition to be ascertained by an executive officer, but such an exception to the uniform operation of the laws is not a grant of legislative power. Dunlap v. U. S., 33 C. Cls. R., 135. For an opinion to the contrary of that above expressed, however, see U. S. v. Ormsbee, 74 Fed. Rep., 207.

¹ For enforcement clause see section 17, act of March 3, 1899, paragraph 1132, post. The power of Congress to legislate for the prevention and removal of physical obstructions to navigation in public rivers in general, (a) having been allowed to lie dormant for nearly a century, began to be exercised in section 8 of the act of July 5, 1884, followed by the more explicit legislation on the subject of sections 9 and 10 of the act of August 11, 1888; such power having been previously left to be exercised by the States. (b) But these acts, in providing for the removal of obstructions to navigation caused by bridges, by requiring their alteration, etc., do not empower the Secretary of War to resort to military force to effect the purpose. They leave the execution of their provisions to the law officers and the courts. They make it the duty of the Secretary of War, whenever the owners or responsible parties, after having been notified to do so, neglect to so alter a bridge as to abate the obstruction, to apprise the Attorney-General, who is thereupon required to initiate the proceedings specified in the statute. (c) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 613.

The power thus assumed by Congress is more fully exercised in sections 4, 5, and 7 of the act of September 19, 1890.

A distinctive feature of this act is that it in effect precludes States from authorizing the construction of bridges over navigable waters which are not wholly within their territorial limits, and provides that it shall not be lawful to commence the construction of a bridge over navigable water of the United States under any act of a State legislature "until the location and plan of such bridge" has "been submitted to and approved by the Chief of Engineers and by the Secretary of War." Held, under this provision, that the authority of a State for the erection of a bridge over navigable water within the State must be shown as a condition precedent to the approval by the Secretary of War. Ibid.

Section 7 of the act of September 19, 1890 (reenacted in section 3, act of July 13, 1892), clearly shows that Congress did not intend to vest the Secretary of War with discretion to approve the plans of any bridge proposed to be constructed by State authority, except where such bridge was to be over navigable water lying wholly within the State. And held that the fact that the title to the soil under the water was vested in a municipality of the State did not affect the power of the State to grant the necessary authority. The title is distinct from the right of conservation. Though the title be vested in a town, there exists in the State, by reason of its sovereignty, "a jus publicum of passage and repassage, with consequent power of conservation," under (d) which it may concede the authority required by the statute. Ibid, p. 199, par. 3.

Section 7 of the act of 1890, in leaving the matter of the authorization and construction of bridges over navigable waters wholly within States entirely to the jurisdiction of the State, except in so far as to require the approval by the Chief of Engineers and by the Secretary of War of the location and plan of the bridge, indicates that Congress did not desire to exercise any further control over the subject. So, upon an application for the approval by the Secretary of War of the plans of a bridge over the Harlem River which is wholly within the State of New York, held that the fact of the unusual importance of this stream, and of its immediate connections with great interstate waterways and the sea, did not except it from the jurisdiction of the State under the statute or make necessary any special or additional legislation by Congress for the authorization or control of its system of bridges. Ibid, par. 616.

^b See Willamette Iron Bridge Co. v. Hatch, 125 U. S., 1.

^c See U. S. v. Rider, 50 Fed., 406, where it was held (by Sage, U. S. Dist. J.) that the act of 1888, s. 9 and 10, was unconstitutional in delegating to the Secretary of War "powers exclusively vested in Congress." It is to be regretted that this, being a criminal case, could not have been appealed to the Supreme Court.

any of the navigable waterways of the United States is an unreasonable obstruction to the free navigation of such waters on account of insufficient height, width of span, or otherwise, or where there is difficulty in passing the draw opening or the draw span of such bridge by rafts, steamboats, or other water craft, it shall be the duty of the said Secretary, first giving the parties reasonable opportunity to be heard, to give notice to the persons or corporations owning or controlling such bridge so to alter the same as to render navigation through or under it reasonably free, easy, and unobstructed; and in giving such notice he shall specify the changes recommended by the Chief of Engineers that are required to be made, and shall prescribe in each case a reasonable time in which to make them. If at the end of such time the alteration has not been made, the Secretary of War shall forthwith notify the United States district attorney for the district in which such bridge is situated, to the end that the criminal proceedings hereinafter mentioned may be taken. If the persons, corporation, or association owning or controlling any railroad or other bridge shall, after receiving notice to that effect, as hereinbefore required, from the Secretary of War, and within the time prescribed by him, willfully fail or refuse to remove the same or to comply with the lawful order of the Secretary of War in the premises, such persons, corporation, or association shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, and every month such persons, corporation, or association shall remain in default in respect to the removal or alteration of such bridge shall be deemed a new offense, and subject the persons, corporation, or association so offending to the penalties above prescribed: Provided, That in any case arising under the provisions of this section an appeal or writ of error may be taken from the district courts or from the existing circuit courts direct to the Supreme Court either by the United States or by the defendants.¹

Rep., 592), decided by the United States district court for the northern district of Illinois in 1897, it was held that section 4 of the act of September 19, 1890, was not unconstitutional; see also *Rider v. The power of Congress to regulate bridges over navigable waters is paramount, and where it comes into conflict with that of a State, the latter necessarily becomes ineffective. By the act of February 19, 1869 (15 Stat. L., 272), the construction of a drawbridge over the Connecticut River at Middletown, Conn., was authorized by Congress. The State statute authorizing the construction of the bridge, of which the act above referred to was in the nature of a confirmation and approval by Congress, required draws "not less than 130 feet in width in the clear," and the bridge was to be located and constructed in such manner and according to such plans as should be approved by a board of engineers to be appointed by the superior court. The bridge was built accordingly under the supervision and with the approval of a board of engineers of which two of the members were Generals McClellan and Gillmore. The draw space was 130 feet wide in the clear between the abutments down to the level of low water; below that, the riprap, sloping outward from the piers, diminished the clear space toward the bottom of the river. Held, that the contemporaneous construction of the act as requiring the full width down to the level of low water only, the projection of the riprap foundation below being approved by the board of engineers and confirmed by the court, was neither unreasonable nor so plainly contrary to the requirements of the act or the public needs as to render the bridge, approved as above, an unlawful structure. *Gildersleeve et al. v. assuming control of the river, may require the construction of a draw in the bridge upon the happening of such a contingency, without providing for compensation to the bridge owners. U. S. v. City of Moline, 82 Fed. Rep., 592. As every bridge constructed over the navigable waters of the United States constitutes an obstruction to the free navigation thereof, and as the Congress is, by the Constitution, made the exclusive judge of the extent and amount of the obstruction that shall be authorized in any case, that body reserves to itself the right to authorize the construction of bridges over such waters. The nearest approach to general legislation on this subject will be found in the act of February 14, 1883 (22 Stat. L., 414), authorizing the construction of bridges across the Ohio River.

¹The fact that States on either side of a navigable river have in force statutes prohibiting the doing of certain kinds of work on Sunday does not relieve the owner of a bridge spanning the river from the duty of opening the draw on Sunday to admit the passage of vessels engaged in commerce on the river. *Boland v. Wharves are a peculiar kind of property, which, though standing on terra firma, are so far marine in their uses and purposes as to come within admiralty jurisdiction. In England it is generally held that they extend to the low-water mark. In this country, with the extending of admiralty jurisdiction to our inland seas and navigable rivers, it has been held that they may extend to the point of navigability. The owner has not an unlimited property in them. If the wharf be not reserved for his actual use, or of some one acquiring the right under him, it is open to the public, and any vessel may make fast to and use it. 1126. It shall not be lawful to tie up or anchor vessels or other craft in navigable channels in such a manner as to prevent or obstruct the passage of other vessels or craft; or to voluntarily or carelessly sink, or permit or cause to be sunk, vessels or other craft in navigable channels; or to float loose timber and logs, or to float what is known as sack rafts of timber and logs in streams or channels actually navigated by steamboats in such manner as to obstruct, impede, or endanger navigation. And whenever a vessel, raft, or other craft is wrecked and sunk in a navigable channel, accidentally or otherwise, it shall be the duty of the owner of such sunken craft to immediately mark it with a buoy or beacon during the day and a lighted lantern at night, and to maintain such marks until the sunken craft is removed or abandoned, and the neglect or failure of the said owner so to do shall be unlawful; and it shall be the duty of the owner of such sunken craft to commence the immediate removal of the same, and prosecute such removal diligently, and failure to do so shall be considered as an abandonment of such craft, and subject the same to removal by the United States as hereinafter provided for.² Sec. 15, ibid.

¹ This section replaces section 3 of the act of August 14, 1876 (19 ibid., 132, 139), and section 9 of the act of September 19, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 426). Section 9 of the act of March 3, 1899, contained a provision directing the Secretary of War "to cause to be prepared and reported to Congress a list of all piers, wharves, and other structures or property pertaining to river and harbor works belonging to the Government of the United States now occupied by private corporations or persons, together with the terms upon which such piers, wharves, or other property are occupied, and the date of the agreement or permission to occupy the same, and shall make such recommendations as he may deem desirable in connection therewith."

² The construction, without the authority of the Secretary of War, of weirs in a harbor, which is navigable water of the United States, outside of established harbor lines (or where there are no harbor lines established), is, under section 7, act of September 19, 1890, unlawful when the same will be detrimental to navigation. And whether or not the persons who constructed such weirs had any license from the town is immaterial. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1783.

And any and every master, pilot, and engineer, or person or persons acting in such capacity, respectively, on board of any boat or vessel who shall knowingly engage in towing any scow, boat, or vessel loaded with any material specified in section thirteen of this act to any point or place of deposit or discharge in any harbor or navigable water, elsewhere than within the limits defined and permitted by the Secretary of War, or who shall willfully injure or destroy any work of the United States contemplated in section fourteen of this act, or who shall willfully obstruct the channel of any waterway in the manner contemplated in section fifteen of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a violation of this act, and shall upon conviction be punished as hereinbefore provided in this section, and shall also have his license revoked or suspended for a term to be fixed by the judge before whom tried and convicted. And any boat, vessel, scow, raft, or other craft used or employed in violating any of the provisions of sections thirteen, fourteen, and fifteen of this act shall be liable for the pecuniary penalties specified in this section, and in addition thereto for the amount of the damages done by said boat, vessel, scow, raft, or other craft, which latter sum shall be placed to the credit of the appropriation for the improvement of the harbor or waterway in which the damage occurred, and said boat, vessel, scow, raft, or other craft may be proceeded against summarily by way of libel in any district court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof.¹

timber, logs, etc.
May 9, 1900, v.
81, p. 172.

1128. The prohibition contained in section fifteen² of the river and harbor act approved March third, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, against floating loose timber and logs, or sack rafts, so called, of timber and logs in streams or channels actually navigated by steamboats, shall not apply to any navigable river or waterway of the United States or any part thereof whereon the floating of loose timber and logs and sack rafts of timber and logs is the principal method of navigation. But such method of navigation on such river or waterway or part thereof shall be subject to the rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary of War as hereinafter provided. Act of May 9, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 172).

1129. The Secretary of War shall have power, and he is hereby authorized and directed, within the shortest practicable time after the passage hereof, to prescribe rules and regulations, which he may at any time modify, to govern and regulate the floating of loose timber and logs, and sack rafts (so called) of timber and logs and other methods of navigation on the streams and waterways, or any thereof, of the character, as to navigation, in section one hereof described. The said rules and regulations shall be so framed as to equitably adjust conflicting interests between the different methods or forms of navigation; and the said rules and regulations shall be published at least once in such newspaper or newspapers of general circulation as in the opinion of the Secretary of War shall be best adapted to give notice of said rules and regulations to persons affected thereby and locally interested therein. And all modifications of said rules and regulations shall be similarly published. And such rules and regulations, when so prescribed and published as to any such stream or waterway, shall have the force of law, and any violation thereof shall be a misdemeanor, and every person convicted of such violation shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding two thousand five hundred dollars nor less than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment (in case of a natural person) for not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court: Provided, That the proper action to enforce the provisions of this section may be commenced before any commissioner, judge, or court of the United States, and such commissioner, judge, or court shall proceed in respect thereto as authorized by law in the case of crimes or misdemeanors committed against the United States. Sec. 2, ibid.

1132a. Whenever the navigation of any river, lake, harbor, sound, bay, canal, or other navigable waters of the United States shall be obstructed or endangered by any sunken vessel, boat, water craft, raft, or other similar obstruction, and such obstruction has existed for a longer period than thirty days, or whenever the abandonment of such obstruction can be legally established in a less space of time, the sunken vessel, boat, water craft, raft, or other obstruction shall be subject to be broken up, removed, sold, or otherwise disposed of by the Secretary of War at his discretion, without liability for any damage to the owners of the same: Provided, That in his discretion, the Secretary of War may cause reasonable notice of such obstruction of not less than thirty days, unless the legal abandonment of the obstruction can be established in a less time, to be given by publication, addressed "To whom it may concern," in a newspaper published nearest to the locality of the obstruction, requiring the removal thereof: And provided also, That the Secretary of War may, in his discretion, at or after the time of giving such notice, cause sealed proposals to be solicited by public advertisement, giving reasonable notice of not less than ten days, for the removal of such obstruction as soon as possible after the expiration of the above specified thirty days' notice, in case it has not in the meantime been so removed, these proposals and contracts, at his discretion, to be conditioned that such vessel, boat, water craft, raft, or other obstruction, and all cargo and property contained therein, shall become the property of the contractor, and the contract shall be awarded to the bidder making the proposition most advantageous to the United States: Provided, That such bidder shall give satisfactory security to execute the work: Provided further, That any money received from the sale of any such wreck, or from any contractor for the removal of wrecks, under this paragraph shall be covered into the Treasury of the United States.¹ Sec. 19, act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 1154).

1133. Under emergency, in the case of any vessel, boat, water craft, or raft, or other similar obstruction, sinking or grounding, or being unnecessarily delayed in any Government canal or lock, or in any navigable waters mentioned in section nineteen, in such manner as to stop, seriously interfere with, or specially endanger navigation, in the opinion of the Secretary of War, or any agent of the United States to whom the Secretary may delegate proper authority, the Secretary of War or any such agent shall have the right to take immediate possession of such

Sec. 3, Aug. 5, 1886, v. 24, p. 329; sec. 1, June 29, 1888, v. 25, p. 209.

1134. The placing, discharging, or depositing, by any process or in any manner, of refuse, dirt, ashes, cinders, mud, sand, dredgings, sludge, acid, or any other matter of any kind, other than that flowing from streets, sewers, and passing therefrom in a liquid state, in the tidal waters of the harbor of New York, or its adjacent or tributary waters, or in those of Long Island Sound, within the limits which shall be prescribed by the supervisor of the harbor, is hereby strictly forbidden, and every such act is made a misdemeanor, and every person engaged in or who shall aid, abet, authorize, or instigate a violation of this section, shall, upon conviction, be punishable by a fine or imprisonment, or both, such fine to be not less than two hundred and fifty dollars nor more than two thousand five hundred dollars, and the imprisonment to be not less than thirty days nor more than one year, either or both united, as the judge before whom conviction is obtained shall decide, one half of said fine to be paid to the person or persons giving information which shall lead to conviction of this misdemeanor.¹ Sec. 1, act of June 29, 1888 (25 Stat. L., 209).

1135. Any and every master and engineer, or person or persons acting in such capacity, respectively, on board of any boat or vessel, who shall knowingly engage in towing any scow, boat, or vessel loaded with any such prohibited matter to any point or place of deposit, or discharge in the waters of the harbor of New York, or in its adjacent or tributary waters, or in those of Long Island Sound, or to any point or place elsewhere than within the limits defined and permitted by the supervisor of the harbor hereinafter mentioned, shall be deemed guilty of a violation of this act, and shall, upon conviction, be punishable as hereinbefore provided for offenses in violation of section one of this act, and shall also have his license revoked or suspended for a term to be fixed by the judge before whom tried and convicted.² *Sec. 2, act of June 29, 1888 (25 Stat. sec. 3, Aug. 17,

¹The Erie and Atlantic basins, in New York Harbor, are private property, but they are also navigable waters of the United States, and the owners of the soil under the water hold the title subject to the rights of the public to navigate such waters, and are therefore not empowered to fill in the basins and deprive the public of their use. Moreover they are waters over which the United States has expressly assumed jurisdiction, in prohibiting, by the act of June 29, 1888, the dumping of deposits "in the tidal waters of the harbor of New York, or its adjacent or tributary waters, within the limits which shall be prescribed by the supervisor of the harbor." Held, that the subsequent establishment, under section 12, of the act of August 11, 1888, of harbor lines in that harbor outside these basins did not oust this jurisdiction, but that the act of June 29, 1888, was still in force. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1786.

Held, that the prohibition, by section 6, act of September 19, 1890, of the dumping of ballast, could not legally be enforced in New York Harbor beyond the three-mile limit. Ibid., par. 1787. See also XX Opin. Att. Gen., 293.

²The act of June 29, 1888, 25 Stat. L., 209, as amended by the act of August 18, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 360), prohibiting the deposit of refuse in New York Harbor without a permit from the supervisor of the harbor, is a valid exercise of the police powers of Congress over navigation and commerce. *U. ing to take or tow the same to the place of deposit, shall apply for and obtain from the supervisor of the harbor appointed hereunder a permit defining the precise limits within which the discharge of such scows or boats may be made; and it shall not be lawful for the owner or master, or person acting in such capacity, of any tug or towboat, to tow or move any scow or boat so loaded with such forbidden matter until such permit shall have been obtained; and every person violating the foregoing provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand nor less than five hundred dollars, and in addition thereto the master of any tug or towboat so offending shall have his license revoked or suspended for a term to be fixed by the judge before whom tried and convicted. Sec. 3, act of August 17, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 360).

1137. And any deviation from such dumping or discharging place specified in such permit shall be a misdemeanor, and the owner and master, or person acting in the capacity of master, of any scows or boats dumping or discharging such forbidden matter in any place other than that specified in such permit shall be liable to punishment therefor, as provided in section one of the said act of June twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight; and the owner and master, or person acting in the capacity of master, of any tug or towboat towing such scows or boats shall be liable to equal punishment with the owner and master, or person acting in the capacity of master, of the scows or boats; and, further, every scowman or other employee on board of both scows and towboats shall be deemed to have knowledge of the place of dumping specified in such permit, and the owners and masters, or persons acting in the capacity of masters, shall be liable to punishment, as aforesaid, for any unlawful dumping, within the meaning of this act or of the said act of June twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, which may be caused by the negligence or ignorance of such scowman or other employee; and, further, neither defect in machinery nor avoidable accidents to scows or towboats, nor unfavorable weather, nor improper handling or moving of scows or boats of any kind whatsoever, shall operate to release the owners and masters and employees of scows and towboats from the penalties hereinbefore mentioned. Ibid.

Boats to carry

Ibid.

1138. Every scow or boat engaged in the transportation of dredgings, earth, sand, mud, cellar dirt, garbage, or other offensive material of any description shall have its name or number and owner's name painted in letters and numbers at least fourteen inches long on both sides of the scow or boat; these names and numbers shall be kept distinctly legible at all times, and no scow or boat not so marked shall be used to transport or dump any such material. Ibid.

1139. The supervisor of the harbor of New York, designated as provided in section five of the said act of June twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, is authorized and directed to appoint inspectors and deputy inspectors, and, for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this act and of the act aforesaid, and of detecting and bringing to punishment offenders against the same, the said supervisor of the harbor, and the inspectors and deputy inspectors so appointed by him, shall have power and authority:

Inspectors.

Ibid.

First. To arrest and take into custody, with or without process, any person or persons who may commit any of the acts or offenses prohibited by this section and by the act of June twenty-ninth, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, aforesaid, or who may violate any of the provisions of the same: Provided, That no person shall be arrested without process for any offense not committed in the presence of the supervisor or his inspectors or deputy inspectors, or either of them: And provided further, That whenever any such arrest is made the person or persons so arrested shall be brought forthwith before a commissioner, judge, or court of the United States for examination of the offenses alleged against him; and such commissioner, judge, or court shall proceed in respect thereto as authorized by law in case of crimes against the United States.

Every person, firm, or corporation being the owner of any slip, basin, or shoal, from which such mud, dirt, sand, dredgings, and material shall be taken, dredged, or excavated, and every person, firm, or corporation in any manner engaged in the work of dredging or excavating any such slip, basin, or shoal, or of removing such mud, dirt, sand, or dredgings therefrom, shall severally be responsible for the deposit and discharge of all such mud, dirt, sand, or dredgings at such place or within such limits so defined and prescribed by said supervisor of the harbor; and for every violation of the provisions of this section the person offending shall be guilty of an offense against this act, and shall be punished by a fine equal to the sum of five dollars for every cubic yard of mud, dirt, sand, dredgings, or material not deposited or discharged as required by this section. Any boat or vessel used or employed in violating any provision of this act shall be liable to the pecuniary penalties imposed thereby, and may be proceeded against summarily by way of libel in any district court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof.¹ Sec. 4, act of June 29, 1888, (25 Stat. L., 210).

1143. A line officer of the Navy shall be designated by the President of the United States as supervisor of the harbor, to act under the direction of the Secretary of War in enforcing the provisions of this act, and in detecting offenders against the same. This officer shall receive the sea pay of his grade, and shall have personal charge and supervision under the Secretary of War, and shall direct the patrol boats and other means to detect and bring to punishment offenders against the provisions of this act. Sec. 5, ibid.

HISTORICAL NOTE.—Legislative provision for the services of engineer officers with the Revolutionary armies was made at a relatively early stage in the progress of the war by a resolution of Congress of June 16, 1775, which authorized the employment of engineer officers at the headquarters of the Army and in the several departments. Col. R. Gridley was appointed Chief Engineer by General Washington, and his services were recognized and continued in that capacity by a resolution of Congress dated January 16, 1776. The difficulty of obtaining trained engineers in the Continental establishment made it necessary to secure such services abroad, and the action of the American commissioners in Paris, in employing several members of the French corps of engineers, was approved by Congress in a resolution dated July 8, 1777. A corps of engineers was subsequently established by the resolution of March 11, 1779, and M. Duportail, an officer of the Royal Engineers of France, was placed at its head, with the rank of brigadier-general. This corps continued in service until the close of the war, not having been disbanded until November, 1783.

A Corps of Artillerists and Engineers was established by the act of May 9, 1784 (1 Stat. L., 366). This organization was required to be "completed" by the act of March 3, 1795 (ibid., 430), and an additional regiment of artillerists and engineers was added to the establishment by the act of April 27, 1798 (ibid., 552). The seventeenth and eighteenth sections of the act of March 3, 1799 (ibid., 755), passed in contemplation of war with France, authorized the appointment of two engineers "distinct from the corps of artillerists and engineers," with the rank and pay of lieutenant-colonels, and conferred power upon the President, in his discretion, to appoint an inspector of fortifications, who was to have the rank of major and was to be selected from the artillerists and engineers, or from civil life. If he was appointed from the existing corps he was to retain his office and was to rise "therein in the same manner as if he had never been appointed to the said office of inspector."

The functions of the artillerists and engineers were dissociated by the act of March 6, 1802 (2 ibid., 132), which created a regiment of artillery and authorized the President to organize and establish a Corps of Engineers to consist of one major, two captains, two first lieutenants, two second lieutenants, and ten cadets; provision was made in the same enactment for the gradual expansion of the corps by a clause conferring authority upon the President to make promotions "without regard to rank" until the corps should consist of one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, two majors, four captains, four first lieutenants, and four second lieutenants. By the act of April 29, 1812 (2 ibid., 720), two captains, two first lieutenants, two second lieutenants, "to be taken from the subaltern officer of engineers," and one paymaster and a company of bombardiers, sappers, and miners were added to the existing establishment. The composition of this corps was not changed by the acts of March 3, 1815 (3 ibid., 224), and April 4, 1818 (ibid., 426), for the reduction and reorganization of the staff, nor was its organization modified at the general reduction of March 2, 1821 (ibid., 615).

By section 2 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 Stat. L., 256), a Corps of Topographical Engineers was established, and the President was authorized to increase the Corps of Engineers by the addition of one lieutenant-colonel, two majors, six captains, six first lieutenants, and six second lieutenants, and the pay of engineer officers was fixed at the rates established by law for officers of dragoons. By section 3 of the act of July 5, 1838, the paymaster authorized by the act of April 12, 1808, was transferred to the Pay Department. A second company of engineer soldiers was added to the corps by section 4 of the act of May 15 1846 (9 ibid., 12). By the act of March 3, 1851 (ibid., 62), the President was authorized to employ officers of engineers on light-house duty, and by section 8 of the act of August 31, 1852 (10 ibid., 119), officers of the corps were required to be attached to the Light-House Board as member and engineer secretary, respectively. By section 9 of the act of March 3, 1853 (ibid., 119), lieutenants of engineers, after fourteen years' continuous service, were to be entitled to the pay and allowances of captains. By section 3 of the act of August 5, 1861 (12 ibid., 287), three first lieutenants and three second lieutenants were added, and the organization of three additional companies of engineer soldiers was authorized by the act of August 6, 1861 (ibid., 317); two lieutenant-colonels and four majors were added to the strength of the corps, "by regular promotion." The Corps of Topographical Engineers was discontinued by the act of March 3, 1863 (ibid., 743), and its officers were merged in the Corps of Engineers. Examinations were also required, in all grades below that of field officer, as a condition precedent to promotion. The composition of the corps was fixed, by the same enactment, at one brigadier-general, four colonels, ten lieutenant-colonels, twenty majors, thirty captains, thirty first lieutenants, and ten second lieutenants. By section 19 of the act of July 28, 1866 (4 ibid., 333), the strength of the corps was fixed at one brigadier-general, six colonels, twelve lieutenant-colonels, twenty-four majors, thirty captains, twenty-six first lieutenants, and ten second lieutenants. By section 6, of the act of March 3, 1869 (15 ibid., 318), appointments and promotions in the several departments of the staff were suspended until otherwise directed by Congress. This requirement was removed, however, as to all officers below the grade of brigadier-general by the act of June 10, 1872 (17 ibid., 382), and repealed as to the Chief of Engineers by the act of June 30, 1879 (21 ibid., 45). By the act of July 5, 1898 (30 ibid., 652), the strength of the Corps of Engineers was fixed at one brigadier-general, seven colonels, fourteen lieutenant colonels, twenty-eight majors, thirty-five captains, thirty first lieutenants, and twelve second lieutenants.

By section 22 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 754), the permanent strength of the department was fixed at one Chief of Engineers with the rank of brigadier-general, seven colonels, fourteen lieutenant-colonels, twenty-eight majors, forty captains, forty first lieutenants, and thirty second lieutenants. The enlisted force was also increased by the addition of two battalions of engineer troops. It was also provided that the troops of the three engineer battalions and the officers of Engineers assigned to duty therewith should constitute a part of the line of the Army.

THE CORPS OF TOPOGRAPHICAL ENGINEERS.

The act of March 3, 1813 (2 Stat. L., 819), authorized the appointment of eight topographical engineers with the rank of major of cavalry and eight assistants with the rank of captain of infantry; but this force was reduced to two majors by the act of March 3, 1815 (ibid., 224). By the act of April 24, 1816 (ibid., 297), three majors and two assistants with the rank of captain were authorized for each division of the Army. On July 2, 1818, these officers were merged, by general orders, in the Corps of Engineers. In August, 1818, a topographical bureau was established in the War Department, the duties of the bureau being performed by officers detailed from the line. By the act of April 30, 1824 (4 ibid., 22), civil assistants were authorized to be employed, and on June 21, 1831, the Topographical Bureau was formally constituted, in general orders, as a separate office of the War Department.

The Corps of Topographical Engineers eo nomine was established by section 4 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 Stat. L., 256), to consist of one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, four majors, ten captains, ten first lieutenants, and ten second lieutenants, who were to be appointed by selection from the Corps of Engineers, from the line of the Army, and from the civil engineers authorized by the act of April 30, 1824. The corps as thus constituted was increased by section 2 of the act of August 5, 1861 (12 ibid., 287), by the addition of three first lieutenants and three second lieutenants, and, by the act of August 6, 1861 (ibid., 317), by the addition of two lieutenant-colonels, four majors, and one company of engineer soldiers. The corps was discontinued by the act of March 3, 1863 (9 Stat. L., 743), its officers being merged in the Corps of Engineers.

1157. The principal assistant in the Ordnance Bureau shall receive a compensation, including pay and emoluments, not exceeding that of a major of ordnance.

1158. The ordnance storekeeper at Springfield armory shall have the rank of major of cavalry, and the ordnance

Examinations for promotions in this department are now regulated by the acts of June 23, 1874 (18 Stat. L., 245), October 1, 1890 (26 ibid., 562), and July 27, 1892 (27 ibid., 276).

Vacancies in the lowest grade in the Ordnance Department are filled by the appointment of officers from the line of the Army who have passed a satisfactory examination of the kind prescribed in this section. The conditions of appointment and examination are set forth in paragraphs 1489 and 1490 of the Army Regulations of 1895.

1169. Hereafter, except in cases of emergency or where it is impracticable to secure competition, the purchase of all supplies for the use of the various departments and posts of the Army and of the branches of the army service shall only be made after advertisement, and shall be purchased where the same can be purchased the cheapest, quality and cost of transportation and the interests of the Government considered; but every open-market emergency purchase made in the manner common among business men which exceeds in amount two hundred dollars shall be reported for approval to the Secretary of War under such regulations as he may prescribe.¹ Act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 905). General purchases. Mar. 3, 1901, v. 31, p. 905.

1170. No contract for the expenditure of any portion of the money herein provided, or that may be hereafter provided for the purchase of steel shall be made until the same shall have been submitted to public competition by the Department by advertisement. *Act of February 24, 1891*² (26 Stat. L., 769). Purchases of steel. Feb. 24, 1891, v. 26, p. 769.

1171. When, in the opinion of the Secretary of War, it is necessary to purchase material abroad for the manufacture of sacks for artillery cartridges, it shall be admitted free of duty. Act of March 15, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 326). Material for cartridge bags. Mar. 15, 1898, v. 30, p. 326.

$60,000 by the acts of June 30, 1886, February 9, 1887, September 22, 1888, March 2, 1889, June 13, 1890, February 24, 1891, July 16, 1892, February 27, 1893, August 6, 1894, February 12, 1895, March 16, 1896, March 2, 1897, and March 15, 1898. This restriction is suspended, during the existing war with Spain, by the act of June 7, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 434), and subsequent enactments of similar character.

The act of June 7, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 434), contained the requirement that "during the existing war the Bureau of Ordnance of the War Department is authorized to purchase without advertisement such ordnance and ordnance stores as are needed for immediate use, and when such ordnance and ordnance stores are to be manufactured then to make contracts without advertisement for such stores to be delivered as rapidly as manufactured." By section 3 of the act of February 24, 1900 (31 Stat. L. 33), this authority was extended to June 30, 1901.

²The act of May 7, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 401), contains the requirement "that no contract for oil-tempered and annealed steel for high-power coast-defense guns and mortars shall be made at a price exceeding twenty-three cents per pound." The same statute confers authority upon the Secretary of War, at his discretion, to expend a portion of the money appropriated for oil-tempered and annealed steel for the purchase of material for steel-wire seacoast guns. The acts of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 1251), and May 25, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 184), contain similar requirements; those of March 3, 1899, and May 25, 1900, restricted the price to be paid for steel to twenty-two cents per pound.

It is required, in general and comprehensive terms by section 1167, Revised Statutes, that all officers, persons, etc., who may be entrusted with any ordnance stores or supplies shall make certain regular returns to the Chief of Ordnance of such property in their possession or charge, according to certain forms and regulations to be prescribed by that officer with the approval of the Secretary of War. The act of March 3, 1879, authorizes and directs the Secretary of War, at the request of the head of any department, to issue arms and ammunition, when required for the protection of the public money and property, "to be delivered to any officer" of such department as may be designated by the head of the same, and to be accounted for to the Secretary of War. Held that the provision of section 1167 might properly be regarded as applying to the class of officers indicated in this act, who therefore would properly be required to furnish the returns prescribed by that section. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1861.

1175. Every officer commanding a regiment, corps, garrison, or detachment shall make, once every two months, or oftener if so directed, a report to the Chief of Ordnance stating all damages to arms, equipments, and implements belonging to his command, noting those occasioned by negligence or abuse, and naming the officer or soldier by whose negligence or abuse the said damages were occasioned.

Section 1694 of the Revised Statutes contained the requirement that "no royalty shall be paid by the United States to any of its officers or employees for the use of any patent for the system, or any part thereof, mentioned in the preceding section (section 1674, Revised Statutes), nor for any such patent in which said officers or employees may be directly or indirectly interested."

The act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. L., 833), conferred authority upon the Board of Ordnance and Fortification "to examine and report upon a site or sites for ordnance testing and proving ground to be used in the testing and proving of heavy ordnance, having in view in the selection of said site or sites their accessibility by land and water, means of transportation, and suitability for the purpose intended, and also the actual and reasonable cost, and value of the land embraced in said site or sites and the least sum for which the same can be procured. Said Board shall report thereon to the Secretary of War, to be submitted to Congress at its next session; and in case the said Board shall select a site or sites and recommend their pur-implements under the supervision of the said Board, the Board shall be satisfied, after due inquiry, that the Government of the United States has a lawful right to use the inventions involved in the construction of such gun, gun carriage, ammunition, or implements, or that the construction or test is made at the request of a person either having such lawful right or authorized to convey the same to the Government. Act of August 1, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 215).

chase, the Secretary of War is hereby authorized to secure written proposals for the sale of the land so recommended, until such time as Congress may act upon the recommendation of said Board and of the Secretary of War."

To enable the Secretary of War, in his discretion, to purchase the land adjoining the Government reservation at Sandy Hook, New Jersey, now belonging to the grantees of the Highland Beach Association of New Jersey, together with the right of way from said land to the main line of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, together with the rails, ties, switches, and all the railroad equipment on said lands, twenty-five thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary. Act of July 23, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 259).

That the President is hereby authorized to appoint a board, to consist of three officers of the Army and three officers of the Navy, who shall examine and report to the Secretary of War, for transmission to Congress for its consideration, what, in their opinion, is the most suitable site on the Pacific coast, or on the rivers or other waters thereof, for the erection of a plant for finishing and assembling the parts of heavy guns and other ordnance for the use of the Army and Navy. That for the payment of the necessary expenses of the board to be appointed under the foregoing provisions the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. Act of July 23, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 258).

This provision has appeared in all subsequent acts of appropriation. An officer who is authorized to receive compensation "while necessarily employed" only, must produce satisfactory evidence of his employment, and of the necessity therefor, during the period for which he claims compensation. IV Comp. Dec., 424. The Auditor is authorized, and it is his duty, to require the production of satisfactory evidence of the time of actual employment of an officer who is paid a per diem compensation or allowance. Ibid., 479.

The mileage of officers of the Army traveling on duty connected with the Board of Ordnance and Fortification is payable from the appropriation made for the Board as a part of the necessary expenses incident to the performance of the work. III Ibid., 332. Officers of the Army connected with the Board of Ordnance and Fortification, when traveling on duty, should be furnished with transportation in kind by the Quartermaster's Department, in accordance with War Department Circular No. 8, of 1897, but whether the requests for transportation addressed to the railroad companies should be issued by the officers of the Quartermaster's Department exclusively is to be determined by the Secretary of War. Ibid., 590.

HISTORICAL NOTE.—The duties in connection with the procurement, manufacture, and supply of cannon, small arms, and military stores, now performed by the Ordnance Department, seem to have been vested during the Revolutionary period in a purveyor of public supplies, an office created by Congress, which ceased to exist at the close of the war. With a view to secure proper accountability and a more efficient administration in this branch of the military service, President Washington, on January 7, 1794, recommended to Congress that the office of Purveyor of Public Supplies be created and charged "with the duties of receiving, safe-keeping, and distributing the public supplies." The office thus recommended was established by the act of February 23, 1795 (1 Stat. L., 419), and continued to exist until May 31, 1812, when, its duties having been transferred to the several departments of the staff, it was abolished. Sec. 9, act of March 28, 1812 (2 ibid., 696).

The Ordnance Department, eo nomine, was established by the act of May 14, 1812 (ibid., 732), and was to consist of one Commissary-General of Ordnance, an assistant commissary-general, four deputy commissaries, and as many assistant deputy commissaries, not exceeding eight, as the President might deem necessary. The Commissary-General of Ordnance was to have the rank and pay of colonel, the assistant commissary-general that of lieutenant-colonel, the deputy-commissaries that of major, and the assistant deputy commissaries that of captain. By the act of February 8, 1815 (3 ibid., 203), the Department was reorganized, its duties were defined, and its strength fixed at one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, two majors, ten captains, ten first lieutenants, and as many enlisted men, to serve as armorers, blacksmiths, wheelwrights, artificers, etc., as the Secretary of War might deem necessary; by the same enactment the supervision of the several armories, magazines, and arsenals was vested in the Ordnance Department.

By section 4 of the act of March 2, 1821 (3 ibid., 283), the Ordnance Department was merged in the artillery, one captain being added to each regiment of artillery for ordnance duty. Although the Department ceased to exist, for the time, as a separate establishment, the duties pertaining to the ordnance service seem to have continued to be performed by officers of artillery detailed for the purpose. By the act of April 5, 1830 (4 ibid., 504), the Ordnance Department was reconstituted, with the following commissioned strength: One colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, two majors, ten captains, with the pay and allowances of artillery officers of corresponding grades, and as many enlisted men as might be required, not to exceed 250. By section 2 of the act of April 5, 1830, the grade of ordnance-sergeant was established, the number authorized to be appointed being restricted to one for each military post. By section 13 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 ibid., 256), the President was authorized to add two majors to the department "when he may deem it expedient to increase the same;" he was also authorized to transfer ten first lieutenants and ten second lieutenants to the department from the artillery; by the act of July 7, 1838 (ibid., 308), the number of lieutenants thus authorized to be transferred was reduced to twelve. The act of July 5, 1838, placed officers of ordnance on the same footing in respect to pay and allowances as officers of dragoons. By section 16 of the act of March 3, 1847 (9 ibid., 184), the President was authorized to add to the department, under the conditions set forth in the statute last cited, two captains and six first lieutenants. By section 3 of the act of August 3, 1861 (12 ibid., 287), a chief of ordnance, with the rank and pay of Quartermaster-General (brigadier-general), one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, and six second lieutenants were added to the establishment. By section 4 of the act of March 3, 1863 (ibid., 743), one lieutenant-colonel, two majors, eight captains, and eight first lieutenants were added; the appointments to be made by promotion "as far as the present Ordnance Corps will permit, and the residue to be appointed by transfer from other regiments and corps of the Army;" by this statute examinations were required in all grades below that of field officer as a condition precedent to promotion.

By section 21 of the act of July 28, 1866 (14 ibid., 335), the peace strength of the department was fixed at one brigadier-general, three colonels, four lieutenant-colonels, ten majors, twenty captains, sixteen first lieutenants, and ten second lieutenants; sixteen ordnance storekeepers were also added to the establishment. Section 6 of the act of March 3, 1869 (15 ibid., 318), contained the requirement that there should be no promotions or appointments in the several staff corps until otherwise directed by law; but this restriction was removed as to the Ordnance Department by the act of June 23, 1874 (18 ibid., 244), which reorganized the department with an authorized strength of one brigadier-general, three colonels, four lieutenant-colonels, ten majors, twenty captains, and sixteen first lieutenants, and provided that all vacancies in the grade of first lieutenant should be filled by transfer from the line of the Army, subject to the examination therein prescribed. The examination for promotion, first required by the act of March 3, 1863, was extended in its scope by the act of June 23, 1874, so as to require that "no appointment or promotion in said department shall hereafter be made until the officer so appointed or promoted shall have passed a satisfactory examination before a board of ordnance officers senior to himself." By the act of July 7, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 720), the composition of the Ordnance Department was fixed at one brigadier-general, four colonels, five lieutenant-colonels, twelve majors, twenty-four captains, and twenty first lieutenants.

By section 23 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 754), the permanent strength of the Ordnance Department was fixed at one chief of ordnance with the rank of brigadier-general, four colonels, six lieutenant-colonels, twelve majors, twenty-four captains, and twenty-four first lieutenants, together with the enlisted men, including ordnance-sergeants, already authorized by law. A system of details was also provided by the operation of which the permanent commissioned personnel of the Department will be gradually replaced, as vacancies occur, by officers detailed from the line of the Army for duty in the Ordnance Department.

HISTORICAL NOTE.—The office of Signal Officer of the Army, with the rank of major of cavalry, was established by the act of June 21, 1860 (12 Stat. L., 66). By section 17 of the act of March 3, 1863 (ibid., 753), a signal corps was created to consist of a Chief Signal Officer with the rank of colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, two majors who were to be inspectors, and, for each army corps or military department, one captain and as many lieutenants, not exceeding eight, as the President might deem necessary. The officers thus provided for were to receive the mounted pay of their grades, and were to continue in service during the pendency of the existing rebellion. For each officer authorized by the act of March 3, 1863, one sergeant and six privates were to be detailed from the volunteer armies, who were to receive the pay and allowances of enlisted men of engineers. Eligibility for appointment and detail were to be determined, in part, by prior faithful service in the acting signal corps, and were conditioned in all cases, upon the successful passage of a preliminary examination.

A permanent signal corps was added to the military establishment by section 22 of the act of July 28, 1866 (12 Stat. L., 335) (which was embodied in the Revised Statutes as sections 1165, 1166, and 1167). It was to consist of a Chief Signal Officer, with the rank of colonel of cavalry, and of six officers of the line, detailed for signal duty, and one hundred enlisted men, detailed from the battalion of engineers; these details were to be conditioned upon the successful passage of a preliminary examination, and the officers, while so detailed, were to receive mounted pay. By the act of March 3, 1871 (16 ibid., 520), certain duties in connection with the observation and report of storms were assigned to the department. By the act of June 18, 1878

(20 ibid., 146), the number of enlisted men, hitherto fixed by Executive regulation, was established at four hundred and fifty, and by the act of June 20, 1878 (ibid., 219), the enlisted force of the department was fixed at one hundred and fifty sergeants, thirty corporals, and two hundred and seventy privates, who were to receive the pay and allowances of enlisted men of corresponding grades in the battalion of engineers. By this enactment extra-duty pay was prohibited, and the commissioned force of the department was increased by the annual appointment of two second lieutenants, who were to be selected from the grade of sergeant. By the act of June 16, 1880 (21 ibid., 267), the rank of brigadier-general was conferred upon the Chief Signal Officer, and the number of privates was increased to three hundred and twenty; by the act of August 4, 1886 (24 ibid., 247), the number of second lieutenants was limited to sixteen, the school of instruction at Fort Myer, Va., was abolished, and the Secretary of War was authorized to detail five commissioned officers of the Army for signal duty, this number to be in addition to the second lieutenants already authorized by law; this requirement was repeated in the acts of October 2, 1888 (26 ibid., 537), and March 2, 1889 (ibid., 969), by which enactments the number of second lieutenants was reduced to fourteen.

By the act of October 1, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 653), the Weather Service was transferred to the Department of Agriculture and the strength of the Signal Corps was established at one Chief Signal Officer (brigadier-general), one major, four captains, and four first lieutenants mounted, and fifty sergeants who were to have the pay and allowances of hospital stewards. The second lieutenants not selected for appointment as first lieutenants were to be transferred to the line of the Army. By the act of August 6, 1894, the department was reorganized, the reorganization to take effect upon the occurrence of a vacancy in the office of Chief Signal Officer, when the corps was to consist of one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, one major, three captains, and three first lieutenants; by the act of March 2, 1897 (29 ibid., 611), the promotions provided for in the act of August 6, 1894, were authorized to be made. By section 2 of the act of May 18, 1898 (30 ibid., 417), and joint resolution No. 53, of July 8, 1898 (ibid., 749), a volunteer Signal Corps was authorized, to consist of one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, one major, as disbursing officer, and such other officers and men as might be required, not exceeding one lieutenant-colonel for each army corps, and two captains, two first lieutenants, five first-class sergeants, ten sergeants, ten corporals, and thirty first-class privates to each organized division of troops, a certain proportion of whom were to be skilled electricians or telegraph operators.

By section 24 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 754), the permanent strength of the Signal Corps was fixed at one Chief Signal Officer with the rank of brigadier-general, one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, four majors, fourteen captains, fourteen first lieutenants, eighty first-class sergeants, one hundred and twenty sergeants, one hundred and fifty corporals, two hundred and fifty first-class privates, one hundred and fifty second-class privates, and ten cooks; and a system of details was established by the operation of which the permanent commissioned personnel of the department will be gradually replaced, as vacancies occur, by officers detailed from the line of the Army for duty in the Signal Department.

for removal.
Sec. 2, ibid.

1242. The Secretary of War is hereby authorized to remove the charge of desertion from the record of any regular or volunteer soldier in the late war upon proper application therefor, and satisfactory proof in the following cases:

Return to duty

First. That such soldier, after such charge of desertion was made, and within a reasonable time thereafter, voluntarily returned to his command and served faithfully to the end of his term of service, or until discharged.

Absence while sick or wounded.

Second. That such soldier absented himself from his command or from hospital while suffering from wounds, injuries, or disease, received or contracted in the line of duty, and upon recovery voluntarily returned to his command and served faithfully thereafter, or died from such wounds, injuries, or disease while so absent, and before the date of muster out of his command or expiration of his term of service, or was prevented from so returning by reason of such wounds, injuries, or diseases before such muster out or expiration of service.

Limitation.

1245. Whenever it shall appear from the official records in the office of the Adjutant-General, United States Army [or the Record and Pension Office of the War Department¹], that any regular or volunteer soldier of the late war was formally restored to duty from desertion by the commander competent to order his trial for the offense, or, having deserted and being charged with desertion, was, on return to the service, suffered, without such formal restoration, to resume his place in the ranks of his command, serving faithfully thereafter until the expiration of his term, such soldier shall not be deemed to rest under any disability because of such desertion in the prosecution of any claim for pension, on account of disease contracted or wounds or injuries received in the line of his duty as a soldier. Sec. 4, ibid.

Application for removal of charge of desertion.

1248. The Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed to amend the military record of any soldier who enlisted for the war with Mexico, upon proper application, where the rolls and records of the Adjutant-General's Office show the charge of desertion against him, when such rolls and records show the facts set out in the following cases:

Length of service.

First. That said soldier served faithfully the full term of his enlistment, or having served faithfully for six months or more, and until the fourth day of July anno Domini eighteen hundred and forty-eight, left his command without having received a discharge.

Voluntary return.

Second. That such soldier, after said charge of desertion was entered on the rolls, voluntarily returned to his command within a reasonable time, and served faithfully until discharge. Sec. 6, ibid.

Cases excepted.

1249. The provisions of this act shall not be so construed as to relieve any soldier from the charge of desertion who left his command from disaffection or disloyalty to the Government, or to evade the dangers and hardships of the service, or whilst in the presence of the enemy (not being sick or wounded), or while in arrest or under charges for breach of military duty, or in case of a soldier of the Mexican war who did not actually reach the seat of war. Sec. 7, ibid.

the act, been judicially duly disposed of—by trial, conviction, and sentence by court-martial—are not within the purview of the statute. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1103.

Held, that a soldier had “served faithfully” in the sense of section 1 of the last-named act when, having been sentenced to reduction and confinement on conviction of desertion, his sentence had been duly executed, and he had thereupon returned to duty and served for a considerable further period in a status of honor. Ibid., par. 1104.

The act of 1889 provides that the charge of desertion shall be removed if the soldier has “served faithfully until * * * May 1, 1865, having previously served six months or more” * * * Held, that the six months of service need not have been continuous, provided they were actually served before May 1, 1865, and the soldier was in service at that date. Ibid., par. 1105.

Held, that a soldier was not within the description of the third division, section 2, of the act of 1889, of having been “discharged” from service by a court of “competent jurisdiction,” who had, as a minor, enlisted without consent, been discharged upon habeas corpus by a State court. Ibid., par. 1107.

A pardon does not operate retroactively, and can not therefore “remove a charge” of desertion. It does not wipe out the fact that the party did desert, nor can it make the record say that he did not desert. It can not change facts of history. Ibid., par. 1117.

The restoration of a deserter to duty without trial under par. 132, A. R. [1895], does not operate as an acquittal, or relieve the deserter from the forfeitures of pay (including retained pay) incurred by operation of law under paragraphs 1380 and 1381, A. R. 1895. Ibid., 351, par. 48.

1250. When such charge of desertion is removed under the provisions of this act, the soldier shall be restored to a status of honorable service, his military record shall be corrected as the facts may require, and an honorable discharge shall be issued in those cases where the soldier has received none; and he shall be restored to all his rights as to pension, pay, or allowances as if the charge of desertion had never been made; and in case of the death of said soldier, his widow or other legal heir shall be entitled to the same rights as in case of other deceased honorably discharged soldiers. Sec. 8, ibid.

Military record corrected and honorable discharge to issue. Sec. 8, ibid.

Pension, etc., claims.

1251. This act shall not be construed to give to any soldier, or his legal representatives or heir, any pay or allowance for any period of time he was absent without leave and not in the performance of military duty. Ibid.

No pay while absent.

1252. All applications for relief under this act shall be made to and filed with the Secretary of War within the period of three years from and after July first, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, and all applications not so made and filed within said term of three years shall be forever barred, and shall not be received or considered.¹ Sec. 9, ibid.

Claims to be filed within three years from July 1, 1889. Secs. 9 and 10, ibid.

1253. Section nine of the act for the relief of certain volunteer and regular soldiers of the late war and the war with Mexico, approved March second, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, is hereby so amended as to remove the limitation of time within which applications for relief may be received and acted upon under the provisions of said act. Act of March 2, 1895 (28 Stat. L., 593).

1255. The heirs or legal representatives of any person whose muster into service shall be recognized and established under the terms of this act shall be entitled to receive the arrears of pay and emoluments due, and the pension, if any, authorized by law, for the grade to which recognition shall be so extended. Sec. 2, ibid.

¹Section 18 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 Stat. L., 259), conferred authority upon the officers composing the councils of administration, at certain posts to be designated by the Secretary of War, to employ from time to time such person as they might think proper to officiate as chaplain. The person so selected and appointed was also to perform the duties of schoolmaster at the post at which he was employed. The chaplains so appointed were to receive as compensation a sum to be determined by the council of administration, with the approval of the Secretary of War, but such sum was not to exceed forty dollars per month in any case; each chaplain was allowed four rations per day, with fuel and quarters. The number of chaplain posts, which was fixed at twenty by the act of July 5, 1838, was increased to forty by section 3 of the act of March 3, 1849 (9 Stat. L., 351). HISTORICAL NOTE.—The office of chaplain existed in the Revolutionary armies, as is indicated by the requirement of section 1, article 4, of the Rules and Articles of War of 1776, which provides a penalty for the nonperformance of the duties appro-

These schools are administered in accordance with paragraphs 321, 341, 350, 351, 355, 362, 1110, 1118, 1124, 1127, 1128, and 1137 of the Army Regulations of 1901. pritate to the office. The act of March 3, 1791 (1 Stat. L., 222), authorized the appointment of a chaplain in case the President might "deem such appointment necessary to the public interest." As the act contemplated a brigade organization, it would appear that the office thus conditionally created was that of a brigade rather than a regimental chaplain. The inclusion of the chaplain in the "general staff," in section 7 of the act of March 5, 1792 (ibid., 242), and March 3, 1795 (ibid., 430), would also seem to indicate the correctness of this view. No provision was made for the services of chaplains in the enactments respecting the militia—acts of May 2, 1792 (ibid., 264), and May 8, 1792 (ibid., 267)—although these statutes are still in force. The office of chaplain was discontinued on October 1, 1796, in conformity to the requirements of the act of May 30, 1796 (ibid., 483), "to ascertain and fix the military establishment of the United States." The acts authorizing the creation of a provisional army, approved May 28, 1798 (ibid., 561), made no provision for the services or compensation of chaplains, but this omission was supplied by a provision for four chaplains in the act of July 16, 1798 (ibid., 604), who were to be attached to the general staff, and were to receive the pay and allowances of majors. No provision was made for these officers, however, in the act of March 3, 1799 (ibid., 749). By the acts of February 2, 1800 (2 ibid., 7), and May 14, 1800 (ibid., 85), the operation of the foregoing enactments was suspended, and the act of March 16, 1802 (ibid., 133), contained no provision for chaplains, or for the procurement of religious services at military posts.

The act of April 12 1808 (2 Stat. L. 481, section 7), passed in contemplation of war with England, authorized the appointment of brigade chaplains, and similar provision was made in section 24 of the act of February 6, 1812 (ibid., 671), which conferred upon these officers the pay and allowances of majors of infantry, and this last-named requirement was repeated in section 16 of the act of January 20, 1813 (ibid., 791). The acts of March 3, 1815 (3 Stat. L., 224); April 24, 1816 (ibid., 297); April 14, 1818 (ibid., 420); April 20, 1818 (ibid., 460); March 2, 1821 (ibid., 615), to reduce and fix the military peace establishment, made no provision for these officers which then ceased to exist.

The office of post chaplain was established by section 18 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 Stat. L., 259), appointments thereto being vested in the councils of administration of the several military posts. Chaplains were to act as post schoolmasters, and their compensation was to be fixed by the post councils, with the approval of the Secretary of War, but was in no case to exceed forty dollars per month, with four rations per day and an established allowance of fuel and quarters. The number of chaplain posts was fixed at twenty by the act of July 7, 1838 (ibid., 308), which were to be designated by the Secretary of War, and were to be "confined to places most destitute of instruction." By section 3 of the act of March 2, 1849 (9 ibid., 357), the number of chaplain posts was increased to thirty, and by section 2 of the act of February 21, 1857 (11 ibid., 163), the monthly pay proper of chaplains was increased to a sum not exceeding sixty dollars, subject to the approval of the post council of administration.

For each of the regiments of volunteers authorized to be raised for the war with Mexico a chaplain was authorized, and power was conferred upon the President to order the existing post chaplains to the theater of active operations, and, in the event of their refusal to obey such order, their offices were to be declared vacant by the Adjutant-General of the Army; Section 7, act of February 11, 1847 (9 Stat. L., 124). During the war of the rebellion a chaplain was authorized for each regiment of volunteers, who was to have the pay and allowances of a captain of cavalry; section 9, act of July 22, 1861 (12 Stat. L., 270). By section 7 of the act of August 3, 1861 (ibid., 288), none but ministers of some Christian denomination were to be eligible for appointment. By section 2 of the act of May 30, 1862 (ibid., 404), the President was authorized to appoint a chaplain for each general hospital; by the act of July 17, 1862 (ibid., 594), their pay and allowances were fixed and the qualifications for the office were established. Rank, without command, was conferred by the act of April 9, 1862 (13 ibid., 46), in which enactment their duties were still further defined. By section 31 of the act of July 28, 1866 (14 ibid., 337), the existing force was recognized and continued, and one chaplain was authorized for each regiment of colored troops established, "whose duty shall include the instruction of the enlisted men in the common English branches of education;" by section 7 of the act of March 2, 1867 (ibid., 423), the rank of captain of infantry, without command, was conferred, and chaplains were placed upon the same footing in respect to pay, allowances, and emoluments as other officers of the Army. By section 12 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 ibid., 750), the distinction between post and regimental chaplains was abolished and chaplains were thereafter required to be assigned to regiments of the line or to stations occupied by the troops of the corps of artillery.

APPOINTMENTS.¹

1267. When any cadet of the United States Military Academy has gone through all its classes and received a regular diploma from the academic staff, he may be promoted and commissioned as a second lieutenant in any arm or corps of the Army in which there may be a vacancy and the duties of which he may have been judged competent to perform.² Act of May 17, 1886 (24 Stat. L. 50).

Appointment of cadets.

¹In the absence of statutory restrictions, the power of the President to make appointments or promotions in the line or staff of the Army is plenary, being conferred by Article II, section 11, paragraph 2 of the Constitution of the United States. Congress, however, has established certain uniform rules of promotion, and in several instances has prescribed the classes from which selections must be made in appointing to original or other vacancies. See, for examples of such regulation, section 3, act of June 18, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 145); act of May 17, 1886 (24 ibid., 50); Oct. 1, 1890 (26 ibid., 562); July 30, 1892 (27 ibid., 336); March 8, 1898 (30 ibid., 261); April 26, 1898 (ibid., 364); March 2, 1899 (ibid., 977), and February 2, 1901 (31 ibid., 748). The appointment of general officers is regulated by paragraph 21 of the Regulations of 1895, which contains the requirement that "appointment to the grade of general officer is made by selection from the Army."

²The appointment of cadets and enlisted men to the grade of second lieutenant is regulated by the acts above set forth. Section 3 of the act of June 18, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 145), contained the requirement that all vacancies occurring in the grade of second lieutenant should be filled from the graduates of the Military Academy so long as any such remained in the service unassigned, and that vacancies then remaining should be filled by the promotion of meritorious noncommissioned officers, and that any vacancies remaining after the exhaustion of the two classes above named might be filled by the appointment of persons from civil life; but this provision was expressly repealed by section 5 of the act of July 30, 1892 (27 ibid., 336). The policy of the Executive in respect to appointments to the grade of second lieutenant in the line of the Army is now regulated by the following requirements of Army Regulations:

Vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant existing on the 1st day of July each year are filled by appointment, in order, as follows: (1) From graduates of the United

The vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant heretofore filled by the promotion of meritorious non-commissioned officers of the Army under the provisions of section three of the act approved June eighteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, shall be filled by the appointment of competitors favorably recommended under this act in the order of merit established by the final examination.¹ *Section 3, act of July 30, 1892 (27 Stat. States Military Academy; (2) from enlisted men of the Army found duly qualified; (3) from civil life. Par. 26, A. R. 1901.

A civilian to be eligible for appointment must be a citizen of the United States, unmarried, between 21 and 27 years of age, must be examined and approved as to habits, moral character, mental and physical ability, education, and general fitness for the service by a board convened and constituted as provided in paragraph 25 for the final competitive examination of soldiers. Par. 31, ibid. For regulations respecting the examination of candidates from civil life for appointment to the grade of second lieutenant in the line of the Army see General Orders No. 35, A. G. O., 1898, and G. O. 156, A. G. O., 1899.

² An appointment or commission, in order to take effect at all, must be accepted; but, when accepted, it takes effect as of and from its date, i. e., the date on which it is completed by the signature of the appointing power, or that as and from which it purports in terms to be operative. See also chapter entitled THE EXECUTIVE.

The power of the President to fill a vacancy in the Army during a recess of the Senate may be exercised by a letter from the Secretary of War, and such a letter may constitute his commission, there being no law which prescribes the form of a military commission. *O'Shea v. So much of section 1218, Revised Statutes, as amended by the act of May 13, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 21), as requires that "No person who held a commission in the Army or Navy of the United States at the beginning of the late rebellion, and afterwards served in any capacity in the military, naval, or civil service of the so-called Confederate States; or of either of the States in insurrection during the late rebellion, shall be appointed to any position in the Army or Navy of the United States," was repealed by the act of March 31, 1896 (29 Stat. L., 235). For statutory provisions regulating the appointment of officers of volunteers to the Army see section 28 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 755), and the act of March 2, 1901 (ibid., p. 900), paragraph 578 ante.

PROMOTIONS.

1271. Hereafter promotions to every grade in the Army below the rank of brigadier-general, throughout each arm, corps, or department of the service, shall, subject to the examination hereinafter provided for, be made according to seniority in the next lower grade of that arm, corps, or department.¹ *Sec. 2, act of October 1, 1890 (26 Stat. Apr. 26, 1898, s. 2, v. 30, p. 364.

¹ The act of October 1, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 562), contained the requirement that all officers above the grade of second lieutenant in the line of the Army should, "subject to such examination, be entitled to promotion in accordance with existing laws and regulations." The effect of this provision was to continue the operation of the rule of regimental promotion in respect to all officers of the line above the grade of second lieutenant. The rule of lineal promotion was made general in its application by section 2 of the act of April 26, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 364). Seniority of rank alone, in the military service, gives no right to promotion. Physical, mental, and moral fitness are required. Steinmetz v. U. S., 33 Ct. Cls. R., 404.

Appointment to the grade of general officer is made by selection from the Army. Par. 21, ibid.

Promotions in established staff corps and departments to include the grade of colonel will be made by seniority, subject to the examinations required by law. Par. 23, ibid.

HISTORICAL NOTE.

The rule of promotion in the line of the Army, as stated in paragraph 22 of the Regulations of 1889, required that "promotions to the rank of captain will be made regimentally, to major, lieutenant-colonel, and colonel, according to arm of service." This rule, which was replaced by the act of October 1, 1890 (paragraph 938, supra), had its origin in an order of the Secretary of War, dated May 26, 1801, which declared that "promotions to the rank of captain shall be made regimentally, and to the rank of major and lieutenant-colonel in the lines of the artillery and infantry, respectively." This order was supplemented by another, issued on May 7, 1808, making the above rule for promotion in the infantry and artillery applicable to the cavalry and riflemen.

The earliest Congressional action on the subject of promotion in the Army is contained in the fifth section of the act of June 26, 1812 (2 Stat. L., 764), which provided that thereafter "the promotion shall be made through the lines of artillerists, light artillery, dragoons, riflemen, and infantry, respectively, according to established rule." The rule therein referred to is that which was established by the Executive order as above stated, and the effect of the statute was to give the order a legislative sanction. Subsequently, by section 12 of the act of March 30, 1814 (3 Stat. L., 113), it was provided "that from and after the passage of this act promotions may be made through the whole Army in its several lines of light artillery, light dragoons, artillery, infantry, and riflemen, respectively." Since the enactment of this last provision, which continued in force down to the revision of the statutes, promotions to the rank of captain have uniformly been made regimentally, so that the construction given thereto, in practice, has been that it made no change or modification of the previously existing rules. According to this construction (which was acted upon for about sixty years) the act of 1814, while it contemplated that promotions should be made in the several lines or arms through the whole Army, and that officers should be promoted only in their respective lines or arms, did not prescribe how promotions within the lines or arms should be made, whether regimentally or lineally. As thus understood—and the language of the act is susceptible of that interpretation—there was no conflict between it and the rule adverted to.

Section 1204, Revised Statutes, contains substantially a reenactment of the provision above quoted from the act of 1814. When embodying that provision in the Revised Statutes, it is reasonable to presume that Congress was familiar with the construction which had been placed thereon, and so long acted upon by the executive department, and that if it had been the intention of that body to introduce a different rule on the subject of promotion, different phraseology would have been chosen to signify such design. By adopting the language of the previous statute the fair inference is that its construction was acquiesced in, and that no change in the law of promotion was intended. XVII Opin. Att. Gen., 65. See, also, paragraph 1318, post, and note 1, supra.

to which his seniority entitled him to be promoted; but if he should fail for any other reason he shall be suspended from promotion for one year, when he shall be reexamined, and in case of failure on such reexamination he shall be honorably discharged with one year's pay from the Army.¹

1275. The examination of officers appointed in the Army from civil life, or of officers who were officers of volunteers only, or were officers of the militia of the several States called into the service of the United States, or were enlisted men in the regular or volunteer service, either in the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, during the war of the rebellion, shall be conducted by boards composed entirely of officers who were appointed from civil life or of officers who were officers of volunteers only during said war, and such examination shall relate to fitness for practical service and not to technical and scientific knowledge; and in case of failure of any such officer in the reexamination hereinbefore provided for, he shall be placed upon the retired list of the Army; and no act now in force shall be so construed as to limit or restrict the retirement of officers as herein provided for.² Sec. 3, act of October 1, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 562).

No existing law to limit retirement.

1276. Officers entitled by this section to examination by a board composed entirely of officers who were appointed from civil life, or who were officers of volunteers only during the war, may, by written waiver filed with the War Department, relinquish such right, in which case the examination of such officers shall be conducted by boards composed as shall be directed by the Secretary of War. Sec. 1, act of July 27, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 276).

Officers from civil life may waive board of similar character.

July 27, 1892, v. 27, p. 276.

²Under the act of Oct. 1, 1890, the finding of the board of examination that the officer is incapacitated for duty is not per se final, but must be reported for the action of the Secretary of War and passed upon by him. Where the finding and report of the board have been approved but not yet executed by actual retirement, there may intervene contingencies which would supersede such proceeding, as the trial and dismissal of the officer by court-martial, or the arising of new causes which might make proper that the question of his disability be inquired into by a retiring board convened under Sec. 1246, Revised Statutes. But unless some such new occasion and ground of disqualification be presented the action of the Secretary of War in approving the report remains final and exhaustive, and the officer is entitled to be retired under the act of 1890, and can not legally be ordered before such retiring board. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2207.

The privilege of retirement which an officer has "with the rank to which his seniority entitled him to be promoted," given by the act of October 1, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 562), is limited to cases where the officer failed in his physical examination only. Steinmetz v. U. S., 33 Ct. Cls., 404.

When the exigencies of the service of any officer who would be entitled to promotion upon examination require him to remain absent from any place where an examining board could be convened, the President is hereby authorized to promote such officer, subject to examination, and the examination shall take place as soon thereafter as practicable. If upon examination the officer be found disqualified for promotion, he shall, upon the approval of the proceedings by the Secretary of War, be treated in the same manner as if he had been examined prior to promotion. Sec. 32, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 756).

¹A soldier to be eligible for the position of candidate for promotion must be a citizen of the United States, unmarried, between 21 and 30 years of age on the 1st of September following his preliminary examination, and of good moral character both before and after enlistment. An applicant will not be ordered for the preliminary examination unless it is apparent that on the 1st of September next following he will have served honorably not less than two years, exclusive of technical service due to furlough or other absence from duty in his own interest; (a) nor for the final competitive examination unless he shall have so served. Applications will be made to department commanders on or before February 1 of each year, and company commanders in forwarding them will certify all furloughs had by applicants, stating under what authority they were granted. Service counted in retirement, etc. 1303. On and after the passage of this act, all officers of the Army of the United States who have served as officers in the volunteer forces during the war of the rebellion, or as enlisted men in the armies of the United States, regular or volunteer, shall be, and are hereby, credited with the full time they may have served as such officers and as such enlisted men in computing their service for longevity pay and retirement. Sec. 7, act of June 18, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 150).

Head of a staff department. 1304. Any officer now holding office in any corps or department who shall hereafter serve as chief of a staff corps or department and shall subsequently be retired, shall be retired with the rank, pay, and allowances authorized by law for the retirement of such corps or department chief. Sec. 26, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 755).

Retirement for disability. 1305. When any officer has become incapable of performing the duties of his office, he shall be either retired from active service, or wholly retired from the service, by the President, as hereinafter provided.

² Held that the law (secs. 1248 and 1249, Rev. Stats.) contemplated an existing and not a purely prospective and contingent incapacity; and that an inquiry into an officer's general efficiency could be pertinent only in so far as it could be regarded as going to show that his inefficiency, if found, was the result of an impairment of health. Ibid., par. 2204.

Held that the cause of incapacity intended in this section was a physical cause; that moral obliquity was not had in view; and that the matter of the financial integrity of the officer was beyond the jurisdiction of the board. Ibid., par. 2203. The incapacity may result from habitual drunkenness. Ibid., par. 2196.

When the board finds that an officer is incapacitated for active service, and that his incapacity is not the result of any incident of service, and its decision is approved by the President,¹ the officer shall be retired from active service, or wholly retired from the service, as the President may determine. The names of officers wholly retired from the service shall be omitted from the Army Register.²

tled to a hearing.

Aug. 3, 1861, c.
42, s. 17, v. 12, p.

Sec. 1253, R.S.

1313. Except in cases where an officer may be retired by the President upon his own application, or by reason of his having served forty-five years, or of his being sixty-two years old, no officer shall be retired from active service, nor shall an officer, in any case, be wholly retired from the service, without a full and fair hearing before an Army retiring board, if, upon due summons, he demands it.³

The finding of a retiring board, approved by the President, is conclusive as to the facts. The board finds the facts and the President approves or disapproves the finding, but the law does not empower him to modify the finding or to substitute a different one. There is here a judicial power vested in the two, and not in the President acting singly, and when the power has once been fully exercised it is exhausted as to the case. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2206; U. S. v. Burchard, 125 U. S., 179; U. S. v. Miller, 19 Ct. Cls., 338.

When the President has once acted upon the findings of a retiring board his power over the case is exhausted and his subsequent orders in respect to such officer are void for want of authority. XIX Opin. Att. Gen., 202.

² To be "wholly retired," in accordance with the terms of this section, is to be put out of the Army and out of office. An officer wholly retired becomes a civilian, and can be readmitted to the service only by a new appointment. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 666, par. 9; Miller v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls., 338.

An officer, on being wholly retired, becomes a civilian, and can be readmitted to the service only by a new appointment. But he can not be appointed at once to the retired list. A civilian can not be appointed as a retired officer. He must first be appointed an officer on the active list, of a certain rank. None but a commissioned officer on the active list of the Army can be placed on the retired list. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., 666, par. 11; XIX Opin. Att. Gen., 506.

1315. That all officers of the Army who have been heretofore retired by reason of disability arising from wounds received in action shall be considered as retired upon the actual rank held by them, whether in the regular or volunteer service, at the time when such wound was received, and shall be borne on the retired list and receive pay hereafter accordingly; and this section shall be taken and construed to include those now borne on the retired list placed upon it on account of wounds received in action: Provided, That no part of the foregoing act shall apply to those officers who had been in service as commissioned officers twenty-five years at the date of their retirement; nor to those retired officers who had lost an arm or leg, or has an arm or leg permanently disabled by reason of resection, on account of wounds, or both eyes by reason of wounds received in battle; and every such officer now borne on the retired list shall be continued thereon notwithstanding the provisions of section two chapter thirty-eight act of March thirty, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight; and be it also provided, that no retired officer shall be affected by this act, who has been retired or may hereafter be retired on the rank held by him at the time of his retirement.¹ Sec. 2, act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 512).

¹A retired officer is subject to trial by court-martial, and a court-martial has jurisdiction of offenses committed after the officer was retired. Runkle v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls., 396.

An officer on the retired list, being as much a part of the Army as any officer on the active list, would be subject to trial by general court-martial independently of the provision, specifically so subjecting him, of section 1256, Revised Statutes. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2200.

A retired officer, upon conviction, may be sentenced similarly to an officer on the active list, except that the punishments of suspension and loss of files or relative rank are not appropriate to the status of a retired officer. Ibid., note 2.

They are in fact pensioners. The position and pay given them constitute a form of pension. They exercise no functions and receive no emoluments of office, but are pensioned for past faithful services or disabilities contracted in the line of duty. Their condition and public office have no characteristics in common. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2209. See in this connection the act of July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 205), which permits retired officers to hold office to which they have been elected by the people or appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. See also section 7 of the act of June 3, 1896 (29 Stat. L., 235), which contains the requirement "that section 2 of the act of July 31, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 205), shall not be so construed as to prevent the employment of any retired officer of the Army or Navy to do work under the direction of the Chief of Engineers of the United States Army in connection with the improvement of rivers and harbors of the United States, or the payment by the proper officer of the Treasury of any amounts agreed upon as compensation for such employment." This provision operates to exempt from the terms of the act of July 31, 1894 (sec. 1763, R. S.), all retired officers of the Army or Navy who may be employed by the Engineer Department upon works of river and harbor improvement.

Leaving post on tender of resignation.
49 Art. War.

¹A valid resignation and an unconditional acceptance of it, accompanied by proper notification of it, operate to remove an officer from the military service. Bennett v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls. 379. And a new appointment is required to restore him to the office. XII Opin. Att. Gen., 555. An immediate and unconditional resignation severs, absolutely, an officer's connection with the Army. Turnley v. U. S., 24 Ct. Cls., 317. It has been held by a United States court that "a civil officer has a right to resign his office at pleasure, and it is not in the power of the Executive to compel him to remain in office." In a case of a military officer, however, this right is subject to certain restrictions growing out of the military status. Thus, while in time of peace, an officer of the Army, in good standing, is in general entitled to tender and have accepted his resignation, yet in time of war, or when grave embarrassment to the service or prejudice to discipline may result from his leaving his duty, the acceptance of his resignation may properly be refused. And so, where he has tendered his resignation while under charges, and a failure of justice might result from allowing him to evade trial. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 662.

A military officer who has tendered his resignation, but who continues in service, doing actual duty, is entitled to pay up to the time he is notified of the acceptance of his resignation. Barger v. U. S., 6 Ct. Cls., 35; Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., 662, 663.

ance. But after an acceptance, and before effect has been given to the same by notice, the offer can not be withdrawn, or materially modified by the act of the officer alone, but the consent of the appointing power is also necessary. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 663.

A resignation to take effect at a future date may, with the consent of the appointing power, provided no new rights have intervened, be withdrawn before the time when the resignation was to take effect, and the officer will continue to be an officer de jure thereafter. 1 Compt. Dec., 8; Bunting v. Willis, 27 Gratt., 144; Biddle v. Willard, 10 Ind., 62; State v. Van Buskirk, 56 Mo., 17; People v. Porter, 6 Cal., 26. See, also, Badger v. U. S., 93 U. S., 599; U. S. v. Wright, 1 McLean, 509.

The acceptance of an officer's resignation becomes operative and severs him from the military service upon his receiving either actual or constructive notice of such acceptance. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 663.

While a tender of his resignation by an insane officer is, in general, without legal effect, and incapable of being legally accepted, yet where a resignation so tendered was, in the absence, at the War Department, of any knowledge of his insanity, formally accepted, held that the acceptance could not be legally revoked, and that the appointment to the vacancy was valid and operative. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 663. When an officer tenders his resignation, and the question of his sanity is passed upon by his commanding officer, and it is by him determined that he is of sane mind, a court can not reexamine the question. Blake v. U. S., 13 Ct. Cls. 402.

Where an officer appointed during a recess of the Senate, after taking the oath of office, and notifying the Department of his acceptance, is ordered to return the appointment, his obeying the order is not a resignation. O'Shea v. U. S., 28 Ct. Cls., 392.

An officer who places his conditional resignation in the hands of his commanding officer, to be forwarded by that officer upon a breach of the said condition, of which breach such commanding officer is to be the judge, and authorizes him to insert a date in such resignation and to forward it for acceptance, is held to have made a valid tender of his resignation, and, upon its acceptance by the President, such officer ceases to be an officer of the Army. Mimmack v. U. S., 97 U. S., 426, 436; XII Opin. Att. Gen., 555.

If an officer's connection with the service has been legally severed by resignation, dismissal, or otherwise, he can again enter only by the appointment of the President, with the consent of the Senate. Montgomery v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls., 338; Miller v. U. S., ibid., 338; Mimmack v. U. S., 97 U. S., 426; McElrath v. U. S., 102 U. S., 426; Blake v. U. S., 103 U. S., 227; Keyes v. U. S., 109 U. S., 336, 339.

²Dismissal by Executive order is quite distinct from dismissal by sentence. The latter is a punishment; the former is removal from office. The power to dismiss, which, as being an incident to the power to appoint public officers, had been regarded since 1789 as vested in the President by the Constitution, was for the first time, by section 5 of the act of July 13, 1886 (reenacted in the second clause of the present ninety-ninth article of war and in section 1229, Revised Statutes), expressly divested by Congress, in so far as respects its exercise in time of peace. By the statute it is now authorized only in time of war. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1203.

The practical results of this statute, in connection with other provisions of law bearing upon the subject, are these: That in time of war the President may dismiss 1329. The President is authorized to drop from the rolls of the Army for desertion any officer who is absent from duty three months without leave; and no officer so dropped shall be eligible for reappointment. an officer from service at any moment and for any cause; that in time of peace he may dismiss him for cause, with the cooperation of a court-martial; or remove him without cause with the consent of the Senate. Street v. U. S., 24 Ct. Cls., 248; Blake v. U. S., 103 U. S., 227; McElrath v. U. S., 102 U. S., 426; Fletcher v. U. S., 26 Ct. Cls., 541.

The President has the power to remove an officer of the Army by the appointment of another in his place, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and such power is not withdrawn by the provisions of section 5 of the act of July 13, 1866 (section 1229, Revised Statutes), and this provision does not restrict the power of the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to displace officers of the Army and Navy by the appointment of others in their places. Keyes v. U. S., 109 U. S., 336, 339; Blake v. U. S., 103 U. S., 227; McElrath v. U. S., 103 U. S., 426; Mimmack v. U. S., 97 U. S., 426; U. S. v. Corson, 114 U. S., 619; Montgomery v. U. S., 19 Ct. ¹The jurisdiction to find and determine the fact of desertion, under this section, is vested in the President alone, and his decision thereon can not be reviewed by the courts. Newton v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls., 435. The discharge of an officer does not relieve the Government from its obligations until he is notified of the fact and actually discharged from service. Gould v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls., 593. A summary dismissal of an officer does not properly take effect until the order of dismissal or an official copy of the same is delivered to him, or he is otherwise officially notified of the fact of his dismissal. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1204. A dismissal of an officer by Executive order does not operate to disqualify him for reappointment to military office, or for appointment to civil office under the United States. Ibid., 370, par. 7.

²Dismissal by Executive order is quite distinct from dismissal by sentence. The latter is a punishment; the former is removal from office. The power to dismiss, which, as being an incident to the power to appoint public officers, had been regarded since 1789 as vested in the President by the Constitution, was, for the first time in 1866 (by the act of July 13th of that year, re-enacted in the second clause of the present 99th Article of War and in sec. 1229, Revised Statutes), expressly divested by Congress in so far as respects its exercise in time of peace. By the statute law it is now authorized only in time of war. During the late war it was exercised in a great number of cases, sometimes for the purpose of summarily ridding the service of unworthy officers, sometimes in the form of a discharge or muster out of officers whose services were simply no longer required. The distinction between this species of dismissal and dismissal by sentence is illustrated by the fact that the former has, with the sanction of legal authority, been repeatedly ordered in cases where a court-martial has previously acquitted the officer of the very offenses on account of which the summary action has been resorted to. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., par. 1203. See also VII Opin. Att. Gen., 251; Commonwealth v. Bussier, 5 Sergt. & Rawle, 461; Ex parte Hennen, 13 Peters, 258, 259; United States v. Guthrie, 17 Howard, 307; IV Opins. of Attys. Gen., 1, 609-613; VI Id., 5-6; VII Id., 251; VIII Id., 230-232; XII Id., 424-426; Sergeant's Const. Law, 373; 2 Story's Cons., § 1537, note; 1 Kent's Coms., 310; 2 Marshall's Washington, 162.

The Executive, in summarily dismissing an officer, can not at the same time deprive him of pay due. Nor can the right of an officer to his pay for any period prior to a summary dismissal ordered in his case be divested by a dating back of the order of dismissal. Such an order can not be made to relate back so as to affect the status or rights of the officer as they existed before the date of the taking effect of the dismissal. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1213.

No officer of the Army shall be employed on civil works or internal improvements, or be allowed to engage in the service of any incorporated company, or be employed as acting paymaster or disbursing agent of the Indian Department, if such extra employment requires that he shall be separated from his company, regiment, or corps, or if it shall otherwise interfere with the performance of the military duties proper. Act of February 27, 1877 (19 Stat. L., 243).

¹This statute was held by the Attorney-General (XII Opins., 4) not to be unconstitutional, in that it was not "obnoxious to the objection that it invades or frustrates the power of the President to dismiss an officer." More serious objections to its constitutionality are believed to be: 1, that it authorizes the subjecting to military trial of a civilian; 2, that in restoring an officer to the Army it substitutes the action of a court-martial for the appointing power of the President.

The statute does not indicate within what period after the dismissal the application for a trial should be made. It can only be said that, in preferring it, due diligence should be exercised—that it should be presented within a reasonable time. Held, That a party who (without any sufficient excuse) delayed for nine years to apply for a trial under the statute might well be regarded as having waived his right thereto. [IV Opin. Att. Gen., 170; V Ibid., 384.] It could scarcely have been contemplated by Congress that a dismissed officer should be at liberty to defer his application for a trial till the evidence on which he was dismissed or a material part of the same had ceased to exist, and his restoration would thus be made certain. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1219.

Though it may be sufficient that the application made under the statute should state simply that the applicant has been "wrongfully" dismissed, the preferable form would be for the applicant to set forth in what the alleged wrong consisted. Ibid., par. 1220.

To take advantage of the benefit conferred by this section the officer must apply for trial within a reasonable time after dismissal, or acquiescence will be presumed. A delay of nine years in a particular case held to create such presumption of acquiescence. Newton v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls., 435; Germaine v. U. S., 26 ibid., 383.

Where the President is authorized by law to reinstate a discharged army officer, he may do so without the advice and consent of the Senate. Collins v. U. S., 15 Ct. Cls., 22. For a list of officers so reinstated see Collins Case, 14 Ct. Cls., 568, 571.

1332. No officer of the Army on the active list shall hold any civil office, whether by election or appointment, and every such officer who accepts or exercises the functions of a civil office shall thereby cease to be an officer of the Army, and his commission shall be thereby vacated.¹

1339. In case of the death of any officer, the major of his regiment, or the officer doing the major's duty, or the second officer in command at any post or garrison, as the case may be, shall immediately secure all his effects then in camp or quarters, and shall make, and transmit to the office of the Department of War, an inventory thereof.² One hundred and twenty-fifth Article of War.

²The death of an officer, with place, cause, day, and hour, will be reported without delay by his immediate commander direct to the Adjutant-General of the Army. A duplicate of this report will be forwarded to department headquarters. When the death occurs away from the officer's station, in hospital or on leave, the medical officer, if one be present, or any officer having cognizance of the fact, will make the report. Par. 93, A. R., 1901.

Inventories of the effects of deceased officers, as required by the One hundred and twenty-fifth Article of War, will be transmitted to the Adjutant-General of the Army. If legal representatives take possession of the effects, the fact will be stated in the inventory. Par. 94, ibid.

If there be no legal representatives present to receive the effects, a list of them will be sent to the nearest relative of the deceased. At the end of two months, if not called for, they will be sold at auction and accounted for as in the case of deceased soldiers, except that swords, watches, trinkets, and similar articles will be labeled with the name, rank, regiment, and date of death of the owner, and sent through the Adjutant-General to the Auditor for the War Department for the benefit of the heirs. Par. 96, ibid.

Where an officer dies who is responsible for public property or funds, their disposition is provided for by the following provisions of Army Regulations: "On the death of an officer in charge of public property or funds, his commanding officer will appoint a board of survey, which will inventory the same, and make the customary returns therefor, stating accurately amounts and condition. These the commanding officer will forward to the chiefs of the bureaus to which the property or funds pertain, and he will designate an officer to take charge of such property or funds until orders in the case are received from the proper authority." FUNERAL EXPENSES.

The annual acts of appropriation since that of June 12, 1858 (11 Stat. the act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 1225), authorizing certain expenditures in connection with the transportation and burial of the remains of officers who die in the field or at military camps, or who are killed in action, or who die in the field at places outside the limits of the United States, see paragraph 1417 post. See, also, the acts of May 26, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 212), and March 3, 1901 (ibid., 1172).

The disposition of the remains of deceased officers and the payment of funeral expenses are provided for in the following regulation: "The remains of officers killed in action, or who die when on duty in the field or at military posts, or when traveling under orders, will be decently inclosed in coffins, and unless claimed by relatives or friends, will be transported by the Quartermaster's Department to the nearest military post or national cemetery for burial. The expense of transporting the remains is payable from the appropriation for Army transportation; other expenses of burial are limited to $75. If buried at the place of death, the fact will be reported to the Adjutant-General of the Army." Par. 85., A. R., 1895. (Par. 99, A. R., 1901.)

The expenses of burial of deceased officers other than transportation of the remains, which under the law is payable from the appropriation for "Army transportation," limited to $75 by paragraph 85 of the Regulations, and of enlisted men, limited to $35 by paragraph 162 of the Regulations, as amended by General Orders, No. 141, September 12, 1898, from this office, will be limited to the cost of the coffin and the reasonable and necessary expense of preparation of the remains for burial, and will not include such items as: For guarding remains, expense of services of clergyman or minister, music by band or choir, flowers, cost or hire of pall to be used with horse, tombstone, crape or gloves for pallbearers, and expense of grave site where the remains are sent home at the request of relatives. Decision Sec. War, April 3, 1900, Circular No. 9, A. G. O., 1900.

There is no authority of law for the payment of mileage on account of the transportation of the remains of a deceased officer of the Army. Such payment would be illegal and could not properly be allowed by the accounting officers. Under section 2, act of July 21, 1894 (19 Stat. L., 100), mileage ceased to accrue at the point where, and the time when, by reason of death, an officer ceases to be an officer of the Army. There is nothing in section 1 of the act of September 19, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 456), which is in conflict with this view. 3 Compt. Dec., 209.

Held, that the regulation allowance for the expenses of the interment of an officer, as fixed by paragraph 99, Army Regulations, 1901, was not payable in the case of an officer who, at the time of his death, was on sick leave, this being not one of the cases specified in the Army appropriation acts in which such allowance is authorized to be paid. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1954. Similarly held in the case of an officer who died at the Hot Springs, Ark., when not on duty but on leave of absence. Ibid. Held, further, that, under the provisions on the subject of the Army appropriation act of February 27, 1893, such expenses could not be allowed for the interment of an officer dying at a military post unless he was on duty there at the time of his death, and therefore could not be legally allowed in the case of an officer who deceased at a post where he was staying while on sick leave of absence from his station in another military department. Ibid., par. 1955.

So held, under the act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 1225), as to an officer who died on furlough. VI, Compt. Dec., 444.

Held, that the fact that an officer had been interred at the post where he died did not preclude the Secretary of War from having authorized his permanent interment elsewhere, provided the entire expenses of burial did not exceed the maximum amount of $75 allowed for such purposes by paragraph 99, Army Regulations of 1901. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1955.

Paymasters, in making prepayments of salary to officers of the Army, are liable for any portion unearned by the officer on account of death, or otherwise; also for any final indebtedness of said officer to the Government, to the extent of said prepayment. 3 Compt. Dec., 10.

Balances due from the United States to deceased persons are payable at the Treasury, and not by disbursing officers. Second Compt., sec. 676; Scott Dig., 260.

A balance due to a deceased military officer upon his pay account becomes on his death part of his personal estate, and may be set off by the accounting officers upon an indebtedness due from him to the Government. Mumford v. U. S., 31 Ct. Cls., 210. Money granted to a widow by statute cannot be set off against an indebtedness due from her husband to the Government. Ibid.

atives of such deceased officers or soldiers. And no officer so charged shall be permitted to quit the regiment or post until he has deposited in the hands of the commanding officer all the effects of such deceased officers or soldiers not so accounted for and delivered. One hundred and twenty-seventh Article of War.

1341. In all cases where they would have been lawful claims against the Government reimbursement may be made of expenses heretofore or hereafter incurred by individuals of burial and transportation of remains of officers, including acting assistant surgeons, not to exceed what is now allowed in the cases of officers.¹ Act of May 26, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 212).

¹The act of March 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 905), contains a provision authorizing expenses of interment of "officers killed in action or who die when on duty in the field, or at military posts or on the frontiers, or when traveling under orders, and of noncommissioned officers and soldiers."

All officers who have served during the rebellion as volunteers in the Army of the United States, and have been honorably mustered out of the volunteer service, shall be entitled to bear the official title, and, upon occasions of ceremony, to wear the uniform of the highest grade they have held, by brevet or other commissions, in the volunteer

Under section 1211, Revised Statutes, an officer may legally be assigned to duty according to his brevet rank for a special command or duty, and in such case the assignment will not be effective generally, but only for the purposes of such command or duty and during its continuance. Thus held, that an officer assigned to duty according to his brevet rank "while in command of" a certain department, could legally exercise the authority and privileges of such rank only when holding such command, and for the purposes of the same. Ibid., par. 611.

1358. When any enlisted man of the Army shall have distinguished himself in the service the President may, at the recommendation of the commanding officer of the ¹This provision was not embraced in the Revised Statutes. Medals of honor will be awarded by the President to officers and men who most distinguish themselves in action. (Par. 177, A. R., 1895; see also G. O. 42, A. G. O., 1897, and G. O. 135, A. G. O., 1899.)

The original enactments of 1862 and 1863, providing for the award of medals of honor, and appropriating moneys for the expenses of the same, evidently contemplated a personal presentation to the selected recipient. Such is also inferably the design of the present Army Regulations, wherein (Art. XXV) the medal of honor is assimilated to the certificate of merit, each being manifestly intended to honor and distinguish the recipient in person. Held therefore that (except by special authority of Congress) a medal of honor could not legally be awarded to the widow, or a member of the family, of a deceased officer, on account of distinguished service in action performed by the latter during his lifetime. (Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1655.)

Par. 175, A. R., 1901, like the provision upon which it is based, of the act of March 3, 1863, is deemed to contemplate, in a case of an award to an officer, that the person shall be a commissioned officer of the Army at the time of the award. A contract or acting assistant surgeon is not, and was not at any time, such a commissioned officer. Held therefore that a medal of honor could not legally be awarded to a person for alleged distinguished service rendered while serving in the field as an acting assistant surgeon in 1864, who moreover had had no connection with the Army since 1865. (Ibid., par. 1656; see also XX Opin. Att. Gen., 421.) regiment or the chief of the corps to which such enlisted man belongs, grant him a certificate of merit.¹ Act of March 29, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 12). Mar. 3, 1847, c. 61, s. 17, v. 9, p. 186; Aug. 4, 1854, c. 247, s. 3, v. 10, p. 575; Feb. 9, 1891, v. 26, p. 737; Mar. 29, 1892, v. 27, p. 12.

A certificate of merit granted to an enlisted man for distinguished service shall entitle him, from the date of such service, to additional pay at the rate of two dollars per month while he is in the military service, although such service may not be continuous.¹ Sec. 2, act of February 9, 1891 (26 Stat. L., 737). Extra pay. Sec. 1285, R.S. Feb. 9, 1891, s. 2, v. 26, p. 737.

CORPS BADGES AND INSIGNIA OF SOCIETIES.

1360. All persons who have served as officers, noncommissioned officers, privates, or other enlisted men in the Regular Army, volunteer or militia forces of the United States, during the war of the rebellion, and have been honorably discharged from the service or still remain in the same, shall be entitled to wear, on occasions of ceremony, the distinctive Army badge ordered for or adopted by the Army corps and division, respectively, in which they served. That the distinctive badges adopted by military societies of men who served in the armies and navies of the United States in the war of the Revolution, the war of eighteen hundred and twelve, the Mexican war, and the war of the rebellion, respectively, may be worn upon Military society badges may be worn by Army and Navy. J. R. No. 50, Sept. 25, 1890, v. 26, p. 681.

Held, under section 1216, construed in connection with section 1285, Revised Statutes, that the President was authorized to grant a certificate of merit only to a soldier belonging at the time of the grant to a regiment of the Army; that he was not empowered to grant such a certificate to a discharged soldier and civilian on account of services rendered while he was a soldier. (c) Ibid., par. 667.

a In Bell v. U. S., 28 Ct. Cls., 462, it was held that a soldier to whom, when a member of an infantry regiment, had been granted a certificate of merit, was entitled to continue to receive the additional pay after reenlisting in the "general messenger service."

b See McNamara v. U. S., 28 Ct. Cls., 416, where it is held that the act of February 9, 1891, is retroactive, and entitles the beneficiary to the additional pay from the date of the service for which the certificate was awarded.

Our law not defining enlistment, nor designating what proceeding or proceedings shall or may constitute an enlistment, it may be said, in general, that any act or acts which indicate an undertaking, on the part of a person legally competent to do so, to render military service to the United States for the term required by existing law, and an acceptance of such service on the part of the Government, may ordinarily be regarded as legal evidence of a contract of enlistment between the parties and as equivalent to a formal agreement where no such agreement has been had. The forty-seventh article of war practically makes the receipt of pay by a party as a soldier evidence of an enlistment on his part, estopping him from denying his military capacity when sought to be made amenable as a deserter. The continued rendering of service which is accepted may constitute an enlistment. But enlistments in our Army are now almost invariably evidenced by a formal writing and engagement under oath. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 384, par. 1. See also In re McDonald, 1 Lowell, 100.

An enlistment is the act of making a contract to serve the Government in a subordinate capacity either in the Army or the Navy. Erichson v. Beach, 40 Conn., 283. An enlistment is not a contract only, but effects a change of status. In re Grimley, 137 U. S., 151. The statutes employ the term "enlist" only with reference to contracts with persons who enter the Army as privates, and to certain other classes of men, like Indian scouts and hospital stewards, who rank like soldiers, and voluntarily put themselves under military law. Babbitt v. U. S., 16 Ct. Cls., 214.

² Sections 1116, 1117, and 1118, Revised Statutes, providing that deserters, convicted felons, insane or intoxicated persons, and certain minors shall not be enlisted are regarded as directory only, and not as making necessarily void such enlistments, but as rendering them voidable merely, at the option of the Government. In cases of such enlistments, except of course where the party, by reason of mental derangement or drunkenness was without the legal capacity to contract, the Government may elect to hold the soldier to service, subject to any application for discharge which may be addressed by himself or his parent, etc., either to the Secretary of War or to a United

As to what constitutes faithful service within the meaning of this statute, see note to paragraph 1373, post. This section operates to repeal section 1119, Revised Statutes, and section 2 of the act of June 16, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 187), which fixed the term of enlistment in the Army at five years.

¹The additional pay given to soldiers by this section does not depend upon mere length of service, but upon two other conditions—an honorable discharge and a voluntary reenlistment. Webb v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cls., 58. It is intended, primarily, to be an inducement to the prompt reenlistment of an honorably discharged soldier, and it can be earned in no other way. Ibid.

The act of June 16, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 157), contained the provision "that the Secretary of War shall determine what misconduct shall constitute a failure to render honest and faithful service within the meaning of this act. But no soldier who has deserted at any time during the term of an enlistment shall be deemed to have served such term honestly and faithfully." Under the authority conferred by this statute the Secretary of War has decided that in the following cases there has been a failure to render honest and faithful service:

(1) Desertion.

(2) When the soldier is in confinement under a general court-martial sentence expressly imposing imprisonment until or beyond the expiration of his term; when discharged under sentence of general court-martial; when discharged by order from the War Department specifying forfeiture, or because of imprisonment by the civil authority.

(3) When the soldier is discharged for minority concealed at enlistment, or for other cause involving fraud in enlistment, or for disability caused by his misconduct.

(4) Upon the approved finding of a board of officers, called under paragraph 148, that the soldier has not served honestly and faithfully to the date of discharge.

The cause of forfeiture will be stated on the muster and pay rolls and on the final statements of the soldier.

Furloughs.
11 Art. War.

¹ This section repeals and replaces the requirement of the act of February 27, 1893 (27 Stat. L., 486), "that hereafter, in time of peace no recruit shall be enlisted in the Army for the first time who is over 30 years of age, and no private shall be reenlisted who has served ten years or more, or who is over 35 years of age, except such as have already served as enlisted men for twenty years or upward."

²TRANSFER OF ENLISTED MEN.

Transfers of enlisted men will be made for cogent reasons only. They will be effected as follows:

(1) From one company to another of the same regiment, not involving change of station, by the colonel. In cases involving change, then by the colonel with the consent of the department commander if change of station is within department limits.

(2) From one regiment to another, and between companies of the same regiment serving in different military departments, by the Commanding General of the Army.

(3) In all other cases, by the Secretary of War. Par. 125, A. R., 1901.

DETACHED SOLDIERS.

Enlisted men detached from their companies will be provided with descriptive lists showing the pay due them, the condition of their clothing allowance, and all information necessary to the settlement of their accounts with the Government should they be discharged. When it can be avoided, the descriptive list will not be intrusted to the soldier, but to an officer or noncommissioned officer, under whose charge he may be serving, or it may be forwarded by mail. The immediate commanding officer will note upon the descriptive lists the date and result of the last vaccination of each soldier. Par. 115, ibid.

grant furloughs, not exceeding thirty days at one time, to five per centum of the enlisted men, for good conduct in the line of duty, but subject to the approval of the commander of the forces of which said enlisted men form a part. Every company officer of a regiment, commanding any troop, battery, or company not in the field, or commanding in any garrison, fort, post, or barrack, may, in the absence of his field officer, grant furloughs to the enlisted men, for a time not exceeding twenty days in six months, and not to more than two persons to be absent at the same time.¹ Eleventh Article of War.

¹Furloughs in the prescribed form for periods of twenty days may be granted to enlisted men by commanding officers of posts, or by regimental commanders if the companies to which they belong are under their control. A furlough will not be granted to a soldier about to be discharged. Par. 116, A. R., 1901

Corps or department commanders may grant furloughs to enlisted men, sergeants of the post noncommissioned staff excepted, for two months, and the Commanding General of the Army for four months, or they may extend to such periods furloughs already granted. For a longer period than four months the authority of the Secretary of War is necessary. Permission to delay may be granted to enlisted men traveling under orders as authorized for furloughs. The conditions under which furloughs to soldiers on reenlistment are authorized will be announced from time to time in orders. Par. 117, ibid; G. O., 23, A. G. O., 1899.

Furloughs to sergeants of the post noncommissioned staff or to enlisted men acting as such may be granted as follows: By a post commander for seven days, in case of emergency only; by a department commander for one month. Application for furlough for a longer period will be forwarded to the Adjutant-General of the Army for the decision of the Secretary of War. Par. 119, ibid.

Furloughs will not be granted by commanding officers permitting soldiers to go beyond the limits of the next higher command. To enable them to pass such limits the sanction of higher authority must be obtained and indorsed on the furloughs. The approval of the Secretary of War must be obtained to allow an enlisted man on furlough to leave the United States. The limits prescribed will be stated in the furlough, and if exceeded it may be revoked and the soldier arrested. A company commander in forwarding an application for furlough will state previous absences on furlough and the authority therefor. Par. 120, ibid.

On the application of a soldier on furlough, made at the nearest military station and showing clearly the urgency of his case, a department commander may order transportation and subsistence to be furnished to enable him to rejoin his proper station, and the company commander will charge the cost thereof against the soldier's pay on the next muster and pay roll, in accordance with paragraphs 1203 and 1422. The date of the application will be entered on the furlough. Par. 121, ibid.

A soldier who has returned from furlough to the station from which furloughed, his company having in his absence changed station, is entitled to transportation at the expense of the Government to the new station of his company. Par. 111, ibid, 1895.

Soldiers on furlough will not take with them their arms or accouterments, and no payments will be made to them without authority from the Secretary of War. Par. 124, ibid. For orders in respect to sick furloughs to enlisted men of the volunteer forces see G. O., 114, 121, 130, 134, 139, 148, 168, 170, 173, and 175, A. G. O., 1898; Circulars 34, 39, 41, and 48, A. G. O., 1898.

Section 2 of the act of June 16, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 157), contained the requirement that "at the end of three years from the date of his enlistment every soldier whose antecedent service has been faithful shall be entitled to receive a furlough for three months, and that in time of peace he shall at the end of such furlough be entitled to receive his discharge upon his own application: Provided further, That soldiers discharged under the provisions of this section shall not be entitled to the allowances provided in section twelve hundred and ninety of the Revised Statutes." See, however, in this connection section 2 of the act of August 1, 1894 (paragraph 1370, ante), which reduced the length of the term of enlistment in time of peace to three years. Section 2 of the act of June 16, 1890, ceased to be operative as to furloughs on August 1, 1897, and as to discharges at expiration of furlough on November 1, 1897.

1380. If said enlisted man had war service with the Army in the field, or in the Navy or Marine Corps in active service, either as volunteer or regular, during the war of the rebellion, such war service shall be computed as double time in computing the thirty years necessary to entitle him to be retired.¹ Act of September 30, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 504).

War service, etc., to be computed as double time.

Sept. 30, 1890, v. 26, p. 504.

An enlisted man on the retired list is subject to trial by court-martial, and to dishonorable discharge by sentence, if such be adjudged. But the existing law, in entitling him to be retired if he complies with its conditions, evidently contemplates that he shall remain a pensioner on the bounty of the Government during the remainder of his life, if not forfeiting his claim by serious misconduct. So, held that retired enlisted men could not legally be discharged by Executive order under the Fourth Article of War, which contemplates soldiers on the active list only. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2218.

Held, in the absence of any legislation to the contrary, that retired enlisted men, like retired officers, might legally be employed in any Department of the Government as clerks, messengers, watchmen, etc., and receive pay for such employment, while at the same time retaining their positions on the retired list and receiving retired pay. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2219.

The act of February 14, 1885 (23 Stat. L., 305), entitles a retired enlisted man to three-fourths of his service ration. He is not entitled to commutation for things which, in active service, he enjoys only in common with others, such as medicine, medical services, fuel, and quarters. McKenna v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cls. 308.

The authorized pay and allowances of retired enlisted men will be paid them monthly by the Pay Department. Their pay will be three-fourths of the monthly pay allowed them by law in the grade held when retired, including reenlisted and continuous-service pay then received. No deduction will be made except the monthly tax of 12½ cents for the support of the Soldiers' Home. They are not entitled to commutation for fuel or quarters, but will receive commutation for subsistence and clothing as follows:

For subsistence.—At the rate of 22½ cents per day.

For clothing.—Three-fourths of the average annual allowance prescribed in orders for an entire enlistment in the grade from which retired, one-twelfth of such amount to be paid monthly. The allowance of clothing to chief musicians is the same as that to quartermaster-sergeants. Par. 149, A. R., 1901.

No enlisted man, duly sworn, shall be discharged from the service without a discharge in writing, signed by a field officer of the regiment to which he belongs, or by the commanding officer, when no field officer is present; and no discharge shall be given to any enlisted man before his term of service has expired, except by order of the President, the Secretary of War, the commanding officer of a department, or by sentence of a general court-martial.¹

Upon the retirement of an enlisted man from active service he is entitled to transportation in kind to the place of his enlistment or to his home. Section 1290, Revised Statutes, does not apply to enlisted men transferred to the retired list, in that they are not discharged. 3 Dig. 2nd Compt. Dec., par. 874; U. S. v. Tyler, 105 U. S., 244.

1. By order of the President or Secretary of War.

2. By sentence of a general court-martial.

3. On certificate of disability, by direction of the commander of a territorial department or army in the field; but when the disability of a soldier is caused by disease contracted before enlistment, or by his own misconduct or bad habits, discharge will be ordered only by the Secretary of War.

The act of March 16, 1896 (29 Stat. L., 63), contains the requirement "that no enlisted man discharged by order of the Secretary of War for disability caused by his own misconduct shall be entitled to the travel allowances provided for in section 1290 of the Revised Statutes."

When an enlisted man is discharged, his company commander will furnish him with final statements in duplicate or a full statement in writing of the reasons why such final statements are not furnished. Final statements will not be furnished a soldier who has forfeited all pay and allowances and has no deposits due him. When the discharge is made on certificate of disability, the ascertained disability as recited in the certificate must be given in the final statements as the reason or cause for discharge. ¹ DISHONORABLE DISCHARGE.

A dishonorable discharge from the service is a complete expulsion from the Army and covers all unexpired enlistments. Par. 168, A. R., 1901.

A dishonorable discharge is a discharge expressly imposed as a punishment by sentence. Such a discharge is held also to be involved in a sentence "to be drummed out of the service." It is only by a sentence that a dishonorable discharge can be authorized. Being a punishment, it cannot be prescribed by an Order. In a case of this discharge, the word "dishonorably" is inserted before the word "discharged" in the certificate, and it is added that the discharge is given pursuant to the sentence of a certain general court-martial, specifying it by reference to the order by which it was constituted. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 361, par. 25.

Held that an executed dishonorable discharge was an absolute expulsion from the Army, and as such did not merely terminate the particular enlistment, but covered all previous unexecuted enlistments of the soldier, if any. A soldier sentenced to a dishonorable discharge, duly approved and executed, can not be made amenable for a desertion committed under a prior enlistment. Ibid., par. 26.

The discharge of a soldier, discharged not by reason of the expiration of his term of enlistment, but under a sentence of court-martial, should be dated as of the day on which the approval of the sentence is officially published, or the order promulgating such approval is received, at the post where the soldier is held. It is to that date that he is to be paid, if pay is due him. Ibid., 359, par. 16.

The formal certificate of discharge, furnished in blank by the Adjutant-General (see par. 151, A. R.), is, when duly made out and signed, legal evidence of the fact of discharge, and of the circumstances therein stated, under which it was given. The certificate is not a record, and its statements are not conclusive upon the Government when contradicted by record or other better evidence. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 358, par. 13.

The discharge furnished to the soldier, or for him, takes effect, like a deed, upon delivery. The delivery should be personal, unless, at its date, the soldier is in confinement awaiting trial or under sentence; in such case the delivery may be constructive, the certificate being committed to the commander of the company, post, etc., to be retained by him for the soldier until released from arrest or imprisonment, and then rendered to him personally. This is the recognized practice; the delivery to the commander being deemed tantamount to actual delivery. Ibid., par. 14.

A soldier should not be furnished with his formal discharge on the day of the expiration of his term if he is then awaiting sentence of court-martial. No soldier in such a status can be entitled to his discharge till the result of his trial be published. Ibid., 359, par. 15.

Any form of discharge other than such as is prescribed in the fourth Article of War is irregular and inoperative (unless indeed otherwise authorized by subsequent statute). Mere desertion does not operate as a discharge of a soldier; he may then be dropped from the rolls of his command, but he is in no sense discharged from the Army. Nor can an official publication, in orders, of a sentence of dishonorable discharge have the effect of discharging a soldier; there must still be a notice, actual, as by the delivery of the formal discharge certificate, or constructive, of the formal discharge. A soldier can not discharge himself by simply leaving the service at the expiration of his term. The final statements required by paragraph 141, A. R., to be furnished with the discharge, constitute no part of the discharge; the discharge is complete without them. Ibid., par. 17.

The purchase money to be paid under this section shall be paid to a paymaster of the Army and be deposited to the credit of one or more of the current appropriations for the support of the Army, to be indicated by the Secretary of War, and be available for the payment of expenses incurred during the fiscal year in which the discharge is made.¹ Sec. 4, act of June 16, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 157).

Discharge certificates will not be made in duplicate. Upon satisfactory proof of the loss of a discharge or of its destruction without the fault of the party entitled to it, the War Department may issue to such party a certificate of service, showing date of enlistment in and discharge from the Army and character given on discharge certificate. Discharge certificates must not be forwarded to the War Department in correspondence unless called for. Par. 155, A. R., 1901.

Blank forms for discharge and final statements will be furnished by the Adjutant-General of the Army, and will be retained in the personal custody of company commanders; those for discharge will be of three classes: For honorable and for dishonorable discharge and for discharge without honor. They will be used as follows:

(1) The parchment discharge blank, for honorable discharge only, and the word "honorably" will be interlined in the old blanks when used.

(2) The blank for dishonorable discharge, for such discharge alone.

(3) The blank for discharge without honor when a soldier is discharged:

(a) Without trial, on account of fraudulent enlistment.

(b) Without trial, on account of having become disqualified for service, physically or in character, through his own fault.

(c) On account of imprisonment under sentence of a civil court.

(d) On account of being at the expiration of his term of enlistment in confinement under the sentence of a general court-martial which does not provide for dishonorable discharge.

(e) When discharge without honor is specially ordered by the Secretary of War for any other reason. Par. 167, ibid.

An enlisted man remains in service until receipt of his discharge, or until such action is taken as will render him legally chargeable with notice thereof, notwithstanding the expiration of his term of enlistment during his absence on a furlough granted at his own request. 2 Compt. Dec., 94.

The act of June 16, 1890, section 4, leaves it to the President, "in his discretion," to determine the amount to be paid for the discharge, the time of payment, etc., and, indeed, whether the purchase shall be permitted at all. But it specifically declares that the money when paid "shall be paid to a paymaster of the Army;" and, in view of this express provision, held that payments could not legally be made to post, regimental, company, or other commanders. The paymaster, a bonded official, is appointed to receive payment in the first instance and thereupon make the deposit directed in the act. Ibid., par. 33.

Held that there was no legal authority for the refunding, by the military authorities, of money paid to purchase a discharge under the act of June 16, 1890. This clearly appears from the terms of the act, which provides that the money, when paid, "shall be deposited in the Treasury" to the credit of some current appropriation, to be designated by the Secretary of War, to be "available for the payment of expenses incurred during the fiscal year in which the discharge is made." The act moreover authorizes the President to permit such purchases "under such rules and upon such conditions as he shall prescribe," and nothing is found in the rules actually prescribed (in General Orders 81, 108 of 1890, 48 of 1891, 32 of 1892, or 17 of 1893) which contemplates or refers to the refunding of such purchase money. Ibid., par. 1174.

In time of peace a soldier serving in the second year or first six months of the third year of his first enlistment may apply to the Adjutant-General of the Army through military channels for the privilege of purchasing his discharge, but such application will not be entertained unless based on satisfactory reasons fully set forth by the applicant and verified by the officer forwarding the application, nor unless accompanied by a statement of the soldier's immediate commanding officer showing the condition of his accounts. If such application be granted the purchase price will be entered on the final statements as an item due the United States. A soldier once discharged by purchase will not be granted that favor a second time. A soldier serving in the second or any enlistment, but not receiving continuous service or reenlisted pay, is not debarred from discharge by purchase. The price of purchase in the first month of the second year will be $120, and will be $5 less in each succeeding month of the period during which purchase may be authorized. Par. 156, A. R., 1901.

Enlisted men who have served meritoriously twelve years or more, continuously or otherwise, will be classified as veteran soldiers. If it be for their material benefit, discharge may be granted them by the Secretary of War by way of favor as veterans. A soldier once discharged as a veteran will not be discharged again by way of favor. Par. 157, ibid.

Soldiers discharged as provided in paragraph 156 will not receive travel allowances. Par. 158, ibid.

A soldier who has obtained his discharge by purchase under the provisions of section 4, act of June 16, 1890, is not entitled to recover the money paid for said discharge in pursuance of law. 2 Compt. The accounting officers have no authority to review the action of the War Department refusing to discharge the soldier for disability and requiring him to purchase his discharge as a condition precedent to his release from service. 2 Compt. Dec., 546. See also pars. 936 and 1547, A. R., 1901; circ. 13, A. G. O., 1895; circ. 7, A. G. O., 1896, and circs. 38 and 40, A. G. O., 1898.

DISCHARGE FOR DISABILITY.

When an enlisted man is permanently unfitted for military service because of wounds or disease, he should, if practicable, be discharged on certificate of disability before the expiration of the term of service in which the disability was incurred. Blank forms will be furnished by the Adjutant-General of the Army, and the directions thereon will be strictly complied with. Par. 171, A. R., 1901.

When physical disability does not appear to be permanent, was incurred in line of duty, and benefit may be expected from a change of climate, a report of the case will be forwarded for the action of the Commanding General of the Army. The soldier will not be transferred to another company. In cases likely to be benefited by treatment in the Army and Navy General Hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., the application required by the regulations for admission thereto will be made. A

When an application for discharge is approved, the post or regimental commander will furnish to the surgeon by whom the certificate was given, or to the senior surgeon of the command to which the soldier was attached at the time of his discharge, a letter setting forth the full name and rank of the soldier, the company and regiment to which he belonged, the date of discharge, and the cause thereof as stated in the certificate. The surgeon, having made a true copy of the letter for the completion of his own records, will forward the original to the Surgeon-General direct. Par. 173, ibid.

When there is a probable case for pension, special care will be taken to state in the certificate the degree of disability, to describe particularly the disability, wound, or disease, the extent to which it deprives the soldier of the use of any limb or faculty, or affects his health, strength, activity, constitution, or capacity to labor. Par. 174, ibid.

Discharge certificates must not be forwarded to the War Department in correspondence unless called for. Par. 155, A. R., 1901.

The discharge certificates authorized to be issued under the provisions of these statutes is not to be confounded with the certificate denominated a "deserter's release," the issue of which is authorized in certain cases by G. O. 55, A. G. O., 1890 (26 Stat. L., 54). See note to paragraph 1411, post.

No noncommissioned officer or soldier shall enlist himself in any other regiment, troop, or company without a regular discharge from the regiment, troop, or company in which he last served, on a penalty of being reputed a deserter, and suffering accordingly. And in case any officer shall knowingly receive and entertain such noncommissioned officer or soldier, or shall not, after his being discovered to be a deserter, immediately confine him and give notice thereof to the corps in which he last served, the said officer shall, by a court-martial, be cashiered. Fiftieth Article of War.

Desertion is an unauthorized absenting of himself from the military service by an officer or soldier with the intention of not returning. In other words, it is the violation of military discipline familiarly known as absence without leave (whether consisting in an original absenting without authority or in an overstaying of a defined leave of absence), accompanied by an animus remanendi or non revertendi, this animus constituting the gist of the offense. In order to establish the commission of the specific offense both these elements—the fact of the unauthorized voluntary withdrawal and the intent permanently to abandon the service—must be proved. The intent may be inferred not indeed from the fact of absenting alone, but from the circumstances attending this fact, and here the duration of the absence is especially material. Thus the circumstance that the absence has been exceptionally protracted and quite unexplained will in general furnish a presumption of the existence of the necessary intent. An unauthorized absence, however, of a few hours, terminated by a forcible apprehension, may, under certain situations, be sufficient evidence of such intent, and thus proof of a desertion; while an absence for a considerable interval, unattended by circumstances indicating a purpose to separate permanently from the service, or to dissolve the pending engagement of the soldier, may be proof simply of the minor included offense. In order to determine whether or not the officer or soldier absented himself with the intent not to return, i. e., whether his offense was desertion or absence without leave, all the circumstances connected with his leaving, absence, and return (whether compulsory or voluntary) must be considered together. Each case must be governed by its own peculiar facts, and no general rule on the subject can be laid down. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1053.

No man will be reported a deserter until after the expiration of ten days (should he remain away that length of time), unless the company commander has conclusive evidence of the absentee's intention not to return; but the commanding officers will take steps to apprehend soldiers absent without leave as soon as that fact is reported. Should the soldier not return, or not be apprehended, within the time named, his desertion will date from the commencement of the unauthorized absence. An absence without leave of less than one day will not be noted upon the muster and pay rolls. Par. 144, A. R., 1901.

When a deserter surrenders or is delivered at a military post, the post commander will cause immediate inquiry to be made in regard to dates of enlistment and desertion, and if these indicate that trial is barred by law, and the deserter claims to have been within the limits of the United States during two years of his absence in desertion and there is no attainable evidence in disproof thereof, will require him to file an affidavit asserting his claim, will immediately set him at liberty with instructions to apply by letter to the Adjutant-General of the Army for a "deserter's release," and will then report his action to the Adjutant-General of the Army, transmitting with the report the affidavit above mentioned. Par. 131, ibid.

An enlisted man apprehended or surrendering as a deserter, and whose trial for desertion is not barred by the statute of limitations, will be examined by a medical officer at the post where he is received, and a report of this examination will be forwarded to department headquarters. If, on account of disease, age, or other permanent disability, the man is found unfit for service, the report, with the department commander's recommendation thereon, will be forwarded to the Adjutant-General of the Army. If the examination shows that the man is fit for service the department commander will bring him to trial, or restore him to duty without trial, as the interests of the Government may dictate. Par. 132, ibid.

Deserters will be brought to trial with the least practicable delay. While awaiting trial they will receive no pay, nor will they be permitted to sign pay rolls, and will be required to wear the clothes worn at the time of arrest, unless it should be imperative to issue other clothing, when, as far as practicable, only deserters' or other unserviceable clothing will be issued. Par. 140, ibid.

A deserter will not be restored to duty without trial, except by authority competent to order his trial. Such restoration does not remove the charge of desertion, nor relieve the soldier from any of the forfeitures attached to that offense. He must make good the time lost by desertion, refund the reward and expenses paid for apprehension and delivery, and forfeit pay while absent. Par. 132, A. R., 1895.

DISPOSITION OF EFFECTS OF DESERTERS.

The clothing abandoned by a deserter will be turned over to the quartermaster with a certificate from the company or detachment commander showing its condition and the name of the deserter to whom it belonged. All other personal effects of a deserter will be disposed of as in the case of unclaimed effects of deceased soldiers. Par. 141, A. R., 1901.

¹The forfeiture of pay and allowances prescribed for deserters by paragraphs 126, 130, and 132 of the Army Regulations of 1895 can be imposed, in any case, only upon a satisfactory ascertainment of the fact of desertion. The same may indeed legally be enforced in the absence of an investigation by a military court, as, for instance, upon the restoration to duty without trial, by the order of competent authority, under paragraph 128 of the Army Regulations, of a deserter as such. But in general, in this case equally as in that of the statutory liability, the forfeiture can safely be applied only upon the trial and conviction by court-martial of the alleged deserter. The conviction must, of course, be duly approved; if it be disapproved, the soldier can not legally be subjected to the forfeiture, since he can not be treated as a deserter in law. Nor can he be subjected to the forfeiture if he is acquitted, though the finding be disapproved by the reviewing authority. A removal, in orders of the War Department, of a charge of desertion entered by mistake upon the rolls against a soldier, operates to relieve him of any and all stoppages which have been charged against his pay account for forfeitures authorized by the Army Regulations in cases of deserters. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., 342, par. 9.

A deserter can not legally be subjected to any forfeiture other than those prescribed by statute or army regulation. He incurs, for example, no forfeiture of his own personal property. So, where it was proposed to sell certain private property belonging to and left by a deserter and devote the proceeds to the post fund, held that there was no legal authority for such appropriation by the military authorities. So a soldier, by reason of having deserted, does not forfeit bounty money which has been paid him upon enlistment or subsequently, or any other money found in his possession upon his arrest. And such money can not legally be withheld from him to be appropriated to a regimental or post fund or any other purpose, but being his own personal property, unaffected by his offense, must be treated as such. Ibid., par. 1064.

²A deserter will make good the time lost by desertion, unless discharged by competent authority. He will be considered again in service upon his return to military control; but if a deserter enlists while in desertion, his services under such unlawful enlistment will not be counted as making good any of the time lost by desertion. Par. 142, A. R., 1901. See 48th article of war.

in the discretion of the Secretary of War, be paid to any officer or citizen for such services and expenses.¹ Act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 1070).

¹ The actual payment of the compensation in such cases is authorized by the annual army appropriation acts, which, in appropriating for the incidental expenses of the Quartermaster's Department, include as an item—"for the apprehension, securing, and delivering of deserters, and the expenses incident to their pursuit." Prior to the act of August 6, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 239), the maximum reward for the apprehension and delivery of a deserter from the military service was fixed at $30. The act of August 6, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 239), fixed the maximum amount of such reward at $10, and this provision was repeated in the acts of February 12, 1895 (28 Stat. L., 659); March 16, 1896, 29 ibid., 65; March 2, 1897, ibid., 614, and March 16, 1898, 30 ibid., 30. Under the authority conferred by the above statute the following regulation was promulgated by the Secretary of War in G. O. 160, A. G. O., 1899:

A reward of $30 will be paid to any civil officer having authority for the apprehension and delivery to the proper military authorities at a military station (or at some convenient point as near thereto as may be agreed upon) of any deserter from the military service, except such as can claim exemption from trial under the statute of limitations, and such officer will also be reimbursed for actual cost of tickets over the shortest usually traveled route for himself to and from such station or point and for the deserter to such station or point not to exceed $20. The reward and actual cost of tickets will be paid by the Quartermaster's Department, and will be in full satisfaction of all expenses for arresting, keeping, and delivering the deserter. The payment will be reported to the commander of the company or detachment to which the deserter belongs. Par. 135, A. R., 1901.

Rewards or expenses paid for apprehending a deserter, and the expenses incurred in transporting him from point of apprehension, delivery, or surrender to the station of his company or detachment, or to the place of his trial, including the cost of transportation of the guard, will be set against his pay upon conviction of desertion by a court-martial, or upon his restoration to duty without trial. A soldier convicted by a court-martial of absence without leave will be charged with the expense incurred in transporting him to his proper station. The transportation and subsistence of witnesses will not be charged against a deserter. Par. 137, ibid.

If a soldier be brought to trial under a charge of desertion and acquitted, or convicted of absence without leave only, or if the sentence be disapproved by proper authority, any amount paid as a reward for his arrest will not be stopped against his pay unless, in case of conviction of absence without leave, the sentence of the court shall so direct. Par. 138, ibid.

The reward of $30, made payable by paragraph 156, Army Regulations, 1863, is not due merely on the apprehension of a deserter; he must also be delivered "to an officer of the Army at the most convenient post or recruiting station." The fact of the offer of a reward for the arrest of a deserter does not authorize a breach of the peace or commission of an illegal act in making the arrest. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1071 and note.

The amount of the reward and reimbursement provided for in G. O. 160, A. G. O., 1899, are there stated to be "in full satisfaction of all expenses for arresting, keeping, and delivering the deserter." Disbursements made by a civilian, where no arrest is effected, are at his own risk, and can not legally be reimbursed by the military authorities. Ibid., par. 1072.

The legal liability imposed upon the soldier by paragraph 137, Army Regulations, 1901, to have the amount of the reward stopped against his pay, is quite independent of the punishment which may be imposed upon him by sentence of court-martial on conviction of the desertion. Such stoppage need not be directed in the sentence; courts-martial indeed have sometimes assumed to impose it, like an ordinary forfeiture of pay, but its insertion in the sentence adds nothing to its legal effect. Ibid., par. 1073.

Where a soldier, charged with desertion, is acquitted, or where, if convicted, his conviction is disapproved by the competent reviewing authority, he can not legally be made liable for the amount of a reward paid or payable for his arrest as a deserter, since in such cases he is not a deserter in law. Ibid., par. 1074.

Where a soldier for whose apprehension as a supposed deserter the legal reward has been paid, is subsequently brought to trial upon a charge of desertion, and is found guilty not of desertion but only of the lesser and distinct offense of absence without leave, he clearly can not legally be held liable for the reward by a stoppage of the amount against his pay. In such a case, the instrumentality resorted to by

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS IN DESERTION.

Statute of limitation in desertion.

Apr. 11, 1890, v. 26, p. 54.

1411. No person shall be tried or punished by a court-martial for desertion in time of peace, and not in the face of an enemy, committed more than two years before the arraignment of such person for such offense, unless he shall the United States for determining the nature of his offense—the court-martial—having pronounced that it was not desertion, the Government is bound by the result, and to visit upon him a penalty to which a deserter only can be subject, would be grossly arbitrary and wholly unauthorized. Moreover, such action would be directly at variance with the terms of paragraph 137 of the Army Regulations of 1901, which fixes such liability upon the soldier tried in the event only of his conviction of desertion, unless indeed the sentence of the court expressly forfeits the amount. Ibid., par. 1075.

PAYMENT OF REWARDS.

To entitle a person (under paragraph 137, Army Regulations of 1901) to the reward for the arrest of a deserter, the party arrested must be still a soldier. Though, at the time of the arrest, the period of his term of enlistment may have expired, or he may be under sentence of dishonorable discharge, yet if he has not been discharged in fact, the official duly making the arrest, etc., on account of a desertion committed before the end of his term, becomes entitled to the payment of the reward specified in the regulations. Similarly held, where the soldier, arrested when at large as a deserter, had been sentenced to confinement (without discharge), and had escaped therefrom. Ibid., par. 1076.

The soldier arrested must be a deserter and legally liable as such. If he has been judicially determined to be not a deserter, as where he has been convicted of absence without leave only (see paragraph 126, Army Regulations); or, if, in view of the limitation of the one hundred and third article, he has a legal defense to a prosecution for desertion (General Orders 22 of 1893), the reward is not payable for his apprehension. Ibid., 347, par. 27. See also par. 127, A. R., 1895.

Where the soldier when arrested had been absent but three days, and was still in uniform, and had not been reported or dropped as a deserter, and his company commander had not the “conclusive evidence” of his “intention not to return,” referred to in paragraph 144, Army Regulations, 1901, held that there was not sufficient evidence that he was a deserter to justify the payment of the reward for his arrest and delivery. Ibid., par. 1078.

The arrest made must be a legal one. Thus held that the reward was not payable for an arrest made on the soil of Mexico, involving a violation of the territorial rights of that sovereignty. An act done in violation of law can not be the basis of a legal claim. Ibid., par. 1080.

Where the deserter was not arrested by, but surrendered himself to, the civil official, who in good faith took him into custody and securely held and duly delivered him—advised that there had been a substantial apprehension and that the reward was properly payable. [See Circular No. 1 (H. A.), 1886.] Ibid., par. 1081.

The delivery should be personal and manual on the part of the civil official. Where a soldier who had deserted was sentenced to a penitentiary as a horse thief, and at the end of his term of imprisonment a United States marshal caused information that he was a deserter to be conveyed to the commander of a neighboring military post, who thereupon had him arrested and brought to the post, held that the marshal was not entitled to claim the reward. Ibid., par. 1082.

So, where a civil official merely informed a captain of artillery that two soldiers serving in his battery were deserters from the battalion of engineers, held that, though such information was correct, the official was not entitled to the reward; and that the amount of the same, which had been erroneously paid him on the certificate of the captain, should be charged against the latter under paragraph 736, Army Regulations, 1901. Ibid., par. 1083.

The reward should be withheld where there is evidence of collusion between the alleged deserter and the civil official. Advised that a suspicion of such collusion was properly entertained in a case where the soldier, after an absence of but a few days, voluntarily surrendered himself, at or near the post of delivery, to a policeman, who turned him over, without expense or difficulty, to the military authorities who hid meanwhile have absented himself from the United States, in which case the time of his absence shall be excluded in computing the period of the limitation: Provided, That said limitation shall not begin until the end of the term for which said person was mustered into the service.¹ Act of April 11, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 54).

not treat him as a deserter but caused him to be charged, tried, and convicted as an absentee without leave only. Ibid., par. 1086.

An officer of the customs, empowered by law to make arrests of persons violating the revenue laws, but having no such general authority as is ordinarily possessed by peace officers "to arrest offenders" (according to the terms of the act of October 1, 1890, authorizing certain civil officials to arrest deserters)—held not entitled to be paid the regulation reward for the apprehension, etc., of a deserter from the Army. Ibid., par. 1087.

Held that a justice of the peace of Idaho was not, by the laws of that State, a peace officer or authorized to arrest offenders, and was therefore not within the terms of the act of October 1, 1890, or legally entitled to be paid the reward for the arrest, etc., of a deserter. Such justice may by his warrant authorize and thus cause arrests, but actual arrest pertains, under the laws of the State, to another class—sheriffs, constables, city marshals, and policemen. But held that a member of the Indian police, established under the regulations of the Indian Office, was a civil officer having authority to arrest offenders, and was entitled to the reward for the arrest of a deserter. Ibid., par. 1088.

Circular No. 11 (H. A.), 1883 declares that the reward shall not be paid where the deserter, at the time of arrest, "is serving in some other branch of the Army," etc. Thus held that the reward was not payable for the arrest of a deserter from the cavalry, who subsequently to his desertion, had enlisted in an infantry regiment in which he was serving at the date of the arrest. Ibid., par. 1091.

Where a civil official in good faith and in compliance with military instructions, made the arrest and delivery of a deserter, who, however, was of the class of deserters specified in General Orders 22 of 1893, viz, those who "would have the right to claim exemption from trial and punishment" under the present one hundred and third article of war—a fact not within the knowledge of the official and which he could not have ascertained, but who therefore had no legal claim for the payment of the reward—held that the reasonable expenses of such official incurred in the arrest, etc., might well be allowed by the Secretary of War out of the appropriation for the contingent expenses of the Army. But the civil official takes the risk of the soldier being or not being an actual deserter. If he turns out to be not one the official loses his time and disbursements, if any. Thus held that such official could have no claim to be reimbursed his expenses incurred in making, in good faith, the arrest of a supposed deserter who was in fact a dishonorably discharged soldier. Ibid., 349, par. 37.

A deserter is not chargeable, under paragraph 137, Army Regulations, 1901, with the expenses of transportation therein specified, if his conviction has been duly disapproved; such disapproval being tantamount to an acquittal. Ibid., par. 1067.

The expense of the transportation of a convicted deserter, incurred in the course of the execution of his sentence is not chargeable against the deserter under paragraph 137, Army Regulations of 1901, but must be borne by the United States. Ibid., par. 1068.

The "deserter's release" is intended for deserters in whose favor the limitation of the present one hundred and third article of war has fully run, and who therefore have a perfect defense to a prosecution. It was designed to secure them against proceedings for desertion and to obviate the expenses to which the Government might be put in the matter of their arrest and their trial. But it is not, and can not, in view of the provisions of article 4, serve as a discharge from the Army. The language of General Orders, 55, of 1890, which describes it as a release "from the Army," is therefore faulty. Ibid., par. 1101.

A deserter who has been once dishonorably discharged is not a subject for the "release"—does not belong to the class of persons for whom it is intended. It is designed for soldiers actually in service. It can not therefore now be given to one who was a soldier of a volunteer organization during the late war of the Rebellion. Nor can it be issued in a case of a soldier who has deceased. Ibid., par. 1102.

When a soldier is killed in action, or dies at any post, hospital, or station, it shall be the duty of his immediate commander to secure his effects and to prepare the inventory required by the one hundred and twenty-sixth article of war, according to prescribed form and to notify nearest relative of the fact of death. Duplicates of the inventory, with final statements, will be forwarded direct to the Adjutant-General of the Army. Par. 175, A. R., 1901.

¹Should the effects of a deceased soldier not be claimed within thirty days, they will be sold by a council of administration under the authority of the post commander, and the proceeds transferred to the commander of the company to which the deceased belonged, by whom they will be deposited with a paymaster to the credit of the United States. Duplicate receipts will be taken, one of which will be sent direct to the Adjutant-General of the Army and the other retained with the company records. Par. 176, A. R., 1901.

In all cases of sale by a council of administration, a detailed statement of the proceeds, duly certified by the council and commanding officer, will accompany the paymaster's receipt forwarded by the company commander to the Adjutant-General of the Army. The statement will be indorsed: "Report of the proceeds of the effects of _____, late of Company _____, _____ Regiment of _____, who died at _____, the _____ day of _____, _____." Par. 177, Ibid.

The effects will be delivered, when called for, to the legal representatives of the deceased, and the receipts therefor forwarded to the Adjutant-General of the Army. Applications for arrears of pay and proceeds of sale of effects of deceased soldiers should be addressed to the Auditor for the War Department, Washington, D. C., who settles such accounts. Par. 178, ibid.

In the settlement of the accounts of deceased soldiers, the accounting officers dispense with administration, and, as it were, administer themselves, paying to the persons entitled such amounts as may be found to be due the deceased in a final settlement of his accounts with the United States. 3 Compt. FUNERAL EXPENSES.

The remains of deceased soldiers will be decently inclosed in coffins and transported by the Quartermaster's Department to the nearest military post or national cemetery for burial unless the commanding officer deem burial at the place of death to be proper, when a report of the fact will be made to the Adjutant-General of the Army. The expense of transporting the remains is payable from the appropriation for Army transportation; other expenses of burial are limited to $15 for noncommissioned officers and $10 for private soldiers. The annual acts of appropriation since that of August 8, 1846 (9 Stat. L., 68), have contained provision for the expenses of interment of noncommissioned officers and soldiers. The act of July 8, 1898 (30 Stat. In accordance with the authority conferred by the act of August 3, 1861, the six mounted regiments of the Army were consolidated into one corps and designated as follows:

The First Regiment of Dragoons, as the First Cavalry.

The Second Regiment of Dragoons, as the Second Cavalry.

The Regiment of Mounted Riflemen, as the Third Cavalry.

The First Regiment of Cavalry, as the Fourth Cavalry.

The Second Regiment of Cavalry, as the Fifth Cavalry.

The Third Regiment of Cavalry, as the Sixth Cavalry.

Four regiments of cavalry, the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, and Tenth, the Ninth and Tenth composed of colored men, were added to the establishment under the authority conferred by the act of July 28, 1866 (14 Stat. ¹ THE REGIMENTAL, SQUADRON, AND BATTALION STAFF.

The staff of a regiment consists of the adjutant, the quartermaster, and the commissary, and they will be so designated respectively. They will be appointed by the regimental commander, who will at once report his action to the Adjutant-General by telegraph; the appointment of the quartermaster and commissary to be made subject to the approval of the Secretary of War. These appointments will not be antedated and will take effect on the day on which actually made. An officer will be entitled to the pay pertaining to his appointment from the date he enters upon duty under it. Squadron and battalion adjutants of cavalry and infantry will be appointed by the regimental commander upon the recommendation of the squadron and battalion commanders.

The adjutant, quartermaster, and commissary may hold office for four years, and the squadron and battalion adjutants and quartermasters for two years and no longer. They will not be eligible for a second tour of such duty, nor for appointment or reappointment to either position, except to serve an unexpired term of four or two years; but the time an adjutant or quartermaster of a regiment may have previously served as such, with the rank of lieutenant, and any period an officer may have served as squadron or battalion adjutant, will not be included in computing the four years for which he may hold the office of a regimental staff officer. Par. 234, A. R. 1895 (Par. 260, A. R. 1901), G. O. No. 16, A. G. O., 1899.

Staff appointments in a regiment are restricted to officers on duty with the regiment and who are not serving at a school of instruction. Should the regimental commander desire to appoint an officer absent from the regiment, he may apply for orders for such officer to join; but the officer must join before the appointment can be made. Par. 262, A. R. 1901, G. O. No. 116, A. G. O., 1899. Medical officers are no longer attached to regiments on the peace establishment.

Since 1883 companies of cavalry have been designated as troops. Circulars 8 and 9, A. G. O., of 1883. By General Orders, No. 79 and 120, of 1890, the enlisted men of Troops L and N of each regiment of cavalry were distributed among the other troops. By General Orders, No. 27, of 1898, issued at the outbreak of the war with Spain, the skeletonized troops were reestablished and restored to the status occupied by them prior to the skeletonization in 1890.

¹ At the general reduction of the Army, effected in pursuance of the act of March 2, 1821 (3 Stat. L., 615), the artillery was consolidated into four regiments of nine companies each, one of which, in each regiment, was to be designated and equipped as light artillery. The Ordnance Department was merged in the artillery, a supernumerary captain, for ordnance duty, was added to each regiment, and the President was authorized "to select from the regiments of artillery such officers as may be necessary to perform ordnance duties who, while so detached, shall be subject only to the orders of the War Department." The Ordnance Department was separated from the artillery by the act of May 25, 1832 (4 Stat. L., 605). One company was added to each regiment by the act of July 5, 1838 (5 Stat. L., 256), and two companies by section 18 of the act of March 3, 1847 (9 Stat. L., 184), making twelve companies in all. The act of March 3, 1847, authorized the President to designate an additional company in each regiment to be armed and equipped as light artillery. The fifth regiment was added, as a regiment of light artillery, by order of the President, on May 5, 1861, the organization being confirmed by the act of July 29, 1861 (12 Stat. L., 279). The sixth and seventh regiments were added, and the organization of the first five regiments modified, by the act of March 8, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 261). This section replaces sections 1099–1101, Revised Statutes, the act of March 8, 1898 (30 ibid., 261), and section 3, act of March 2, 1899 (ibid., 977).

1449. Battalion adjutants shall receive one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum, and the allowances of first lieutenants mounted; battalion quartermasters and commissaries shall receive one thousand six hundred dol-ized by the act of March 3, 1855 (10 Stat. L., 701). The Eleventh to the Nineteenth regiments, inclusive, were organized by order of the President on May 4, 1861, the organization being confirmed by the act of July 29, 1861 (12 Stat. L., 279). Twenty-five regiments, from the Twentieth to the Forty-fifth, inclusive, were authorized by the act of July 28, 1866, of which four, from the Thirty-eighth to the Forty-first, inclusive, were to be composed of colored men, and four, from the Forty-second to the Forty-fifth, inclusive, were to be composed of men who had been wounded in the line of duty and were to constitute a Veteran Reserve Corps. At the reduction effected in pursuance of section 2 of the act of March 3, 1869 (15 Stat. L., 318), the number of infantry regiments was reduced to twenty-five. In effecting the consolidation required by the act above cited, the designations of the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Twentieth, and Twenty-third regiments were not changed; the Eleventh Regiment was formed, by consolidation, from the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-ninth; the Fourteenth from the Fourteenth and Forty-fifth; the Fifteenth from the Fifteenth and Thirty-fifth; the Sixteenth from the Eleventh and Thirty-fourth; the Seventeenth from the Seventeenth and Forty-fourth; the Eighteenth from the Eighteenth and Twenty-fifth; the Nineteenth from the Nineteenth and Twenty-eighth; the Twenty-first from the Twenty-first and Thirty-second; the Twenty-second from the Twenty-second and Thirty-first; the Twenty-fourth from the Thirty-eighth and Forty-first; the Twenty-fifth from the Thirty-ninth and Fortieth. Five new regiments, from the Twenty-sixth to the Thirtieth, inclusive, were added by section 10, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 750).

The regiments organized prior to the 4th of May, 1861, were composed of ten companies each; those organized by Executive order of that date were each composed of three battalions of eight companies each. The organization prescribed by the act of July 28, 1866, fixed the organization of an infantry regiment at ten companies, of a cavalry regiment at twelve companies, and a regiment of artillery at the same number.

By the act of April 26, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 364), a battalion organization was adopted for the infantry, each regiment being composed of two battalions of four companies each, and of two skeleton, or unmanned companies. Upon a declaration of war by Congress, the President was authorized to organize a third battalion, to be composed of the two skeleton companies and two additional companies. By section 4 of the act of March 2, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 977), the regimental organization of infantry was made to consist of three battalions of four companies each; by section 15 of the same enactment, however, the regimental organization, as it existed on April 1, 1898, was required to be restored by the discharge of supernumerary officers and enlisted men. The artillery regiments were exempted from this reduction.

² The office of professor of natural and experimental philosophy was established by section 2 of the act of April 29, 1802 (2 Stat. L., 702).

³ The office of professor of mathematics was established by section 2 of the act of April 29, 1802 (2 Stat. L., 702).

⁴ The office of professor of chemistry, mineralogy, and geology was established by section 19 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 Stat. L., 259).

⁶ The office of teacher of French, first established by Executive regulation, received statutory recognition in section 2 of the act of April 29, 1802 (2 Stat., L., 702). The office of professor of French was established by section 3 of the act of August 8, 1846 (9 Stat. L., 161). The act of June 20, 1879 (21 Stat. L., 34), contained the requirement that "when a vacancy occurs in the office of professor of the French language or in the office of professor of the Spanish language in the Military Academy, both these offices shall cease, and the remaining one of the two professors shall be professor of modern languages; and thereafter there shall be in the Military Academy one, and only one, professor of modern languages." On June, 30, 1882, a vacancy having occurred in the office of professor of Spanish, the statute became operative and the offices of professor of French and professor of Spanish were merged, by operation of law, in the office of professor of modern languages. The office of professor of Spanish, created by section 2 of the act of February 15, 1857 (11 Stat. L., 161), ceased to exist, by operation of law, on June 30, 1882, having been merged in the office of professor of modern languages in conformity to section 4 of the act of June 20, 1879 (21 Stat. L., 34).

¹ The act of June 30, 1882 (22 Stat. L., 123), contained the requirement that no graduate of the Military Academy should be assigned or detailed to serve as a professor, instructor, or assistant to either, within four years after his graduation.

The act of June 20, 1840 (5 Stat. L., 398), contained the requirement that the commander of the corps of cadets should be either the instructor of infantry tactics, of cavalry or artillery tactics, or of practical engineering; and his pay and emoluments were in no case to be less than those allowed by law to the professor of mathematics. By the act of June 12, 1858 (11, ibid., 333), the pay of this officer was fixed at that of a lieutenant-colonel.

Residents and visitors at the Academy. No person can be entitled, as a matter of right, to enter within the limits of this post unless he be authorized to do so by the laws of the United States, or by some officer having authority under the law to grant permission to enter such limits. The Superintendent of the Academy, as commandant of this post, has a general authority to prevent any person in civil life residing permanently or temporarily at the post, or occasionally resorting to the post, from interrupting its discipline, or obstructing in any way the performance of the duties assigned by law to the officers and cadets. In the exercise of a sound discretion, the commandant of the post may therefore order from it any person not attached to it by law whose presence is, in his judgment, injurious to the interests of the Academy. And in case any person so ordered shall refuse to depart, after reasonable notice and within a reasonable time, having regard to the circumstances of the case, I think the Superintendent may lawfully remove him by force. ¹The act of April 29, 1812 (2 Stat. The professor of chemistry, mineralogy, and geology was placed upon the same footing, in respect to pay and emoluments, as the professor of mathematics, by section 19 of the act of July 5, 1838 (5 Stat. L., 259). By the act of March 3, 1851 (9 Stat. L., 594), the pay of the professors of engineering, natural and experimental philosophy, mathematics, and chemistry was fixed at $2,000 per annum, and that of the professors of French and drawing at $1,500 per annum, these sums to be "in lieu of pay proper, ordinary rations, forage, and servants." By section 2 of the act of February 16, 1857 (11 Stat. L., 161), the pay of professor of Spanish was fixed at $2,000 per annum, subject to the restrictions contained in the act of March 3, 1851. By section 13 of the act of July 15, 1870 (16 Stat. The professors of the Military Academy do not belong to the staff of the Army within the meaning of section 1205, Revised Statutes, since they have no military rank or grade. ¹The office of instructor of ordnance and gunnery was established by the Secretary of War, on the recommendation of the academic board, on December 31, 1856; the duties of the former instructor of artillery, which were not connected with instruction in the drill regulations of the arm, being transferred to the office thus established. By the act of June 12, 1858 (11 Stat. L., 333), the duty of instruction in the drill regulations was vested in the commandant of cadets and the assistant instructors authorized by that enactment. ² Section 2 of the act of July 20, 1840 (5 Stat. L., 398), contained the requirement that the pay and emoluments of instructors in cavalry, artillery, and infantry tactics should not be less than was allowed by law (captain mounted) to the assistant professor of mathematics. This statute was replaced by the act of June 12, 1858 (11 Stat. L., 333), which conferred the pay of captain mounted upon the senior assistant instructor in each of the arms of service.

The annual acts of appropriation for the support of the Military Academy, since that of February 10, 1897 (29 Stat. L., 518), have contained a provision for the pay of a senior instructor in the Department of Ordnance and Gunnery. Those since March 5, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 254), have contained a similar provision in respect to the pay of the senior assistant in the Department of Practical Military Engineering.

The corps of cadets shall consist of one from each Congressional district, one from each Territory, one from the District of Columbia, two from each State at large, and thirty from the United States at large. They shall be appointed by the President, and shall, with the exception of the thirty cadets appointed from the United States at large, be actual residents of the Congressional or Territorial districts, or of the District of Columbia, or of the States, respectively, from which they purport to be appointed.¹ Sec. 4, act of June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 656).

The act to fix the military peace establishment, approved on March 16, 1802 (2 ibid., 132), provided for one regiment of artillerists and engineers; it was to consist of twenty companies, to each of which two cadets were attached. By section 26 of this enactment authority was conferred upon the President to establish a corps of engineers, to which ten cadets were to be attached, and the monthly pay of the cadets was fixed at sixteen dollars and one ration per day; by section 27, the corps of engineers, when organized, was to be stationed at West Point and was to constitute the Military Academy. The acts of April 12, 1808 (2 ibid., 481), and June 11, 1812 (ibid., 671), authorized additions to the military establishment; by the former, 156 cadets were provided for, and by the latter, 64; in neither case, however, was the authorized establishment completed, nor does any considerable number of cadets seem to have been attached to the Military Academy, as is indicated by a report of the superintendent of January 5, 1810, at which date forty-seven cadets were undergoing instruction at the academy. An act making further provision for the Corps of Engineers, approved April 29, 1812 (ibid., 720), fixed the number of cadets in all arms of the service at 250, and authorized the President, in his discretion, to attach them, as students, to the Military Academy. The present apportionment by representative districts was established by section 2 of the act of March 1, 1843 (5 ibid., 604), which required cadets to be selected from the Congressional districts of the States or Territories from which the appointments purported to have been made. By this enactment authority was conferred upon the President to appoint ten cadets at large without being restricted to selection from Congressional districts. The act of March 3, 1875 (18 ibid., 467), authorized the President "to fill any vacancy occurring at said academy by reason of death or other cause of any person appointed by him;" but this clause was expressly repealed by section 4 of the act of June 11, 1878 (20 ibid., 111), which restricted the number of appointments at large to ten in all. The acts of March 1, 1843, and section 10 of the act of March 2, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 979), which authorized the appointment of twenty cadets at large, were replaced by section 4 of the act of June 6, 1900 (31 ibid., 656), which fixed the number of cadets at one from each Congressional district, one from the District of Columbia, two from each State at large, and thirty from the United States at large.

Manner of making applications.—Applications can be made at any time by letter to the Secretary of War, to have the name of the applicant placed upon the register that it may be furnished to the proper Representative or Delegate when a vacancy occurs. The application must exhibit the full name, date of birth, and permanent abode of the applicant, with the number of the Congressional district in which his residence is situated.

Date of appointments.—Appointments are required by law to be made one year in advance of the date of admission, except in cases where, by reason of death or other cause, a vacancy occurs which can not be provided for by such appointment in advance. These vacancies are filled in time for the next annual examination.

Alternates.—The Representative or Delegate in Congress may nominate a legally qualified second candidate, to be designated the alternate. The alternate will receive from the War Department a letter of appointment, and will be examined with the regular appointee, and if duly qualified will be admitted to the Academy in the event of the failure of the principal to pass the prescribed preliminary examinations. The alternate will not be allowed to defer his reporting at West Point until the result of the examination of the regular appointee is known, but must report at the time designated in his letter of appointment. The alternate, like the nominee, should be designated as nearly one year in advance of date of admission as possible.

There being no provision whatever for the payment of the traveling expenses of either accepted or rejected candidates for admission, no candidate should fail to provide himself in advance with the means of returning to his home in case of his rejection before either of the examining boards, as he may otherwise be put to considerable trouble, inconvenience, and even suffering on account of his destitute condition. If admitted, the money brought by him to meet such a contingency can be deposited with the treasurer on account of his equipment as a cadet or returned to his friends.

the other qualifications required by law, may be admitted between the ages of seventeen and twenty-four years.¹

1483. Each cadet shall, previous to his admission to the Academy, take and subscribe an oath or affirmation in the following form:

“I, A B, do solemnly swear that I will support the Constitution of the United States, and bear true allegiance to the National Government; that I will maintain and defend the sovereignty of the United States, paramount to any and all allegiance, sovereignty, or fealty I may owe to any State, county, or country whatsoever; and that I will at all times obey the legal orders of my superior officers, and the rules and articles governing the armies of the United States.”

¹ It being impossible for a candidate to conform to the conditions of this statute, it is now obsolete and no longer operative.

² For regulations prepared in accordance with the foregoing enactment see THE MILITARY ACADEMY REGULATIONS. Circulars containing the same information respecting the physical and mental examinations for admission are furnished candidates and others interested upon applications addressed to the Adjutant of the Military Academy at West Point, New York, or to the Adjutant-General of the Army in Washington.

⁴ The pay of cadets was fixed by the act of March 16, 1802, 2 Stat. L., 137, at sixteen dollars per month and two rations per day. By the act of March 3, 1857, 11 Stat. L., 252, their pay was fixed at thirty-two dollars per month. Section 3 of the act of April 1, 1864, 13 Stat. L., 39, contained the requirement that the cadets at the Military Academy should receive the same pay (five hundred dollars per annum) as the midshipmen at the Naval Academy; section 2 of the act of February 28, 1867, 14 Stat. L., 416, contained the requirement that they should also be entitled to the ration (one hundred and nine dollars and fifty cents annual commutation value) then allowed to active midshipmen. This fixed the pay and emoluments of a cadet

GRADUATION AND APPOINTMENT.

1486. That when any cadet of the United States Military Academy has gone through all its classes and received a regular diploma from the academic staff, he may be promoted and commissioned as a second lieutenant in any arm or corps of the Army in which there may be a vacancy and the duties of which he may have been judged competent to perform; and in case there shall not at the time be a vacancy in such arm or corps, he may, at the discretion of the President, be promoted and commissioned in it as an additional second lieutenant, with the usual pay and allowances of a second lieutenant, until a vacancy shall happen.¹ Act of May 17, 1886 (24 Stat. L., 50).

1488. That every cadet who has heretofore graduated or may hereafter graduate at the West Point Military Academy, and who has been or may hereafter be commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army of the United States, under the laws appointing such graduates to the Army, shall be allowed full pay as second lieutenant from the date of his graduation to the date of his acceptance of and qual-

at $609.50 per annum. The act of June 30, 1882, 27 Stat. L., 515, contained the requirement that no cadet should thereafter "receive more than at the rate of five hundred and forty dollars a year."

Four dollars a month shall be deposited with the Treasurer from the pay of each cadet, to be applied, at the time of his promotion, to the purchase of a uniform and equipments. Par. 117, Reg. U. S. M. A., 1894.

A person appointed to a position in the Army, either as a cadet or an officer, becomes a cadet or officer de facto when he accepts the appointment; but, in view of the act of July 2, 1862, 12 Stat. L., 502, his pay can not commence until he takes the oath of office. When a candidate passes the examinations and enters upon the duties of a cadet, he thereby accepts his appointment, and his service in the Army begins for all purposes of longevity, but his pay can not commence until he takes the oath of office required by law. 3 Dig. 2nd Compt. Dec., par. 884. The requirements of section 1310 of the Revised Statutes that "no person who has served in any capacity in the military or naval service of the so-called Confederate States, or of either of the States in insurrection during the late rebellion shall be appointed a cadet," were repealed by the act of March 31, 1896, 29 Stat. L., 84.

¹The requirement of section 3 of the act of June 18, 1878, 20 Stat. L., 150, "That hereafter all vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant shall be filled by appointment from the graduates of the Military Academy so long as any such remain in service unassigned; and any vacancies thereafter remaining shall be filled by promotion of meritorious noncommissioned officers of the Army, recommended under the provisions of the next section of this act: Provided, That all vacancies remaining, after exhausting the two classes named, may be filled by appointment of persons in civil life," was repealed by section 5 of the act of July 30, 1892, 27 Stat. L., 336. See the chapter entitled COMMISSIONED OFFICERS.

1492. The nature of alcoholic drinks and narcotics, and special instruction as to their effects upon the human system, in connection with the several divisions of the subject of physiology and hygiene, shall be included in the branches of study taught in the common or public schools and in the military and naval schools, and shall be studied and taught as thoroughly and in the same manner as other like required branches are in said schools, by the use of text-books in the hands of pupils where other branches are thus studied in said schools, and by all pupils in all said schools throughout the Territories, in the Military and Naval Academies of the United States, and in the District of Columbia, and in all Indian and colored schools in the Territories of the United States. *Act of May 20, 1886 (24 Stat. shall refuse or neglect to comply with the requirements of this act, or shall neglect or fail to make proper provisions for the instruction required and in the manner specified by the first section of this act, for all pupils in each and every school under his jurisdiction, shall be removed from office, and the vacancy filled as in other cases. *Sec. 2, act of May 20, 1886 (24 Stat. 1494. No cadet who is reported as deficient, in either ^{Deficient ca-} conduct or studies, and recommended to be discharged from ^{dets.} the Academy shall, unless upon recommendation of the ^{Aug. 3, 1861, c. 42, s. 8, v. 12, p. 288.} academic board, be returned or reappointed or appointed to any place in the Army before his class shall have left the Academy and received their commissions.¹ ^{Sec. 1325, R. COURTS-MARTIAL.

A cadet applied to have his name changed on the register of the Military Academy; Held, that the Secretary of War would not be empowered to change the name as such, though he might make a new contract with the cadet in the new name. But advised, as the preferable mode of proceeding, that the cadet first procure the name to be changed in the mode prescribed by the statutes of his own State, after which the register would of course be made to correspond. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 657.

² These courts have the same composition as the general courts-martial authorized to be convened by the seventy-second and seventy-third articles of war.

Professors of the Military Academy are "commissioned officers of the Army." Decision of the Secretary of War, May 27, 1857. But they are not commissioned officers within the meaning of the seventy-fifth article of war, and therefore can not be detailed as members of courts-martial. Scott's Digest, paragraph 169, note 16. The President may, by his regulations of the civil police of the Academy, invest them with authority adequate to all the purposes of their professorships; but he can invest them with no portion of judicial power to affect the life or liberty of others. I Opin. Att. Gen., 469; see also last clause of paragraph 1463, ante.

The undergraduate cadets are not commissioned officers, and are, therefore, not competent to sit on a court-martial, and are triable by a regimental or garrison court-martial. VII Opin. Att. Gen., 323. In their internal academic organization as officers, noncommissioned officers, and privates they are not subject to the Articles of War as respects their relation to one another, but only as respects their relation to commissioned officers of the Army, on duty as such at the Academy. Ibid.

Cadets are amenable to trial by court-martial for violations of the regulations of Hazing.

Mar. 2, 1901, v.

1496. The Superintendent of the Military Academy shall make such rules, to be approved by the Secretary of War, as will effectually prevent the practice of hazing; and any cadet found guilty of participating in or encouraging or countenancing such practice shall be summarily expelled from the Academy and shall not thereafter be reappointed to the Corps of Cadets or be eligible for appointment as a commissioned officer in the Army or Navy or Marine Corps, until two years after the graduation of the class of which he was a member.¹ Act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 911).

the Academy, (a) as "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline." Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 654.

They are not the "noncommissioned officers" of the acts of Congress and the General Regulations of the Army, which expression means "sergeants and corporals," and is inapplicable to the cadets. Ibid. They are inchoate officers of the Army, and subject to no discipline incompatible with that character. Ibid.

Where a cadet at West Point is sentenced by a court-martial to be dismissed the service, and the President commutes the sentence to suspension for a fixed period, it will not be inferred that his purpose was to deprive him of pay unless it is expressly so stated or is clearly established that such was his purpose. Conrad v. U. S., 32 Ct. Cls., 139. Where the President commutes the sentence of one cadet to suspension and of another to suspension without pay it is conclusive that he did not intend the former sentence to extend to loss of pay. Ibid.

The Superintendent of the Military Academy can have no power, by virtue of a regulation of the Academy, to try and punish a cadet for a military offense for which, under the Articles of War, he is amenable to trial by court-martial. A regulation assuming to confer upon him such power would be in contravention of law and inoperative. Otherwise of a regulation which merely authorized a measure of school discipline. So, where a cadet, on arraignment for a military offense, pleaded in bar that he had already for the same offense been punished by reduction from cadet officer to cadet private, under par. 107, Academy Regulations, held that, regarding such reduction as a form of discipline only, the plea was properly overruled by the court. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 656.

¹This enactment replaces the penalty imposed by the act of March 31, 1854 (23 Stat. L., 7). Under the authority conferred by this statute regulations have been prepared by the Superintendent and promulgated with the approval of the Secretary of War. See paragraphs 125, 136, 137, and 140, Regulations for U. S. Military Academy.

In a case arising at the Naval Academy, under the act of June 23, 1874, it was held by the Attorney-General (XVIII Opin. Att. Gen., 292) that the offense of hazing, not being an offense at the common law, and not being defined by statute, the definition of the offense must be gleaned from the rules and regulations of the Naval Academy that were in force at the date of the passage of the act in question. It was also held "that, to constitute the offense of hazing under the statute, it is essential that the victim of the maltreatment should be a new cadet of the fourth class."

Where a cadet entered the Naval Academy and became a member of the fourth class in 1885, and also remained a member of the same class in 1886, he is at the latter period as much an "older cadet" within the definition of the offense of "hazing" as a cadet who, having entered the Academy at the same time (1885), has since been advanced to a higher class, and (equally with the latter) is capable of committing that offense. (b) XVIII Opin. Att. Gen., 507.

ACADEMIC REGULATIONS.

The regulations of the Military Academy may be altered by the Secretary of War with the approbation of the President. I Opin. Att. Gen., 469.

^bIn this connection may be noted the opinion of the Solicitor-General (XV Opins., 634), that, except for the offense of hazing, specially made punishable by the act of June 23, 1874, cadets of the Naval Academy are not subject to trial by court-martial.

1497. There shall be appointed every year, in the following manner, a board of visitors, to attend the annual examination of the Academy: Seven persons shall be appointed by the President, and two Senators and three members of the House of Representatives shall be designated as visitors, by the Vice-President, or President pro tempore of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, respectively, at the session of Congress next preceding such examination.

Board of visitors.

Aug. 8, 1848, c. 96, s. 2, v. 9, p. 71; Mar. 16, 1868, c. 30, s. 1, v. 15, p. 42; Feb. 21, 1870, c. 18, v. 16, p. 67. Sec. 1327, R.S.

1498. It shall be the duty of the board of visitors to inquire into the actual state of the discipline, instruction, police administration, fiscal affairs, and other concerns of the Academy. The visitors appointed by the President shall report thereon to the Secretary of War, for the information of Congress, at the commencement of the session next succeeding such examination, and the Senators and Representatives designated as visitors shall report to Congress, within twenty days after the meeting of the session next succeeding the time of their appointment, their action as such visitors, with their views and recommendations concerning the Academy.

Duties of visitors.

Aug. 8, 1848, c. 96, s. 2, v. 9, p. 71; Feb. 21, 1870, c. 18, v. 16, p. 67. Sec. 1328, R.S.

1499. No compensation shall be made to the members of said board beyond the payment of their expenses¹ for board and lodging while at the Academy, and an allowance, not exceeding eight cents a mile, for traveling by the shortest mail-route from their respective homes to the Academy, and thence to their homes.²

1500. Hereafter the expenses allowed by section thirteen hundred and twenty-nine of the Revised Statutes shall be paid as follows: Each member of the board of visitors shall receive not exceeding eight cents per mile for each mile traveled by the most direct route from his residence to West Point and return, and shall in addition receive five dollars per day for expenses during each day of his service at West Point.² Act of June 11, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 110).

Compensation.

June 11, 1878, v. 20, p. 110.

¹ The amount payable under this paragraph for expenses is, by the act of June 11, 1878, par. 1500, post, limited to $5 per day.

² Under section 1339 of the Revised Statutes, as amended by the acts of March 3, 1877 (19 Stat. L., 382), and June 11, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 110), the mileage of the board of visitors must be computed by "the most direct route" from their respective homes to West Point and return, and not by the "shortest mail route." 3 Dig. 2nd Compt.  For pay of one assistant plumber, six hundred dollars;
 For pay of one scavenger, at sixty dollars a month, seven hundred and twenty dollars;
 For compensation of chapel organist, two hundred dollars;
 For pay of keeper of post cemetery, seven hundred and twenty dollars;
 For pay of engineer and janitor for Memorial Hall, nine hundred dollars;
 For pay of printer at Headquarters U. S. Military Academy, one thousand two hundred dollars;

In all, for civilians employed at the Military Academy, thirty thousand five hundred and twenty dollars.

All accounts for the expenditure of public moneys should be itemized so far as practicable, and a discretion given to the officer having control of an appropriation does not dispense with this requirement. Expenditures for contingencies of the Superintendent of the Naval Academy, appropriated by the act of March 3, 1897 (29 Stat. L., 662), should be made by the Superintendent, under the general direction of the Secretary of the Navy. (IV Compt. Dec., 159.)

An appropriation for contingencies for the Superintendent of the Military Academy is an appropriation for purposes of a contingent character—that is, such as might or might not happen, and which Congress could not easily foresee, and therefore could not provide for definitely. 1509. The enlisted men known as the artillery detachment at West Point shall be mustered out of the service as artillery men and immediately reenlisted as Army Service men in the Quartermaster's Department, continuing to perform the same duties and to have the same pay, allowances, rights, and privileges, and subject to the rules, regulations, and laws in the same manner as if their service had been continuous in the artillery, and their said service shall be considered and declared to be continuous in the Army.² Act of June 20, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 167).

¹This enactment replaces sections 1111 and 1278, Revised Statutes, and the act of March 3, 1877 (19 Stat. L., 380), in pari materia.

1510. The detachments of enlisted men at the Military Academy, heretofore designated as the General Army Service, Quartermaster's Department, and the cavalry detachment, shall be fixed at such numbers, not exceeding two hundred and fifteen enlisted men in both detachments, as in the opinion of the Secretary of War the necessities of the public service may from time to time require; but the number of enlisted men of the Army shall not be increased on account of this proviso or the two preceding paragraphs of this act.¹ *Act of February 10, 1897 (29 Stat. THE CULLUM MEMORIAL HALL.

1512. The Memorial Hall to be erected under the provisions of this act shall be a receptacle of statues, busts, mural tablets, and portraits of distinguished and deceased officers and graduates of the Military Academy, of paintings of battle scenes, trophies of war, and such other objects as may tend to give elevation to the military profession; and to prevent the introduction of unworthy subjects into this hall the selection of each shall be made by not less than two-thirds of the members of the entire academic board of the United States Military Academy, the vote being taken by ayes and nays and to be so recorded. *Sec. 6, act of July 23, 1892 (27 Stat. The act of July 26, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 155), conferred authority upon the Secretary of War to increase the strength of this detachment to one hundred and fifty men. The act of March 6, 1896 (29 Stat. L., 48), fixes the strength of the cavalry detachment as follows: One first sergeant, five sergeants, four corporals, two farriers, one saddler, one wagoner, and fifty-two privates. The authorized strength of these detachments is now 215 enlisted men.

Said building shall be erected without any expense whatever to the Government of the United States, and shall be removed from the reservation, or its location changed by the denomination, sect, or religious body erecting the same whenever, in the opinion of the Secretary of War, public or military necessity shall require it, and without compensation for such building or any other expense whatever to the Government. *Act of July 8, 1898 (30 Stat. It ceased to exist, in 1835, by reason of the transfer of the troops composing the school to other duties. It was reestablished by General Orders, No. 9, Adjutant-General's Office, of October 30, 1856. A code of regulations and plan of instruction was approved by the Secretary of War and published to the Army in General Orders, No. 5, Adjutant-General's Office, of May 18, 1858. The school was again discontinued at the outbreak of the war of the rebellion in 1861. It was again organized on its present foundation by General Orders, No. 99, Adjutant-General's Office, of November 13, 1867. Although not created by statute, its existence has been recognized and the courses of study pursued have been sanctioned by Congress in several acts of appropriation. All purchases and contracts for supplies or services for the military and naval service shall be made by or under the direction of the chief officers of the Departments of War and of the Navy, respectively.² And all agents or contractors for supplies or service as aforesaid shall render their accounts for settlement to the accountant of the

¹The United States in its political capacity may, within the sphere of the constitutional powers confided to it, and through the instrumentality of the departments to which those powers are intrusted, enter into contracts not prohibited by law and appropriate to the just exercise of these powers; no legislative authorization is required, such power being incident to the general right of sovereignty. *Dugan v. ²Under this statute the Secretary of War is the source of all authority to make contracts or purchases in all branches of the military establishment. "Whether he makes the contracts himself, or confers the authority upon others, it is his duty to see that they are properly and faithfully executed; and if he becomes satisfied that contracts which he has made himself are being fraudulently executed, or those made by others were made in disregard of the rights of the Government, or with the intent to defraud it, or are being unfaithfully executed, it is his duty to interpose, arrest

1521. No contract or purchase on behalf of the United States shall be made, unless the same is authorized by law^{Unauthorized contracts prohibited.} or is under an appropriation adequate to its fulfillment, except in the War and Navy Departments, for clothing, subsistence, forage, fuel, quarters, or transportation, which, however, shall not exceed the necessities of the current year.² ^{Mar. 2, 1861, c. 84, s. 10, v. 12, p. 220. the execution, and adopt effectual measures to protect the Government against the dishonesty of subordinates." U. S. v. Adams, 7 Wall., 463, 477; Parish v. U. S., 8 Wall., 489.

The head of an Executive Department may, when not prejudicial to the interests of the Government, or for its benefit, alter or modify the terms of a contract made under his direction, but his subordinates may not take such action without express authority from him. 2 Compt. Dec., 182.

The laws governing the purchase of supplies for the Army are equally applicable whether the purchases are made from funds received from the sale of stores or from the regular appropriations available therefor. 3 Dig. 2 Compt. Dec., 287.

It is only an express contract which (in the absence of special authority from Congress) can legally be entered into by the Secretary of War, or a military officer, or can be recognized and acted upon as binding upon the United States. Claims against the United States arising upon alleged implied contract can not be entertained, but the claimants must be referred to the Court of Claims or Congress. Further, the contract, to be legally made or recognized as legal, must be in writing (a) (except only—according to the ruling in Cobb's Case (b) when entered into without previous advertisement by reason of the existence of a "public exigency;" see infra). So, in a case where the only evidence of an alleged contract of lease consisted of vouchers, setting forth accounts for rent claimed, approved by an assistant quartermaster, held, that there was no sufficient evidence of an express or written contract upon which payment could be authorized by the Secretary of War. (c) Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., 275, par. 1.

The Secretary of War has authority to extend the time for the execution of a contract made on behalf of his Department when the interests of the Government are not thereby prejudiced, and particularly when its noncompletion within the time limited is not due to the negligence of the contractor. 2 Compt. Dec., 242; Solomon v. U. S., 19 Wall., 17; U. S. v. Corliss Steam Engine Co., 91 U. S., 321; XVIII Opin. Att. Gen., 101; 2 Compt. Dec., 635.

Approval of contract by superior authority.—Where a contract in terms "is subject to the approval of the Quartermaster-General," approval is a condition precedent to the legal effect of the agreement. Darragh v. U. S., 33 Ct. Cls., 377; Monroe & Richardson v. U. S., 35 ibid., 199. The refusal of the Quartermaster-General to approve a contract after work has been begun by the contractor is not a rescission. The contractor who begins work before approval does so at his own risk; and if he is paid for the work done, he can not recover profits as if there had been a breach. Ibid. Such approval need not be in writing. Speed's Case, 8 Wallace, 77. Though the failure of the Quartermaster-General to act within a reasonable time might validate a contract made subject to his approval, he is nevertheless entitled to time for inquiry and investigation and the discharge of the ordinary business of his department. Darragh v. U. S., 33 Ct. Cls., 377.

¹For statutes in respect to accounting, see the title "The Accounting Officers," in the chapter entitled THE DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY.

²The United States when it enters into a contract with an individual relinquishes its sovereign character quoad that transaction, is subject to the rules of right and justice between man and man, and is controlled by the same laws that govern individuals with respect to such contract. For the jurisdiction of this court, see chapter VII, ante.

The restrictions of section 3732, Revised Statutes, are in the alternative, prohibiting a contract or purchase on the part of the United States unless "authorized by law" or unless such contract or purchase is made "under an appropriation adequate to its fulfillment." Contracts to be valid must be shown to come under one or the other of these provisions. Shipman v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls., 138.

When the authority to enter into a contract for a particular work in behalf of the United States depends wholly upon an appropriation of money made for that purpose, no officer of the Government has power to create a liability therefor beyond the amount of the appropriation, and a contractor can not recover more than the money appropriated, whatever may be the extent of his work. When an alleged liability rests wholly upon the authority of an appropriation they must stand or fall together, so that when the latter is exhausted the former is at an end, to be revived, if at all, only by subsequent legislation by Congress. Shipman v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls., 138, 147; McCullom v. U. S., 17 ibid., 92, 103; Trenton Co. v. U. S., 12 ibid., 147, 157.

If an officer is clothed with authority to do a piece of work without limitation as to cost, the contracts made by him therefor are binding upon the Government whether money is appropriated for the purpose or not. Shipman v. U. S., 18 ibid., 138; Collins v. U. S., 15 ibid., 22, 35; XIII Op. Att. Gen., 315; XV ibid., 236.

Acknowledgments and promises made by executive officers of the Government do not bind the United States when they are not made under express or implied authority of Congress. Leonard et al. v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls., 382.

Under section 5 of the act of June 20, 1874, 18 Stat. L., 111, all appropriations for "public buildings" are available until otherwise ordered by Congress. 3 Dig. 2 Comp. Dec., 29. A subappropriation for a public building must, under the act of June 20, 1874, 18 Stat. L., 110, 111, remain available until its object has been accomplished or until it has been exhausted, unless otherwise ordered by Congress. Ibid. See also 2 Comp. Dec., 365; 3 ibid., 487.

² The act of Congress does not prohibit the acquisition by the United States of the legal title to land, without express legislative authority, when it is taken by way of security for debt. Neilson v. Lagow, 12 How., 98.

 Supplies for Executive Departments.

² The word "supplies," as used in section 3709 of the Revised Statutes evidently has reference to those things which the well-known needs of the public service will from time to time require in its different branches for its successful and efficient administration, and the statute was intended to afford the Government the pecuniary benefits, as well as the protection against fraud and favoritism, which open and honest competition is always likely to secure. It could not have been in the mind of the lawmaking power to require that purchases could only be made after advertisement of small articles which may occasionally be needed, and where in many cases the cost of advertising itself would exceed the value of the article purchased. It can not be said that such cases are governed by the emergency provision in the statute, for there may be, and are, many instances where the officer could not truthfully certify that immediate delivery was necessary. 3 Dig. 2 Compt. Dec., 288.

⁴ Section 3709, Revised Statutes, provides, generally, that the making of public contracts for supplies, etc., shall be preceded by an advertising for proposals "when the public exigencies do not require the immediate delivery of the articles or performance of the service." Exigencies growing out of a state of war, or hostilities with Indians, were probably mainly had in view, and it is exigencies of this class which have been considered in the adjudged cases in the Supreme Court and Court of Claims. (a) It is clear, however, that other exigencies may exist requiring that contracts or purchases be made at once or without the delay incident to advertising for proposals. Thus a loss of stores, structures, etc., on hand, caused by an actus Dei or vis major, as fire, storm, freshet, or a sudden riot or violent disorder; or a loss of supplies occasioned by the neglect of military subordinates in charge; or a failure of a contractor to fulfill a contract for supplies, transportation, or other service, might properly be

Sec. 1, Jan. 27, 1894, v. 28, p. 33.

Time for opening bids to be the same.

1527. The advertisement for such proposals shall be made by all the Executive Departments, including the Department of Labor, the United States Fish Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Smithsonian Institution, the Government Printing Office, the government of the District of Columbia, and the superintendent of the State, War, and Navy building, except for paper and materials for use of the Government Printing Office, and materials used in the work of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, which shall continue to be advertised for and purchased as now provided by law, on the same days and shall each designate two o'clock post meridian of such days for the opening of all such proposals in each regarded as constituting an "exigency" under the statute, if of such magnitude or injurious consequence to the Army as to necessitate an immediate making good of the deficiency. (a) The general rule, however, of the statute in requiring a notice and invitation to the public as a preliminary to the awarding of a contract, is founded upon a sound and well-considered public policy, and exceptions thereto, especially in time of peace, should be recognized as admissible only where, if the rule were strictly complied with, the public interests would manifestly be most seriously prejudiced. (b) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 279, par. 9.

An exigency can not be created by the simple certificate of a public officer that it exists. An exigency involves a state of pressing necessity so great that the public interests would be prejudiced if the contemplated purchase was not made. A certificate made after the purchase of the articles is of no effect. 3 Dig. Compt. Dec., 286. The term "public exigency" refers to an exceptional and urgent necessity requiring the immediate performance of the work or service. Ibid., 328.

Proof of the existence of an exigency must be presented in order to authorize the accounting officers to pass a voucher for an exigency purchase under section 3709 of the Revised Statutes. Such proof must accompany the voucher in the form of a certificate by the officer who made the purchase that a public exigency required the immediate delivery of the articles purchased, and that they were, therefore, purchased in open market. In other words, there must be proof that the proper officer has actually determined that an exigency existed. The certificate may be made in the following form: "The exigencies of the public service required the immediate delivery of the articles specified in the voucher, and they were, therefore, obtained by purchase in open market, without advertisement, and at the lowest market rates." Ibid.

Except in the case of an existing public exigency a contract for supplies in the War Department or military branch of the service is to be preceded by an advertisement for proposals as directed in section 3709, Revised Statutes. This advertisement is not a mere facility for the convenience of an executive Department, which may be waived at discretion, but an essential proceeding prescribed by the statute as a condition to the exercise of the authority to enter into a contract for the United States. Thus enjoined, no omission or evasion of this prerequisite, however convenient such ^bAs to the authority who is to decide whether there exists such an exigency as is contemplated by the statute, the Supreme Court, in the United States v. Speed, 8 Wallace, 83, has held that it is "the officer charged with the duty of procuring supplies or services who is invested with this discretion." This description is rather general, nor is the term "the purchasing officer," by which the Court of Claims explains it, in Thompson v. U. S., 9 Ct. Cls., 196, a much more precise definition. It is clear, however, that a subordinate officer charged with the duty of being the immediate representative of the United States in a contract or purchase should not, in general, venture to dispense with advertising, on the theory of the existence of a public exigency, in the absence of instructions or orders from a proper superior. Nor, on the other hand, will a superior officer, in entering into a contract for his command or branch of the service, properly assume that an "exigency" exists authorizing him to dispense with the statutory forms when the period is time of peace and no imperative necessity exists for the immediate delivery of the supplies or performance of the service proposed to be contracted for. It is to be noted that the cases both of Speed and Thompson related to contracts entered into during the civil war. In the instructive opinions of the Attorney-General on the "Fifteen per cent contracts" of April 27 and May 3, 1877, XV Opin., 235, 253, it is held that the "exigency" contemplated by the statute can be one of time only, and that it can be regarded as existing only where an immediate delivery or performance is required by a public necessity. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 853, note 1.

Department and other Government establishment in the city of Washington; and the Secretary of the Treasury shall designate the day or days in each year for the opening of such proposals and give due notice thereof to the other Departments and Government establishments. Such proposals shall be opened in the usual way and schedules thereof duly prepared and, together with the statement of the proposed action of each Department and Government establishment thereon, shall be submitted to a board consisting of one of the Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury and Interior Departments and one of the Assistant ^{Submission to board for approval.} Postmasters-General, who shall be designated by the heads of said Departments and the Postmaster-General, an omission or evasion may be, can legally be allowed. (a) So, held, that it was no excuse for a noncompliance with the statute by a quartermaster that his contracts (made without advertisement) had been made with the most reliable parties and to the advantage of the United States. And, held, that the requirement as to advertising for proposals must be complied with in contracting for a supply of articles purchased for trial, equally as if the contract were for the regular yearly supplies. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 849.

The main object of the advertisement is to induce a free and open competition for the contracts of the Government, and thus to protect the United States from fraudulent combinations and collusive preferences in its business transactions. (b) At the same time the advertisement, in inviting proposals from the public, is properly to be viewed as a pledge on the part of the United States that the contract will, as a general rule, be awarded to the lowest bidder, provided he is a responsible person and his bid is a reasonable one, and provided, of course, he complies with the existing regulations as to bond, etc. Ibid., par. 855. See, also, 1 Compt. Dec., 363.

A military emergency can not be measured by precise rules. Thompson v. U. S., 9 Ct. Cls., 187. The act of March 2, 1861 (sec. 3709, R. S.), requires of a quartermaster that openness, diligence, prudence, and care which an individual might be supposed to exercise were he buying goods in just such an emergency and under just such circumstances. * * * A statute relating to national emergencies must necessarily be construed liberally, but a case under it can form no precedent for other cases. What was right for a quartermaster to do under certain circumstances can be lawful and right only when the precise circumstances are repeated. Childs & Co. v. U. S., 4 Ct. Cls., 176.

An officer charged with the duty of making a contract or purchase is responsible under the laws and regulations for his action. Permission or orders to make a contract or purchase without inviting competition will not justify that procedure and will not be given. Par. 597, A. R., 1901.

In the absence of any emergency in fact, or any declared by the head of the Department in which a public work is being carried on, or any emergency that can be judicially inferred, the requirements of this section, in respect to advertisement, are mandatory, and a contract made in violation of it is void. Schneider v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls., 547, 551.

Personal services are such as the individual employed or contracted with must per^aSee VI Opin. Att. Gen., 406; 10 ibid., 28; also opinion of the Solicitor-General of March 20, 1876, XV Opin., 539, wherein, in holding contracts made without advertising to be not binding on the United States, he dissents from the opinion of Attorney-General Bates, in X Opin., 416, to the effect that while an absence of the prescribed advertisement will render illegal and inoperative an unexecuted contract, the Government can not, on account of such omission, rescind, to the damage of a contractor, a contract entered into by him in good faith and partly performed. In a later opinion of April 27, 1877, XV Opin., 236, the Attorney-General refers to the question, whether the provision of section 3709, Revised Statutes, requiring that contracts in general shall be preceded by advertisement, is mandatory or only directory, as one which has been much discussed (see, for example, the reference to this question in Fowler v. U. S., 3 Ct. Cls., 47), but is not required to be decided in that opinion. But whatever may be the true construction of this section, it is clear that no officer of the Army, in the absence of express authority to do so from the Secretary of War, can be justified in omitting to comply with the provision in regard to advertising.

Where the essential part of a contract is for personal services, advertising for proposals under section 3709, Revised Statutes, is not required. 2 Compt. Dec., 185.

Section 3709 does not require the advertising for proposals, nor the entering into contracts for the purchase of patented or copyrighted articles where the benefit of competition can not be secured. 2 Compt. Dec., 632. For provisions of regulations respecting purchases, etc., see paragraphs 593-597, Army Regulations of 1901.

METHODS OF PURCHASE.

A purchase of supplies or engagement of services will be made:

1. By contract, "reduced to writing and signed by the contracting parties with their names at the end thereof." Agreements of this character only are termed "contracts" in these regulations.

2. By written proposal and written acceptance.

3. By oral agreement.

When delivery or performance does not immediately follow an award or bargain the first method will be used; when delivery or performance immediately follows an award or bargain the second method may be resorted to. Par. 627, A. R., 1901.

Contracts will be made on forms furnished by the chiefs of bureaus, in cases where such forms are applicable, and those forms will be modified only to such extent as is necessary. All conditions will be stated therein as fully and clearly as possible. Par. 628, ibid.

If a contract made by a subordinate is, in terms, subject to the approval of his superior, approval is a condition precedent to the validity of the agreement. Monroe and Richardson v. U. S., 35 Ct. Cls., 199; Darragh v. U. S., 33 ibid., 377.

Where a contract provides that it is subject to the approval of a designated officer, such approval need not be in writing. Monroe and Richardson v. U. S., 35 Ct. Cls., 199; Speed's Case, 8 Wallace, 77.

No advertising without authority.

Sec. 3828, R.S.

¹The requirements of section 3828, Revised Statutes, are complied with by the issue of a general circular of instructions, and it is not necessary to file authority with each particular bill. Compt. Dec., 1893-94, 103; U. S. v. Odeneal, 10 Fed. Rep., 616.

By the terms of section 3709, Revised Statutes, and the acts of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 109), and February 12, 1895 (28 Stat. L., 654), advertising is required prior to purchase in the case of "all supplies for the use of the various departments and posts of the Army and all branches of the Army service," including the procurement of steel for gun construction. Advertising may be dispensed with in the emergency contemplated in section 3709 of the Revised Statutes; in the purchase of certain ordnance stores, when the aggregate of said purchase does not exceed $200 (act of July 16, 1892, 27 Stat. L., 174), and in the purchase of medicines and medical supplies (act of February 27, 1893, 27 Stat. L., 478). See also notes to paragraph 1151, ante.

A disbursing officer is not authorized to pay bills for newspaper advertising when he is satisfied that the price exceeds the commercial rates charged to private individuals, with the usual discounts, notwithstanding the affidavit of the proprietor of the newspaper to the contrary. 1 Compt. Dec., 512.

When the proprietors of a newspaper show by affidavit that the rates theretofore sworn to by them were, although not so limited, intended simply to cover advertising of a certain kind, they may be paid at their usual commercial rates for advertising not of the kind intended by their first statement of rates. Ibid., 373.

When advertising in connection with the purchase of subsistence supplies for the Army is, by law, a necessary condition precedent to the purchase of such supplies, and there is no specific appropriation for such advertising, the cost thereof is properly chargeable to the appropriation "Subsistence of the Army." 3 Dig. Comp. Dec., 23.

Under section 3709 of the Revised Statutes and paragraph 1486 of the Army Regulations (1881), the length of time for the publication of advertisements inviting proposals for furnishing Army supplies was left somewhat to the discretion of the purchasing officer. But the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 109), has fixed, in all cases excepting emergency purchases, the minimum period during which public notice shall be given, authorizing the purchase of "small amounts for immediate use" after public notice of not less than ten days, while all other purchases are required to be made after public notice of not less than thirty days. Ibid., 23.

Under the Army Regulations, advertisement may be made by handbills; but when this method is resorted to it must be shown that the handbills were circulated to such an extent as to render it probable that a large number of persons engaged in the business of furnishing the articles desired had thus been afforded an opportunity to compete for the contract which was to be let. He may require every bid to be accompanied by a written guaranty, signed by one or more responsible persons, to the effect that he or they undertake that the bidder, if his bid is accepted, will, at such time as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War or the officer authorized to make a contract in the premises, give bond, with good and sufficient sureties, to furnish the supplies proposed or to perform the service required. If after the acceptance of a bid and a notification thereof to the bidder he fails within the time prescribed by the Secretary of War or other duly authorized officer to enter into a contract and furnish a bond with good and sufficient security for the proper fulfillment of its terms, the Secretary or other authorized officer shall proceed to contract with some other person to furnish the supplies or perform the service required, and shall forthwith cause the difference between the amount specified by the bidder in default in the proposal and the amount for which he may have contracted with another party to furnish the supplies or perform the service for the whole period of the proposal to be charged up against the bidder and his guarantor or guarantors, and the sum may be immediately recovered by the United States for the use of the War Department

¹ It may be considered as settled that so much of section 3744 as provides that all contracts shall "be reduced to writing and signed by the contracting parties with their names at the end thereof" is mandatory, and contracts which do not comply with its requirements are void. In looking at the scope and purpose of this law and at the words in which it is couched, I can not doubt of the intention of Congress in its enactment. To my mind it is clear that it was designed to require every executory contract, at least, to be put in writing, so that its terms might not be mistaken and that the character and extent of the outstanding engagements of the United States might at all times be known to the executive and legislative departments, or be capable of being ascertained in a reasonable time and with appropriate exactitude. Henderson v. U. S., 4 Ct. Cls., 75, 83. There is no class of cases in which a statute for preventing frauds and perjuries is more needed than in this. And we think that the statute in question was intended to operate as such. It makes it unlawful for contracting officers to make contracts in any other way than by writing signed by the parties. This is equivalent to prohibiting any other mode of making contracts. Clark v. U. S., 95 U. S., 539, 542; South Boston Iron Co., 18 Ct. Cls., 165, 176; U. S. v. Lamont, 2 D. C. App., 532. The provisions of this section apply to contracts made in emergencies. Cobb et al. v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls., 514, 532; Clark v. U. S., 95 U. S., 539. Offers and acceptances by letter are preliminary memoranda only and do not constitute a valid contract within the meaning of the statute. South Boston Iron Co. v. U. S., 118 U. S., 37, 42. Where, however, a parol contract has been wholly or partly executed on one side, the party performing will be entitled to recover the fair value of his property or services as upon an implied contract for a quantum meruit. *Clark v. The formal execution of contracts for Government work, as a prerequisite for their legality and binding effect, after the acceptance of proposals, as required by section 3744, Revised Statutes, was not dispensed with by the acts of March 23, 1883 (22 Stat. L., 488), and section 3 of the act of August 11, 1888 (25 Stat. L., 400, 423). U. S. v. Lamont, 2 D. C. App., 532.

Labor on same. Sec. 2, Mar. 3, 1875, v. 18, p. 455.

1542. In all contracts for material for any public improvement the Secretary of War shall give preference to American material; and all labor thereon shall be performed within the jurisdiction of the United States. Sec. 2, act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 455).

3743 of the Revised Statutes, with the proper Comptroller of the Treasury, because they are connected with the settlement of public accounts. Ibid., p. 111.

Under section 3743 of the Revised Statutes all contracts in any manner connected with the settlement of public accounts by the Second, Third, and Fourth Auditors and the Second Comptroller are to be deposited or filed in the Second Comptroller's Office within ninety days after their respective dates. This statutory requirement includes not only all formal written contracts or specialties in any manner connected with the settlement of accounts, but also all properly authorized extensions or other modifications of such contracts, every modification of a contract being in the nature of a new contract and connected with the settlement of accounts. Ibid., p. 112.

Only formal written contracts are required under section 3743 of the Revised Statutes to be filed in the office of the Second Comptroller. Informal contracts and the papers pertaining thereto should be filed with the accounts or vouchers to which they relate, in order to facilitate the examination and revision of accounts and vouchers. Ibid., 109.

A separate notification is required in each case of extension of a contract, so that it can be filed, with the contract to which it pertains, in the office of the Second Comptroller. Otherwise notifications of extensions of contracts will fail of the purpose contemplated in section 3743 of the Revised Statutes. Ibid., 112.

Formal written contracts made and filed in the proper office in pursuance of law must be regarded as necessary in the settlement of public accounts or claims, and therefore can not properly be returned either for cancellation or amendment. Ibid.

The Second Comptroller is not authorized to deliver to either of the parties to a contract, for any purpose whatever, any contract connected with the settlement of public accounts which has been properly placed in his custody under the provisions of section 3743 of the Revised Statutes. Ibid.

CONTRACTORS' BONDS.

Bonds for the faithful performance of contracts for supplies or service will be required in the following cases:

1. When the consideration is $3,000 or more, whatever may be the length of time required for the full performance of the contract.

2. When the consideration is over $250, but less than $3,000, and the contract can not be fully performed within thirty days from its date.

Bonds may be exacted or, in the discretion of the respective chiefs of bureaus concerned, waived in the following cases:

1. When the consideration is less than $3,000 and the contract is to be fully performed within thirty days from its date.

2. When the consideration is not more than $250, whatever may be the length of time required for full performance.

3. When the contract is for furnishing meals to recruits and recruiting parties.

The amount of penalty in a contractor's bond will be fixed by the contracting 1543. Hereafter, except in cases of emergency or where it is impracticable to secure competition, the purchase of all supplies for the use of the various departments and posts of the Army and of the branches of the army service shall only be made after advertisement, and shall be purchased where the same can be purchased the cheapest, quality and cost of transportation and the interests of the Government considered; but every open-market emergency purchase made in the manner common among business men which exceeds in amount two hundred dollars shall be reported for approval to the Secretary of War under such regulations as he may prescribe.¹ *Act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. officer, and will not be less than one-tenth nor more than the full amount of the consideration of the contract.

Nothing in this paragraph is to be construed as authorizing the waiving of bonds required under paragraph 644. Par. 638, A. R., 1901.

When bonds for the faithful performance of contracts are exacted, they will be made and executed with the necessary justification and certification of sufficiency of sureties, in accordance with the instructions printed on the blank forms of contractors' bonds furnished by the chief of bureaus. Such bonds must be executed by the contractor as principal, and by a surety company, or by at least two sufficient and responsible persons who must be citizens of the United States, as sureties. Each must affix his signature and seal, and each signature must be attested by at least one witness. When practicable there will be a separate witness to each signature. Par. 639. Ibid.

A company duly incorporated under the laws of the United States, or of any State, and legally authorized to guarantee bonds, may be accepted as surety, under the conditions prescribed in Article LVI. A firm, as such, will not be accepted as surety, nor a partner for a copartner or firm of which he is a member. Stockholders who are not officers of a corporation may be accepted as sureties for such corporation. Par. 640, ibid.

A guarantor, or the guarantors, to a bidder's guaranty may be accepted as surety, or sureties, to the bond of the same person as contractor, provided such guarantor or guarantors are able to justify as required for the bond. Par. 641, ibid.

The sureties, if individuals, must jointly justify in double the amount of the penalty. The affidavit of justification must be taken before a person authorized by the laws of the United States, State, Territory, or District, to administer oaths. Justification will be followed by the certificate of a judge or clerk of a United States court, a United States district attorney, United States commissioner, a judge or clerk of a State court of record with the seal of said court attached, that the sureties are known to him, and that, to the best of his knowledge and belief, each is worth, over and above all debts and liabilities, the sum stated in his affidavit of justification. If found necessary, separate certificates may be furnished as to each surety. Par. 642, ibid.

Contractors' bonds will be executed in duplicate, one to accompany the copy of the contract which is sent to the Auditor for the War Department, and the other retained by the officer who makes the contract. Par. 643, ibid.

When a contract is entered into for the construction of any public building, or the prosecution and completion of any public work, or for repairs on any public building or public work, the contractor will be required, before entering upon performance of the same, to include in the bond given for the faithful performance of the contract the further obligation that he will promptly make payments to all persons who supply him with labor and materials for the prosecution of the work provided for in such contract. A certified copy of this contract and bond will be furnished to any person who has supplied such labor or materials, upon his application to the War Department, accompanied by an affidavit that the labor or materials have been supplied by him and have not been paid for by the contractor. Par. 644, ibid.

and section 3729 of the Revised Statutes. For regulations governing open-market purchases, see paragraphs 645-648, Army Regulations of 1901.

It has been held by the Attorney-General that "the object of this legislation is to secure for the Government the benefit of competition in obtaining supplies and to prevent favoritism in making the purchases thereof. It contemplates one general mode of purchase, namely, by contract, after advertisement, with 'the lowest responsible bidder for the best and most suitable article,' with but a single exception, and that is where an 'emergency' exists requiring the purchase to be otherwise made. Such emergency may arise not only before the required public notice can be given, but after it has once been given, in consequence of the failure to receive any bids or proposals; in either case the purchase thereupon would be an emergency purchase, and come within the requirement of the statute for an immediate report to the Secretary of War for his approval. This requirement is, I think, designed to extend to all purchases which are not made agreeably to the general mode above indicated, and hence it applies to the purchase of parts of machinery, or parts of stoves or ranges, for repairs, or of patented articles, when the same is (as in cases of emergency, and those only, it may be) made in open market." XVIII Opin. Att. Gen., 349.

¹ The provisions of the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 109), that purchases of supplies for the Quartermaster's and Commissary's departments in cases of emergency "must be at once reported to the Secretary of War for his approval" is directory only, and the failure of certain officers of these departments to make reports of such purchases does not invalidate the purchases or the payments therefor. 5 Compt. Dec., 259.

Government contracts, by whom made, binding force, etc.—Where a public agent acts in the line of his duty and by legal authority, his contracts made on account of the Government are public and not personal. They inure to the benefit of and are obligatory on the Government, not the officer. Hodgin v. Dexter, 1 Cranch, 345, 363; Parks v. Ross, 11 Howard, 362. 1555. Every person who shall furnish supplies of any kind to the Army or Navy shall be required to mark and distinguish the same with the name of the contractor furnishing such supplies, in such manner as the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy may, respectively, direct; and no supplies of any kind shall be received unless so marked and distinguished.

ASSIGNMENTS.

1557. No contract or order, or any interest therein, shall be transferred by the party to whom such contract or order is given to any other party, and any such transfer shall cause the annulment of the contract or order transferred, so far as the United States are concerned. All rights of action, however, for any breach of such contract by the contracting parties, are reserved to the United States.¹

Transfers of contracts prohibited.

July 17, 1862, c. 200, s. 14, v. 12, p. 596.

¹This clause is imperative and bars any action by the assignor as well as the assignee. Wanless v. U. S., 6 Ct. Cls., 123. The purpose of the act of July 17, 1862 (sec. 3737, R. S.), prohibiting the transfer of Government contracts, was to secure the personal attention and services of the contractor and to render him liable to punishment under section 16 of the same act. * * * No formal or written transfer is necessary to bring the case within the prohibition of the act. It is sufficient to annul the contract that the facts disclose a substantial transfer. Francis v. U. S., 11 Ct. Cls., 638; Wheeler v. U. S., 5 Ct. Cls., 504; McCord's Case, 9 Ct. Cls., 155.

In view of the positive prohibition of section 3737, Revised Statutes, that no contract or interest therein shall be transferred by the contractor, and the further provision that any such transfer shall operate as an annulment of the contract, "so far as the United States are concerned," held that an officer of the Army representing the United States in a contract for military transportation would not be authorized, of his own discretion, to consent or waive objection to an assignment, in whole or in part, of a contract, by the contractor, so as to admit the assignee to perform the service. (a) Fig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 897.

Where a contract has been once formally entered into with a certain party, for the officer representing the United States to assume to admit additional parties into the

(a) That an assignment of a contract transfers no legal claim or right of action to the assignee, and that a contract when assigned is no longer binding upon the United States, see Wheeler v. U. S., 5 Ct. Cls., 504; Wanless v. U. S., 6 ibid., 123; Gill v. U. S., 7 ibid., 523; McCord v. U. S., 9 ibid., 156; Francis v. U. S., 11 ibid., 638; X Opin. Att. Gen., 523. But it has been held by the Attorney-General that the statute on the subject (sec. 3737, R. S.) is intended simply for the benefit and protection of the United States, which, therefore, is not compelled to avail itself of a transfer by the contractor to annul the contract, but may recognize the same and accept and pay the assignee. "Were it to be held," observes the Attorney-General, "that a transfer of an interest would absolutely avoid the contract, it would enable any party making a contract with the United States to avoid it by simply transferring an interest therein, which is a construction manifestly inadmissible." Opinion in the case of the "Fifteen per cent contracts" (XV Opins., 235). And similarly held by the same authority in a later opinion, in XVI Opins., 277, that while the United States may avail itself of an assignment to declare the contract annulled, it is not required to do so, but, if deemed to be for its interests, may recognize the assignee. But it is clear that an officer of the Army could not properly assume to treat an assignment of a contract (or interest therein) as valid without the authority and direction of the Secretary of War. That for a mail contractor to contract with another person to transport the mail for him, and as his servant or employee, was not an assignment of his contract with the United States, was held in the recent case of Frye v. Burdick, 67 Maine, 408.

Sec. 3737, R. S.

1558. No Member of or Delegate to Congress shall directly or indirectly, himself, or by any other person in trust for him, or for his use or benefit, or on his account, undertake, execute, hold, or enjoy, in whole or in part, any contract or agreement made or entered into in behalf agreement and undertaking (thus in fact consenting to a transfer by the contractor of an interest in the contract), would be wholly unauthorized. Ibid., par. 898.

A mere power of attorney given by a contractor to another person authorizing him to receive for the contractor moneys coming due under the contract can not, of course, operate as a transfer of an interest therein; but where, by a written agreement between a contractor and another party, the latter was empowered to receive the payments from the United States, in consideration of which he undertook to continue and complete the work contracted for, held that such agreement was a power coupled with an interest, and operated as a transfer within the meaning of section 3737, Revised Statutes. (b) Ibid., par. 899. A contractor with the United States for the construction of a public improvement does not, by contracting with a third party to furnish material for such work, make an assignment or a transfer of his contract within the prohibition of section 3737, Revised Statutes. U. S. v. Farley, 91 Fed. Rep., 474.

Under no circumstances can the United States permit or recognize the transfer of a contract to a third party, for the reason that such transfers are prohibited by section 3737 of the Revised Statutes, and that, if the United States could permit any such transfer, its assent would release the sureties on the contractor's bond. 3 Dig. 2nd Compt. Dec., 113.

Under section 3737, Revised Statutes, the assignment of a contract wholly invalidates it, unless the Government elects to treat it as still in force. Where the Government accepts from the assignee work or materials under the contract, or permits a part performance, it ratifies the assignment. (c) Where the War Department assented to the transfer of a contract for the manufacture of ordnance from one iron works to another, and accepted deliveries from the latter, held that the contract remained in full force. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., p. 299, par. 61.

An assignment, to have the effect of invalidating a contract, need not be express, nor need it be technical, formal, or written. (d) It may be evidenced by the various facts or circumstances illustrating the relations and intention of the parties. Ibid., par. 902.

This provision is intended only for the protection of the United States. The Government may avail itself of the assignment or transfer to annul the contract, but it is not compelled to do so. XVI Opin. Att. Gen., 278; 15 ibid., 236. Dulaney v. Scudder 94, Fed. Rep., 6.

There is a distinction between the assignment of a Government contract and an assignment of a claim for money due under a contract. The former is void under the act of July 17, 1862 (sec. 3737, R. S.), and passes no title, legal or equitable; the latter passes title to the money due, as though it were the sale of a chattel. McCord v. U. S., 9 Ct. Cls., 155; Lawrence v. U. S., 8 ibid., 252. The sale of a quartermaster's voucher by a contractor to a third party works a transfer of his claim against the Government, or of so much of it as is represented by the voucher. But such vouchers are in no sense negotiable paper, and the purchaser will take them subject to all the equities that may exist against a contractor. Lawrence & Crowell v. U. S.,

Every person who violates this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined three thousand dollars. All contracts or agreements made in violation of this section shall be void; and whenever any sum of money is advanced on the part of the United States, in consideration of any such contract or agreement, it shall be forthwith repaid; and in case of refusal or delay to repay the same, when demanded, by the proper officer of the Department under whose authority such contract or agreement shall have been made or entered into, every person so refusing or delaying, together with his surety or sureties, shall be forthwith prosecuted at law for the recovery of any such sum of money so advanced.¹

8 ibid., 252. An officer purchasing an article is without authority of law to issue a voucher for the purchase money to a third person, at the vendor's request, there being no privity of contract between the United States and such third person. Johnston v. U. S., 13 ibid., 217.

It has, however, been held that section 3477, which prohibits or makes null and void all transfers and assignments of claims against the Government does not apply to involuntary assignments in bankruptcy (Erwin v. United States, 97 U. S., 392), or even to voluntary assignments for the benefit of creditors (Goodman v. Niblack, 102 U. S., 556). It seems to me that the reasoning of these cases applies with equal force to section 3737. 2 Compt. Dec., 50.

Under sections 3477 and 3737 of the Revised Statutes, a person having a contract can not assign any part of the money coming to him thereunder so as to affect any one but himself, and the acceptance by a disbursing agent of the United States of an order upon such fund has no validity against third persons. Greenville Sav. Bank et al. v. Lawrence et al., 76 Fed. Rep., 545.

Paragraph 671 of the Army Regulations of 1901 prohibits purchases by officers of the Army "from any other person in the military service." Held that this prohibition did not embrace civilians employed in the public service under the War Department, or in connection with the military administration, and therefore did not preclude the making of a contract by an ordnance officer, as representing the United States, with a civil employee at an arsenal, for the use of an invention patented by the latter. (b) Ibid., par. 896.

The form of a proposed contract contained the stipulation that "no person belonging to or employed in the military service of the United States is or shall be admitted to any share or part of this contract." The description "person employed in" is understood to mean all such clerks, mechanics, laborers, or other civilians as are legally employed by the military authorities in or in connection with military works, operations, or other authorized transactions. So where a lowest bidder was a civilian laborer at the Springfield Armory, advised that the contract be made with the next lowest bidder, who was under no such incapacity. Ibid., 296, par. 52.

^a That section 3739, Revised Statutes, does not affect contracts made with persons who have been simply elected Members of or Delegates to Congress, but have not actually become such by being sworn in—see opinion of the Attorney-General of May 19, 1877 (XV Opins. Att. Gen.), citing 16 ibid., 406.

Every officer of the United States who is guilty of extortion under color of his office shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not more than one year, except those officers or agents of the United States otherwise differently and specially provided for in subsequent sections of this chapter.

¹ Though an officer may have full power to enter into a contract, yet the contract may be void for fraud as having been made by the collusion of the officer, and all negotiations and circumstances surrounding the contract, as well as its terms, may be examined to prove fraud. Hitchcock v. City of Galveston, 3 Woods, 292. Three persons, one of them the Government agent who had charge of letting the contract, entered into an agreement by which two were to do the work, and each was to have one-third of the profits. Held that such a contract was a fraud on the Government, and that an action founded thereon by one partner against the other could not be maintained. Bartle v. Coleman, 3 Cranch, C. C., 283.

For the penalty referred to in this paragraph see section 5500, Revised Statutes, which provides that "every person who promises, offers, gives, or causes or procures to be promised, offered, or given, any money or other thing of value, or makes or tenders any contract, undertaking, obligation, gratuity, or security for the payment of money, or for the delivery or conveyance of anything of value, to any member of either House of Congress, either before or after such member has been qualified or has taken his seat, with intent to influence his vote or decision on any question, matter, cause, or proceeding which may be at any time pending in either House of Congress, or before any committee thereof, shall be fined not more than three times the amount of money or value of the thing so offered, promised, given, made, or tendered, or caused or procured to be so offered, promised, given, made, or tendered, and shall be, moreover, imprisoned not more than three years."

1567. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of War, of the Secretary of the Navy, and of the Secretary of the Interior to cause and require every contract made by them severally on behalf of the Government, or by their officers under them appointed to make such contracts, to be reduced to writing, and signed by the contracting parties with their names at the end thereof; a copy of which shall be filed by the officer making and signing the contract in the Returns Office of the Department of the Interior, as soon after the contract is made as possible, and within thirty days, together with all bids, offers, and proposals to him made by persons to obtain the same, and with a copy of any advertisement he may have published inviting bids, offers, or proposals for the same. All the copies and papers in relation to each contract shall be attached together by a ribbon and seal, and marked by numbers in regular order, according to the number of papers composing the whole return.¹

The returns office; contracts to be in writing. June 2, 1862, c. 1, s. 93, v. 12, p. 411. Sec. 3744, R.S.

dated by a failure of the officer to make a proper return of the same. That is made his exclusive duty by the law, and he alone is to be punished for it by the stringent and severe penalties prescribed by the act. Henderson v. U. S., 4 Ct. Cls., 75, 81; Clark v. U. S., 95 U. S., 539; Power v. U. S., 18 Ct. Cls., 263.

A mere understanding or oral agreement can not constitute a contract in the War Department. Were it not indeed for the provisions of section 3744, Revised Statutes, the acceptance of a bid would, under the general law of contracts, bind the United States. But this section has been construed by the Supreme Court as being in the nature of a statute of frauds and mandatory in its requirements, and therefore making it essential that a contract, to be legal and obligatory, shall be in writing and signed by the parties. (a) The mere proposal of a bidder, accepted on the part of the Government, does not therefore operate as a contract, but is simply a proceeding preliminary to contract; nor does such an acceptance bind the United States to enter into a contract. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., 295, par. 48.

It is proper to remark that in the event of a suit being instituted against a principal or surety on a contract of the United States, the copy of the contract filed in the Returns Office would have no evidential value, and a copy of the original filed in the office of the Comptroller of the Treasury under the provisions of section 3743, Revised Statutes, paragraph 1185, supra, would have to be produced subject to the authentication required in section 886 of the Revised Statutes.

The eight-hour law is in the nature of a direction from a principal to his agent, in which third party has no interest. It does not make a contract, nor prevent officers from contracting, by express agreement, for day's labor of more or less than eight hours. Martin v. U. S., 12 Ct. Cls., 87 and 94 U. S., 400.

² Held, that the term "laborer," as used in the act of 1892, was apparently intended in a comprehensive sense, and that to declare certain classes of employment as "peculiar," and therefore excepted from the operation of the act, would be a restriction not warranted by the language of the statute. Thus a proposed regulation excepting "watchmen, messengers, teamsters, engineers, firemen, seamen," and some others, as not included in the description "laborers and mechanics," not recommended to be adopted. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., 380, par. 4.

Seamen on a Government vessel are employed upon the "public works of the United States" within the meaning of the act of August 1, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 340), when engaged in removing obstructions to navigation in rivers and harbors, and to exact from them more than eight hours' labor per day at this work or in the actual care and repair of appliances necessary to carry it on will subject the offender to indictment. U. S. v. Jefferson, 60 Fed. Rep., 736.

A timber dry dock is one of the "public works" of the United States under the eight-hour law of August 1, 1892. XX Opin. Att. Gen., 445.

³ The original statute on this subject—the act of June 25, 1868, incorporated in section 3738, Revised Statutes—merely provided that eight hours should "constitute a day's work" for laborers, etc., employed by the United States. It has been held by the Supreme Court, U. S. v. Martin, 94 U. S., 400, (a) that this enactment was merely "a direction by the Government to its agents," not "a contract between the Government and its laborers, that eight hours shall constitute a day's work," and that it did not "prevent the Government from making agreements with them by which their labor may be more (or less) than eight hours a day." The act thus failed of its apparent object. To cure this defect was passed the act of August 1, 1892, chapter 352. Held, therefore, that the term "public works of the United States," used in the first section of the latter act, should not be narrowly construed. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1235.

Thus held that the construction of levees on the banks of the Mississippi River, in accordance with the plans of the Mississippi River Commission, was a public work of the United States in the sense of the act of August 1, 1892, chapter 352, section 1, although the United States did not own the land. A proprietorship in or jurisdiction over the thing constructed is not necessary. The United States expends annually more than twenty millions for the improvement of rivers and harbors, but the greater part of this is done without acquiring title or jurisdiction to or over the premises. The question under the act is not in whom is the title or jurisdiction, but who is doing the work. The construction of these levees is a particular work appropriated for by Congress and to be contracted for by the United States. It is therefore one of the public works of the United States, and subject to the provisions of this statute. (a) Ibid., par. 1236.

The provisions of this act shall not be so construed as to in any manner apply to or affect contractors or sub-contractors, or to limit the hours of daily service of laborers or mechanics engaged upon the public works of the United States or of the District of Columbia for which contracts have been entered into prior to the passage of this act. Sec. 3, ibid.

Held, that it was not essential that the requirement of the act of August 1, 1892, be embodied in a contract, the law itself being self-acting. The responsibility rests on contractors to comply with it, irrespective of the terms and conditions of their contracts. The officers who enter into contracts on behalf of the United States are not charged with the duty of enforcing the law with reference to those with whom they contract, the latter being directly responsible in the matter. Any construction by the War Department of the requirements of the act would, if erroneous and not sustained by the courts, be no protection to contractors. Ibid., par. 1237.

Inquiry having been made of the War Department by certain contractors whether the men employed on dredges, scows, and tugs on Lake Erie, under contracts with the United States, were not to be regarded as excepted from the application of the act of 1892, held that it was not the duty or province of this Department to determine such questions, but the same were for the courts to decide, on trials under the second section of the act, of persons charged with violations of its provisions. Neither this or other Department of the Government can lay down rules or make constructions of the law for contractors which would effectually protect them were they brought to trial. (b) Ibid., par. 1238.

No provision is contained in the act of 1892 for the suspension of its operation, and the Secretary of War has no power to suspend it as to certain work or places of work on the theory that an "emergency" exists as to the same. Nor can he lay down in advance any general rule as to what would be such an emergency as would relieve an officer or contractor from liability, or give him an immunity from prosecution. The question of the existence of an emergency is to be determined, in the first instance, by the person carrying on, or in charge of the work; in the second, by the court, if the case come before one. It may be said generally that when the emergency can be foreseen it is not extraordinary; that increased expense and inconvenience can not constitute an emergency which can not be foreseen and guarded against. Ibid., par. 1240.

^a In the recent case of U. S. v. Jefferson, 60 Fed. Rep., 736, it is held that seamen employed on a steam snag boat belonging to the War Department, engaged in removing obstructions to navigation, were employed upon a "public work of the United States," and that the master of the boat, in exacting from them more than eight hours labor per diem, was indictable under the act of August 1, 1892.

^b In a communication to the Secretary of War of August 29, 1892, the Attorney-General, whose opinion had been asked with regard to the application in general of the act to the "construction of levees on the Mississippi River," declines to give an official opinion with a view to the guidance of persons who may propose to enter in contract relations with the United States, in the absence of a special case requiring the action of the Secretary. See XX Opin. Att. Gen., 459.

Action on bond for labor or materials furnished.

The act of August 13, 1894, which requires that the bond given to the United States by any contractor on a Government work shall contain the additional obligation that such contractor will promptly make payments to all persons supplying him with labor, materials, etc., does not establish any privity between the United States and such persons so as to authorize the officers of the Government to satisfy such claims from the moneys due the contractor on the failure of the latter to do so. 3 Compt. Dec., 708.

The act of August 13, 1894, giving to persons supplying labor and materials to a contractor on a Government work the right to maintain a suit in the name of the United States for their own benefit against the contractor and the sureties on his bond, does not authorize payment of the amount due the contractor from the United States to the sureties upon their claim that they will be held liable for certain amounts due for labor and materials which the contractor had failed to pay. Ibid.

When a contract has been fully completed payment of the balance remaining due from the United States to one of two copartners appearing as contractors in the name of the partnership will be a valid acquittance of the United States whether the other partner was ever legally bound as a party to the contract or not. Ibid.

When the Government, under the terms of a contract, takes possession of and finishes the uncompleted portion of the work for less than the amount which would have been payable to the contractor therefor, the latter is not entitled to the profit thus accruing to the Government. Ibid.

Where, in the erection of a public building, the United States reserves the right to withhold a part of the money in case the contractor fails to pay claims for material and labor, the contractor can not, by an assignment of moneys so withheld, give the

The act of August 13, 1894, 28 Stat. L., 278, for the protection of persons furnishing material and labor for the construction of public works, and providing that, on furnishing an affidavit to the department of the Government, any person may have a copy of the bond and contract, upon which such person may bring suit, has reference only to the procuring of the copy of the contract and bond, and is not a prerequisite to the right to maintain an action. This requirement is for the purpose of satisfying the Government official that the person has furnished labor or material on the particular contract. Surety Co. v. U. S., 77 Illinois, App. 106.

The condition in the bond of a contractor with the United States for public work, prescribed by the act of August 13, 1894, 28 Stat. L., 278, is intended to cover payments only for the visible material furnished for direct use and incorporation in the work, and of wages to the men whose services are directly employed in doing the work; and an action against the sureties on such a bond can only be maintained, under the statute, by one who has title to a claim for labor or materials so supplied. A person furnishing board and lodging to laborers employed on the work does not supply either labor or materials within the meaning of the statute. U. S. v. Kimp-land, 93 Fed. Rep., 403.

The terms of this statute do not include the claim of a railroad for freight due on materials which are loaded and unloaded by the contractor, such charges being neither labor nor materials within the meaning and purpose of the act. U. S. v. Hyatt, 92 Fed. Rep., 442.

A government contractor for public work, who has given a bond conditioned that he will "make full payments to all persons supplying him with labor or materials," is not liable thereon for unpaid wages due from a subcontractor who has supplied him with materials, when he paid such contractor in full therefor. *U. 1581. All lands belonging to the United States, to which the Indian title has been or may hereafter be extinguished, shall be subject to the right of preemption, under the conditions, restrictions, and stipulations provided by law.

Lands subject to preemption. June 2, 1862, c. 94, § 1, v. 12, p. 418; Feb. 11, 1874, c. 25, v. 18, p. 18; Feb. 23, 1875, c. 99, v. 18, p. 334, Sec. 2257, R.S.

Apr. 21, 1876, c. 72, v. 19, p. 35, Shepley et al. v. Cowen et al., 91 U. S., 330.

Congress has the sole power to declare the dignity and effect of titles emanating from the United States, and the whole legislation of the Federal Government, in reference to the public lands, declares the patent the superior and conclusive evidence of legal title. Until its issuance the fee is in the Government; by the patent, it passes to the grantee, and he is entitled to recover the possession in ejectment. Bagnell v. Broderick, 13 Peters, 436, 450; Wilcox v. Jackson, ibid., 498, 516; Langdon v. Sherwood, 124 U. S., 74, 83; Hussman v. Dunham, 165 U. S., 144; Carter v. Ruddy, 166 U. S., 493; Kirwan v. Murphy, 83 Fed. Rep., 275.

There is no way for titles to land to be divested out of the United States, except in strict pursuance of some law of the United States, and, as no statute of limitations runs against the United States, occupancy and possession alone, even for a great length of time, can not ripen into title as against the United States. Drew v. Valentine, 18 Fed. Rep., 712.

In the administration of the public lands the decisions of the Land Department upon questions of fact are conclusive, and only questions of law can be reviewed by the courts. Catholic Bishop of Nesqually v. U. S. 158 U. S., 155.

³ MILITARY RESERVATIONS.

No specific statutory authority exists empowering the President to reserve public lands; but the right to reserve such lands for public uses is recognized by the courts. 14 Dec. Int. Dep., 426, 607, 628; Wolsey v. Chapman, 101 U. S., 755, 768; Walcott v. Des Moines Co., 5 Wall., 681. Such reservation may be effected by proclamation or by Executive order. 13 Dec. Int. Dep., 426. For cases in which the specific authority of law exists for the establishment of reservations, see the title Forest Reservations, in the chapter entitled NATIONAL PARKS.

A military reservation, being simply territory of the United States withdrawn from sale, preemption, (a) etc. (VII Opin. Att. Gen., 574, 757; 14 ibid., 775), the mere fact of the establishing of such a reservation can not affect the power of the State or Territorial authorities (according as it may be located in a State or Territory) to a The Constitution (Art. IV. sec. 3, ¶ 2) has vested in Congress the exclusive power "to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory" (held in U. S. v. Gratiot (14 Peters, 537) to mean "lands") "or other property belonging to the United States." As a consequence perhaps of the indefiniteness of this grant (see 7 Opin. Att. Gen., 574) no general enactment providing for the setting apart of land for military reservations has ever been made by Congress. In a few cases, indeed, a special authority to establish a military reserve has been conferred upon the President by statute, but the great majority of the military reservations heretofore located or now existing have been made by the President without any such specific authority whatever. But though no general authority has been directly given by Congress for the reserving of lands for military purposes, an authority for the purpose has been deemed to exist, and this authority is found in the usage of the executive department of the Government, as indirectly sanctioned by Congress in repeated preemption acts, acts relating to the survey of the public domain, appropriation acts, etc., in which lands reserved for military purposes by the President have been in general terms excepted from sale, exempted from entry, etc., or special provision has been made for the cost of improvements to be erected upon the same. In Grisar v. McDonald (6 Wallace, 381) the United States Supreme Court, by Field, J., observes: "From an early period in the history of the Government it has been the practice of the President to order, from time to time, as the exigencies of the public service required, parcels of land belonging to the United States to be reserved from sale and set apart for public uses." Further, "The authority of the President in this respect is recognized in numerous acts of Congress." The court then cites several statutes as containing this recognition, including the preemption acts of May 29, 1830, and September 4, 1841, and adds: "The action of the President in making the (military) reservations" (the title to which was at issue in the particular case) "was indirectly approved by the legislation of Congress in appropriating moneys for the construction of fortifications and other public works upon them." And see XII Opin. Att. Gen., 381; XIV ibid., 182; XVII ibid., 258; Wilcox v. Jackson, 13 Peters, 512; U. S. v. Hare, 4 Sawyer, 653; also U. S. v. R. R. Bridge Co., 6 McLean, 517;

It is, moreover, to be noted that the provision of the act of 1841, referred to by the Supreme Court, has been incorporated as a general enactment in the Revised Statutes in the chapter (chapter 4 of title 32) on preemptions, section 2258 expressly excepting from the lands of the United States, "subject to the rights of preemption," "lands included in any reservation by any treaty, law, or proclamation of the President for any purpose." And see section 2393, specifically excepting military reservations from the operation of the laws authorizing the establishing of town sites.

The "proclamation" of the President reserving lands for military purposes is usually in the form

(b) Where indeed there has been a cession of exclusive jurisdiction over the land by the State to the United States, the question whether the State authorities may still serve process within the reservation on account of liabilities incurred or crimes committed outside of its limits will depend upon the terms of the cession. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., par. 1699.

Land which has been set apart as a portion of an Indian reservation, under a treaty, can not be occupied as a military reservation; nor can even a military post be maintained thereon, in derogation of the terms of the treaty or against the consent of the Interior Department. (c) Ibid., par. 1701.

Held that the right to the "free and open exploration and purchase" of mineral lands, accorded to citizens, etc., by section 2319 Revised Statutes, could not authorize an entry, for the purpose of prospecting for mines, upon a military reservation once duly defined and established by the President, the mineral lands intended by the statute being clearly such as are included within the "public lands" of the United States. Ibid., par. 1703.

Mineral lands belonging to the public domain, which are reserved from sale under section 2318 of the Revised Statutes, may be reserved for military or other purposes by the President. Where such lands are included in a military reservation, they are not open to exploration and purchase under section 2319 of the Revised Statutes. It is otherwise where a right has once attached to mineral land, under the laws relating thereto, in favor of the locator of a mining claim. Here the land, during the existence of such right, is not subject to reservation by the President; and if it be subsequently reserved, the locator may nevertheless perfect his title. XVII Opin. Att. Gen., 230.

When public land subject to homestead settlement has been duly entered under the homestead law, it thenceforth ceases to be at the disposal of the Government so long as the entry of the settler subsists. Hence it can not, while such entry stands, be set apart by the President for a military reservation. Ibid., 160.

Where a part of the public domain has once been reserved by the President for military or other public purposes, and subsequently the land so reserved becomes unnecessary for such purposes, it can not be restored to the public domain without authority from Congress. Ibid., 168; XVI ibid., 123.

The President's power in the matter of military reservations is limited to the setting apart and declaring of the reservation; and, for the purpose of adding to and modifying the boundaries of the original reserved tract, a reservation may be redeclared by the Executive. But the President can not unreserve duly reserved land, either by revoking the order of reservation or otherwise. After lands have once been reserved for military purposes, the President, in the absence of authority from Congress, is not empowered to withdraw or restore them. By the authority, indeed, of the act of July 5, 1884, he may abandon a useless military reservation and turn the lands over to the Interior Department for disposition and sale. But he can not rereserve lands once turned over, they being no longer a part of the public domain, but lands in regard to which Congress has expressed a different will. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., paragraphs 1706, 1707.

of a military general order, issued by the Secretary of War, whose act in this, as in other administrative proceedings pertaining to the military administration, is in legal contemplation the act of the President, whom he represents. But no head of a Department or executive official inferior to the President can, of his own authority, make a reservation of public lands. The power is vested only in Congress and the President. United States v. Hare, 4 Sawyer, 653, 669.

In this connection may be noted the ruling of Attorney-General Bates (X Opins., 359), in opposition to that of Justice McLean, of the Supreme Court (in U. S. v. The Railroad Bridge Co., 6 McLean, 517), but apparently concurred in by Attorney-General Williams (XIV Opins., 246), to the effect that where a tract of land of the United States has once been legally reserved for military purposes the President is not empowered, in the absence of authority from Congress, to relinquish such reservation and restore the land reserved to the general body of the public lands.

b As by section 1237, Revised Statutes, exempting enlisted men from arrest for certain debts, or by the operation of the provisions of the fifty-ninth article of war as to the form to be observed in making criminal arrests of military persons.

c By Article VI, section 2, of the Constitution, "all treaties made under the authority of the United States" are declared to be "the supreme law of the land;" and Indian reservations "have generally been made through the exercise of the treaty-making power, and in fulfillment of treaty obligations." XIV Opin. Att. Gen., 182. That land can not be reserved or occupied for military purposes to the prejudice of a title previously vested in an individual or a corporation, see, further, X Opin., 339; XIII ibid., 469.

Sec. 355, R. S.

1593. No public money shall be expended upon any site or land purchased by the United States for the purpose of erecting thereon any armory, arsenal, fort, fortification, navy-yard, custom-house, light-house, or other public building, of any kind whatever, until the written opinion of the Attorney-General shall be had in favor of the validity of the title, nor until the consent of the legislature of the State in which the land or site may be, to such purchase, has been given. The district attorneys of the United States, upon the application of the Attorney-General, shall furnish any assistance or information in their power in relation to the titles of the public property lying within their respective districts. And the Secretaries of the Departments, upon the application of the Attorney-General, shall procure any additional evidence of title which he may deem necessary, and which may not be in the possession of the officers of the Government, and the expense of procuring it shall be paid out of the appropriations made for the contingencies of the Departments respectively.¹

"When, in an act appropriating for the purchase of additional land for a public building, the piece of ground to be purchased is particularly described, the appropriation can not be used for the purchase of another tract equally suitable for the purpose, and at a price within the sum provided, although the piece named can not be secured within the amount appropriated." 2 Compt. erty, purchased or about to be purchased, in their possession to furnish the same forthwith to the Attorney-General.

Joint resolution No. 21, of April 11, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 737), contains the requirement that "in case of emergency, when, in the opinion of the President, the immediate erection of any temporary fort or fortification is deemed important and urgent, such temporary fort or fortification may be constructed upon the written consent of the owner of the land upon which such work is to be placed; and the requirements of section three hundred and fifty-five of the Revised Statutes shall not be applicable in such cases."

The expense of procuring an abstract of title to land to be used as a site for a fortification is a proper charge against the appropriation made for the purchase of the site, if the abstract is needed by the United States attorney to assist him in examining the title, provided the land is to be purchased and not condemned. 111 Compt. Dig., 216.

The title to lands purchased on account of the United States is not properly assured by a certificate of "no liens," signed by the attorney who made the abstract of title. The proper person to make such a certificate is the custodian of the records of judgments and other record liens in the county in which the land is located. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., par. 2114.

"Section 355 of the Revised Statutes prescribes that no public money shall be expended upon any site or land purchased by the United States for the purpose of erecting thereon any armory, arsenal, fort, fortification, navy-yard, custom-house, light-house, or other building, of any kind whatever, until the * * * consent of the legislature of the State in which the land or site may be, to such purchase, has been given. This section is part based on the clause of the Constitution referred to, and in part not. The consent of the State to a purchase, given in order to satisfy the requirement of this section, would invest the United States with exclusive jurisdiction, if the purchase be for one of the constitutional purposes; but the section provides for other purposes also, and as to these it would seem that a simple consent to the purchase (assuming that such consent, being for a purpose not falling under the clause of the Constitution, amounts to a cession of jurisdiction) would only carry with it so much jurisdiction as would be necessary for the purpose of the purchase. Probably this would be held to be concurrent jurisdiction. Taking into consideration the fact that States can not, under any circumstances, interfere with the instrumentalities of the Government of the United States, it may, indeed, be questioned whether, even under this view, unnecessary precautions have not been taken in regard to the acquisition of jurisdiction; and certainly it can not be presumed that a State intends to part with more of its sovereignty than is necessary. A consent to the purchase, under section 355, Revised Statutes, if the purchase be for other than one of the purposes described in the clause of the Constitution, may, therefore, be accompanied with any limitations not interfering with an instrumentality of the Government of the United States.

"The most common way of acquiring jurisdiction, however, is by the State's expressly ceding it to the United States. In such case the State may make similar limitations, and this even if the place be used by the United States for one of the purposes mentioned in the clause of the Constitution. To bring the case under the clause there must be a purchase with consent. Fort Leavenworth R. R. Co. v. Lowe, 114 U. S., 539; Chicago and Pacific Ry. Co. v. McGlinn, 114 U. S., 549; Benson v. U. S., 146 U. S., 331; in re Kelly, 71 Fed. Rep., 545; in re Ladd, 74 Fed. Rep., 399.)" Gen. G. N. Lieber, Sept. 28, 1897 (see Military Res., etc., Title and Jurisdiction, p. 288).

¹In the absence of statutory authority, land can not be purchased for the United States with any more legality than land of the United States can be sold or disposed of. By a provision of an act of May 1, 1820, now contained in section 2736, Revised Statutes, it is declared that "No land shall be purchased on account of the United States except under a law authorizing such purchase." Held that the term "purchase" was to be understood in its legal sense, as embracing any mode of acquiring property other than by descent; (b) and that therefrom the Secretary of War would not be empowered to accept a gift of land or interest in land for any use or purpose independently of statutory authority. (a) And similarly held as to the construction of the same word ("purchase") as employed in section 355, Revised Statutes, and advised that an appropriation of public money could not legally be expended for the erection of a public building upon land donated to the United States until the Attorney-General had passed the title and the legislature of the State in which the land was situated had given its consent to the grant. (b) Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., 627, par. 5.

The statutory authority relied upon for the purchase of land by a head of a Department should be clear and indisputable. Thus, held that authority to purchase additional land for the interment of soldiers could not be derived from the general provision of the annual appropriation act, appropriating a certain sum for maintaining the existing national cemeteries. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., par. 2105.

A statute conferring a specific authority to purchase certain land should, in the exercise of the authority, be strictly construed. Thus, where a statute authorized the Secretary of War to purchase, for a certain stated sum, a certain described tract containing a specified number of acres, held that the act did not invest him with discretion to purchase a portion only of such tract. Ibid., par. 2108.

Authority to acquire land in a State, by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, whether by proceedings for condemnation in the United States circuit court or in the courts of the State, (c) can be vested in an executive official of the United States only by express legislation of Congress. Ibid., 2109.

The Constitution vests in Congress the exclusive power to dispose of the property of the United States, real or personal. (d) The Secretary of War, in the absence of authority from Congress, can not alienate land of the United States. Thus, where a company proposed to cut out and remove a part of a dam (some 140 feet) on Fox River, Wisconsin, belonging to the United States, and to substitute another, as a private improvement, below, held that this was a proposition for the alienation by an executive official of public property, and could not legally be entertained. Ibid., par. 2113.

In view of the prohibition of section 3736, Revised Statutes, that "no land shall be purchased on account of the United States, except under a law authorizing the same," the Secretary of War can not accept a grant by gift of land or of an easement in land without authority of special statute. [By act of April 24, 1888, he is expressly empowered to purchase, or accept donations of, land for river and harbor improvements.] And held that, in the absence of authority from Congress, a purchase of lots in a city cemetery, for the burial purposes of a neighboring military post, would not be legal or operative. Ibid., par. 2106.

¹The State of North Carolina ceded to the United States, by an act of its legislature of 1794, the land of the present military reservation at Southport, N. C., the site of old Fort Johnson. A condition of the deed of cession was to the effect that a fortification should be erected on the land within three years and be maintained forever thereafter for the public service, or the land should revert to the State. The time allowed was repeatedly extended, the last extension expiring in 1818, when a fortification had been constructed if not fully completed. The fort has long since ceased to be garrisoned. In 1889 an individual citizen "entered" the site as State a See this opinion concurred in by an opinion of the Attorney-General, in XVI Opins., 414. As statutes specially authorizing the acceptance of donations of land, note the early acts of March 20 and May 9, 1794, and, later, the acts of February 18, 1867; March 3, 1875; June 23, 1879. That authority, however, to purchase, and, a fortiori perhaps, to accept a gift of, the necessary land, may be implied from an appropriation act granting a sum of money for a public work requiring for its construction the occupation and use of certain land of an individual or corporation. See opinions of the Attorney-General in XV Opins., 212; XVI ibid., 119, 387. In the opinion in XVI Opins., 119, it was held that where no statutory authority whatever existed for accepting a gift of land a head of a Department would not be justified in accepting the same on the condition that Congress ratify the acceptance and in anticipation of such ratification.

b But under the implied authority contained in section 1838, Revised Statutes, lands required as sites for forts, arsenals, etc., or needful public buildings, may be purchased (or acquired by gift) without the consent of the State, though in the absence of such consent public money can not, in view of the provisions of section 355, legally be expended upon the building. (a) Ibid., par. 2116.

¹The power to take private property for public uses, generally termed the right of eminent domain, belongs to every independent government. It is an incident of sovereignty and requires no constitutional recognition. The provision found in the fifth amendment to the Federal Constitution, and in the constitutions of the several States, for just compensation for property taken, is merely a limitation upon the use of the power. It is no part of the power itself, but a condition upon which the power may be exercised. U. S. v. Jones, 109 U. S., 513, 518; Boom Co. v. Patterson, 98 U. S., 106; Kohl v. U. S., 91 U. In some instances the States, by virtue of their own right of eminent domain, have condemned lands for the use of the General Government, and such condemnations have been sustained by their courts, without, however, denying the right of the United States to act independently of the States. *Kohl v. The legislature is the judge of the necessity for exercising the right in any case. Cooley Const. Law, 527. It is now well settled that whenever, in the execution of the powers granted to the United States by the Constitution, lands in any State are needed by the United States, for a fort, magazine, dockyard, light-house, custom-house, post-office, or any other public purpose, and can not be acquired by agreement with the owners, the Congress of the United States, exercising the right of eminent domain, and making just compensation to the owners, may authorize such lands to be taken, either by proceedings in the courts of the State with its consent, or by proceedings in the courts of the United States, with or without any consent or concurrent act of the State, as Congress may direct or permit. *Chappell v. ¹The manner in which the power of eminent domain of the United States shall be exercised is a matter of legislative discretion, and Congress, by the act of August 1, 1888, 25 Stat. L., 357, has vested in the United States circuit and district courts of the district in which the land is situated jurisdiction of proceedings authorized to be instituted by any public officer to condemn such land for public purposes. By the act of August 18, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 316), the Secretary of War is authorized to cause proceedings to be instituted for the condemnation of land for military purposes "in any court having jurisdiction of such proceedings." Held, that said acts are in pari materia, and upon an application by the Secretary of War under the latter act the Attorney-General may, at his election, cause proceedings to be instituted for the condemnation of land for military purposes in either the State or Federal courts. Chappell v. U. S., 81 Fed. Rep., 764. By the Constitution of the United States, the estimate of the just compensation for property taken for the public use, under the right of eminent domain, is not required to be made by a jury, but may be intrusted to commissioners appointed by a court or by the Executive, or to an inquest consisting of more or fewer men than an ordinary jury. Bauman v. Ross, 167 U. S., 548. Under the authority conferred by this statute the Attorney-General may, upon the request of the Secretary of War, cause proceedings to be instituted for the condemnation of land for military purposes in either the State or Federal courts. Chappell v. U. S., 81 Fed. Rep., 764.

JURISDICTION OVER RESERVATIONS.¹

1600. The Congress shall have Power * * * Jurisdiction over reservations, when exclusive.
Art. I, sec. 8,
Constitution.
To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such district (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may,
by Cession of particular States, and the Acceptance of Con-

When the United States acquire lands within the limits of a State, with the consent of the legislature of the State, for the erection of forts, arsenals, dockyards, and other needful buildings, the Constitution confers upon them exclusive jurisdiction of the tract so acquired; but when they acquire such lands in any other way than by purchase with the consent of the legislature they will hold the lands subject to this qualification, that if upon them forts, arsenals, or other public buildings are erected for the uses of the General Government such buildings, with their appurtenances, as instrumentalities for the execution of its powers, will be free from any such interference and jurisdiction of the State as would destroy or impair their effective use for the purposes designed. Such is the law with reference to all instrumentalities created by the General Government. Their exemption from State control is essential to the independence and sovereign authority of the United States within the sphere of their delegated powers. But when not used as such instrumentalities the legislative power of the State will be as full and complete as over any other places within her limits. Fort Leavenworth R. R. Co. v. Lowe, 114 U. S., 525, 539. Where the absolute title to property remains in the United States, no matter for what purpose it is acquired or held, it is not subject to State or municipal taxation. Am. and Engl. Ency. of Law, vol. 25, p. 110, and cases cited.

The purchase of lands in a State by the General Government, with legislative consent, does not, ipso facto, confer upon the General Government exclusive jurisdiction, unless the purchase is for a fort or for some other purpose distinctly named in Article I, section 8, of the Constitution; and in order that exclusive jurisdiction may be acquired over land taken for any other purpose the act providing therefor and calling for the consent must unequivocally declare that exclusive jurisdiction is intended and necessary, or such necessity must be manifest from the purpose of the act. Accordingly, held, that the acts of Congress establishing the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers and creating a corporation authorized to take and hold lands for the purpose of such homes, containing no declaration of the necessity of exclusive jurisdiction in the General Government over such lands, do not vest such exclusive jurisdiction in the United States, upon the consent of the State being given to the acquisition of such lands. In re Kelly, 71 Fed. Rep., 545.

A cession to the General Government, in the act giving the consent of the State to the purchase of such land, of "jurisdiction" does not confer exclusive jurisdiction the purpose of the act not requiring it, but such jurisdiction only, concurrent with that of the State, as Congress may find necessary for the objects of the cession. Ibid.

Upon lands so ceded for the purpose of a home for disabled volunteers the criminal laws of the United States, which apply only to places within their exclusive jurisdiction, are not operative. Ibid.

A State may cede to the United States exclusive jurisdiction over a tract within its limits in a manner not provided for in the Constitution of the United States, and may prescribe conditions to the cession, if they are not inconsistent with the effective use of the property for the purpose intended. The reservation which has usually accompanied the consent of the States, that civil and criminal process of the State courts may be served in the places purchased, is not considered as interfering in any respect with the supremacy of the United States over them, but is admitted to prevent them from becoming an asylum for fugitives from justice. Fort Leavenworth R. R. Co. v. Lowe, 114 U. S., 525, 533. Such reservations provide only that civil and criminal process issued under the authority of the State, which must, of course, be for acts done and cognizable by the State, may be executed within the ceded lands, notwithstanding the cession. Not a word is said from which we can infer that it was intended that the State should have a right to punish for acts done within the ceded lands. Ibid., 534; United States v. Cornell, 2 Mason, 60; Commonwealth v. Clary, 8 Mass., 72; Mitchell v. Tibbetts, 17 Pick., 298; People v. Godfrey, 17 Johns (N. Y.), 225.

Residents within such ceded districts have none of the duties and obligations and gress, become the Seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like Authority over all places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the Same shall be, for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards, and other needful Buildings.

none of the rights and privileges of citizens of the States within which such lands are situated. They are not subject to taxation; they can not exercise the right of suffrage. VI Opin. Att. Gen., 577; X ibid., 35; Sinks v. Reese, 19 Ohio, 306. They are not entitled to the benefit of the public schools. 1 Met. (Mass.), 580.

An act of the legislature of a State ceding to the United States the jurisdiction of the State over a tract of land used as a military reservation upon condition that such jurisdiction shall continue only so long as the United States shall own and occupy such reservation; that the State shall have the right within the reservation to serve civil process and to execute criminal process against persons charged with crime committed within the State, and that roads may be opened and kept in repair within such reservation, cedes to the United States the entire political jurisdiction of the State over the place in question, including judicial and legislative jurisdiction, except as to service of process and opening roads, and the same can not be affected or further limited without the consent of the United States by a subsequent act of the State legislature attempting to impose additional restrictions on the jurisdiction ceded. In re Ladd, 74 Fed. Rep., 31.

After such cession a justice of the peace acting under authority of the State has no jurisdiction over the ceded territory in matters of alleged criminal violation of the laws of the State committed on such territory. Ibid.

It is a general rule of public law, recognized and acted upon by the United States, that whenever political jurisdiction and legislative power over any territory are transferred from one nation or sovereign to another the municipal laws of the country—that is, laws which are intended for the protection of private rights—continue in force until abrogated or changed by the new government or sovereign. By the cession public property passes from one government to the other, but private property remains as before, and with it those municipal laws which are designed to secure its peaceful use and enjoyment. As a matter of course, all laws, ordinances, and regulations in conflict with the political character, institutions, and constitution of the new government are at once displaced. * * * But with respect to other laws affecting the possession, use, and transfer of property, and designed to secure good order and peace in the community and promote its health and prosperity, which are of a strictly municipal character, the rule is general that a change of government leaves them in force until by direct action of the new government they are altered or repealed. Chicago and Pacific R. R. v. McGlinn, 114 U. S., 542, 547; American Insurance Co. v. Cantor, 1 Pet., 542; Halleck Int. Law, ch. 34, sec. 14.

While after such cession the municipal laws of the State governing property and property rights continue in force in the ceded territory, except so far as in conflict with the laws and regulations of the United States applying thereto, the criminal laws of the State cease to be of force within the ceded territory, and laws regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors, requiring a license therefor, and punishing unlicensed sales cease to be operative, both as in conflict with the regulations of the United States governing military reservations and as penal in character. In re Ladd, 74 Fed. Rep., 31.

Such cessions are “necessarily temporary, to be exercised only so long as the places continue to be used for the public purposes for which the property was acquired, or reserved from sale.” When they cease to be so used, the jurisdiction reverts to the State. Fort Leavenworth R. R. Co. v. Lowe, 114 U. S., 525, 542.

A lease by the United States to a city for market purposes of vacant land which was a part of land ceded by the State to the United States for the purposes of a navy-yard and naval hospital, with a provision that the United States may retain such use and jurisdiction no longer than the premises are used for such purposes, operates, at least while the lease is in force, to suspend the exclusive authority and jurisdiction of the United States over the leased land, and thereby makes it subject to the jurisdiction of State courts in an action for ouster therefrom. Palmer v. Barrett, 162 U. S., 399. The character and purposes of the occupation of a reservation having been officially and legally established by that branch of the Government which has control over such matters, it is not open to the courts, on a question of jurisdiction, to inquire what may be the actual uses to which any portion of the reserve is temporarily put. Benson v. U. S., 146 U. S., 331.

JURISDICTION OVER OFFENSES COMMITTED ON RESERVATIONS.

Over lands reserved for military or other governmental purposes in the Territories the jurisdiction of the United States is necessarily paramount. When a Territory is admitted as a State it is within the power of Congress to stipulate for the power of exclusive jurisdiction over such reservations, or to except them from the jurisdiction of the State. Failing to do this, however, the State can exercise such authority and jurisdiction over them as over similar property held by private individuals; and the United States can acquire exclusive jurisdiction only when the same has been formally ceded by the legislature of the State in which the lands are situated. Fort Leavenworth R. R. Co. v. Lowe, 114 U. S., 525. Lands acquired by the United States for public uses, by purchase with the consent of the States, or by an exercise of the right of eminent domain, are not public lands, that term applying only to "such lands as are subject to sale or other disposition under general laws." Newhall v. Sanger, 92 U. S., 761.

When an act admitting a State into the Union, or organizing a Territorial government, provides that the lands in possession of an Indian tribe shall not be a part of such State or Territory, the new government has no jurisdiction over them. Langford v. Monteith, 102 U. S., 145. For an example of such a reservation on the part of Congress in the admission of a State into the Union, see the act of July 10, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 222), admitting the State of Wyoming.

SUPERVISION OF RESERVATIONS.

Department commanders will supervise all military reservations within the limits of their commands, and if necessary will use force to remove trespassers. No license or permission to any civilian to use or occupy any part of a reservation will be given, except by the Secretary of War, unless he be in the employ of the Government, or in the family or service of persons there employed. (a) Par. 228, A. R., 1901.

The general principle of the authority to remove trespassers, their structures, and property from the land of the United States embraced in a military reservation, held specially applicable where the intrusion was for an injurious purpose, as where the object was to lay a sewer intended to discharge into a main sewer constructed by the United States upon and for the use of its own premises. In this instance, as the trespass was committed by the authorities of a municipality, advised that reasonable notice be given them to remove their property before resorting to military force for the purpose, and meantime that precautions be taken to prevent a connection between the proposed sewer and the sewers under the control of the United States. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1717.

Intruding settlers on the public lands may be removed by military force under the act of March 3, 1807 (2 Stat. L., 445). The United States have, also, all the common law and chancery remedies of individuals, under similar circumstances, for protection and redress. I Opin. Att. Gen., 471. The President may employ such military force as he may judge necessary and proper to remove persons who may intrude upon any lands ceded to the United States by any treaty made with a foreign nation, or by a cession from any individual State, and may adopt that method with respect to the lands ceded to the United States by the Creek treaty of March 4, 1832. II ibid., 575; III ibid., 255; VII ibid., 534.

Squatters and other trespassers and intruders may and should be expelled, by military force if necessary, from a military reservation. (b) But such persons, when they have been suffered to own and occupy buildings on a reservation, should be allowed reasonable time to remove them. If not removed after due notice, the same should be removed by the military. Material abandoned on a reservation by a trespasser, on vacating, may lawfully be utilized by the commander for completing roads, walks, etc. Squatters on United States reservations may be forced therefrom by criminal proceedings had under section 5388, Revised Statutes, or ejected by civil action. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1713.

Where squatters have made any considerable improvements upon a reservation, a As to the authority to remove trespassers from military reservations, see III Opin. Att. Gen., 268; XIX ibid., 106, 476; G. O. 74, Hdqrs. of Army, 1869. That this authority is not deemed to be affected by the provision of section 15 of the act of June 18, 1878, see chapter entitled EMPLOYMENT OF MILITARY FORCE. See, also, Dig. J. A. G., par. 487; ibid. 165, par. 9.

b See G. O. 62 of 1869.

the consent of a State for the erection of a fort, magazine, arsenal, dockyard, or other needful building or structure, the punishment for which offense is not provided for by any law of the United States, the person committing such offense shall, upon conviction in a circuit or district court of the United States for the district in which the offense and their value has been duly estimated—as by a board constituted by the department commander and presenting in its report all the evidence on the subject—an award by the Secretary of War, acquiesced in by the claimant, may be sued upon in the Court of Claims, which (in the absence of evidence of fraud or mistake) will accept such award as conclusive. (a) Ibid., par. 1714.

The cutting of timber on a military reservation is an offense against the United States made punishable by section 5388, Revised Statutes, as amended by the acts of June 4, 1888, and of March 3, 1875, chapter 151. So, grass cut on a reservation and removed as hay would be personal property of which the asportation would be larceny under the act of March 3, 1875, chapter 144. And persons coming upon a military reservation for the purpose of cutting wood or grass, or to plow up the soil, or commit other trespass, may be removed as intruders, and the post commander should not hesitate to resort to military force if necessary for the purpose. And he may of course prevent such trespassers from carrying off with them any property of the United States. Ibid., par. 1715.

In the absence or any statute directly or by necessary implication extending the powers of the local government of the District of Columbia over the military reservation and post at the Arsenal in Washington, held (May, 1879) that the health officer appointed by the Commissioners (constituting such government) would not be empowered of his own authority, and without the consent of the military commander, to enter upon such reservation and remove or abate a nuisance deemed by him to exist thereon. The effect of the legislation in regard to the government of the District is to except therefrom the public buildings and grounds of the United States, which are left to the charge of certain specified officials. Even farther removed from such government is the reservation at the Arsenal, the same being a military post commanded by the President through a military subordinate, and governed by military orders and regulations. Ibid., par. 1705.

Held, that an act of Congress granting a railroad company a right of way through “the public lands” of the United States did not authorize it to enter and construct a track upon the soil of a military reservation, the same being no part of “the public lands,” (a) and that such entry was therefore a trespass. Ibid., par. 1700, but see par. 1619, post.

The right of way through several military reservations has been granted to various railroads, or other corporate bodies, by express legislation in each case.

TAXATION ON RESERVATIONS.

The authorities of a State or Territory (or, of course, of a county, town, etc.) are not empowered to tax an officer or soldier of the Army on account of his pay, or for any personal property in his possession properly required for the due exercise of his office or performance of his military duties. Officers and soldiers of the Army are instrumentalities provided by law to enable or assist the President to exercise his constitutional function of Commander in Chief and Executive of the nation. The pay and emoluments furnished them by Congress are means to make their services possible and effective, and their right to receive and enjoy the same can not be in any degree impaired or infringed upon by the authorities of a distinct and inferior sovereignty. And the same principle of exemption properly applies to their arms, equipments, horses, and other personal property required to be possessed and employed by them in the military service. (b) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2425.

The principle exempting from taxation the office or salary of an officer of the United States applies to officers on the retired list equally as to those on the active list of the Army. Retired officers, being a part of the Army, are a part of the machinery of the Government, though a part not often called into active operation. But though a retired officer can not legally be taxed by State or municipal authorities on account of his Army pay as property or income, he is subject to be taxed for other property owned and held at his place of residence, like any other citizen. Ibid., par. 2426.

^a Maddux v. U. S., 20 Ct. Cls., 193, 199.

^b In the leading case applicable to this subject—Dobbins v. Commissioners of Erie County, 16 Peters, 435—the Supreme Court of the United States, in declaring to be unconstitutional a State statute, so

An officer or soldier of the Army, though not taxable officially, may be and often is taxable personally. He is not taxable by a State for his pay, or for the arms, instruments, uniform clothing, or other property pertaining to his military office or capacity, but as to household furniture and other personal property, not military, he is (except where stationed at a place under the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States) equally subject with other residents or inhabitants to taxation under the local law. (a) Ibid., par. 2428.

¹ This statute replaces section 5391 of the Revised Statutes, which provided that any offense committed in any place ceded to and under the jurisdiction of the United States shall, where not specially made punishable by any law of the United States, be visited with the same punishment as is provided for such offense by the laws "now in force" of the State within which such place is situated. This provision, originally enacted March 3, 1825, was substantially reenacted April 5, 1866. In 1832 it was ruled by the Supreme Court (b) that the provision of 1825 was "limited to the laws of the several States in force at the time of its enactment." And in recent cases, arising in Montana (c) and Colorado (d) it has been held that the provision in sec. 5391 did not apply to the offense because these States, with their laws, did not come into existence till subsequently to the date of the enactment of 1866. Thus the section was operative neither as to offenses committed in States which entered the Union since 1866 nor as to those committed in States where, at the date of the commission, there existed no criminal statute providing for the punishment of the particular offense. "For the reasons above set forth a remedy was applied by the enactment of the act of July 7, 1898."

far as it authorized the taxing of the office of a captain in the U. S. revenue service, held as follows: "The compensation of an officer of the United States is fixed by a law made by Congress. It is in its exclusive discretion to declare what shall be given. It exercises the discretion and fixes the amount, and confers upon the officer the right to receive it when it has been earned. Any law of a State imposing a tax upon the office, diminishing the recompense, is in conflict with the law of the United States which secures the allowance to the officer." Further: "Taxation by a State can not act upon the instruments, emoluments, and persons which the United States may use and employ as necessary and proper means to execute their sovereign powers. * * * The State governments can not lay a tax upon the constitutional means employed by the Government of the Union to execute its constitutional powers." In a later case—Society for Savings v. Coite, 6 Wallace, 605—the same court declares: "All subjects over which the sovereign power of a State extends are, as a general rule, proper subjects of taxation, but the power of a State to tax does not extend to those means which are employed by Congress to carry into execution the powers conferred in the Federal Constitution. Unquestionably the taxing power of the States is very comprehensive and pervading, but it is not without limits. State tax laws can not restrain the action of the National Government, nor can they abridge the operation of any law which Congress may constitutionally pass." This general doctrine is applied by Attorney-General Black, IX Opins, 477, as follows: "The authorities of a State can not impose a tax upon the salary of a Federal officer, or upon the compensation paid by the United States to any person engaged in their service." And as illustrating the principle involved, see also McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheaton, 316; Weston v. Charlestown, 2 Peters, 449; Seagright v. Stokes, 3 Howard, 151; Bank of Commerce v. New York, 2 Black, 620; Provident Inst. v. Mass., 6 Wallace, 611; The Banks v. The Mayor, 7 id., 16; Bank v. Supervisors, id., 26; Railroad Co. v. Peniston, 18 id., 5; Carrol v. Perry, 4 McLean, 25; Stetson v. Bangor, 56 Maine, 274; Opinion of Justices, 53 N. Hamp., 634; United States v. Weise, 5 Pa. L. J. R., 61; West. Un. Tel. Co. v. Richmond, 26 Grat., 1; State v. Garton, 32 Ind., 1; VII Opins. At. Gen., 578; XIV Id., 199. In the late case of Railroad Company v. Peniston, 18 Wallace, 30, it is specified by Strong, J., that "the States may not levy taxes the direct effect of which shall be to hinder the exercise of any powers which belong to the National Government."

Feb. 25, 1885, v. 23, p. 321.

¹The Government of the United States has, with respect to its own lands within the limits of a State, the rights of an ordinary proprietor to maintain its possession, and to prosecute trespassers; and may legislate for their protection, though such legislation may involve the exercise of police power; and may complain of, and take steps to prevent, acts of individuals in fencing in its lands, even though done for the purpose of irrigation and pasturing. Camfield v. U. S., 167 U. S., 518.

²Section 5388 of the Revised Statutes, as amended by the act of June 4, 1888, which forbids the cutting or wanton destruction of timber upon military or Indian reservations, does not apply to one who removes and uses for building purposes timber which has been cut on an Indian reservation by another person without his aid and encouragement. U. S. v. Konkapot, 43 Fed. Rep., 64. Persons cutting trees growing on the lands of the United States, without permission, are mere trespassers, performing an illegal act, and acquire no right, title, or interest in the wood by reason of the severance. *No. Pac. United States district attorneys on complaints made to institute civil suits.

1606. That it shall be the duty of the district attorney of the United States for the proper district, on affidavit filed with him by any citizen of the United States that section one of this act is being violated, showing a description of the land inclosed with reasonable certainty, not necessarily by metes and bounds nor by governmental subdivisions of surveyed lands, but only so that the inclosure may be identified, and the persons guilty of the violation as nearly as may be, and by description, if the name can not on reasonable inquiry be ascertained, to institute a civil suit in the proper United States district or circuit court, or Territorial district court, in the name of the United States, and against the parties named or described who shall be in charge of or controlling the inclosure complained of as defendants; and jurisdiction is also hereby conferred on any United States district or circuit court or Territorial district court having jurisdiction over the locality where the land inclosed, or any part thereof, shall be situated, to hear and determine proceedings in equity, by writ of injunction, to restrain violations of the provisions of this act; and it shall be sufficient to give the court jurisdiction if service of original process be had in any civil proceeding on any agent or employee having charge or control of the inclosure; and any suit brought under the provisions of this section shall have precedence for hearing and trial over other cases on the civil docket of the court, and shall be tried and determined at the earliest practicable day. In any case if the inclosure shall be found to be unlawful, the court shall make the proper order, judgment, or decree for the destruction of the inclosure, in a summary way, unless the inclosure shall be removed by the defendant within five days after the order of the court. Sec. 2, ibid.

1615. The Congress shall have power to dispose of, and make all needful rules and regulations respecting, the territory or other property belonging to the United States.²
Constitution of the United States, Art. IV, sec. 3, par. 2.

¹ This enactment replaces the act of February 24, 1897 (29 Stat. L., 594), in pari materia. See also the title Forest Reservations in the chapter, post, entitled NATIONAL PARKS.

² The scope of this provision is most comprehensive, the authority conferred thereby upon the legislative branch of the Government being held to extend from the formation of a territorial government to the matter of the sale of a small amount of personalty. That neither land nor any interest in land of the United States can be sold or otherwise disposed of by the head of an Executive Department or other executive official or by a military officer, without the authority of Congress, is settled law. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2087.

The Constitution vests in Congress the exclusive power to dispose of the property of the United States, real or personal. The Secretary of War, in the absence of authority from Congress, can not alienate land of the United States. Ibid., pars. 2087-2089.

There is no way for titles to land to be divested out of the United States except in strict pursuance of some law of the United States; and, as no statute of limitations runs against the United States, occupancy and possession alone, even for a great length

^a This fundamental rule of our public law is expressed by Attorney-General Hoar (XIII Opins., 46) as follows: "I am clearly of opinion that the Secretary of War can not convey to any person any interest in land belonging to the United States, except in pursuance of an act of Congress expressly or impliedly authorizing him to do so." And see United States v. Nichols, 1 Paine, 646 (cited post); Seabury v. Field, McAllister, 1; United States v. Hare, 4 Sawyer, 653, 669.

1616. That whenever, in the opinion of the President of the United States, the lands, or any portion of them, included within the limits of any military reservation heretofore or hereafter declared, have become or shall become useless for military purposes, he shall cause the same, or so much thereof as he may designate, to be placed under the control of the Secretary of the Interior for disposition as of time, can not ripen into title as against the United States. Drew v. Valentine, 18 Fed. Rep., 212; Villey v. Jarbeau, 35 Louisiana Ann., 542.

In the absence of such authority, the lands of the United States, whether held by original proprietorship, or acquired by purchase or gift, or by conquest, can not, even for a purely benevolent or religious purpose, be given away any more than they can be transferred for a valuable consideration. Nor, without such authority, can they be conveyed temporarily by lease, whether for a short or long period. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2087. But for authority to lease lands not needed for the use of the War Department, see the act of July 28, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 321), par. 1620, post.

Nor, without authority from Congress, can an Executive Department or officer convey away any usufructuary interest in land of the United States. Thus it has been repeatedly held by the Judge-Advocate-General that the Secretary of War, or a military commander, was not empowered, of his own authority, to grant a right of way over a military reservation to a railroad company or other corporation, and in numerous statutory enactments such a right has been expressly given by Congress as the only authority competent for the purpose. Ibid., par. 2088.

So held that the Secretary of War would not be authorized to transfer a lot belonging to the United States in Washington to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia for the erection of a hospital. So held that neither the Secretary of War nor a department commander could grant to an individual or individuals the exclusive right to use for an indefinite period certain water power belonging to the United States, nor the exclusive right to mine the soil of a military reservation for a certain term of years, nor a similar right to make and maintain for an indefinite period ditches through a portion of such a reservation for the purpose of irrigating the lands of private parties, nor the right annually to enter upon and occupy a military reservation and cut and possess the hay crop growing thereon, (b) nor the right permanently or indefinitely to occupy and use a portion of a reservation for a burying ground. Ibid., par. 2088.

Disposition of buildings, etc.—The provision of the Constitution in regard to the disposition of public property applies to personalty equally as to realty. Thus no Executive Department or officer can be empowered, except by the authority of Congress, to dispose of personal property of the United States. (c) So held that, in the absence of such authority, a military commander could not legally dispose of temporary buildings—not “fixtures”—erected upon a military reservation. So held that the Secretary of War would not be authorized, in the absence of enabling legislation, to sell or negotiate the bonds or promissory notes made to the United States by certain railroad companies, in consideration of rolling stock, etc., sold and transferred to the same. And similarly held as to the authority of the Secretary to dispose of articles of ^aSee Friedman v. Goodwin, 1 McAllister, 148, where a lease made by the post commander at San Francisco, of a part of a “government reserve,” though approved by the military governor of the then Territory, and also by the Secretary of the Interior, was held void because not authorized by Congress. The court declares the “utter impotency of any attempt by an officer of the Government to alien any land, the property of the United States, without the authority of an act of Congress;” adding that “the President, with the heads of the Departments combined,” could not effect such an object. And see IV Opins. At. Gen., 480; 9 Id., 476; 13 Id., 46; United States v. Hare, 4 Sawyer, 670-671. In the last case the court say: “The Secretary of the Treasury can not execute or approve of a lease of any property belonging to the United States without special authority of law.”

^b*A fortiori* in regard to growing timber. See Spencer v. United States, 10 Ct. Cls., 255.

^cThe leading case on this point is United States v. Nichols, 1 Paine, U. S. Circ. Ct. R., 646, in which it was held that a sale or loan, by the commandant of an arsenal, of a quantity of lead belonging to the United States, was illegal and invalid. The court say: “The Constitution declares that ‘Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States.’ No public property can therefore be disposed of without the authority of law, either by an express act of Congress for that purpose, or by giving the authority to some Department or subordinate agent. No law has been shown authorizing the sale of this lead; nor is any such authority to be inferred from the general power vested in any of the Departments of the Government. The power, if lodged anywhere, would seem most appropriately to belong to the War Department. But there is no such express or implied power in that Department to sell the public property put under its management.” And see the same principle recognized in an opinion of the Attorney-General, in XVI Opins., 477, in which it is held that the Secretary of War was not empowered to sell arms to a State in the absence of authority from Congress.

inferior value, not impliedly authorized to be sold by section 1316, Revised Statutes. And held that the fact that certain valuable public property was perishable and liable to waste was not legally sufficient to justify the sale in the absence of statutory authority. (a) Ibid., par. 2090.

The principle that buildings erected on the land of another without his consent become his property does not apply to buildings erected by the United States on land occupied jure belli by the Army in an enemy's country; but that, on subsequently surrendering the land to the owner, the military authorities might legally remove and retain or dispose of the buildings. Ibid., par. 2097.

Temporary buildings only erected by military orders on land of the United States at a military post, to serve a temporary purpose, are in general personal property of the United States, which may be removed by the direction or authority of the Secretary of War. (b) But if the same be permanent structures and real estate, the authority of Congress is necessary to their removal. Ibid., par. 2098.

The United States being tenant of land leased for military purposes at Fort Davis, Tex., erected buildings thereon for the purposes of a military post. In view of the fact that the relation was that of landlord and tenant, that the buildings were erected for a purpose analogous to that of trade, and for a public use, and that in their erection there could certainly have been no intention to benefit the inheritance or add to the freehold—held that such buildings were to be regarded not as fixtures but as personal property, and removable by the tenant at any time before the expiration of his lease. Should the Government sell the buildings standing, the purchaser would have the same right of disposition as the United States and no more. He would therefore be obliged to remove them before the termination of the lease, unless otherwise permitted by the owner of the premises. And held similarly of like buildings erected at Fort Union, N. Mex., where the United States was tenant at will, the buildings not being intended as improvements, but merely for the use of the troops. Ibid., par. 2099.

Where a post commander, without authority, took possession of land of the United States for the purpose of erecting thereon a building for his personal use, and having erected it assumed to hold and dispose of it as his own property, held that his act was unauthorized and illegal, and that he acquired no legal estate in the building. And similarly held where, without authority, he permitted an enlisted man of his command to use land of the United States for the erection thereon of a dwelling and to hold and dispose of such dwelling as his own property. Ibid., par. 2100.

Wood growing on a military reservation is the property of the United States. So held that a contractor who cut such wood to fill a contract made by him with the United States to furnish wood to a military post could not legally be allowed to remove or dispose of the same as his own property, and advised that he be paid merely for the cutting. Ibid., par. 2101.

a Held that the "Cavalry Tactics," a work prepared under the orders of the Secretary of War by a board of officers, was the property of the United States, and therefore could not, without the authority of Congress, be disposed of to a bookseller with a view to its publication and sale by him on his private account. Ibid.

This last enactment confers authority upon the Secretary of the Interior to grant rights of way over lands included in certain national parks and forest reservations, but with the condition that such grants shall be made through military and Indian reservations with the approval of the chief officer of the department under whom the supervision of the reservation falls, and upon a finding by him that the same is not incompatible with the public interest.

1621. Permanent barracks or quarters and buildings and structures of a permanent nature shall not be constructed unless detailed estimates shall have been previously submitted to Congress, and approved by a special appropriaof by the head of an Executive Department or other executive official, or by a military officer, without the authority of Congress is settled law. (a)

In the absence of such authority, the lands of the United States, whether held by original proprietorship or acquired by purchase or gift, or by conquest, can not, even for a purely benevolent or religious purpose, be given away, any more than they can be transferred for a valuable consideration. Nor without such authority can they be conveyed temporarily by lease, whether for a short or long term. (b) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2087.

Nor, without authority from Congress, can an Executive Department or officer convey away any usufructuary interest in land of the United States. Thus it has been repeatedly held by the Judge-Advocate-General that the Secretary of War (or a military commander) was not empowered, of his own authority, to grant a right of way over a military reservation to a railroad company or other corporation, and in numerous statutory enactments such a right has been expressly given by Congress as the only authority competent for the purpose.

And such rights when given can be exercised only within the terms of the grant. Thus, where by an act of Congress there was granted to a railroad company a limited and defined right of way across a military reservation (occupied by a military post), held that the company was authorized simply to construct a track or roadway, and was not empowered to put up depots, stock yards, cattle pens, or other erections upon the land, or to appropriate land otherwise than for the roadway. (c)

So held that the Secretary of War could not, of his own authority, grant, in consideration of the payment of toll to the United States, a right of way over a bridge belonging to the United States. So held that the Secretary could not legally grant to a company or individual the right to erect and maintain for an indefinite period a hotel on the military reservation at Sandy Hook. (d) So held that the Secretary would not be authorized to transfer a lot belonging to the United States at Washington to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia for the erection of a hospital. So held that neither the Secretary of War nor a department commander could grant to an individual or individuals the exclusive right to use for an indefinite period certain water power belonging to the United States, nor the exclusive right to mine the soil of a military reservation for a certain term of years, nor a similar right to make and maintain for an indefinite period ditches through a portion of such a reservation for the purpose of irrigating the lands of private parties, nor the right annually to enter upon and occupy a military reservation and cut and possess the hay crop growing thereon, (a) nor the right permanently or indefinitely to occupy and use a portion of a reservation for a burying ground. Ibid., 2088.

In the last case the court say: "The Secretary of the Treasury can not execute or approve of a lease of any property belonging to the United States without special authority of law."

^c See this opinion affirmed by the Attorney-General in XIV Opins., 135.

^d See confirmatory opinion of the Attorney-General in XVI Opins., 205. In this case there was the further objection that the State of New Jersey, in ceding to the United States jurisdiction over the premises, by deed of March 10, 1846, had expressly declared that the grant was "for military purposes," adding "and the said United States shall retain such jurisdiction so long as the said tract shall be applied to the military or public purposes of the said United States, and no longer."

Held, however, that a distinction was to be observed between a grant of a usufructuary interest in land and a revocable license not involving a transfer of such an interest. (b) Thus held that the Secretary of War would be authorized to permit a telegraph company to erect posts upon a military reservation and attach to the same telegraph wires, subject to their being removed at the will of the Government, if found to interfere with the purposes for which the reservation was established. So held that a municipal corporation might legally be permitted by the Secretary of War to lay water pipes in the soil of the arsenal grounds at Springfield, Mass., the same being equally for the benefit of the military authorities and the citizens, and subject to removal at the will of the Government. And held that a post trader might legally be licensed by the Secretary of War to erect the buildings necessary for his business upon the land of the post for which he was appointed. (c) But held that the Secretary of War was not empowered to accede to the application of an individual to establish a ferry across a river within the limits of a military reservation, where what was asked was not a mere license revocable at the will of the Secretary, but a permanent franchise and grant of an exclusive usufructuary interest in the premises, including even the right to charge tolls to the United States. And similarly held in a case of an application to be permitted to erect and maintain a permanent bridge across a river forming a boundary of a military reservation, one end of which was to be built upon the soil of the reservation, the application contemplating not a mere license revocable at the will of the Government, but a permanent right of property in the bridge, involving an easement in the land. Ibid., 2089.

The act of July 28, 1882, authorizes the Secretary of War, in his discretion, to "lease for a period not exceeding five years, and revocable at any time, such property of the United States under his control as may not for the time be required for public use," such leases to be "reported annually to Congress;" but does not prescribe as to the disposition of the moneys received as rents. Sec. 3621, Revised Statutes, provides for the disposition of public moneys coming into the possession of any person, and par. 698, Army Regulations of 1895, directs that "the face of the certificate or receipt" shall "show to what appropriation" the funds belong. Advised that it would be sufficient for any post quartermaster or other disbursing officer into whose hands such rents should come to note the character of the payment upon his certificate, leaving it to the War Department to report the same in the aggregate to Congress at the end of each year. Ibid., par. 2084.

From the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 103), it may be regarded as certain that it was the view of Congress that an explicit authority was necessary for even a transient occupation of a military reservation for other than its special purpose. The act of July 28, 1892, authorizing the Secretary of War to lease such property of the United States under his control as may not for the time be required for public use, forbids an occupation which contemplates permanency, or duration longer than five years. The Secretary of War has no power to accept a donation of property for the Government for use in perpetuity by Roman Catholics. A revocable license, without limitation as to time, by the Secretary of War to a Roman Catholic archbishop, to erect and maintain a chapel on the military reservation at West Point, transcends the statute. All other deeds and papers pertaining to the title or sale of, and any lease, grant, license, or easement of, upon, or over any military reservation or other lands under the jurisdiction of the War Department, will be filed in the office of the Judge-Advocate-General. When any such papers come into the possession of any bureau they shall within five days thereafter be transferred to the office of the Judge-Advocate-General. Par. 786, A. R., 1901.

⁴A military station is merely synonymous with the term "military post," and means a place where troops are assembled; where military stores, animate and inanimate, are kept and distributed; where military duty is performed or military protection afforded; where something, in short, more or less closely connected with arms or war is kept or is to be done. Phisterer v. U. S., 12 Ct. Cls., 98, 107.

POSTS.

Permanent military posts are established under the direction of the Secretary of War, by whom their names will be designated. Par. 216, A. R., 1901.

Permanent posts will be styled "forts," and points occupied temporarily by troops, "camps." Par. 217, ibid.

The commander of a post is responsible for its safety and defense, and for the discipline, drill, and tactical instruction of his command, to which ends all other garrison duties will be made subservient. He will be responsible for the preservation and proper application of public property, for the strict enforcement of laws and regulations, and for the proper condition of quarters and defenses. He will make an inspection of his command on the last day of every month, will satisfy himself by frequent personal examination that the disbursements of all officers in charge of funds are in accordance with law and regulations and their accounts correctly stated, and will make such reports of these inspections and examinations as the department commander may direct. Par. 218, ibid.

The staff of a post commander will consist of such staff officers as are on duty at the post and such line officers as may be required for staff duties. Their official designations will be as follows: Adjutant, quartermaster, commissary, surgeon, assistant surgeon, engineer officer, ordnance officer, and signal officer. Par. 221, ibid.

the erection, construction, and repair of all buildings and other public structures in the Quartermaster's Department shall, as far as may be practicable, be made by contract, after due legal advertisement.¹ Act of February 27, 1893 (27 Stat. L., 484).

1625. For the erection of barracks and quarters for artillery in connection with the project adopted for sea-coast defense, there shall not hereafter be expended at any one post more than one thousand two hundred dollars per man for each man required for one relief to man the guns at the post up to eighty-three men, the present permanent strength of a battery, enlisted and commissioned, and for each man required beyond this number six hundred dollars per man, from any appropriation made by Congress, unless special authority of Congress be granted for a greater expenditure. Act of June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 624). Limitation on cost of artillery posts. June 6, 1900, v. 31, p. 624.

POST TRADERS.

1626. That where a vacancy now exists or hereafter occurs in the position of post trader at any military post it shall not be filled, and the authority to make such appointment is hereby terminated: Provided, That in the event of the death of a post trader his personal representative shall be allowed by the Secretary of War a reasonable time in which to close the business.² Act of January 28, 1893 (27 Stat. L., 426). Vacancies not to be filled. Jan. 28, 1893, v. 27, p. 426.

¹For other restrictions in respect to the construction and repair of quarters at military posts, see the title Barracks and Quarters in the chapter entitled THE QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT.

Expenditures of labor, money, or material upon posts will be strictly limited to the amounts allowed by law and regulations. Par. 222, A. R., 1901.

When practicable, temporary buildings for the use of the Army will be erected by its enlisted force, and necessary repairs of public buildings at garrisoned posts not appropriated for or specially authorized will be made by the troops. Par. 223, ibid.

In case of emergency, when reference to higher authority is impracticable, department commanders may order the purchase of material and engagement of services necessary for the preservation of public buildings or property, not to exceed in amount $500 for any post, but no greater sum will be expended without the sanction of the Secretary of War. Par. 224, ibid.

When a military post located upon lands belonging to the United States is abandoned the Secretary of War has no power, in the absence of authority from Congress, to order a sale of the building, and such a sale is void. Lear v. U. S., 50 Fed. Rep., 65. A sale by a military officer if not authorized by the usages of war, or if of property not under a valid condemnation, is a trespass and passes no title. Bowlew v. Lewis, 48 Mo., 32.

²Section 1113 of the Revised Statutes, which authorized the Secretary of War to "permit one or more trading establishments to be maintained at any military post on the frontier not in the vicinity of any city or town," was repealed and replaced by section 3 of the act of July 24, 1876 (19 Stat. L., 100), which authorized "one trader at each military post, to be appointed by the Secretary of War upon the recommendation of the council of administration." These statutes have been replaced and rendered inoperative by the act of January 28, 1893 (27 Stat. L., 426).

Power to acquire and dispose of property vested in Congress.
Art. IV, sec. 3, Constitution.

² See note to paragraph 1615, ante.

The provision of the Constitution in regard to the disposition of public property applies to personalty equally as to realty. Thus no Executive Department or officer can be empowered, except by the authority of Congress, to dispose of personal property of the United States. (a) So, held that, in the absence of such authority, a military commander could not legally dispose of temporary buildings—not “fixtures”—erected upon a military reservation. So, held that the Secretary of War would not be authorized, in the absence of enabling legislation, to sell or negotiate the bonds or promissory notes made to the United States by certain railroad companies, in consideration of rolling stock, etc., sold and transferred to the same. And similarly held as to the authority of the Secretary to dispose of articles of inferior value, not impliedly authorized to be sold by section 1316, Revised Statutes. And held that the fact that certain valuable public property was perishable and liable to waste was not legally sufficient to justify the sale in the absence of statutory authority. Held that the Cavalry Tactics, a work prepared under the orders of the Secretary of War by a board of officers, was the property of the United States, and therefore could not, without the authority of Congress, be disposed of to a bookseller with ^a The leading case on this point is United States v. Nichols (1 Paine, U. S. Circ. Ct. R., 646), in which it was held that a sale or loan, by the commandant of an arsenal, of a quantity of lead belonging to the United States was illegal and invalid. The court say: “The Constitution declares that ‘Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States.’ No public property can therefore be disposed of without the authority of law, either by an express act of Congress for that purpose or by giving the authority to some Department or subordinate agent. No law has been shown authorizing the sale of this lead, nor is any such authority to be inferred from the general power vested in any of the Departments of the Government. The power, if lodged anywhere, would seem most appropriately to belong to the War Department; but there is no such express or implied power in that Department to sell the public property put under its management.” And see the same principle recognized in an opinion of the Attorney-General (in XVI Opins., 477), in which it is held that the Secretary of War was not empowered to sell arms to a State in the absence of authority from Congress.

1633. That instead of forwarding to the accounting officers of the Treasury Department returns of public property intrusted to the possession of officers or agents, the Quartermaster-General, the Commissary-General of Subsistence, the Surgeon-General, the Chief of Engineers, the Chief of Ordnance, the Chief Signal Officer, the Paymaster-General of the Navy, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, or other like chief officers in any Department, by, through, or under whom stores, supplies, and other public property are received for distribution, or whose duty it is to receive or examine returns of such property, shall certify to the proper accounting officer of the Treasury Department, for debiting on the proper account, any charge against any officer or agent intrusted with public property, arising from any loss, accruing by his fault, to the Government as to the property so intrusted to him.² Sec. 1, act of March 29, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 47).

a view to its publication and sale by him on his private account. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2090.

Temporary buildings only erected by military orders on land of the United States at a military post, to serve a temporary purpose, are in general personal property of the United States which may be removed by the direction or authority of the Secretary of War. (a) But if the same be permanent structures and real estate, the authority of Congress is necessary to their removal. Ibid., par. 2098.

¹ Under existing laws and regulations there is no system of fiscal accountability to regimental commanders for property belonging to the United States. For statutory provisions respecting such accountability see the title Property Accountability.

² The effect of the above statute was to divest the Auditor of the jurisdiction theretofore possessed by him over the property accounts and transactions of officers of the Navy (and War) Department, and to relieve him of all responsibility in relation to the disposition of property intrusted to said officers, except in cases where the officer "whose duty it is to receive or examine returns of such property shall certify to the proper accounting officer of the Treasury Department (the Auditor), for debiting on the proper account any charge against any officer or agent intrusted with public property, arising from any loss, accruing by his fault, to the Government as to the property so intrusted to him."

Under this act the duty and responsibility of determining questions relating to the correct disposition or loss of property in the Marine Corps have been transferred to and vested in the proper officer of the Navy Department, and it seems clear that the Auditor will have no authority over or in relation to the property mentioned in the cash voucher evidencing the purchase of forage under consideration until he has been furnished with a certificate required by section 1 of said act.

papers into cash accounts tending to show what disposition has been made of the property. Such evidence may well be excluded from the cash accounts, and the responsibility for determining questions relating to property accountability be left where it belongs, where the law has placed it. II Compt. Dec., 264, 267, 268; IV ibid., 422.

In the case of Isaac W. Patrick, Indian agent at the Great Nemaha Agency, upon a suit to recover on his bond for public property alleged to have been unaccounted for, such failure to account having been shown to be due to clerical errors, it was held by the circuit court of appeals for the Eighth circuit, in March, 1896, that "a Government agent is not to be held liable for property still in the possession of the agency and which has never been lost, merely because a careless clerk, appointed by the Government itself to keep the accounts of the agent, has omitted it from the return which he is required to make." U. S. v. Patrick (73 Fed. Rep., 800).

The failure of an Indian agent, through clerical errors, to include in his accounts property which, in fact, remains at the agency, and which is not lost to the Government, does not entitle the United States to recover the value thereof in a suit on his bond; and he may show these facts in defense. The technical failure to account would authorize a recovery of no more than nominal damages. Ibid.

(1) Unavoidable causes, being those over which the responsible officers have no control, occurring (a) in the ordinary course of service, or (b) as incident to an active campaign.

(2) Avoidable causes, being those due to carelessness, willfulness, or neglect. Par. 763, A. R., 1901.

Officers responsible for property will be charged for any damage to, or loss or destruction of the same, and the money value deducted from their monthly pay, unless they show, to the satisfaction of the Secretary of War, by their own affidavits or certificates or by one or more depositions, that the damage, loss, or destruction was occasioned by unavoidable causes, and without fault or neglect on their part. Army (except when otherwise specially provided) are judge-advocates of departments, judge-advocates of courts-martial, and trial officers of summary courts, and, in the cases of boards of survey, the recorder, or, if there be no recorder, the president thereof. When none of these are within reach and available, recourse must be had to a notary public or other civil officer competent to administer oaths for general purposes. Par. 765, ibid.

If an article of public property be lost or damaged by the neglect or fault of any officer or soldier, he shall pay the value thereof, or the cost of repairs, at such rates as a board of survey may determine. Par. 766, ibid.

The amount charged against an enlisted man on the muster and pay rolls on account of loss or damage of or repairs to Government property shall not exceed the value of the article or cost of repairs; and such charge will only be made on conclusive proof, and never without an inquiry, if the soldier demand it. He will be informed at the time of signing the pay rolls that his signature will be regarded as an acknowledgment of the justice of the charge. Par. 767, ibid.

When a deserter carries away public property, or when such property is lost through his desertion, its value will be determined by a board of survey and charged against him on the next muster and pay rolls. Par. 768, ibid.

If articles of public property are embezzled, or lost or damaged through neglect, by a civilian employee, the value or damage as ascertained (and by a board of survey if necessary) shall be charged to him and set against any pay or money due him. Par. 769, ibid.

¹The word "unsuitable," as used in sec. 1241, Rev. Sts., evidently refers to some unfitness for use other than that caused by being "damaged." Uniform clothing, for instance, of sizes that could not be used would be unsuitable. But held that the meaning of the word could not properly be restricted to things of a quality inferior to that which is required for the service. A thing may be unsuitable by reason of its being of such superior quality as not to be adaptable for the purpose for which it was intended. And held that military stores can not properly be deemed unsuitable under this statute for the sole reason that they are in excess of the quantity required for use. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2279.

For other statutes authorizing the sale of obsolete and unsuitable property, see the chapters entitled THE ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT and THE PUBLIC LANDS. For provisions respecting the disposition of funds arising from the sale of public property or stores, see the chapters entitled THE PUBLIC MONIES, THE STAFF DEPARTMENTS, and THE ORDNANCE AND SUBSISTENCE DEPARTMENTS.

Unserviceable public property can only be disposed of by sale according to the provisions of sections 1241, 3618, Revised Statutes. It can not be exchanged for other property not belonging to the United States. Thus, held that an old and useless printing press, the property of the United States, could not be disposed of by exchanging it for certain new property belonging to a regiment. Ibid., par. 2103.

Held that, in the absence of specific authority from Congress, the Secretary of War would not be empowered to sell to a State, for the use of its militia, an amount of clothing in excess of the State's quota as already appropriated. And held that, without such authority, he would not be empowered to exchange Government property for property owned or possessed by a State; thus, that he could not legally deliver to the State of Pennsylvania certain arms, the property of the United States, in exchange for arms formerly issued to the State for the use of its militia, and in which the State had a qualified property. Ibid., par. 2104.

Held that under section 1241, Revised Statutes, unserviceable tools and materials, which had been in use at a national cemetery, could not legally be ordered to be sold upon the mere inspection and report of their unserviceableness made by the superintendent of the cemetery, but that, as required in the section, there must be 1642. Any person who shall embezzle, steal, or purloin any money, property, record, voucher, or valuable thing whatever, of the moneys, goods, chattels, records, or property of the United States, shall be deemed guilty of felony, and on conviction thereof before the district or circuit court of the United States in the district wherein said offense may have been committed, or into which he shall carry or have in possession of said property so embezzled, stolen, or purloined, shall be punished therefor by imprisonment at hard labor in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both, at the discretion of the court before which he shall be convicted. Act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 479).

Knowingly receiving, concealing, etc., stolen, etc., property of the United States; penalty.
 Sec. 2, Ibid.

1643. If any person shall receive, conceal, or aid in concealing, or have, or retain in his possession with intent to convert to his own use or gain, any money, property, record, voucher, or valuable thing whatever, of the moneys, goods, chattels, records, or property of the United States, which has theretofore been embezzled, stolen, or purloined from the United States by any other person, first an inspection "by an officer (i. e., commissioned officer) designated by the Secretary of War." Ibid., par. 2281.

In view of the general authority vested in the President and Secretary of War by the provision, in regard to the sale of military stores damaged or unsuitable for the public service, of the act of March 3, 1825 (now contained in section 1241, Revised Statutes), held that such stores might legally be sold on credit, if such mode of disposition was deemed for the public interest. Ibid., par. 2277.

Held that an officer of the Army, duly charged with the duty of making a sale of damaged, etc., medical supplies under the authority of section 1241, Revised Statutes (by which the President is empowered to order such sales in certain cases), could not lawfully be required to take out and pay for a license as a merchant under the laws of the State in which the sale was to be made. Such a requirement would be a restriction upon the regular and legal execution of the powers of the General Government, and therefore beyond the authority of a State. Ibid., par. 2278.

Held that a noncommissioned officer, who acted as auctioneer at a public sale of condemned quartermaster stores, could not legally be paid, out of the proceeds of the sale, a commission of ten per cent, or any other commission or compensation, for his services as auctioneer. The pay and allowances of all enlisted men are fixed by law, and, in the absence of any authority in the statute providing for such sales or other statutory provision, such a compensation must necessarily be without legal sanction. But held that a civilian employee hired by the Quartermaster's Department, under the provision for "hire of teamsters and other employees" in the appropriation for "transportation of the Army and its supplies," whose pay is not fixed by "law or regulations," may legally be paid for services as an auctioneer at a public sale of condemned quartermaster property. Ibid., par. 2284.

knowing the same to have been so embezzled, stolen, or purloined, such person shall, on conviction before the circuit or district court of the United States in the district wherein he may have such property, be punished by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or imprisonment at hard labor in the penitentiary not exceeding five years, one or both, at the discretion of the court before which he shall be convicted; and such receiver may be tried either before or after the conviction of the principal felon, but if the party has been convicted, then the judgment against him shall be conclusive evidence in the prosecution against such receiver that the property of the United States therein described has been embezzled, stolen, or purloined.

May be tried before or after conviction of principal.

Sec. 2, ibid.

1644. And any officer connected with, or employed in, the internal-revenue service of the United States, and any assistant of such officer, who shall embezzle or wrongfully convert to his own use any money or property which may have come into his possession or under his control in the execution of such office or employment, or under color or claim of authority as such officer or assistant, whether the same shall be the money or property of the United States or of some other person or party, shall, where the offense is not otherwise punishable by some statute of the United States, be punished by a fine equal to the value of the money and property thus embezzled or converted, or by imprisonment not less than three months nor more than ten years, or by both such fine and imprisonment.¹

Held, that the provisions of section 23 of the act of March 3, 1863, prohibiting the sale, etc., of their arms, etc., by soldiers, and declaring that no right of property or possession should be acquired thereby, etc., were not limited in their operation to the period of the war, but were still in force, (a) and that an officer of the Army would therefore be authorized to seize arms, etc., disposed of contrary to such prohibition, whenever and wherever found. But inasmuch as there have been sundry authorized sales of arms and other ordnance stores since the end of the war; Advised, that officers, before making seizures, should assure themselves that the parties in possession have not acquired title in a legal manner. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2273. See as to method of recovery, par. 2275, ibid.

A person who illegally purchases army clothing from a soldier can not now be proceeded against for merely purchasing or receiving, under the existing law (secs. 1242 and 3748, Rev. Stat.), but if, in so purchasing, he aids a soldier to desert, he is subject to trial and punishment under section 5455, Revised Statutes. Ibid. p. 2274.

a See these provisions as now incorporated in the Revised Statutes, in sections 1242 and 3748. The further provision of the original act making punishable with fine and imprisonment persons purchasing from soldiers their arms, equipments, clothing, etc., has not been retained in the Revised Statutes.

1651. Who liable to enrollment.	1654. Arms and accouterments.
1652. Enrollment by captains.	1655. Exemptions.

1650. A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.¹ Constitution of the United States, second amendment. The militia. Second amendment to Constitution.

¹The right to bear arms is not granted by the Constitution; neither is it in any manner dependent upon that instrument for its existence. The second amendment means no more than that it shall not be infringed by Congress, and has no other effect than to restrict the powers of the National Government. U. S. v. Cruikshank, 92 U. S., 542.

The right voluntarily to associate together as a military company or organization, or to drill or parade with arms, without and independent of an act of Congress or law of the State authorizing the same, is not an attribute of national citizenship. Military organization and military drill and parade under arms are subjects especially under the control of the government of every country. They can not be claimed as a right independent of law. Under our political system they are subject to the regulation and control of the State and Federal governments, acting in due regard to their respective prerogatives and powers. The Constitution and laws of the United States will be searched in vain for any support to the view that these rights are privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States, independent of some specific legislation on the subject. It can not be successfully questioned that the State governments, unless restrained by their own constitutions, have the power to regulate or prohibit associations and meetings of the people, except in the case of peaceable assemblies to perform the duties or exercise the privileges of citizens of the United States; and have also the power to control and regulate the organization, drilling, and parading of military bodies and associations, except when such bodies or associations are authorized by the militia laws of the United States. The exercise of this power, by the States, is necessary to the public peace, safety, and good order. To deny the power would be to deny the right of the State to disperse assemblages organized for sedition and treason, and the right to suppress armed mobs bent on riot and rapine. Presser v. Illinois, 116 U. S., 252, 267; U. S. v. Cruikshank, 92 U. S., 542; New York v. Miln, 11 Pet., 102, 139.

Who to be enrolled in the militia.

Enrollment, by whom.

May 8, 1792, c. 33, s. 1, v. 1, p. 271. Sec. 1626, R.S.

1652. It shall be the duty of every captain or commanding officer of a company to enroll every such citizen residing within the bounds of his company, and all those who may, from time to time, arrive at the age of eighteen years, or who, being of the age of eighteen years and under the age of forty-five years, come to reside within his bounds.

Notice of enrollment.

May 8, 1792, c. 33, s. 1, v. 1, p. 271; Mar. 2, 1803, c. 15, s. 2, v. 2, p. 207. Sec. 1627, R.S.

1653. Each captain or commanding officer shall, without delay, notify every such citizen of his enrollment, by a proper non-commissioned officer of his company, who may prove the notice. And any notice or warning to a citizen enrolled, to attend a company, battalion, or regimental muster, which is according to the laws of the State in which it is given for that purpose, shall be deemed a legal notice of his enrollment.

Arms and accouterments.

May 8, 1792, c. 33, s. 1, v. 1, p. 271; Mar. 2, 1803, c. 15, s. 2, v. 2, p. 207. Sec. 1628, R.S.

1654. Every citizen shall, after notice of his enrollment, be constantly provided with a good musket or firelock of a bore sufficient for balls of the eighteenth part of a pound, a sufficient bayonet and belt, two spare flints, and a knapsack, a pouch with a box therein to contain not less than twenty-four cartridges, suited to the bore of his musket or firelock, each cartridge to contain a proper quantity of powder and ball; or with a good rifle, knapsack, shot-pouch and powder-horn, twenty balls suited to the bore of his rifle, and a quarter of a pound of powder; and shall appear, so armed, accoutered, and provided when called out to exercise, or into service, except that when called out on company days to exercise only he may appear without a knapsack. And all arms, ammunition, and accouterments so provided and required shall be held exempted from all suits, distresses, executions, or sales for debt or for the payment of taxes. Each commissioned officer shall be armed with a sword or hanger and spontoon.

EXEMPTIONS.

For each company of artillery there shall be one captain, two lieutenants, four sergeants, four corporals, six gunners, six bombardiers, one drummer, and one fifer. The officers shall be armed with a sword or hanger, a fusee, bayonet, and belt, with a cartridge box to contain twelve cartridges; and each private shall furnish himself with all the equipments of a private in the infantry, until proper ordnance and field artillery is provided. For each troop of horse there shall be one captain, two lieutenants, one cornet, four sergeants, four corporals, one saddler, one farrier, and one trumpeter. The commissioned officers shall furnish themselves with good horses of at least fourteen hands and a half high, and shall be armed with a sword and pair of pistols, the holsters to be covered with bearskin caps. Each dragoon shall furnish himself with a serviceable horse, at least fourteen hands and a half high, a good saddle, bridle, mail pillion, and valise, holsters, and a breastplate and crupper, a pair of boots and spurs, a pair of pistols, a saber, and a cartridge box, to contain twelve cartridges for pistols. Each company of artillery and troop of horse shall be formed of volunteers from the brigade, at the discretion of the commander in chief of the State, not exceeding one company of each to a regiment, nor more in number than one-eleventh part of the infantry, and shall be uniformly clothed in regimentals, to be furnished at their own expense; the color and fashion to be determined by the brigadier commanding the brigade to which they belong.

1671. Subject to Articles of War.	1674. Disobedience of orders, penalty.

1669. Whenever the United States are invaded, or are in imminent danger of invasion from any foreign nation or Indian tribe, or of rebellion against the authority of the Government of the United States, it shall be lawful for the President to call forth such number of the militia of the State or States, most convenient to the place of danger, or scene of action, as he may deem necessary to repel such invasion, or to suppress such rebellion, and to issue his orders for that purpose to such officers of the militia as he may think proper.¹

Orders of President in case of invasion.
Feb. 28, 1795, c. 36, s. 1, v. 1, p. 424.
Martin v. Mott, 12 Wh., 19; McCall's Case, 5 Phila., 259.
Sec. 1642, R. S.

¹ The President has no original authority over the militia by right of his office. He can only call them out when Congress provides for his doing so as the agent of the United States for such purpose. When the call is complied with, the militia becomes national militia, and he becomes their commander in chief. The law governing his exercise of power in calling out is found in sections 1642, 5297, 5298, and 5299, Revised Statutes. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1724.

The manner of the calling out of the militia by the President under the act of 1795 (sec. 1642, R. S.), is indicated by the Supreme Court in the leading case of Houston v. Moore, (a) where it is observed that "the President's orders may be given to the chief executive magistrate of the State, or to any militia officer he may think proper." The call would ordinarily be addressed to the governor, who, in most of the States, is made commander in chief of the active militia of the State. A further form, indeed, of calling out the militia, viz, by a conscription, was authorized during the late war, by the act of July 17, 1862. Ibid., par. 1723.

The calling forth of the militia into the United States service is an administrative function, a ministerial act, in which the Secretary of War may issue the necessary orders as the origin of the Executive, and his act is the act of the President. Ibid., par. 1725.

The President, in calling out a force of militia, authorized the governor of a State to designate the particular militia of that State to be included in the call, and the governor thereupon designated a certain regiment, and formally accepted its service. Held, that in so doing he acted as the agent of the President and that his acceptance was in law an acceptance by the President, and was equivalent to a muster in of the regiment. Ibid., par. 1727.

In 1836 an Indian agent in Indiana applied for assistance, in an emergency, to a militia colonel, who furnished three companies of his regiment, which were employed and rendered faithful service for seven days in assisting to execute the laws of the United States. Upon a claim now (1893) made for compensation for such service, held that the same could not legally be allowed by the Secretary of War, who could have no authority to recognize, as in the United States service, militia who had not been called out by the President or by his direction; and that such claim could be entertained by Congress alone. Ibid., par. 1728.

In the exercise of its constitutional power "to provide for calling forth the militia," and "to provide for organizing" the same, etc., Congress has made no distinction between any different portions of this force, or recognized any such portion as "National Guard." The law relating to the subject, Revised Statutes, Title XVI, sections 1625, 1642, etc., contemplates but a single integral body as constituting the militia and as liable to be called out. Under the existing law, the "National Guard" of a State can not legally be called out as such. Upon a call, the governor may indeed order them out, as being organized and available, so far as they will go to make up the number of the militia required. Ibid., par. 1729.

The United States statutes take no notice of "National Guard" as such. If called

1671. The militia, when called into the actual service of the United States for the suppression of rebellion against and resistance to the laws of the United States, shall be subject to the same rules and articles of war as the regular troops of the United States.

When called forth, term of service to be specified.

Sec. 1648, R.S.

1672. Courts-martial for the trial of militia shall be composed of militia officers only.¹

Sec. 1658, R.S.

1673. Whenever the President calls forth the militia of the States, to be employed in the service of the United States, he may specify in his call the period for which such service will be required, not exceeding nine months, and the militia so called shall be mustered in and continued to serve during the term so specified, unless sooner discharged by command of the President.

out, it is not as "National Guard," but as militia; and when so called forth or included in a call it must be governed by the existing laws providing for the organization, discipline, etc., of the militia. Ibid., par. 1730.

The "National Guard," so called, being merely militia, can not (where not called forth) be "supported" or "maintained" by Congress, which is authorized by the Constitution to "support" and "maintain" the Army and Navy only. So officers of the National Guard can not be commissioned by the President without a violation of the Constitution, which "reserves the appointment of militia officers to the States, respectively." Ibid., par. 1734.

The act of February 28, 1895 (1 Stat. L., 424), authorizing the President under certain circumstances to call out the militia, is constitutional, and the President is the final judge of the emergency justifying such call. This construction necessarily results from the nature of the power itself and from the manifest object contemplated by the act of Congress. The power itself is to be exercised upon sudden emergencies, upon great occasions of state, and under circumstances which may be vital to the existence of the Union. A prompt and unhesitating obedience to orders is indispensable to the complete attainment of the object. The service is a military service, and the command of a military nature; and in such case every delay and every obstacle to an efficient and immediate compliance necessarily tend to jeopard the public interests. Martin v. Mott, 12 Wheat., 19, 30.

Where a power is confided to the President by law the presumption is that in the exercise of that power he has pursued the law. The existence of an exigency justifying the calling out of the militia is not traversable and need not be averred. It is not necessary to set forth the orders of the President; it is sufficient to state that the call of the governor for the militia was in obedience to them. For disobedience to a call made by a governor for the militia, in pursuance of the orders of the President, a citizen is liable to be tried by a court-martial organized under the laws of the United States. Ibid., 33.

In the case of Houston v. Moore (5 Wheat., 1), it was decided that although a militiaman who refused to obey the orders of the President calling him into the public service was not, in the sense of the act of 1795, "employed in the service of the United States" so as to be subject to the Rules and Articles of War, yet that he was liable to be tried for the offense under the fifth section of the same act by a court-martial called under the authority of the United States.

¹Section 1658, Revised Statutes, prescribes that "courts-martial for the trial of militia shall be composed of militia officers only." Held that the enactment applied also in principle to courts of inquiry convened in the militia, and that officers of the Army could not, for purposes of instruction or assistance, legally be detailed to be associated with militia officers as members of such courts. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1735.

1674. Every officer, noncommissioned officer, or private of the militia who fails to obey the orders of the President when he calls out the militia into the actual service of the United States shall forfeit of his pay a sum not exceeding one year's pay, and not less than one month's pay, to be determined and adjudged by a court-martial; and such officer shall be liable to be cashiered by a sentence of court-martial, and be incapacitated from holding a commission in the militia for a term not exceeding twelve months; and such noncommissioned officer and private shall be liable to imprisonment, by a like sentence, on failure to pay the fines adjudged against him, for one calendar month for every twenty-five dollars of such fine.

1680. The expenses incurred by marching the militia of any State or Territory to their places of rendezvous, in pursuance of a requisition of the President, or of a call made by the authority of any State or Territory and approved by him, shall be adjusted and paid in like manner as the expenses incurred after their arrival at such places of rendezvous, on the requisition of the President; but this provision does not authorize any species of expenditure, previous to arriving at the place of rendezvous, which is not provided by existing laws to be paid for after their arrival at such places of rendezvous.²

Where militia are called out and mustered into actual service, the staff officers of their commanding general can not be considered as in any sense appointed by the Secretary of War or commissioned by the President. Nor are they given the corresponding rank of staff officers of the Regular Army, but their rank remains the same as it was before in the militia under the State laws. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1736.

It is not essential for a militia organization that there should be a formal muster in to bring it into the actual service of the United States. The provision of the act of 1862 relating to the muster in of militia is directory only. Ibid., par. 1726.

There is no existing statute of the United States authorizing the President to call out the militia for drill merely. The Constitution, in empowering Congress "to provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the militia," leaves their training to the States, and it is at least doubtful whether an act of Congress regulating the drill of the militia would be constitutional. Ibid., par. 1733.

² There are no acts of Congress providing pay, rations, and expenses to militia called out by State or Territorial authority, but disbanded without their having been employed or mustered into the service of the United States previous to their dismissal; such cases, as they have arisen, having been, from time to time, specially provided for. ¹ The States do not, by the existing laws, have an absolute right of property in such arms, and they derive no authority therefrom to sell or dispose of them at pleasure. XIV Opin. Att. Gen., 491.

² The arms transmitted to the States under the laws which are embodied in sections 1661, 1667, and 1670 of the Revised Statutes are, in contemplation of the provisions thereof, to be held by the States for a specific purpose only, which is pointed out therein; hence, they become invested with nothing more than a qualified property in such arms; and they can not, as a matter of right, and without interfering with the regulations of Congress on a subject over which its authority is paramount, make any disposition or use of such arms which defeats the purpose referred to. XIV Opin. Atty. Gen. 491. Yet those laws make no provision for any accountability to the United States respecting the disposition of the arms after they are once delivered to the State authorities, Congress having seen fit to leave it entirely to the good faith of the States, when the delivery takes place, to carry out the purpose contemplated in furnishing the same. Ibid. Congress, by the act of February 12, 1887 (24 Stat. L., 401), has provided a system of accountability for the several States in respect to the arms, ammunition, equipage and other public property issued to the States for the use of the militia. Issues of ordnance for practice in heavy artillery drill. Sec. 2, May 19, 1882, v. 22, p. 93.

¹ The act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 455), authorized the Secretary of War to credit the several States and Territories with arms drawn by them between January 1, 1861, and April 23, 1868, and not sold or otherwise misapplied, or used for the purchase of arms to be distributed to the States in rebellion. The act of March 3, 1887 (24 Stat. L., 551), repealed so much of the act of March 3, 1875, as required the unexpended balances of the appropriations for the purchase of arms for distribution to the States in rebellion to be covered into the Treasury.

² By several statutes special authority is conferred upon the Secretary of War to adjust the accounts of particular States and Territories for issues of arms and munitions of war. For such provisions as to the State of Kansas, see the acts of August 15, 1876 (19 Stat. L., 206); July 28, 1886 (24 Stat. L., 159); as to the Territory of Montana, see the act of February 15, 1887 (24 Stat. L., 404); as to the Territory of Dakota, see the act of February 28, 1887 (24 Stat. L., 432); as to the State of Washington, see the act of June 10, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 130); as to the State of Colorado, see the act of August 4, 1886 (24 Stat. L., 219). The act of January 16, 1889 (25 Stat. L., 646), authorized the Secretary of War to issue additional arms and military stores to the Territory of Montana; the same statute authorized a similar issue to the State of Oregon. The joint resolution of June 7, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 252), authorized the issue of 1,000 stand of arms, with 50 cartridges to each, to each of the Territories, in addition to those already authorized by law. Militia of the District of Columbia.
Mar. 1, 1889, v. 25, p. 772.

1707. Every able-bodied male citizen resident within the District of Columbia, of the age of eighteen years and under the age of forty-five years, excepting persons exempted by section two, and idiots, lunatics, common drunkards, vagabonds, paupers, and persons convicted of any infamous crime, shall be enrolled in the militia. Persons so convicted after enrollment shall forthwith be disenrolled; and in all cases of doubt respecting the age of a person enrolled, the burden of proof shall be upon him. Act of March 1, 1889 (25 Stat. L., 772.)

Persons to be enrolled.

Exemption.
Sec. 2, ibid.

1708. In addition to the persons exempted from enrollment in the militia by the general laws of the United States, the following persons shall also be exempted from enrollment in the militia of the District of Columbia, namely: Officers of the government of the District of Columbia; judges and officers of the courts of the District of Columbia; officers who have held commissions in the Regular or Volunteer Army or Navy of the United States;

officers who have served for a period of five years in the militia of the District of Columbia or of any State of the United States; ministers of the gospel; practicing physicians; conductors and engine-drivers of railroad trains; members of the paid police and fire department. Sec. 2, ibid.

1709. The Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall provide for the enrollment of the militia, and for this purpose may require the assessors of taxes, at the same time they are engaged in taking the assessment of valuation of real and personal property, to make a list of persons liable to enrollment; and such record shall be deemed a sufficient notification to all persons whose names are thus recorded that they have been enrolled in the militia. Immediately after the completion of each enrollment they shall furnish the commanding general of the militia with a copy of the same. Sec. 3, ibid.

enroll.
Sec. 3, ibid.

1710. The enrolled militia shall not be subject to any duty except when called into the service of the United States, or to aid the civil authorities in the execution of the laws or suppression of riots. Sec. 4, ibid.

Duty.
Sec. 4, ibid.

1711. Whenever it shall be necessary to call out any portion of the enrolled militia the commander in chief shall order out, by draft or otherwise, or accept as volunteers as many as required. Every member of the enrolled militia who volunteers, or who is ordered out or drafted under the provisions of this act, who does not appear at the time and place designated, may be arrested by order of the commanding general and be tried and punished by a court-martial. The portion of the enrolled militia ordered out or accepted shall be mustered into service for such period as may be required, and the commanding general may assign them to existing organizations of the active militia, or may organize them as the exigencies of the occasion may require. Sec. 5, ibid.

Staff officers.

1714. The staff of the militia of the District of Columbia shall be appointed and commissioned by the President, and hold office until their successors are appointed and qualified, but may be removed at any time by the President. It shall consist of one adjutant-general, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel; one inspector-general, one quartermaster-general, one commissary-general, one chief of ordnance, one chief engineer, one surgeon-general, one judge-advocate-general, and one inspector-general of rifle practice, each with the rank of major; and four aids-de-camp, each with the rank of captain. The commanding general may appoint a noncommissioned staff of the militia to consist of one sergeant-major, one quartermaster-sergeant, one commissary-sergeant, one ordnance-sergeant, two staff sergeants, one hospital steward, one color-sergeant, and one sergeant-bugler. Sec. 8, ibid.

1716. The President of the United States may detail as adjutant-general of the District of Columbia militia any retired officer of the Army who may be nominated to the President by the brigadier-general commanding the District of Columbia militia, said retired officer while so detailed to have the active-service pay and allowances of his rank in the Regular Army. Act of June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 671).

¹ Held that it would not be within the prohibitions of section 1222, Revised Statutes, but legal, to detail an officer of the Army to act as adjutant-general of the militia of the District of Columbia, there being no such office established by law; that such officer, in so acting, would be performing military service and would not be holding a "civil office." 1740. The Secretary of War is hereby authorized to issue from the stores of the Army such arms, ordnance stores, quartermaster's stores, and camp equipage to the militia of the District of Columbia as he may deem necessary for their proper equipment and instruction. The property so issued shall remain and continue to be the property of the United States, and shall be annually accounted for in such manner as the Secretary of War may require. Act of July 23, 1888 (25 Stat. L., 627).

Regulations for issue, care, etc.
Mar. 1, 1889, s.
32, v. 25, p. 772.

1741. The commanding general may transfer all public property, received by him for the use of the National Guard under the provision of this act, to the several departmental offices of the general staff, and may make and prescribe regulations for its issue by them, and for its care and preservation by the officers or soldiers to whom issued. Sec. 32, act of March 1, 1889 (25 Stat. L., 772).

Returns, etc.

1742. Every officer receiving public property for military use shall be accountable for the articles so received by him, and shall make returns of such property at such times, in such manner, and on such forms as may be prescribed. He shall be liable to trial by court-martial for neglect of duty, and also make good to the United States the value of all such property defaced, injured, destroyed, or lost, by any neglect or default on his part, to be recovered in an action of tort, or by any other action at law, to be instituted by the judge-advocate-general of the militia at the order of the commanding general. All money received on account of loss or damages shall be paid in the Treasury of the United States, and shall be accounted for by the commanding general in his returns to the Secretary of War. Sec. 33, ibid.

Punishment
public property.
Sec. 34, ibid.

1743. Any officer or soldier who shall sell, dispose of, pawn or pledge, willfully destroy or injure, or retain after proper demand made any public property issued under the provisions of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by imprisonment for not

Held that the clothing and camp and garrison equipage issued to the District of Columbia militia, under section 31 of the act of March 1, 1889, was properly to be inspected by militia, not by army officers; and that the condemned portion, if any, was to be reported by the commanding general of the militia to the Secretary of War, to be disposed of as he should direct. Ibid., par. 15. exceeding two months, or by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by both; and it is hereby made the duty of the judge of the police court of the District of Columbia, upon information filed or complaint made under oath, to issue process for the arrest of the offender, and to cause him to be brought before the police court to be dealt with according to the provisions of this section. Sec. 34, ibid.

1744. Until an officer or his legal representative shall have received notice that the property accounts of such officer have been examined and found correct, the liability of such officer, or of his estate, for public property for which he is or may have been responsible shall be in no way affected by resignation, discharge, change in official position, or death. Upon the death or desertion of an officer responsible for public property his immediate commander shall at once cause the property for which such officer was responsible to be collected, and a correct inventory made by actual count and examination; which inventory shall be forwarded to the commanding general, in order that any deficiency may be made good from the estate of the deceased or deserting officer; compensation for such deficiency may be recovered in the manner provided in section thirty-four. Sec. 35, ibid.

of officers.
Sec. 35, ibid.

1745. Property issued or provided under the provisions of this act which becomes unfit for use and is condemned as unserviceable shall be reported by the commanding general to the Secretary of War, and shall be disposed of as may be directed by him. Sec. 36, ibid.

Unserviceable property.
Sec. 36, ibid.

1746. Any organization of the active militia may, with the approval of the commanding general and at its own expense, adopt any other uniform than that issued to it; but such uniform shall not be worn when such organization is on duty under the orders of the commanding general except by his permission. Sec. 37, ibid.

Distinctive uniforms.
Sec. 37, ibid.

1747. Organizations of the National Guard shall have the right to own and keep personal property, which shall belong to and be under the control of the active members thereof; and the commanding officer of any organization may recover for its use any debts or effects belonging to it, or damages for injury to such property; action for such recovery to be brought, in the name of such commanding officer, before any justice of the peace, with the right of appeal to the supreme court of the District of Columbia, or before the supreme court of the District of Columbia; and no suit or complaint pending in his name shall be provided.

Sec. 39, ibid.

1748. The quartermaster-general of the militia shall provide, by rental or otherwise, such armories for the National Guard as may be allowed and directed by the commanding general. He shall also provide each organization with such lockers, closets, gunracks, and cases or desks, as may be necessary for the care, preservation, and safe-keeping of the arms, equipments, uniforms, records, and other military property in their possession. He shall also provide suitable rooms for the offices of the commanding general and staff, for the keeping of books, the transaction of business, and the instruction of officers, and also suitable places for the storage and safe-keeping of public property. Sec. 39, ibid.

Deductions
from pay to be deposited.

1750. All moneys collected on account of deductions made from the pay of any officer or enlisted man of the National Guard of the District of Columbia for or on account of any violation of the regulations governing said National Guard shall be held by the commanding general of the militia of the District of Columbia, who is authorized to expend such moneys so collected for general incidental expenses of the service; and for all moneys so collected and expended the commanding general shall make an accounting in like manner as for the appropriation disbursed for pay of troops. Act of March 1, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 845).

MILITARY DUTIES.

Par.	Par.
1751. Drill, a military duty.	1756. Suppression of riots.
1752. Commanding general to prescribe drills, etc.	1757. Excuses from duty.
1753. Annual inspection.	1758. Parades, right of way.
1754. Encampments.	1759. Parades and encampments, rules for.
1755. Use of grounds at Washington Barracks.	1760. Government employees.

1751. Any drill, parade, encampment, or duty that is required, ordered, or authorized to be performed under the provisions of this act shall be deemed to be a military duty, and while on such duty every officer and enlisted man of the National Guard shall be subject to the lawful orders of his superior officers, and for any military offense may be put and kept under arrest or under guard for a time not extending beyond the term of service for which he is then ordered. Sec. 40, ibid.

1752. The commanding general shall prescribe such stated drills and parades as he may deem necessary for the instruction of the National Guard, and may order out any portion of the National Guard for such drills, inspections, parades, escort, or other duties, as he may deem proper.¹ The commanding officer of any regiment, battalion, or company may also assemble his command, or any part thereof, in the evening for drill, instruction, or other business, as he may deem expedient; but no parade shall be performed by any regiment, battalion, company, or part thereof without the permission of the commanding general. Sec. 41, ibid.

1753. An annual inspection and muster of each organization of the National Guard, and an inspection of their armories and of public property in their possession, shall be made at such times and places as the commanding general may order and direct. Sec. 42, ibid.

1754. The National Guard shall perform not less than six consecutive days of camp duty in each year, at such time as may be ordered by the commanding general; and the quartermaster-general of the militia, subject to the approval of the commanding general, shall provide, by rental or otherwise, a suitable camp ground for the annual riots, etc.

Sec. 45, ibid.

1756. When there is in the District of Columbia a tumult, riot, mob, or a body of men acting together by force with attempt to commit a felony; or to offer violence to persons or property, or by force and violence to break and resist the laws, or when such tumult, riot, or mob is threatened, it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, or for the United States marshal for the District of Columbia, to call on the commander in chief to aid them in suppressing such violence and enforcing the laws; the commander in chief shall thereupon order out so much and such portion of the militia as he may deem necessary to suppress the same, and no member thereof who shall be thus ordered out by proper authority for any such duty shall be liable to civil or criminal prosecution for any act done in the discharge of his military duty. Sec. 45, ibid.

duty.
Sec. 46, ibid.

1757. No officer or soldier of the National Guard, when ordered on duty to aid the civil authorities, or when ordered into the service of the United States in obedience to the call or order of the President, shall be excused from such duty except upon the certificate of the surgeon of his command of physical disability, such certificate to be presented to the commanding general in case of an officer, or to his company commander in case of a soldier. If such officer or soldier fail to furnish such excuse he shall be tried and punished by a court-martial. For absence from any other military duty required or ordered under the provisions of this act the penalty shall be such as may be prescribed by the commanding general or the by-laws of the organization to which the officer or soldier belongs. Sec. 46, ibid.

Parade, etc., to fire-engines and fire departments shall not be interfered with thereby. Sec. 47, ibid.

1759. Every commanding officer, when on duty, may ascertain and fix necessary bounds and limits to his parade or encampment. Whoever intrudes within the limits of the parade or encampment after being forbidden, or whoever shall interrupt, molest, or obstruct any officer or soldier while on duty, may be put and kept under guard until the parade, encampment, or duty be concluded; and the commanding officer may turn over such person to any police officer, and said police officer is required to detain him in custody for examination or trial before the police court, and the judge thereof may punish such offense by a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars. Sec. 48, ibid.

Rules for parades and encampments.
Sec. 48, ibid.

1760. All officers and employees of the United States and of the District of Columbia who are members of the National Guard shall be entitled to leave of absence from their respective duties, without loss of pay or time, on all days of any parade or encampment ordered or authorized under the provisions of this act.¹ Sec. 49, ibid.

1761. Courts of inquiry.
1762. Courts-martial.
1763. Trials of enlisted men.

Par.
1764. Procedure.
1765. Procedure to conform to that in Army.

1761. Courts of inquiry, to consist of not more than three officers, may be ordered by the commanding general, for the purpose of investigating the conduct of any officer, either at his own request or on a complaint or charge of conduct unbecoming an officer. Such court of inquiry shall report the evidence adduced, a statement of facts, and an opinion thereon, when required, to the commanding general, who may, in his discretion, thereupon order a court-martial for the trial of the officer whose conduct has been inquired into. Sec. 50, ibid.

Courts of inquiry.
Sec. 50, ibid.

1762. General courts-martial for the trial of commissioned officers or enlisted men shall be ordered by the commanding general at such times as the interests of the service may require, and shall consist of not less than five nor more than thirteen officers and a judge-advocate, none of whom shall be of less rank than the accused, when it can be avoided. Sec. 51, ibid.

Courts-martial.

Trials of enlisted men.
Sec. 52, ibid.

1763. For the trial of enlisted men for all minor offenses the commanding officer of each battalion and unattached company shall, at such times as may be necessary, appoint courts-martial. Such battalion and company courts-martial shall consist, for a battalion, of one officer whose rank is not below that of captain; and for a company, of a lieutenant. Such courts shall have power, subject to the approval of the officer ordering the court, to sentence to be reprimanded by said officer in battalion or company orders; or, in case of a company, noncommissioned officers to be reduced to the ranks or to pay such fines as may be imposed and allowed by the regulations or by-laws of the organization to which the accused belongs; and such court may, with the approval of the commanding general, sentence to be reprimanded in general orders or to be dishonorably discharged. Sec. 52, ibid.

Proceedings in
Sec. 53, ibid.

1764. The president of a general court-martial or court of inquiry, and the officer constituting a battalion or company court-martial, shall have power to administer the usual oath to witnesses, and may issue summonses for all witnesses whose attendance at such court may, in his opinion, be necessary, and any officer or soldier failing to serve such summons, and any witness failing to appear and testify when so summoned, shall be liable to trial by court-martial. Sec. 53, ibid.

To conform to Army trials.
Sec. 54, ibid.

1765. In all courts-martial and courts of inquiry the arraignment of the accused, the proceedings, trial, and record shall in all respects conform as nearly as practicable to the regulations for the same in the Army of the United States. Sec. 54, ibid.

General expenses.
Sec. 55 ibid.

1766. There shall be allowed for the general expenses of the militia such sums as may be necessary for the rental and furnishing of offices for headquarters, stationery, postage, printing and issuing orders, advertising orders, providing necessary blanks for the use of the militia, the cost of storing, caring for, and issuing all public property, and such other contingent expenses, not herein specially provided for, as may be estimated and appropriated for; the accounts for which shall be certified to by the officer receiving the service or property charged for, approved by the commanding general, and paid in the manner provided in section sixty. Sec. 55, ibid.

1767. During the annual encampment, and on every duty or parade ordered by the commanding general, there shall be allowed and paid for each day of service: To each member of the regularly enlisted band, four dollars; to each member of the regularly enlisted corps of field music, two dollars; to the chief musician, eight dollars, and to the principal musician, six dollars. In event there is no enlisted band or field music, or not a sufficient number of either, the commanding general may authorize the employment of such as he may deem necessary for the occasion. The payments for bands of music and drum corps shall be made in the manner provided in section sixty. Sec. 56, ibid.

Payment to band, etc.
Sec. 56, ibid.

1768. During the annual encampment, or when ordered on duty to aid the civilian authorities, the National Guard shall be furnished with subsistence stores of the kind, quality, and amount allowed and prescribed by the Army. Such stores shall be issued from the stores and supplies apportioned for the use of the Army, upon the approval and by the direction of the Secretary of War, to the commanding general upon his requisitions for the same. Sec. 57, ibid.

Subsistence
while on duty.
Sec. 57, ibid.

1769. The commanding general shall annually transmit to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia an estimate of the amount of money required for the next ensuing fiscal year to pay the expenses authorized by this act, and the said Commissioners shall include the same in their annual estimates of appropriations for the District; and all money apportioned to pay the expenses authorized by this act shall be disbursed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, upon vouchers duly certified and approved by the commanding general, and accounted for by them in the same manner as all other moneys appropriated for the expenses of the District. Sec. 58, ibid.

1782. Officers charged with crime shall be arrested and confined in their barracks, quarters, or tents, and deprived of their swords by the commanding officer.¹ And any officer who leaves his confinement before he is set at liberty by his commanding officer shall be dismissed from the service.² Sixty-fifth Article of War.

² An officer may be put in arrest by a verbal or written order or communication from an authorized superior, advising him that he is placed in arrest or will consider himself in arrest or in terms to that effect. The reason for the arrest need not be specified. At the same time he is usually required to surrender his sword, though this formality may be dispensed with. But an arrest, though an almost invariable, is not an essential preliminary to a military trial. To give the court jurisdiction it is not necessary that the accused should have been arrested; it is sufficient if he voluntarily, or in obedience to an order directing him to do so, appears and submits himself to trial. So neither the fact that an accused has not been formally arrested or arrested at all, nor the fact that having been once arrested and released from arrest he has not been rearrested before trial, can be pleaded in bar of trial or constitute any ground of exception to the validity of the proceedings or sentence. An officer is in no case entitled to demand to be arrested. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 502. See, also, MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL, pp. 4-8.

The term "crime" is here employed in a general sense, referring to offenses of a military character, as well as to those of a civil character which are cognizable by court-martial. An offense in violation of this article is only committed when an officer, confined in "close arrest" to his quarters, leaves the same without authority. A breach of a mere formal arrest, or of any arrest not accompanied by confinement to quarters, would be an offense, not within this article, but under article 62. Ibid., par. 170.

Except in the class of cases indicated in article 24, only "commanding officers" can place commissioned officers in arrest. The commanding officer thus authorized is the commander of the regiment, company, detachment, post, department, etc., in which the officer is serving. Where a company is included in a post command, the commander of the post rather than the company commander is the proper officer to make the arrest of a subaltern of the company. Ibid., par. 503.

An officer is not privileged from arrest by virtue of being at the time a member of a general court-martial. But an arrest of an officer while actually engaged upon court-martial duty should, if possible, be avoided. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 507.

Status of arrest.—Although the martial law makes no mention of any difference in the nature of arrests in order to trial, a difference is established by the custom of the Army, according to the degree or measure of the crime. An officer accused of a capital crime, or any offense of which the penalty is so severe as to afford a natural temptation to escape from justice, ought to be detained in a state of confinement as secure as the closest civil imprisonment. If the offense is of a lighter nature the presumption is that the officer, whose character is thus impeached must be solicitous to obtain a judicial investigation of his conduct; and he is therefore generally allowed to be in arrest at large—that is, to walk about, within certain limits, without his sword, on his word of honor to await the issue of his trial, or his enlargement by the proper authority. The degree and measure of the arrest must, however, be entirely at the discretion of the commanding officer, who will in all cases regulate his conduct by the particular circumstances and by the dictates of propriety and humanity. Tytler, p. 202. Besides the presumption mentioned by this writer in favor of an officer being allowed to remain under a liberal restraint, is the positive security of his commission. This confers upon him a beneficial office, and would be subject to forfeiture on his withdrawing himself from the reach of military justice. This affords one great reason for the distinction taken between a commissioned officer and soldier in the circumstances of the arrest. Samuels, Military Law, 641.

The status of being in arrest is inconsistent with the performing of military duty. Placing an arrested officer or soldier on duty terminates his arrest. Releasing a soldier from arrest and requiring him to perform military duty after his trial and while he is awaiting the promulgation of his sentence, can be justified only by an extraordinary exigency of the service. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 505.

It is clearly to be inferred from paragraphs 998-999 of the Army Regulations, 1901, that unless other limits are specially assigned him, an officer in arrest must confine himself to his quarters. It is generally understood, indeed, that he can go to the mess house or other place of necessary resort. It is not unusual, however, for the commander, in the order of arrest, to state certain limits within which the officer is to be restricted, and except in aggravated cases these are ordinarily the limits of the post where he is stationed or held. An officer or soldier, though detained in close arrest, should be permitted to receive such visits from his counsel, witnesses, etc., as may be necessary to enable him to prepare his defense. Ibid., par. 504.

An officer under arrest is not disqualified to prefer charges. Ibid., par. 508.

The imposition of an arrest affects in no manner the right of an officer or soldier to receive the pay and allowances of his rank. Except in a case of a deserter (see par. 140, Army Regulations, 1901) no legal inhibition exists to paying a soldier while in arrest—either before trial or while awaiting sentence—his regular pay and emoluments. Ibid., par. 509.

An arrest imposed by the Secretary of the Navy upon a chief of bureau in the Navy Department in the following terms, "You are placed under arrest, and you will confine yourself to the limits of the city of Washington," held not to constitute a restraint upon liberty sufficient to justify the use of the writ of habeas corpus." Wales v. Whitney, 114 U. S., 564.

² Breach of arrest.—An offense in violation of this article is only committed when an officer confined in "close arrest" to his quarters leaves the same without authority. A breach of a mere formal arrest, or of any arrest not accompanied by confinement to quarters, would be an offense not within this article, but under article 62. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 170.

Simply disobeying an order to proceed and report in arrest to a certain commander, held not an offense chargeable under this article. Ibid., par. 171.

Where an officer in close arrest was permitted by his commanding officer to leave temporarily his confinement, held that his delaying his return for a brief period beyond the time fixed therefor did not properly constitute an offense under this article. Ibid., par. 172.

Though any unauthorized leaving of his confinement by an officer in close arrest is strictly a violation of the article, it would seem, in view of the severe mandatory punishment prescribed, that an officer should not in general be brought to trial under the same unless his act was of a reckless or deliberately insubordinate character. Ibid., par. 173.

It is no defense to a charge of breach of arrest in violation of this article that the accused is innocent of the offense for which he was arrested. (b) It is a defense, however, that subsequently to the original confinement the accused has been put on duty, or allowed to go on duty, provided that before the breach assigned he has not been duly rearrested and reconfined. (c)

The requirement of this article, that an offender "shall be dismissed," is held to be exclusive of any other punishment. A sentence of dismissal, with forfeiture of pay, is unauthorized and inoperative as to the forfeiture, and as to this should be disapproved. Ibid., par. 174.

⁴ Soldiers held in military arrest, while they may be subjected to such restraint as may be necessary to prevent their escaping or committing violence, can not legally be subjected to any punishment. The imposition of punishment upon soldiers while thus detained has been on several occasions emphatically denounced by department commanders. (d) Ibid., par. 175.

A soldier while confined in arrest should not be fettered or ironed except where such extreme means are necessary to restrain him from violence, or there is good reason to believe that he will attempt an escape and he can not otherwise be securely held. Ibid., 511. See, also, par. 1010, A. R., 1901.

Under the regulations (par. 1004, A. R., 1901) soldiers in confinement awaiting action on the proceedings of their trials are assimilated to those awaiting trial, and both classes may, at the discretion of the commanding officer, be employed, separately from prisoners undergoing sentence, upon such labor as is habitually required of soldiers. More severe or other labor would not be legal, nor would labor with a police party consisting in whole or in part of men under sentence, however slight their sentence might be. (e) A soldier in arrest in quarters may be required to do cleaning or police work about his quarters which otherwise other soldiers would have to do for him. See, also, MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL, pp. 4-8.

The fact that a soldier has been held in arrest for an unreasonably protracted period before trial, or while awaiting the promulgation of his sentence, is a good ground for a mitigation of his punishment. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 506.

^a In all cases of "constructive" breach of arrest, such as exercising military authority, wearing sword, etc., the accused can not be charged under the sixty-fifth article, as the punishment is mandatory and authorizes the sentence of dismissal only in case of "leaving his confinement." Ives, Mil. Law, 66.

Limitation on confinement.
70 Art. of War.

1784. No officer or soldier put in arrest shall be continued in confinement more than eight days, or until such time as a court-martial can be assembled.¹ Seventieth Article of War.

The same.
71 Art. of War.

1785. When an officer is put under arrest for the purpose of trial, except at remote military posts or stations, the officer by whose order he is arrested shall see that a copy of the charges² on which he is to be tried is served upon

Detaining soldiers in arrest for long and unreasonable periods, when it is practicable to bring them to trial, is arbitrary and oppressive, and in contravention both of the letter and spirit of this article. Whether the delay in any case is to be regarded as so far unreasonable as properly to subject the commander responsible therefor to military charges or a civil action must depend upon the circumstances of the situation and the exigencies of the service at the time. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 177.

To give a court-martial jurisdiction of the person of an officer or soldier charged with a military offense, it is not necessary that he shall have been subjected to any particular form of arrest, or that he shall have been arrested at all, or even ordered to attend the court. Here, as before a civil tribunal, his voluntary appearance and submission for trial is all that is essential. Ibid., par. 1035.

² CHARGES AND SPECIFICATIONS.

Charges and specifications.—In our practice, unlike that of the English courts-martial, a military charge properly consists of two parts—the technical "charge" and the "specification." The former designates by its name, particular or general, the alleged offense; the latter sets forth the facts supposed to constitute such offense. An accusation against an officer or soldier not thus separated in form would be irregular and exceptional in our practice, and, till amended, would not be accepted as a proper basis for proceedings under the code. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 694. See also MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL, pp. 15–20.

Framing of charges.—The same particularity is not called for in military charges which is required in indictments. (b) The essentials of a charge are: (1) That it shall be laid under the proper article of war or other statute; (2) that it shall set forth (in the specification) facts sufficient substantially to constitute the particular offense. These essentials being observed, the simpler and less encumbered with verbiage and technical terms the charge is, the better, provided it be expressed in clear and intelligible English. However inartificial a pleading may be, it will properly be held sufficient as a legal basis for a trial and sentence, provided that the charge and specification, taken together, amount to a statement of a military offense either under a specific article or under the general article, No. 62. Ibid., par. 695.

There can be no legal objection to charging an offense as a "violation of" a particular article of war, although, in general, it will be preferable to charge it by its

^a Compare Blake's case, 2 Maule and Selden, 428; Bailey v. Warden, 4 ibid., 400.

^b In regard to the proper form for a military charge, Attorney-General Cushing (VII Opins., 608) says: "There is no one of exclusive rigor and necessity in which to state military accusations." He adds further: "Trials by court-martial are governed by the nature of the service, which demands intelligible precision of language, but regards the substance of things rather than their forms. * * * The most bald statement of the facts alleged as constituting the offense, provided the legal offense itself be distinctively and accurately described in such terms of precision as the rules of military jurisprudence require, will be able in court-martial proceedings, and will be adequate groundwork of conviction and sentence." So it is observed by Attorney-General Wirt (I Opins., 286) that "all that is necessary" in a military charge is that it be "sufficiently clear to inform the accused of the military offense for which he is to be tried, and to enable him to prepare his defense." And see Tytler, 209; Kennedy, 69. It is ably remarked by Gould (Pleading, p. 4) that "all pleading is essentially a logical process;" and that, in analyzing a correct pleading, "if we take into view, with what is expressed, what is necessarily supposed or implied, we shall find in it the elements of a good syllogism." But it can hardly be expected that military charges in general will stand this test.

familiar and received name—as “drunkenness on duty,” “misbehavior before the enemy,” “desertion,” etc. Ibid., 225, par. 3.

Where an offense is clearly defined in a specific article, it is irregular and improper to charge it under another specific article. So, where the article in which the offense is defined makes it punishable with a specific punishment to the exclusion of any other, it is error to charge it under an article, such as the sixty-second, which leaves the punishment to the discretion of the court. On the other hand, it is equally erroneous to charge under a specific article, making mandatory a particular punishment, an offense properly charged only under article 62. Ibid., par. 697.

Where a specific offense is charged (i. e., an offense made punishable by an article other than the general—sixty-second—article) and the specification does not state facts constituting such specific offense, the pleading will be insufficient as a pleading of that offense. Legal effect may, however, be given to a pleading if the charge and specification, taken together, amount to an allegation of an offense cognizable by a court-martial under article 62. And in all cases—whatever be the form of the charge or specification—if the two are not inconsistent, and, taken together, make out an averment of a neglect or disorder punishable under this general article, the pleading will be sufficient in law and will constitute a legal basis for a conviction and sentence. Ibid., par. 699.

It is illogical and faulty pleading to charge a secondary offense in lieu of the actual or principal offense, of which that charged was merely a consequence or incident. But where the act committed involves several distinct offenses the party may properly be arraigned upon the same number of separate charges. And all the offenses with which an officer or soldier may be at one time chargeable should, if practicable (and if the same are sufficiently grave), be charged and brought to trial together. Undue multiplication, however, of charges, or forms of charge, is to be avoided; thus charges should not in general be added for minor offenses which were simply acts included in and going to make up graver offenses duly charged. It may, indeed, sometimes be expedient, where the offenses are slight in themselves, and it is deemed desirable to exhibit a continued course of conduct, to wait before preferring charges till a series of similar acts have been committed, provided the period be not unreasonably prolonged; but in general charges should be preferred and brought to trial immediately or presently upon the commission of the offenses. Anything like an accumulation or saving up of charges through a hostile animus on the part of the accuser is discountenanced by the sentiment of the service. (a) Ibid., pars. 700 and 701.

The prosecution is at liberty to charge an act under two or more forms where it is doubtful under which it will more properly be brought by the testimony. (b) In the military practice the accused is not entitled to call upon the prosecution to “elect” under which charge it will proceed in such or, indeed, any case. Ibid., par. 702.

Where there are two sets of charges against an accused they should, if practicable, be consolidated and one trial be had upon the whole, instead of two trials, one upon each set. But after the accused has been arraigned upon certain charges, and has pleaded thereto, and the trial on the same has been entered upon, new and additional charges, which the accused has had no notice to defend, can not be introduced or the accused required to plead thereto. Such charges should be made the subject of a separate trial, upon which the accused may be enabled properly to exercise the right of challenge to the court and effectively to plead and defend. Ibid., par. 703.

Such loose and indefinite forms of charge as “fraud,” “worthlessness,” “inefficiency,” “habitual drunkenness,” and the like will be avoided by good pleaders. Such charges, indeed, in connection with specifications setting forth actual military neglects or disorders (not properly chargeable under specific articles), may be sustained as equivalent to charges of “conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline.” But a charge of “worthlessness,” with specifications setting forth repeated instances of arrests, confinements in the guardhouse, or trials and convictions for slight offenses of the accused, held an insufficient pleading; such instances not constituting military offenses, but merely the punishments or penal consequences of such offenses. (What is really called for in such a case is a discharge of the soldier under the fourth article of war.) A specification averring a general incapacity induced by habitual intoxication does not set forth a military offense. The accused in such a case should be charged with the acts of drunkenness committed as separate and distinct instances of offense. (c) Ibid., par. 704.

A charge expressed in too general terms is faulty and imperfect; the accused is entitled to know for what particular act he is called to account. Thus a specification under article 62, in a case of an officer, which set forth, not a specific act of offense, but an habitual course of conduct as incapacitating the accused for service or for the performance of his proper duty, held seriously defective and subject to be stricken out on motion. For such conduct, indeed, the remedy is not by charge and trial, but by retirement under section 1252, Revised Statutes. Ibid., par. 726.

A charge expressed in the alternative—either under article 17 or article 60—is irregular and defective, and, upon motion, may be stricken out or required to be amended. Ibid., par. 727.

The specification should be appropriate to the charge. A charge of “conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline,” with a specification setting forth a violation of a specific article, is an irregular and defective pleading, and so of course is a charge of a specific offense with a specification describing not that but a different specific offense, or a simple disorder or neglect of duty. Ibid., par. 705.

Where a specification to a charge preferred by a superior against an inferior officer, instead of referring to the former in the third person, alleged that the accused addressed abusive language to “me,” and committed an assault upon “me,” without naming or otherwise indicating the subject of the abuse or assault, Held that such a form, though supported by some of the English precedents, was not sanctioned by our practice, and that, on objection being made to the same by the accused, the court would properly either require that the specification be amended, or that, in incorporating the charge in the record, the name of the preferring officer be added. Ibid., par. 707.

A specification, in alleging the violation of an order which has been given in writing, or of any written obligation—as an oath of allegiance, parole, etc.—should preferably set forth the writing verbatim, or at least state fully its substance, and then clearly detail the act or acts which constituted its supposed violation. Ibid., par. 709.

Allegations of time and place.—The time and place of the commission of the offense charged should properly be averred in the specification in order that it may appear that the offense was committed within the period of limitation fixed by the one hundred and third article, and in order to enable the accused to understand what particular act or omission he is called upon to defend. (a) A reasonably exact allegation of the time is also important in some cases—especially those of desertion and absence without leave—in order that the accused, if subsequently brought to trial for the same offense, or, what is the same thing in law, for an offense included in the original offense, may be enabled (by an exhibition of the record) properly to plead a former acquittal or conviction of that offense. Ibid., par. 710.

Where the exact time or place of the commission of the offense is not known it is frequently preferable to allege it as having occurred “on or about” a certain date or time, or “at or near” a certain locality, rather than to aver it as committed on a particular day or between two specified days, or at a particular place. There is no defined construction to be placed upon the words “on or about” as used in the allegation of time in a specification. The phrase can not be said to cover any precise number of days or latitude in time. It is ordinarily used in military pleading for the purpose of indicating some period, as nearly as can be ascertained and set forth, at or during which the offenses charged are believed to have been committed, in cases where the exact day can not well be named. And the same is to be said as to use of the words “at or near” in connection with the averment of place. These terms “on or about” and “at or near” are, however, not infrequently (though unnecessarily) employed in practice where the exact time or place is known and can readily be alleged. Ibid., par. 711.

The allegation of time in a specification should be as nearly defined as the facts will permit; but where the act or acts charged extended over a considerable space of time it may be necessary to cover such period in the allegation. Thus, allegations of “from March to September, 1887,” and “from May to October, 1888,” have been countenanced in a case in which the accused was charged with the neglect of a duty the performance of which was thus continuous. See G. C. M. O. 21, of 1889. Ibid., par. 729.

The same exactness in the averment of time is in general scarcely required where the offense charged is one of omission as where it is one of the commission of a specific act. It is sufficient in the former case to allege that the offense occurred between certain named dates not unreasonably separated. So, an offense of commission, which probably was not completed, or may not have been completed on any particular day, may be similarly charged. Thus held that the allegations of time and place were sufficient in a specification in which it was set forth that the offense charged (which consisted of an improper disposition of public property) was committed by the accused "while en route between Austin, Tex., and Waco, Tex., between the 5th and 25th days of May, 1867." Ibid., par. 712.

^aAs to the latitude allowable in the allegation of time in military pleadings, compare 1 Opin. Att. Gen., 295, 296. In the civil practice, “nothing is better settled than that proof of guilt is not confined to the day mentioned in the indictment. It may extend back to any period previous to the finding of the bill and within the statutory limit for prosecuting the offense.” McBryde v. State, 34 Ga., 208.

But where it was alleged in a specification that the accused was drunk on duty at some time or times during a period of seventy days, held that the specification did not give sufficient notice to the accused of the specific offense which he was required to defend, and was therefore uncertain and insufficient. (a) Ibid.

Where a specification alleged that the accused was absent without leave at various times between two dates, twenty days apart, held that the same was defective and subject to exception as being double, each such absence being a substantive and distinct offense. (b) X, 471. But where the specification to a charge of violation of the sixtieth article alleged the presentation by the accused of a fraudulent claim for rations furnished for recruits and also for lodgings furnished for the same recruits at the same time, held that the specification related to one transaction and was not therefore to be necessarily regarded as double or defective, in view of the liberal rules of pleading applicable to military charges. Ibid., par. 708.

Where time or place is omitted to be averred, or is averred without sufficient definiteness, and the defect is excepted to by the accused on being called upon to plead, the court will probably direct that an amendment be made. But where in either such case no objection is interposed by the accused, the proceedings will be sufficient in law provided the time and place of the offense can be made out with reasonable certainty from the testimony in connection with the specifications. If otherwise, the proceedings will, where practicable, properly be returned to the court for correction, or where this can not be done, will, in general, probably be disapproved. And where the offense is alleged to have been committed on a particular day, and the evidence shows that it was committed on quite a different day, in such case, provided time is not of the essence of the offense, and the specific act charged is sufficiently identified by the other testimony, the variance between the allegation and the proof will not constitute a fatal defect, and need not induce a disapproval of the sentence where there has been a conviction. A return, however, of the record to the court for correction, if practicable, would well be resorted to by the reviewing officer before taking final action. Ibid., par. 713.

Matter of evidence in pleading.—While it is in general irregular to plead matter of evidence, there is no objection to noting in brief in the specification the immediate result or effect of the act charged, as a circumstance of description illustrating the character and extent of the offense committed. Thus, while a homicide, if amounting to murder, and capital under section 5339, Revised Statutes, or by the law of the State, etc., can not as such be made the subject of a military charge in time of peace (see sixty-second article), yet a capital homicide, where it has been committed in connection with or as a consequence of a specific military offense charged against the accused, as, for example, "mutiny," or "offering violence to a superior officer," may properly be stated in the conclusion of the specification as matter of aggravation and as indicating the animus of the accused or the amount of force employed. Ibid., par. 714.

Joint charges.—Properly to warrant the joining of several persons in the same charge and the bringing them to trial together thereon, the offense must be such as requires for its commission a combination of action and must have been committed by the accused in concert or in pursuance of a common intent. The mere fact of their committing the same offense together and at the same time, although material as going to show concert, does not necessarily establish it. Thus the fact that several soldiers have absented themselves together without leave will not, in the absence of evidence indicating a conspiracy or concert of action, justify their being arraigned together on a common charge, for they may merely have been availing themselves of the same convenient opportunity for leaving their station. Ibid., par. 715.

By whom preferred.—Military charges, though commonly originating with military persons, may be initiated by civilians; indeed, it is but performing a public duty for a civilian, who becomes cognizant of a serious offense committed by an officer or soldier, to bring it to the attention of the proper commander. So a charge may originate with an enlisted man. But, by the usage of the service, all military charges should be formally preferred by, i. e., authenticated by the signature of, a commissioned officer. Charges proceeding from a person outside the Army, and based a Compare cases in G. O. 193, Army of the Potomac, 1862; G. O. 98, Department of New Mexico, 1862.

b In the military, as in the civil, practice, double pleading—i. e., specifications setting forth two (or more) distinct offenses (especially when chargeable under different articles of war) are properly condemned, and in sundry cases the conviction and sentence have been disapproved on account of the duplicity in law of the pleadings. See G. C. M. O. 80, War Department, 1875; G. O. 3, 83, Department of the Missouri, 1863; id. 49, Department of the Ohio, 1864.

upon testimony not in the possession or knowledge of the military authorities, should, in general, be required to be sustained by affidavits or other reliable evidence, as a condition to their being adopted. Ibid., par. 716.

Any officer may prefer charges; an officer is not disqualified from preferring charges by the fact that he is himself under charges or in arrest. Charges should be preferred to the authority empowered to convene the court for their trial. The signing of charges, like orders, with the name of an officer, adding "by the order of" his commander, is unusual and objectionable. Charges, where not signed voluntarily by the officer by whom they are preferred, are, in practice, usually subscribed by the judge-advocate of the court. Ibid., par. 717.

In cases where charges preferred against an officer are apparently susceptible of a reasonable explanation, it is not unusual, especially where the charges are preferred by an inferior against a superior, to afford the officer charged an opportunity to make explanation before it be determined whether to bring him to trial. Ibid., par. 718.

It is a reprehensible practice to allow charges to lie long dormant before being preferred. Charges should not be delayed, but should be brought to trial as soon as practicable and while the evidence is fresh. A delay of five months remarked upon as prejudicial to the administration of justice and unfair to the accused. Ibid., par. 722.

Commanding officers are not required to bring every dereliction of duty before a court for trial, but will endeavor to prevent their recurrence by admonitions, withholding of privileges, and taking such steps as may be necessary to enforce their orders. Par. 1027, A. R., 1901.

Charges, though preferred in the office of the Judge-Advocate-General, are not to be signed by him. If not signed by the officer actually preferring them, they will properly be authenticated by the signature of the acting judge-advocate of the department, or, preferably, by the judge-advocate of the court. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 723.

An objection that a charge is not signed should be taken at the arraignment, when the omission may be supplied by the judge-advocate affixing his signature. By pleading the general issue the accused waives the objection. Ibid., par. 724.

But to be taken cognizance of by the court, it is not essential that a charge should be signed by any officer. If, though not so signed, it be duly officially transmitted by the convening commander, or other competent superior authority, to the court, either directly or through the judge-advocate "for trial," or "for the action of the court," or in terms to such effect, it is sufficiently authenticated for the purposes of trial, and trial upon it may be proceeded with by arraignment thereon of the accused. Ibid., par. 725.

Reference for trial.—In general, charges can regularly and properly be ordered to be tried, or transmitted for trial to the court, only by the authority of the officer convening the court or that of his superior. An inferior to the convening officer can not properly refer charges to the court for trial except under some specific or general authority received from that officer. (a) The mere fact, however, that a court has proceeded to the trial of charges, referred to it without due authority by a commander inferior to the one who convened the court, can not affect the legality of the finding or sentence in the case. Ibid., par. 719.

Withdrawal of charges.—A withdrawal of charges constitutes no legal bar to their being subsequently revived and repreferred. Charges, however, once formally withdrawn will not in general properly be revived except upon new material evidence being obtained. Charges once accepted as a sufficient basis for action, by the commander competent to convene a court for their trial, can not properly be withdrawn except by his authority. Ibid., par. 720.

Amendment of charges.—How far charges may be amended by the judge-advocate before the organization of the court depends mainly upon his authority, general or special, to make amendments. After the arraignment, amendments of form may always be made, with the assent of the accused or by the direction of the court; and so may slight amendments of substance not so modifying the pleading as to make it a charge of a new and distinct offense. An amendment so substantial as materially to modify the "matter" before the court, will not in general be authorized (see eighty-fourth article), and any amendment whatever of substance should be allowed by the court with caution and subject to the right of the accused to apply for a continuance (see ninety-third article). Ibid., par. 720, note 1.

The judge-advocate is not unfrequently directed to prepare or reframe charges;

^a This rule, though not always insisted upon in practice, has been repeatedly enjoined in express terms by department commanders. See, for example, G. O. 67, Department of Arkansas, 1864; G. O. 88, Department of Dakota, 1869; G. O. 8, Department of Texas, 1874.

him within eight days after his arrest, and that he is brought to trial within ten days thereafter, unless the necessities of the service prevent such trial; and then he shall be brought to trial within thirty days after the expiration of said ten days.¹ If a copy of the charges be not served, or the arrested officer be not brought to trial, as herein required, the arrest shall cease.² But officers released from arrest, under the provisions of this article, but where charges, already formally preferred, are transmitted to him for prosecution, he should not assume to modify them in material particulars in the absence of authority from the convening officer. While he may ordinarily correct obvious mistakes of form or patent or slight errors in names, dates, amounts, etc., he can not without such authority make substantial amendments in the allegations, or—least of all—reject or withdraw a charge of specification, or enter a nolle prosequi as to the same, or substitute a new and distinct charge for one transmitted to him for trial by the proper superior. (a) Ibid., par. 1532.

A list of the proposed witnesses is no part of the military charge, though such a list may properly be and is not unfrequently appended to a charge. In serving upon the accused a copy of the charges, it is not essential, though the better practice, to add a copy of the list of witnesses where one is appended to the original charges. Appending such a list does not preclude the prosecution from calling witnesses not named therein. Ibid., par. 721.

A middle name or initial is no part of a person's name in law, and except where it is necessary to identify the individual, may be omitted from the charge without affecting the validity of the finding or execution of the sentence. So a misnomer in a charge, consisting of an erroneous middle name or initial, may be disregarded in a charge unless the accused moves to strike out or interpose an objection, in the nature of a plea in abatement, when he must also state his true name. The charge may then be amended accordingly in court, without delaying the proceedings. Ibid., par. 730.

A material amendment of a charge should properly be made before the actual trial. Where a court-martial, after the trial was concluded, directed a specification to be amended so as to render it more definite as to time and place, and then caused the accused to be arraigned and to plead over again, nunc pro tunc, held, that its action was without sanction of law or precedent. Ibid., par. 731.

A failure at the arraignment to take notice of a variance between the form of a specification to which the accused is called upon to plead and such specification as it appeared in the copy of the charges served at his arrest, is a waiver of the objection, and the same can not be taken advantage of at a subsequent stage of the proceedings. Ibid., par. 732.

Statement of enlistments.—The statement as to enlistments, discharges, etc., required by paragraph 927, Army Regulations 1895, to be furnished with the original charge to the convening authority, is not intended to be accompanied by a declaration on the part of the commanding officer of the accused as to his present character. The regulation does not call for the officer's opinion on the subject, or contemplate that the character of the accused will be taken into consideration at this time. Ibid., par. 733.

The term "within ten days thereafter," held, to mean after his arrest. Ibid., par. 179.

² Held, a sufficient compliance with the requirement as to the service of charges, to have served a true copy of the existing charges and specifications, though the list of witnesses appended to the original charges was omitted, and though the charges themselves were not in sufficient legal form, and were intended to be amended and redrawn. Ibid., par. 180.

¹The fact that cases of officers put in arrest "at remote military posts or stations" are excepted from the application of the article does not authorize an abuse of the power of arrest in these cases. And where in such a case an arrest, considering the facilities of communication with the department headquarters and other circumstances, was in fact unreasonably protracted without trial, held, that the officer was entitled to be released from arrest upon a proper application submitted for the purpose. Ibid., par. 181.
²See in this connection the English case of Wolton v. Gavin, 16 Q. B., 70, cited in Ives's Mil. Law, p. 74.
³The report required in this article is that habitually submitted to the post or other commander by the old officer of the day at the completion of his tour of duty. See in this connection the requirements of the official Manual of Guard Duty in respect to the duties of the officer of the day and the officer or noncommissioned officer commanding the guard.

a separate department, may appoint general courts-martial ^{72 Art. War.} whenever necessary.¹ But when any such commander is

It is within the power of the President, as Commander in Chief, to convene a general court-martial, even when the commander of the accused officer to be tried is not the accuser. Swaim v. U. S., 165 U. S., 553. The President, as Commander in Chief, has a right, virtute officio, to appoint a general court-martial. Runkle v. U. S., 19 Ct. Cls., 396. A power to appoint courts-martial devolved, by statute, on any other officer is shared by the President, though he be not named therein. Since the earliest legislation of our Government it has been understood and intended that powers granted to general officers in regard to courts-martial are thereby granted to the President. His name is to be understood as written in every statute which confers upon a military officer military authority. Swaim v. U. S., 28 Ct. Cls., 173. The President is empowered to convene general courts-martial not merely in the class of cases specified in the seventy-second article of war (viz, where a military officer thereby authorized to convene such a court is the "accuser or prosecutor" of an officer in his command whom it is desired to bring to trial), but, generally and in any case, by virtue of his authority as Commander in Chief of the Army. As such he is authorized to give orders to his subordinates, and the convening of a court-martial is simply the giving of an order to certain officers to assemble as a court and exercise certain powers conferred upon them, when so assembled, by the Articles of War. This general power has been exercised in repeated instances by the President since the formation of the Government. Indeed, if the same could not be exercised, it would be impracticable, in the absence of an assignment of a general officer to command the Army, to administer military justice in a considerable class of cases of officers and soldiers not under the command of any department, etc., commander, as a large proportion of the officers of the general staff, for example. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2038.

A convening of a general court-martial nominally by the Secretary of War is in law a convening by the President, and therefore as legal as if the President himself had signed the order. Ibid., par. 2039.

This article, in empowering certain commanders to constitute the superior courts-martial, makes them the judges in general of the expediency of ordering such courts in particular instances. Except where specially authorized to do so by law or regulation, an officer or soldier can not demand a court-martial in his own case. Ibid., par. 183.

Where a commander empowered by this article to convene a general court-martial declines, in the exercise of his discretion, to approve charges submitted to him by an inferior and to order a court thereon, his decision should in general be regarded as final. Ibid., par. 184.

The authority to order a court under this article is an attribute of command. Thus a department commander, detached and absent from his command for any considerable period by reason of having received a leave of absence (whether of a formal or informal character), or having been placed upon a distinct and separate duty (as that of a member of a court or board convened outside his department, for example), is held to be incompetent during such absence to order a general court-martial as department commander, even though no other officer has been assigned or has succeeded to the command of the department. Ibid., par. 185.

Nor can a department commander, thus absent, exercise such authority through a staff officer or other subordinate, or delegate the same to a subordinate to be exercised by him. Nor, where a general court-martial duly convened by a department commander has, at a time when the commander is thus absent from his command, been reduced, by an incident of the service, below five members, can another member legally be detailed upon the court, by the assistant adjutant-general, or other subordinate officer remaining in charge of the headquarters, since such a detail would be an exercise of a portion of the authority vested by this article in the commander, and which can in no part be delegated. Ibid.

^a The authority of the President as Commander in Chief to institute general courts-martial has been in fact exercised from time to time from an early period, in a series of cases, commencing with those of Brigadier-General Hull, Major-General Wilkinson, and Major-General Gaines, tried in 1813-1816, and including that of Brevet Major-General Twiggs, tried in 1858. His authority in this particular has been in substance affirmed by the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, in Report No. 868, dated March 8, 1879, Forty-fifth Congress, third session. (A single member of the committee apparently dissented, in a subsequent report of April 7, 1879, Mis. Doc. No. 21, Forty-sixth Congress, first session.)

the accuser or prosecutor¹ of any officer under his command the court shall be appointed by the President; and its proceedings and sentence shall be sent directly to the Secretary of War, by whom they shall be laid before the President for his approval or orders in the case. Seventy-second Article of War; act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 121).

Who may convene in time of war.
73 Art. War.
Dec. 24, 1861, c. 3, v. 12, p. 330.

1790. In time of war the commander of a division, or of a separate brigade² of troops, shall be competent to appoint a general court-martial. But when such commander is the accuser or prosecutor³ of any person under his command, the court shall be appointed by the next higher commander.² Seventy-third Article of War.

³ A brigade, to be a separate brigade in the sense of this article, must not exist as a component part of a division; to authorize its commander to convene a general court-martial it must be detached from, or disconnected with, any division, and be operating as a distinct command. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 85, par. 1. So, where a command, not attached to a division, but occupying a separate post or district, or operating separately in the field, was made up of regiments or parts of regiments, sufficient to compose a brigade, and such as were commonly, or might properly be, organized into a brigade command, the same might in general be viewed as constituting a separate brigade in the sense of this article, i. e., so far as to empower its commander to convene a general court-martial. Ibid. See also ibid., par. 194-198.

CONVENING OFFICER AS ACCUSER OR PROSECUTOR.

It is not essential that the commander who convenes the court-martial for the trial of an officer should sign the charges to make him the "accuser or prosecutor" within the meaning of this article. Nor is the fact that they have been signed by another conclusive on the question whether the convening commander is the actual accuser or prosecutor. The objection that such commander is such calls in question the legal constitution of the court, and while such objection, if known or believed to exist, should regularly be interposed at or before the arraignment, it may be taken during the trial at any stage of the proceedings. (a) If not admitted by the prosecution to exist the accused is entitled to prove it like any other issue. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 186.

Whether the commander who convened the court is to be regarded as the "accuser or prosecutor" in the sense of the article in question, where he has had to do with the preparing and preferring of the charges, is mainly to be determined by his animus in the matter. He may like any other officer initiate an investigation of an officer's conduct and formally prefer, as his individual act, charges against such officer; or by reason of a personal interest adverse to the accused he may adopt practically as his own charges initiated by another; in which cases he is clearly the accuser or prosecutor within the article. On the other hand, it is his duty to determine, when the facts are brought to his knowledge, whether an officer within his command charged with a military offence shall, in the interest of discipline and for the good of the service, be brought to trial. To this end he may formally refer or revise or cause to be revised and then formally referred charges preferred against such officer by another; or, when the facts of an alleged offence are communicated to him, he may direct a suitable officer, as a member of his staff, or the proper commander of the accused, to investigate the matter, formulate and prefer such charges as the facts may warrant, and having been submitted to him he may revise and refer them for trial as in other cases; all this he may do in the proper performance of his official duty without becoming the accuser or prosecutor in the case. (a) Of course he can not be deemed such accuser or prosecutor where he causes charges to be preferred and proceeds to convene the court by direction of the Secretary of War or a competent military superior. See also par. 188, ibid., and note to par. 187.

The provision of this article (and of Art. 73) that, when the convening commander is "accuser or prosecutor," the court shall be convened by the President or "next higher commander," being expressly restricted to general courts, has of course no application to regimental or garrison courts. [But see SUMMARY COURT.] The same principle, however, will properly be applied to proceedings before these courts, if it can be done without serious embarrassment to the service. Ibid., par. 189.

But only officers can be so detailed. Courts-martial composed in whole or in part of enlisted men are unknown to our law. So an "acting assistant surgeon," being a civilian, is not qualified to sit on a court-martial. Though any officer may legally be detailed, it is desirable that no officer should be selected who, from having preferred the charges or other known reason, may be presumed to be biased or interested in the case. Ibid., par. 200.

² This section is merely directory to the officer appointing the court, and his decision as to the number which can be convened without manifest injury to the service, being a matter submitted to his sound discretion, must be conclusive. Martin v. Mott, 12 Wheat., 19, 35; Mullan v. U. S., 140 U. S., 240. The limitation with reference both to the numbers and rank of the members of a general court-martial is discretionary with the appointing power. Mullan v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cls., 34. Dynes v. Hoover, 20 How., 81.

It is not essential to the validity of the proceedings that the order convening a general court-martial of less than thirteen members should state that "no other officers" or "no greater number" "than those named can be assembled without manifest injury to the service." Attorney-General Wirt (1 Opins., 296) did hold such a statement to be essential, but simply expressed the opinion that the President, before confirming a certain death sentence, adjudged by a court of less than thirteen members, would properly satisfy himself that a court of the full number could not have been convened without prejudice to the service. It was held at an early period by the United States Supreme Court that it was for the convening authority to determine as to what number of officers could be detailed without manifest injury to service, and that his decision on the subject would be conclusive. (b) a Compare late opinion, to a somewhat similar effect, of the Attorney-General of August 1, 1878 (XVI Opins., 106), in which it is also held that where the record of the trial fails to indicate that the convening officer was the "accuser or prosecutor" of the accused, the latter in applying to the Secretary of War to have the proceedings pronounced invalid on this ground, may establish the facts by the production of affidavits setting forth the circumstances of the case and the action of the commander.

79 Art. of War.

¹ The volunteer force during the late war with Spain was not a part of the militia, but of the Army of the United States. Though assimilated to the militia in some respects, as, for example, in the mode of original appointment of regimental and company officers, it was as distinct in law from the militia as was the so-called "regular" contingent of the Army. (a) Volunteer officers once mustered into the service of the United States and while they remained in that service did not differ substantially from regular officers in their status, rights, or otherwise. Their tenure of office was indeed briefer; this, however, was not a material legal distinction, since the term of regular officers was also in some cases limited by a statute to a definite period, as the duration of the existing war. See Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 208 and 2444, par. 1.

As the act "to provide for temporarily increasing the military establishment of the United States in time of war," approved April 22, 1898, declares that the Army of the United States in time of war shall consist of both the Regular Army and the Volunteer Army, it can not be held that the Volunteer Army is, with reference to the Regular Army, "other forces," within the meaning of the 77th Article of War, but regular officers may now sit on courts-martial for the trial of volunteer officers or soldiers. Ibid., par. 209.

² Courts-martial (though, within their scope and province, authoritative and independent tribunals) are bodies of exceptional and restricted powers and jurisdiction, their cognizance being confined to the distinctive classes of offenses recognized by the military code. (b) Their jurisdiction is criminal, their functions being to assign (in proper cases) punishment; they have no authority to adjudge damages for personal injuries or private wrongs. (c) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1024.

The court-martial having jurisdiction of the person of the accused and of the offense charged, and having acted within the scope of its lawful power, its decision and sentence can not be reviewed or set aside by the civil courts by writ of habeas corpus

If the court-martial is found to have acted with jurisdiction, the civil court can not and will not go into the case further. Wales v. Whitney, 114 U. S., 564; Dynes v. Hoover, 20 How., 82.

In order to become amenable to the military jurisdiction, an officer or soldier must have been legally and fully admitted into the military service of the United States. Thus held that an officer of the State volunteers appointed by a governor of a State, but not yet mustered into the United States service, was not amenable to the jurisdiction of a court-martial of the United States for an offense committed while engaged in recruiting service under the authority of the governor. So held that the making of fraudulent representations in the course of the preliminaries to an enlistment—as in the “declaration of the recruit”—and before the enlistment was legally complete and the soldier thus fully in the United States service, did not constitute an offense within the cognizance of a court-martial. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1026.

As regards offenses, general courts-martial have exclusive jurisdiction over all offenses punishable capitally, and over those defined in the fifty-eighth article, when committed in time of war. Over other offenses they have concurrent jurisdiction with the inferior courts; but all offenses for which the limit of punishment is in excess of the limits of punishing power of an inferior court, as well as all serious noncapital offenses for which limits of punishment have not been prescribed, will, when practicable, be tried by general court-martial. MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL.

Whether the trial of an officer by officers of an inferior rank can be avoided or not is a question, not for the accused or the court, but for the officer convening the court; and his decision (as indicated by the detail itself as made in the convening order) upon this point, as upon that of the number of members, is conclusive. An officer, therefore, can not successfully challenge a member because, merely, of being of a rank inferior to his own. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 210.

The statement added in orders convening courts-martial to the effect that “no officers other than those named can be assembled without manifest injury to the service” is as superfluous and unnecessary, for the purpose of excusing the detail of officers junior to the accused, as it is for accounting for the fact that less than the maximum number have been selected for the court.

² A “retainer” is defined to be an attendant, or servant, and the term is applied to one who attends upon a superior, as upon an officer or other person, and accompanies the Army in such dependent capacity; the other class mentioned in the article and designated as “persons serving with the Armies of the United States in the field,” consists in and is composed of the authorized civilian employes of an army in the field, or of its several staff departments. In both cases the persons designated in the article, by accompanying the Army of their own free will, may be said, by such act, to have voluntarily subjected themselves to military jurisdiction during the period of their sojourn in the theater of active military operations.

(1) Members of the military establishment. Section 1094, Revised Statutes.

(2) Persons admitted to the Soldiers' Home at Washington, D. C. Section 4824, Revised Statutes.

(3) Inmates of the National Home for Disabled Volunteers. Section 4835, Revised Statutes.

(4) Persons guilty of contempt of court. Eighty-sixth Article of War.

(5) Post traders (in time of war only). Section 3, act of July 26, 1876 (19 Stat. L., 100).

(6) The Marine Corps, when serving with the Army. Section 1621, Revised Statutes.

(7) The Militia, when called into active service. Sections 1642-1644, Revised Statutes. Sixty-fourth Article of War.

(8) Persons relieving or harboring the enemy. Forty-fifth Article of War.

(9) Persons giving intelligence to the enemy. Forty-sixth Article of War.

(10) Retainers to the camp, and all persons serving with armies in the field. Sixty-third Article of War.

(11) Spies. Section 1343, Revised Statutes. See, also, in connection with the subject of jurisdiction, Manual for Courts-Martial, pp. 11-14.

(12) Soldiers sentenced by courts-martial to dishonorable discharge and confinement. Section 5, act of June 18, 1898.

While it will in general be more for the interest and convenience of the service to bring an accused officer or soldier to trial near the locality of his offense, he may with equal legality be tried by a court convened in any other part of the United States. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 322, par. 2.

The jurisdiction over persons in the military service covers all military offenses committed by them, whether within or beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the United States. Military offenses are not territorial. (Manual for Courts-Martial, p. 14.)

The jurisdiction of courts-martial is nonterritorial. In a case of an officer who exhibited himself in a drunken condition at a public ball in Mexico, held that his offense was cognizable by a court-martial of the United States, subsequently convened in Texas by the department commander. This for the reason that the military jurisdiction does not recognize territoriality as an essential element of military offenses, but extends to the same wherever committed, a principle which is amply confirmed by the comprehensive provision of the sixty-fourth Article of War. See Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 169.

An officer or soldier (except as otherwise provided in the sixtieth article) ceases to be amenable to the military jurisdiction for offenses committed while in the military service after he has been separated therefrom by resignation, dismissal, being dropped for desertion, muster out, discharge, etc., and has thus become a civilian. The old English precedent of Sackville's case (a) (which appears, indeed, to stand alone even in England) has not been followed in this country or recognized in our laws. Ibid., par. 1027.

A discharge of a soldier, when subject to trial and punishment for a military offense, is a formal waiver and abandonment by the United States of jurisdiction over him. Nor does a soldier, after having been once discharged, as where he has been dishonorably discharged by sentence, remain liable to the military jurisdiction for desertion or any other military offense committed before discharge by reason of being still held in military custody as a prisoner in confinement under the same sentence; for he is then held, not as a soldier, but as a civilian convict.

Nor can a person who, by reason of acceptance of resignation, dismissal, discharge, etc., has become wholly detached from the military service, be made liable to trial by court-martial, for offenses committed while in the service, on the ground that such offenses were not discovered till after he had left the Army.

The returning by a dismissed, etc., officer, to the service under a new commission does not revive a jurisdiction for offenses committed while he was in the service which had lapsed upon his being separated from it.

It is to be understood that the general rule of the nonamenability to military trial of officers and soldiers, after discharge, dismissal, etc., is subject to a specific statutory exception, viz, that provided for in the concluding provision of the sixtieth article. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1028.

Where a soldier in the Army of the United States was arrested for a crime, and his term of enlistment expired before his trial and conviction by court-martial, held that the jurisdiction of the court-martial having once attached by arrest, it retained jurisdiction for all the purposes of trial, judgment, and execution. Barret v. Hopkins, 7 Fed. Rep., 312. Now, by section 5 of the act of June 18, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 484), enlisted men sentenced to dishonorable discharge, and to periods of confinement in addition thereto, are made liable to trial for offenses committed by them during such period of confinement.

^a Note the counter dictum of Lord Mansfield, in Parker v. Clive, 4 Burrow, 2419 (dated in 1779), that officers of the Army, "after resigning their commission, cease to be objects of military jurisdiction."

A soldier, however, provided he has not been in fact discharged, may be brought to trial by court-martial after the term of service for which he enlisted has expired, provided, before such expiration, proceedings with a view to trial have been duly commenced against him by arrest or service of formal charges. (a) By such arrest or service the military jurisdiction attaches, and, once attached, trial by court-martial and punishment upon conviction may legally ensue, though the soldier's term of enlistment may in fact expire before the trial be entered upon. In the leading case on this point, of a seaman in the Navy (In re Walker, 3 American Jurist, 281) (b), the supreme court of Massachusetts held (January 25, 1830) as follows: "In this case the petitioner was arrested, or put in confinement, and charges were preferred against him to the Secretary of the Navy before the expiration of the time of his enlistment; and this was clearly a sufficient commencement of the prosecution to authorize a court-martial to proceed to trial and sentence, notwithstanding the time of service had expired before the court-martial had convened." So held, in a case of a soldier in the Regular Army, arrested on the day before the expiration of his term of enlistment, with a view to a trial for a military offense by court-martial, that the jurisdiction of the court had duly attached, and that his trial might legally be proceeded with. And similarly held in repeated cases of soldiers and officers of regular and volunteer regiments. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1029.

Where the amenability of a soldier for a military offense had been finally severed by his due discharge from the service, held that it did not revive upon his reentering the service within the period of limitation. Ibid., 331, par. 18.

By the sixth amendment of the Constitution, civilians are guaranteed the right of trial by jury "in all criminal prosecutions." Thus, in time of peace, a court-martial can not assume jurisdiction of an offense committed by a civilian without a violation of the Constitution. It is only under the exceptional circumstances of a time of war that civilians may, in certain situations, become amenable to trial by court-martial. (c) Ibid., par. 1031.

A civilian brought to trial before a court-martial can not, by a plea of guilty or other form of legal assent, confer jurisdiction upon the court, where no jurisdiction exists in law. (d)

Any statute by which any class of civilians is attempted to be made amenable to trial by court-martial for offenses committed while civilians and in time of peace is necessarily unconstitutional. Ibid., par. 1032.

It can not affect the authority of a court-martial to take cognizance of the military offense involved in an injury committed by a soldier against an officer that before the trial the latter has resigned or been otherwise separated from the Army. Ibid., par. 1037.

Whether a soldier may legally be held amenable to trial by court-martial for an offense committed by him while on furlough will depend upon the nature of the offense and the circumstances of his situation. In general, indeed, where he is thus absent at his home or at such a distance from his station and from troops that his offenses will not directly prejudice military discipline, he will not render himself amenable to the military jurisdiction unless, indeed, he commits a desertion. See MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL, p. 16, par. 7.

The discharge of a soldier not taking effect till notice thereof, actual or constructive, held that a soldier who committed a military offense on the day on which he was to be dishonorably discharged under sentence but before the discharge was delivered to him (or to the officer in charge of the prison at which he was also to be confined under the same sentence) was amenable to the military jurisdiction for the trial and punishment of such offense as being still in the military service. Ibid., par. 1039.

Courts-martial are no part of the judiciary of the United States, but simply instrumentalities of the Executive power. They are creatures of orders, the power to convene them, as well as the power to act upon their proceedings, being an attribute of command. But, though transient and summary, their judgments, when rendered upon subjects within their limited jurisdiction, are as legal and valid as those of any other tribunals, nor are the same subject to be appealed from, set aside, or reviewed by the courts of the United States or of any State. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 992. Their jurisdiction is criminal, their function being to assign (in proper cases) punishment; they have no authority to adjudge damages for personal injuries or private wrongs. (b)

It is no objection to the assuming by a court-martial of jurisdiction of a military offense committed by an officer or soldier that he may be amenable to trial or may actually have been tried and convicted by a criminal court of the State, etc., for a criminal offense involved in his act. (c) And the reverse is also law, viz, that the civil court may legally take cognizance of the criminal offense involved without regard to the fact that the party has been subjected to a trial and conviction by court-martial for his breach of military law or discipline. In such instances the act committed is an offense against the two jurisdictions and may legally subject the offender to be tried and punished under both. Ibid., par. 1036.

¹Any commissioned officer may legally be appointed judge-advocate of a court-martial. Thus a surgeon, assistant surgeon, or even a chaplain, is legally eligible to be so detailed. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1521.

A separate judge-advocate should be appointed for each general court-martial convened by a department or other competent commander. The same officer may, indeed, be selected to perform the duties of judge-advocate as often as may be deemed desirable by the commander, but he should be detailed anew for every court-martial on which he acts. To appoint in a general order a particular officer to act as judge-advocate for all the courts to be held in the same command would be quite irregular and without the sanction of precedent. Ibid., par. 1522.

It is competent for the commander who has convened a court-martial to relieve the judge-advocate originally detailed for it and substitute another in his place, and the second may in the same manner be relieved by a third, etc. The relieving, however, of a judge-advocate, pending a trial, must in general embarrass the prosecution of a case, and should not be resorted to if it can well be avoided. Ibid., par. 1523.

Where there have been two or more judge-advocates successively detailed in the course of a trial, the one who is acting at the close is the one (and the only one) required to authenticate the proceedings by his signature. Ibid., par. 1524.

An officer serving as judge-advocate on the staff of a department or army commander has as such no authority to act as judge-advocate of a court-martial convened by such commander. If it is desired that he should act as judge-advocate of such a court, he should be specially detailed for the purpose. Ibid., par. 1527.

While a civilian may legally be appointed, or rather employed, as judge-advocate

"No acts of military officers or tribunals, within the scope of their jurisdiction, can be revised, set aside, or punished, civilly or criminally, by a court of common law." Tyler v. Pomeroy, 8 Allen, 484. Where a court-martial has jurisdiction, "its proceedings can not be collaterally impeached for any mere error or irregularity committed within the sphere of its authority. Its judgments, when approved as required, rest on the same basis and are surrounded by the same considerations which give conclusiveness to the judgments of other legal tribunals, including as well the lowest as the highest, under like circumstances." Ex parte Reed, 10 Otto, 13.

^bIn case property or money stolen be brought into court and identified, the owner may claim it, and the court will order it to be restored to him. But, still, trial by court-martial is a criminal proceeding, not an action to recover debt, or sounding in damage for injury, and in this regard * * * the law makes no distinction in favor of soldiers over other persons who have suffered loss or injury. G. O. 18, A. G. O., 1859. See also G. O. No. 2, A. G. O. of 1857.

^cThus a soldier may be tried for a violation of Art. 21, in striking or doing other violence to a superior officer, after having been convicted by a civil tribunal for the criminal assault and battery. So, an officer or soldier may be brought to trial under a charge of "Conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline" for the military offense (if any) involved—in a homicide or a larceny, of which, as a civil offense, he has been acquitted or convicted by a criminal court.

of a court-martial, such an employment has, for the past fifty years, been of the rarest occurrence in the military service. Civil judge-advocates have been much more frequently employed for naval than for military courts-martial. (a) Ibid., par. 1528.

A direction in an order convening a general court-martial, that if the judge-advocate be prevented from attending the junior member of the court will act in his stead, held irregular and improper; the function of a judge-advocate as prosecuting officer, not being properly compatible with that of a member of a court-martial. And—the member having acted as judge-advocate in this case—advised that the proceedings (though the court had still retained five members) be disapproved by the reviewing authority. A court-martial has of course no authority to direct or empower its junior member or any other officer to act as its judge-advocate. Ibid., par. 1528.

Challenge of judge-advocate.—While a judge-advocate is not subject to challenge, and it can not affect the legal validity of the proceedings of a court-martial that the judge-advocate was personally objectionable or hostile to the accused, it is yet desirable to detail as judge-advocate, if practicable, an officer who has no considerable prejudice against the party to be tried, or any decided personal interest in his case. (b) Ibid., par. 1529.

An officer can not in general fitly or becomingly act as judge-advocate in a case in which he is personally interested as accuser or prosecutor. Where the judge-advocate had prepared the charges and was the accuser in the case, and moreover entertained a strong personal prejudice or hostility against the accused, held that he was ill-chosen to act as judge-advocate especially in the capacities of prosecuting official and adviser to the court. A personal animus against the accused is particularly unbefitting a judge-advocate in a case where the accused is not represented by counsel. One who, without personal prejudice against the accused, or interest in his conviction, has signed the charges as company commander, may not improperly act as judge-advocate in the case. Ibid., par. 1530.

In the case of an officer tried by general court-martial in 1871 and sentenced to be dismissed, the judge-advocate was not only a material witness for the prosecution, but, as the senior first-lieutenant in the same regiment with the accused, was the expectant of promotion to the next vacancy in the grade of captain. In his review of the case, it was remarked by the Secretary of War that, "while there is no ground for doubting that the officer charged with this duty performed it with honest and pure intentions, yet certainly his selection for it was unsuitable, inasmuch as by military law and usage it has always been held that the judge-advocate should be free from bias or interest in the result of the proceedings in which he officiates." G. C. M. O. 5, War Dept., 1871. See also G. C. M. O. No. 41, War Dept., 1875.

The judge-advocate is not unfrequently directed to prepare or reframe charges; but where charges already formally preferred are transmitted to him for prosecution, he should not assume to modify them in material particulars in the absence of authority from the convening officer. While he may ordinarily correct obvious mistakes of form or patent or slight errors in names, dates, amounts, etc., he can not without such authority make substantial amendments in the allegations, or—least of all—reject or withdraw a charge or specification, or enter a nolle prosequi as to the same, or substitute a new and distinct charge for one transmitted to him for trial by the proper superior. Ibid., par. 1532.

A judge-advocate of a court-martial has no authority to place in arrest an officer or soldier about to be tried by the court or to compel the attendance of the accused before the court by requiring a noncommissioned officer to bring him or otherwise: these are duties which devolve upon the convening authority or upon the post commander or other proper officer in whose custody or command the accused is at the time. Ibid., par. 1535.

^a The last occasions of such employment are believed to have been those of the trial of the persons charged with complicity in the assassination of President Lincoln, and the trial of Major Haddock, Prov. Mar. Dept. (see G. C. M. O., 356 and 565, War Dept., 1865), upon which Hon. J. A. Bingham and Hon. Roscoe Conkling were, respectively, employed as judge-advocates. For an early case in which a civilian, who was afterwards a President of the United States, was employed as judge-advocate, see the reply dated March 7, 1814, of the Secretary of War, Hon. John Armstrong, to the communication of the "acting special judge-advocate," Hon. Martin Van Buren, submitting questions for the court. Forbes' Trial of Hull.

Prosecutor.—Other than the judge-advocate, who by the 90th Article of War, is "required to prosecute in the name of the United States," our military law and practice recognize no official prosecutor. The party who is in fact the accuser or the prosecuting witness is, in important cases, not unfrequently permitted by the court to remain in the court room and advise with the judge-advocate during the trial if the latter requests it; and in some cases he has been allowed to be accompanied by his own counsel. If such a party is to testify, he should ordinarily be the first witness examined; this course, however, is not invariable. Ibid., par. 2078.

Duty of judge-advocate at the trial.—A competent judge-advocate will properly be left by the court to introduce the testimony in the form and order deemed by him to be the most advantageous and generally to bring on cases for trial and conduct their prosecution according to his own judgment.

The general presumption of law, made in favor of all public officers, in the absence of affirmative evidence to the contrary, that they duly fulfill their functions, applies to the judge-advocate. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1546.

An absence of the judge-advocate from the court during the trial does not per se affect the validity of the proceedings, but is, of course, to be avoided if possible. When the judge-advocate is obliged to temporarily absent himself, the court should in general suspend the proceedings for the time; or, if his absence is to be prolonged, should adjourn for a certain period. Ibid., par. 1539.

Should the judge-advocate be required to give evidence as a witness, the clerk or reporter of the court may go on to record his testimony while on the stand; or, if there be no clerk or reporter, he may record his own testimony as that of any other witness. Ibid., par. 1540.

The judge-advocate in our practice is entitled to the closing argument or address to the court, and he may present an address although the accused waives his right to present any, the function of the judge-advocate at this stage of the proceedings not being confined merely to a replying to the accused. The judge-advocate, in his address, is not authorized to read to the court evidence or written statements not introduced upon the trial and which the accused has had no opportunity to controvert or comment upon. Ibid., par. 1539.

The judge-advocate is entitled by usage to sum up the case and present an argument at the conclusion of the trial, even though the accused declines to make argument or statement. The court is not authorized to deny to the judge-advocate this right to be heard. Ibid., par. 1542.

For the court or the president of the court to place or order the judge-advocate in arrest would be an unauthorized proceeding. The court, indeed, in a proper case under Art. 86, might proceed against its judge-advocate as for a contempt. But an arrest could not be imposed nor a punishment executed in the case of such officer, except through the convening authority or other competent commander. Ibid., par. 1544.

For the judge-advocate to counsel the accused, when a soldier or inferior in rank, to plead guilty, must in general be unbefitting and inadvisable. But where such plea is voluntarily and intelligently made, the judge-advocate should properly advise the accused of his right to offer evidence in explanation or extenuation of his offense, and, if any such evidence exists, should assist him in securing it. And where no such evidence is attainable in the case, the judge-advocate should still see that the accused has an opportunity to present a "statement," written or verbal, to the court if he has any desire to do so. Ibid., par. 1534.

Opinion.—It is strictly the proper practice for a judge-advocate not to give his opinion upon a point of law arising upon a military trial, unless the same may be required by the court. This practice, however, is often departed from; and the opinions of judge-advocates, suitably tendered, are in general received and entertained by the court without objection, whether or not formally called for. But where the court does object to the giving of an opinion by the judge-advocate, he is not authorized to attempt to give it, and, of course, not authorized to enter it upon the record. Whether the fact—that the opinion was offered and objected to by the court—shall be entered upon the record, is a matter for the court alone to decide. It is, however, certainly the better practice that all the proceedings, even those that are irregular, which transpire in connection with the trial should be set out in the record for the inspection of the reviewing authority. Ibid., par. 1536.

At the trial of Major Porter in 1857 the court refused to admit an argument of the judge-advocate in support of an objection to an application by the defense for delay. This action was disapproved by the Secretary of War, whose decision was that "it was the duty of the judge-advocate to make the objection, and the argument by which he sustained it was very proper. It was a part of the proceedings which ought to have been entered upon their record. G. O., No. 5, A. G. O., 1857.

¹ Counsel for accused.—An officer or soldier put upon trial before a court-martial is not entitled as of right to have counsel present with him to assist him in his defense, but the privilege is one which is almost invariably conceded; (a) and where it is unreasonably refused, such refusal may constitute ground for the disapproval of the proceedings. A court-martial, however, is not required to delay an unreasonable time to enable an accused to provide himself with counsel. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 984.

While reasonable facilities for procuring such counsel as he may desire should be afforded an accused, his claim must be regarded as subordinate to the interests of the service. Thus where an accused officer applied to the department commander who had convened the court to authorize a particular officer whom he desired as counsel to act in that capacity, and this officer could not at the time be spared from his regular duties without material prejudice to the public interests, held that the commander was justified in denying the application, and further that the validity of the subsequent proceedings and sentence in the case was not affected by such denial. (b) Ibid., par. 985.

A military court has no authority, analogous to that sometimes exercised by civil

R. 1901, providing for the detail by the commander of a post at which a general court-martial is ordered to sit of a suitable officer of his command to act as counsel for prisoners to be arraigned, if requested by them, was not to be construed as sanctioning the detail or voluntary appearance of a post commander himself in such capacity at his own post. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 985. See, also, for duties of counsel so detailed, par. 1037 A. R., 1901; circulars 5 and 8, H. Q. A., 1894; and Davis's Military Law, pp. 36, 37.

The rule that an accused person is not entitled to counsel as of right grows out of the fact that courts-martial are without the authority possessed by civil courts having criminal jurisdiction of awarding a fee to counsel by way of compensation for his services, nor can a military tribunal of any sort assign counsel to the defense of a particular accused person. This for the reason that courts-martial are quite without the authority to require the services of civilian attorneys.

EMPLOYMENT OF REPORTERS; INTERPRETERS.

Sec. 1203, R.S.

1801. The judge-advocate of a military court shall have power to appoint a reporter, who shall record the proceedings of, and testimony taken before, such court, and may set down the same, in the first instance, in short hand. The reporter shall, before entering upon his duty, be sworn, or affirmed, faithfully to perform the same.¹

THE TRIAL.

CHALLENGES.

Challenges.
88th Art. of War.

1802. Members of a court-martial may be challenged by a prisoner, but only for cause stated to the court. The court shall determine the relevancy and validity thereof, and shall not receive a challenge to more than one member at a time.² Eighty-eighth Article of War.

courts in criminal cases, to assign counsel to an accused unprovided with counsel. Nor can such a court excuse one of its members to enable him to act as counsel for an accused. Ibid., par. 987. See, for a case in which this was attempted, General Court-Martial Orders, No. 62, War Dept., 1874.

An application by an accused officer to be furnished, at the expense of the United States, with civil counsel to defend him on his trial by court-martial remarked upon as unprecedented and not to be entertained. Par. 1072, A. R., 1901, relates to no such a case. No authority exists for the payment, by the United States, of civil counsel employed by an officer to defend him on his trial by court-martial. Ibid., par. 991.

¹The power to appoint the reporter is vested exclusively in the "judge-advocate" and can not be exercised by the court. The employment, however, of a stenographic reporter should be resorted to only in an important case. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2168.

The description, "the judge-advocate of a military court," does not strictly include the recorder of a court of inquiry, especially as a court of inquiry is not properly a court at all. The same reason, however, often exists for appointing a reporter for a court of inquiry as for a general court-martial, and it is understood that the Pay Department recognizes and pays the accounts of reporters appointed by reporters of courts of inquiry. Ibid., 659, par. 2.

The employment of a stenographic reporter, under section 1203 Revised Statutes, is authorized for general courts only, and in cases where the convening authority considers it necessary. The convening authority may also, when necessary, authorize the detail of an enlisted man to assist the judge-advocate of a general court in preparing the record. Par. 1062, A. R., 1901.

There is no authority for the employment of a civilian clerk for a court-martial, other than the "reporter" authorized by Sec. 1203, Rev. Sts., and referred to in pars. 958 and 1062, Army Regulations. An enlisted man may be detailed as such clerk under par. 1063. A court-martial, member of court, or judge-advocate can not of course lawfully communicate to a reporter or clerk, by allowing him to record the same or otherwise, the finding or sentence of the court. Before proceeding to deliberate upon its finding, the court should require the reporter or clerk, if it has one, to withdraw. But the fact that the finding or sentence, or both, may have been made known to the reporter or clerk of a court-martial can not affect the legal validity of its proceedings or sentence.

The statute does not indicate by whom the reporter shall be sworn. In practice he is sworn by the judge-advocate, a form of oath being prescribed in the MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL. If the same party is employed as a reporter for more than one case, he should, properly, be sworn anew in each case. The reporter should be excluded from the court during its deliberations and not permitted to record the findings or sentence. Ibid., par. 2169.

²This article authorizes the exercise of the right of challenge before all courts except field officers' courts and summary courts. These courts are not subject to be chal-

CONTINUANCES.

1803. A court-martial shall, for reasonable cause, grant a continuance to either party, for such time, and as often, as may appear to be just: Provided, That if the prisoner be in close confinement, the trial shall not be delayed for a period longer than sixty days.¹ Ninety-third Article of War.

Continuances.
93d Art. of War.

lenged, because, being composed of but one member, there is no authority provided which is competent to pass upon the validity of the challenge. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 234.

The article imposes no limitation upon the exercise of the right of challenge other than that "more than one member shall not be challenged at a time." Thus while the panel, or the court as a whole, is not subject to challenge, yet all the members may be challenged provided they are challenged separately. The article contains no authority for challenging the judge-advocate. Ibid., par. 248.

Courts should be liberal in passing upon challenges, but should not entertain an objection which is not specific, or allow one upon its mere assertion by the accused, without proof and in the absence of any admission on the part of the member. A positive declaration by the challenged member to the effect that he has no prejudice or interest in the case will, in general, in the absence of material evidence in support of the objection, justify the court in overruling it. Ibid., par. 245.

It is not necessary, though usual and proper, for a member to withdraw from the court room on being challenged and pending the deliberation on the objection. Ibid., par. 244.

An accused challenged the entire court on the ground that the convening officer was "accuser." Held properly overruled; the array can not be challenged at military law. The article declares that "the court * * * shall not receive a challenge to more than one member at a time." Ibid., par. 250.

Where, before arraignment, the accused, an officer, without having personal knowledge of the existence of ground of challenge to a member, had credible hearsay information of its existence, held that he should properly have raised the objection before the members were sworn, and that the court was not in error in refusing to allow him to take it at a subsequent stage of the trial. Ibid., par. 246.

The fact that a sufficient cause of challenge exists against a member, but, through ignorance of his rights, is not taken advantage of by the accused, or if asserted is improperly overruled by the court, can affect in no manner the validity in law of the proceedings or sentence, though it may sometimes properly furnish occasion for a disapproval of the proceedings, etc., or a remission in whole or in part of the sentence. (a) Ibid., par. 247.

A court-martial can not relieve or "excuse" a member except upon a challenge duly interposed and sustained under this article. The fact that a member has been absent from the court for several days and has not heard the testimony meanwhile taken constitutes no legal ground for excusing him by the court. Ibid., par. 251.

^a See opinion of the Attorney-General of January 19, 1878 (XV Opins., 432), in which the opinion, expressed by the Judge-Advocate-General in the most recent of the cases upon which this paragraph is based—that the fact that one of the charges upon which the accused was convicted was preferred by a member of the court who also testified as a witness on the trial (but who, though clearly subject to objection, was not challenged by the accused) could not affect the validity of the sentence of dismissal after the same had been duly confirmed—is concurred in by the Attorney-General. And to a similar effect see Keyes v. U. S., 15 Ct. Cls., 532; ibid., 137 U. S., 224.

In G. C. M. O. 88, Department of Dakota, 1878, the point is noticed that where a challenge interposed by the accused has been improperly disallowed a subsequent plea of guilty is not to be treated as a waiver of the advantage to which he may be entitled by reason of the improper ruling.

^b It is not the practice of courts-martial to admit counter affidavits from the opposite party as to what the absent witness would testify. And as to the civil practice, see Williams v. State, 6 Nebraska, 334.

OATHS.

Oath of president and members.

1804. The judge-advocate shall administer to each member of the court, before they proceed upon any trial, the following oath,¹ which shall also be taken by all members of regimental and garrison courts-martial: You, A B, do swear that you will well and truly try and determine, according to evidence, the matter now before you, between the United States of America and the prisoner to be tried, and that you will duly administer justice, without partiality, favor, or affection, according to the provisions of the rules and articles for the government of the armies of the United States, and if any doubts should arise, not explained by said articles, then according to your conscience, the best of your understanding, and the custom of war in like cases; and you do further swear that you will not divulge the sentence of the court until it shall be published by the proper authority, except to the judge-advocate; neither will you disclose or discover the vote or opinion of any par- of the witness is not owing to any neglect on the part of the applicant. This feature, however, will not be so much insisted upon in military as in civil cases (a).

Where "reasonable cause" is, in the judgment of the court, exhibited, the party is entitled to some continuance under the article (b). A refusal, indeed, by the court to grant such continuance will not invalidate the proceedings, but, if the accused has thus been prejudiced in his defense, may properly constitute good ground for disapproving the sentence, or for mitigating or partially remitting the punishments. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 276.

Where an accused soldier, by reason of his regiment having been moved a long distance since his arrest, was separated at his trial from certain witnesses material to his defense, held that he was entitled to a reasonable continuance for the purpose of procuring their attendance or their depositions. Ibid., par. 277.

That the charges and specifications upon which an accused is arraigned differ in a material particular from those contained in the copy served upon him before arraignment may well constitute a sufficient ground for granting him additional time for the preparation of his defense. Ibid., par. 278.

Where, after arraignment, a material and substantial amendment is allowed by the court to be made by the judge-advocate in a specification, the effect of which amendment is to necessitate or make desirable a further preparation for his defense on the part of the accused, a reasonable postponement for this purpose will, in general, properly be granted by the court. Ibid., par. 279.

It is, in general, good ground for a reasonable continuance that the accused needs time to procure the assistance of counsel, if it is made to appear that such counsel can probably be obtained within the time asked, and that the accused is not chargeable with remissness in not having already provided himself with counsel. Ibid., par. 280.

¹This article makes the administering to the court of the form of oath thereby prescribed an essential preliminary to its entering upon a trial. Until the oath is taken as specified, the court is not qualified "to try and determine." The arraignment of a prisoner and reception of his plea—which is the commencement of the trial—before the court is sworn, is without legal effect. The article requires that a A military accused can not be charged with laches in not procuring the attendance at his trial of a witness who is prevented from being present by superior military authority. Thus in a case in G. O. 63, Department of Dakota, 1872, an accused soldier was held entitled to a continuance till the return of material witnesses then absent on an Indian expedition.

b It would properly be so held upon common-law principles, even independently of the positive terms of the article. In Rex v. D'Eon, 1 W. Black., 514, it was declared by Lord Mansfield that "No crime is so great, no proceeding so instantaneous, but that, upon sufficient grounds, the trial may be put off."

particular member of the court-martial, unless required to give evidence thereof, as a witness, by a court of justice, in a due course of law. So help you God. Eighty-fourth Article of War. 84 Art. of War.

1805. When the oath has been administered to the members of a court-martial, the president of the court shall administer to the judge-advocate, or person officiating as such, an oath in the following form: You, A B, do swear that you will not disclose or discover the vote or opinion of any particular member of the court-martial, unless required to give evidence thereof, as a witness, by a court of justice, in due course of law; nor divulge the sentence of the court to any but the proper authority, until it shall be duly disclosed by the same. So help you God. Eighty-fifth Article of War. 85 Art. of War.

BEHAVIOR OF MEMBERS.

1806. All members of a court-martial are to behave with decency and calmness.¹ Eighty-seventh Article of War. 87 Art. of War.

the oath shall be taken not by the court as a whole, but by "each member." Where, therefore, all the members are sworn at the same time, the judge-advocate will preferably address each member by name, thus, "you, A. B., C. D., E. F., etc., do severally swear," etc. A member added to the court, after the members originally detailed have been duly sworn, should be separately sworn by the judge-advocate in the full form prescribed by the article; otherwise he is not qualified to act as a member of the court. A member who prefers it may be affirmed instead of sworn. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 225.

The members are sworn to try and determine the matter before them at the time of the administering of the oath. In a case therefore, where, after the court had been sworn and the accused had been arraigned and had pleaded, an additional charge, setting forth a new and distinct offense, was introduced into the case, and the accused was tried and convicted upon the same; held that, as to this charge, the proceedings were fatally defective, the court not having been sworn to try and determine such charge. (a) Ibid., par. 226.

It is a departure from the engagement expressed in the body of the oath—to try and determine according to evidence, and administer justice according to the Articles of War, etc.,—for a court martial to determine a case either upon personal knowledge of the facts possessed by the members and not put in evidence, or according to the private views of justice of the members independently of the provisions of the code.

The words "a court of justice" are deemed to mean a civil or criminal court of the United States, or of a State, etc., and not to include a court-martial. A case can hardly be supposed in which it would become proper or desirable for a court-martial to inquire into the votes or opinions given in closed court by the members of another similar tribunal. (b)

^a See General Court-Martial Orders No. 39, War Dept., 1867; G. O. No. 13, Northern Department, 1864.

^b The only case which has been met with in which the members of a court-martial have been required to disclose their votes by the process of a civil court, is that of in re Mackenzie, 1 Pa. Law J. R., 356, in which the members of a naval court-martial were compelled, against their objections, to state their votes as given upon the findings at a particular trial.

In the present corresponding British article, the words "or a court-martial" are added after the words "a court of justice."

^c In the British service certain important powers are vested by law and regulations in the president of a court-martial who is appointed in the order convening the court. In our service the presiding officer becomes such solely by reason of his seniority in point of rank, and he may exercise as such presiding officer only such powers as are usually exercised by the presiding officers of deliberative bodies.

such; he is simply the senior in rank of the members present and he presides by virtue of his seniority alone. If the senior of the officers detailed in the convening order is not present with the court at the original organization, the next senior present becomes president; so, if the officer who presided at the beginning of a trial is at a subsequent stage of the proceedings relieved or compelled to be absent by sickness, etc., the next ranking officer present presides as a matter of course, and the senior officer present with the court at the termination of the trial authenticates the proceedings as president. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2043.

While a special authority—that of swearing the judge-advocate—is devolved upon the president of a military court by statute (the 85th Article of War (a)), such officer has in other respects, as in performing the usual duties of a presiding officer, in authenticating the proceedings with his signature and in communicating with the convening officer or other commander, no original authority but acts simply as the representative and “organ” of the court. (b) Ibid., par. 2044.

In deliberations on questions raised upon a trial, as well as in the finding and the adjudging of the sentence, the presiding member is on a perfect equality with the other members. [See paragraphs 1020 and 1021, Army Regulations of 1895]. He has no casting vote, nor, if the vote is even, does his vote have any greater or other weight or effect than that of any other member.

The president of a military court has no command as such. As president he can not give an order to any other member. As the organ of the court he gives of course the directions necessary to the regular and proper conduct of the proceedings; but a failure to comply with a direction given by him while it may constitute “conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline,” can not properly be charged as a “disobedience of a lawful command of a superior officer” in violation of Article 21. (c) Ibid., par. 2045.

Absent members.—A member of a court-martial, though, strictly, answerable only to the convening authority for a neglect to be present at a session of the court, will properly, when prevented from attending, communicate the cause of his absence to the president or judge-advocate, so that the same may be entered in the proceedings. Where a member, on reappearing after an absence from a session, fails to offer any explanation of such absence, it will be proper for the president of the court to ask of him such statement as to the cause of his absence as he may think proper to make. It need scarcely be added that the absence of a member does not affect the legality of the proceedings, provided a quorum of members remain. (d) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1662.

A court-martial can not relieve or “excuse” a member except upon a challenge duly interposed and sustained under this article. The fact that a member has been absent from the court for several days, and has not heard the testimony meanwhile taken, constitutes no legal ground for excusing him by the court. Ibid., par. 251.

Performance of other duties.—Officers detailed and serving as members of courts-martial are not in general properly ordered to perform other duties while the court remains in session or not adjourned. (e) And they are not to be considered as any more subject to such orders now that they are no longer allowed a special compensation for their services than they were formerly. (f) In an emergency indeed arising out of a state of war, or other public exigency, additional service may be imposed upon such officers; in a case of this kind, however, their service on the court would, preferably, be temporarily suspended. Members of inferior courts-martial are not unfrequently required to perform additional duty because of the limited number of officers at the post.

Protests.—Where the majority of the members of a court-martial have come to a decision upon any question raised in the course of the proceedings, or upon the finding or sentence, no individual of the minority, whether the president or other member, is entitled to have a protest made by himself against such decision entered upon the record. The conclusions of the court (except in cases of death sentences, where a concurrence of two-thirds is required) are to be determined invariably by the vote of the majority of its members, and it is much less important that individual members should have an opportunity of publishing their personal convictions than a The further function devolved upon him by Article 52 is not known to have ever been exercised in our service; the article itself is a dead letter, as is also Article 53 in pari materia.

b The language of paragraph 1005, Army Regulations of 1889, was taken from the order of Secretary Crawford in his review of the case of Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel Backenstos, in G. O. 14, War Dept., 1850.

c For the president of a court-martial to assume to adjourn the court against the vote of the majority of the members would be an unauthorized act and a grave irregularity, properly subjecting him to a charge under the 62d Article. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2046.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

1807. The court-martial may punish at discretion any ^{Contempts of court.} person who uses any menacing words, signs, or gestures ^{86 Art. of War.} in its presence, or who disturbs its proceedings by any riot or disorder.¹ Eighty-sixth Article of War.

that the action of the court should appear upon the formal record as that of the aggregate body, and should carry weight and have effect as such. (a) Nor can a protest (against the finding or otherwise) by a minority of the members be appended to the record, on a separate paper. Ibid., par. 2079.

¹The power of a court-martial to punish under this article being confined practically to acts done in its immediate presence, such a court can have no authority to punish, as for a contempt, a neglect by an officer or soldier to attend as a witness in compliance with a summons. (b) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 230.

A court-martial has none of the common-law power to punish for contempt vested in the ordinary courts of justice, but only such authority as is given it by this article. Thus held that a court-martial was not authorized to punish, as for a contempt, under this article (or otherwise), a civilian witness duly summoned and appearing before it, but, when put on the stand, declining (without disorder) to testify. Ibid., par. 231.

The authority of a court-martial to punish as for a contempt being confined by the code (article 86) to cases of acts of menace or disorder committed in its presence, such a court would not be empowered to punish, as being in contempt, a witness appearing before it whose attendance it had been necessary to compel by process of attachment. (Ibid., par. 232.

Where a contempt within the description of this article has been committed, and the court deems it proper that the offender shall be punished, the proper course is to suspend the regular business, and after giving the party an opportunity to be heard, explain, etc., (c) to proceed—if the explanation is insufficient—to impose a punishment, resuming thereupon the original proceedings. The action taken is properly summary, a formal trial not being called for. Close confinement in quarters or in the guardhouse during the trial of the pending case, or forfeiture of a reasonable amount of pay, has been the more usual punishment. Instead of proceeding against a military person for a contempt in the mode contemplated by this article, the alternative course may be pursued of bringing him to trial before a new court on a charge for a disorder under article 62. (d) Ibid., par. 233.

Where a civilian witness is brought before a court-martial, but refuses to testify, the court is not invested with any inherent power to punish the witness in such case, either summarily or otherwise, as for a contempt, but must proceed in accordance with the method prescribed in the act of March 2, 1901. Such power can only be exercised by it when given by the positive terms of some statute. Section 1202 of the Revised Statutes arms the court with authority to compel the witness to appear and testify as far as this can be done by process; but in securing his testimony the court is restricted to the means which it is authorized to employ. It can not inflict any punishment where the power to impose it is not clearly conferred by Congress. XVIII Opin. Att. Gen., 278. Power to compel the giving of testimony has upon several occasions been conferred upon military tribunals. Article 5, section 14, of the articles adopted by resolution of Congress of September 20, 1776, contained the requirement that "all persons called to give evidence in any cause before a court-martial, who shall refuse to give evidence, shall be punished for such refusal at the discretion of such court-martial." The terms of this article were broad enough to include civilian witnesses, and it was doubtless meant to apply to them. It was repealed, however, by the resolution of Congress of May 31, 1786. Section 4 of the act of April 8, 1814 (3 Stat. L., 135), conferred similar authority upon courts-martial for the trial of members of the militia forces; but this statute was limited by its terms to the period of the then existing war. Prior to the year 1800 no power existed in the British service to secure the attendance of witnesses or to compel them

THE ARRAIGNMENT.

Prisoner standing mute.
89 Art. of War.

1808. When a prisoner, arraigned before a general court-martial, from obstinacy and deliberate design, stands mute, or answers foreign to the purpose, the court may proceed to trial and judgment, as if the prisoner had pleaded not guilty.¹ Eighty-ninth Article of War.

to testify in the event of their voluntary appearance. Power to issue compulsory process was conferred by statute in the mutiny act for the year 1800, and in 1830 the power to compel civilian witnesses to testify was conferred by a similar statute, authorizing such witness to be attached in the court of the King's Bench for such failure to testify. Clode, Military Law, 125.

¹The provisions of this article in respect to an accused person standing mute, contemplate a formal arraignment of the prisoner in accordance with the rules of procedure prescribed for the courts of the United States having criminal jurisdiction. An accused may, therefore, follow one of four courses in reply to the charges read by the judge-advocate as a part of his arraignment, and may: (a) stand mute, in which event the provisions of the Eighty-ninth Article of War become operative, (b) confess in open court; (c) submit one of the special pleas, presently to be described; or (d) plead to the general issue ("guilty" or "not guilty"). (a)

It is a general rule of criminal law that where the accused pleads guilty, no testimony on the merits is to be introduced. But, on military trials the court, even against the objection of the accused, may, in its discretion, call upon the judge-advocate to offer evidence, or approve of his doing so, in a case where such evidence is deemed to be essential to the due administration of military justice. (b) An accused can not be allowed, by pleading guilty, to shut out testimony where the interests of the service require its introduction. But in all cases where evidence is introduced by the prosecution after a plea of guilty, the accused should of course be afforded an opportunity to offer rebutting evidence, or evidence as to character, should he desire to do so. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1988. See also ibid., par. 1999.

Wherever, in connection with the plea of guilty, a statement or confession, whether verbal or written, is interposed by the accused, both plea and statement should be considered together by the court; and if it is to be gathered from the statement that evidence exists in regard to the alleged offense which will constitute a defense to the charge, or relieve the accused from a measure of culpability, the court will properly call upon the judge-advocate to obtain and introduce such evidence, if practicable. Ibid., par. 1991. See also ibid., par. 1992.

By a plea of "guilty" the accused, if a military person, submits himself to the jurisdiction of the court, admitting that it has jurisdiction over both person and a If a man, being put on his trial, says nothing at all in cases of felony, the court, says Lord Chief Justice Hale, ought, ex officio, to empanel a jury and swear it, as an inquest of office, to inquire whether he stands mute, ex visitatione Dei (of the act of God), or of malice. Adye, 131; Hale Hist. Pl. Cor., 317. Where an accused stands mute ex visitatione Dei,* a court-martial would be authorized to resort to a similar course of procedure; or, the trial could be desisted from until the facts had been represented to the reviewing authority for such action as he might deem proper in view of the peculiar circumstances of the case. Where the accused stands mute through malice, or answers foreign to the purpose, the terms of the article become operative and the trial proceeds as if a plea of not guilty had been formally entered.†

Where an accused declined to plead on the ground that he was so much under the influence of liquor at the time of the acts charged that he could not remember what occurred, held that the court properly directed a plea of "not guilty" to be entered. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1999.

For the method of executing the judgment of peine forte et dure, see Adye, p. 134, Hale Hist. Pl. Cor., 219. By 33 Henry VIII, those who stood mute, who were notorious felons, were to have "strong and hard imprisonment;" by 12 George III, ch. 20, standing mute through malice was made equivalent to a conviction upon evidence or confession. At present an accused who "refuses to plead, or does not plead intelligibly," is regarded as having pleaded "not guilty." Army act of 1884, p. 603.

b The principle that, in cases in which the plea is guilty, the court should take testimony, where necessary to the comprehending of the facts and the doing of justice, though apparently in a measure lost sight of at a later period, was clearly enunciated in early General Orders of the War Department. Thus, in G. O. 23 of 1830, Major-General Macomb (commanding the Army) expresses himself as follows: "In every case in which a prisoner pleads guilty, it is the duty of the court-martial, notwithstanding, to receive and to report in its proceedings such evidence as may afford a full knowledge of the circumstances, it being essential that the facts and particulars should be known to those whose duty it is to report on the case, or who have discretion in carrying the sentence into effect." And see G. O. 21 of 1833 to a similar effect.

offense. In re Davidson, 21 Fed. Rep., 618; in re Zimmerman, 30 ibid., 176; Vanderheyden v. Young, 11 Johns, 160.

Withdrawal of plea.—A court-martial is authorized, in any case, in its discretion, to permit an accused to withdraw a plea of not guilty, and substitute one of guilty, and vice versa, or to withdraw either of these general pleas and substitute a special plea. And wherever the accused applies to be allowed to change or modify his plea, the court should in general consent, provided the application is made in good faith and not for the purpose of delay, and to grant it will not result in unreasonably protracting the investigation. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1994.

Pleas to the jurisdiction.—An objection to the jurisdiction of the court—that is, of its power to try a particular case, as where, for example, the convening officer is the accuser or prosecutor, or is otherwise without power to constitute the court, or where the accused is not amenable to military jurisdiction—will properly be met by a formal plea to the jurisdiction, which must be decided by the court on the evidence submitted by both parties in the trial of the issue set forth in the defendant's plea. (a)

Pleas in abatement.—Objections to the charges or specifications in matters of form should be taken advantage of by special pleas in the nature of pleas in abatement, or, better, by motion to strike out. Such are objections to the specifications as inartificial, indefinite, or redundant; or as misnaming the accused (or other person required to be specified) or misdescribing him as to his rank or office; or as containing insufficient allegations of time or place, etc. In such cases the objection should be raised by a special plea in abatement, or by motion, in order that errors capable of amendment may be amended (b) on the spot by the judge-advocate, and—the plea of not guilty (or guilty) being then made—the trial may proceed in the usual manner. Objections of this class, not thus taken, will properly be considered as waived by the plea of guilty or not guilty, and their existence will not then affect the validity of the proceedings or sentence. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1995.

Where without preliminary objection the accused pleads guilty or not guilty to a specification, in which he is incorrectly named or described, such plea will be regarded as an admission by the accused of his identity with the person thus designated, and he can not thereafter object to the pleadings on account of misnomer or misdescription. Ibid.

A misnaming or misdescription of the rank of the accused in the specification should be taken advantage of by exception in the nature of a plea in abatement. Where not objected to, the error is immaterial after sentence, provided the accused is sufficiently identified by the plea, testimony, etc. It is not essential to state in a specification the full Christian name of the accused, or other party required to be indicated. Only such name or initial need be given as will be sufficient unmistakably to identify the party. Ibid., par. 706.

A failure, at the arraignment, to take notice of a variance between the form of a specification to which the accused is called upon to plead and such specification as it appeared in the copy of the charges served at his arrest is a waiver of the objection, and the same can not be taken advantage of at a subsequent stage of the proceedings. Ibid., par. 732.

Pardons.—The President is empowered, by Art. II, sec. 2, § 1, of the Constitution "to grant pardons for offences against the United States"; and a pardon, like a deed, must, in order to take effect, be delivered to and accepted by the party to whom it is granted (c). Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1866.

Pleading.—For a pardon to be operative as a bar to prosecution, it must be formally pleaded—that is, the original instrument must be produced and submitted to the inspection of the court; this to enable the court to determine whether the offense with which the accused is charged and that named in the pardon are the same. If the pardon be by proclamation, the burden rests upon the accused of showing that his case falls within the terms of the amnesty set forth in the proclamation (U. S. v. Wilson, 7 Peters, 150). Where a conditional pardon is pleaded, the burden rests upon the accused of showing that all the conditions named therein have been ful-a Objections to the charges and specifications on account of matters of substance—as that they do not contain the necessary allegations, or otherwise do not set forth facts constituting military offenses—should properly be made at the outset of the proceedings by a special plea in the nature of a demurrer, or they will in general be regarded as waived.

So, objections going to the legal constitution or composition of the court, or to its jurisdiction, should also properly be specially presented when the accused is first called upon to plead; valid objections of this radical character, however, are not waived if the accused, instead of submitting a special plea, pleads over to the merits, since consent can not make legal that which is illegal, or, in a criminal case, confer jurisdiction where none exists in law.

b Courts-martial have no authority to arraign a prisoner upon charges other than those upon which he has been ordered for trial, except what is manifestly a mere clerical error, unless such altered charges receive the sanction of the convening authority. Simmons, 458.

filled or otherwise complied with. Haym v. U. S., 7 Ct. Cls., 443; Waring v. U. S., ibid., 501; Scott v. U. S., 8 ibid., 457; Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1997, 1998. See, also, the title "The Pardoning Power," in the chapter entitled THE EXECUTIVE.

Constructive pardons.—While to restore to or place upon duty an officer or soldier, when under arrest or charges on account of an alleged offense, would not probably in this country, to the same extent as in England (a), be regarded as operating as a condonation of the offense, the promotion of an officer while under arrest on charges, has been viewed as a constructive pardon of the offense or offenses on account of which he has been arrested (b). But held that such a promotion could not operate as a pardon of other offenses committed by him, of the commission of which no knowledge was had by the Executive at the date of the promotion. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1873.

While ordering or authorizing an officer or soldier, when under sentence, to exercise a command or perform any other duty inconsistent with the continued execution of his sentence, has been viewed as a constructive pardon, (c) held that to allow an officer, while under a sentence of suspension from rank, to perform certain slight duties in closing his accounts with the United States could not be regarded as having any such effect. Ibid.

An officer charged with certain offenses in violation of specific articles of war, pleaded as to two specifications that he had been pardoned by his post commander. The pleas in bar, thus submitted by the accused, were sustained by the court, but were disapproved by the reviewing authority (the Secretary of War), upon the ground that the post commander was without authority to grant pardons in cases in which commissioned officers were the offenders. G. C. M. O., No. 13, War Dept., 1871.

Conditional pardons.—It is settled that a pardon may be conditional—may be granted upon a condition precedent or subsequent. (d) Thus, where the President, by his proclamation of March 11, 1865, granted a pardon to all deserters "on condition that" they duly returned (within a certain time stated) to their regiments, etc., and served the remainder of their original terms and, in addition, a period equal to the time lost by desertion—held that a soldier who duly returned under this proclamation, but after remaining with his regiment a portion of the period indicated, abandoned the service and went to his home, was liable (the legal period of limitation fixed by the one hundred and third article of war not having expired) to be brought to trial for his original desertion; the condition subsequent upon which his pardon for the same had been extended not having been performed.

Statutes which operate to trespass upon or diminish the constitutional power of the President to pardon offenses against the United States are strictly construed in their application. Acts of mercy, therefore, which may be appropriate when proceeding from the President, in whom the pardoning power is vested by the Constitution, are otherwise regarded when they originate with a military officer whose power in respect to pardons is measured by the express terms of the statutes which confer it.

Judgments on special pleas.—Where a special plea is set up in behalf of the defendant as a plea to the jurisdiction, or in bar of trial, or in abatement, or a special plea in the nature of a demurrer, and the court, after a trial of the issue outlined in the plea, decides that it has not been sustained, the judgment of the court is required to be that the accused answer over—that is, that he plead the "general issue" of guilty or not guilty.

Statutes of limitation.—A limitation in point of time in military offenses is properly matter of defense to be specially pleaded and proved. By pleading guilty the accused is assumed to waive the right to plead the limitation by a special plea in bar. But under a plea of not guilty the limitation may be taken advantage of by evidence showing that it has taken effect. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 320; in re Bogart, 2 Sawyer, 397; in re White, 17 Fed. Rep., 723; in re Davison, 21 ibid., 18; in re Zimmerman, 30 ibid., 17; and compare U. S. v. Cooke, 17 Wallace, 168.

Facts and circumstances which are properly matters of evidence are not properly legitimate subjects of pleas; as, for example, circumstances going to extenuate the offense. Thus held, that good conduct of the accused in battle subsequent to the commission of the offense charged could not properly be presented in the form of a plea. So held that the fact that the charge was preferred through personal hostility to the accused was not a matter for plea, but, if desired to be taken advantage of, should be offered in evidence. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1996.

Defense at trial.—In order that he may not be embarrassed in making his defense, the accused party on trial before a court-martial should be subjected to no restraint other than such as may be necessary to enforce his presence or prevent disorderly conduct on his part. Except, therefore, in an extreme case, as where, the accused being charged with an aggravated and heinous offense, there is reasonable ground to believe that he will attempt to escape or to commit acts of violence, the keeping or placing of irons upon him while before the court will not be justified. (a) Even in such a case it will be preferable to place an adequate guard over him. (b) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1047.

The fact that the accused is an officer of high rank should not be regarded as constituting a ground for allowing him any special right or privilege in his defense before a court-martial. The administration of justice by a military, as by a civil court, must be strictly impartial, or it ceases to be pure. All persons on trial by the one species of tribunal, as by the other, are deemed to be equal before the law. Ibid., par. 1049.

The judge-advocate should advise the accused, especially when ignorant and unassisted by counsel, of his rights in defense—particularly as to his right, if it exists in the case, to plead the statute of limitations, and of his right to testify in his own behalf. A failure to do so, however, will not affect the legal validity of the proceedings; though if it appear that the accused was actually ignorant of these rights, the omission may be ground for a mitigation of sentence. Ibid., par. 1533.

It is the duty of the court to see that injustice is not done the accused by the admission on the trial of improper testimony prejudicing his defense, or unfairly tending to aggravate the misconduct charged. In the interests of justice, therefore, the court may exclude such testimony, although its admission may not be objected to on the part of the accused. On a similar ground or for the purpose of fully informing itself of the facts, the court may, in its discretion, allow the introduction, by either side, of material testimony after the case has been formally closed. (c) Such a proceeding, however, must be of course exceptional, and a party should not be permitted to offer testimony at this stage unless he exhibits good reason for not having produced it at the usual and proper time.

An accused, prior to arraignment, even if in close arrest, should be allowed to have interviews with such counsel, military or civil, as he may have selected. So, his counsel should be permitted to have interviews with any accessible military person whom it may be proposed to use as a material witness, or whose knowledge of facts may be useful to the accused in preparing for trial. Ibid., par. 986.

ARGUMENTS AND STATEMENTS.

Defensæ.—In any case tried by court-martial the accused may, if he thinks proper (and whether or not he has taken the stand as a witness), (d) present to the court a statement or address, either verbal or in writing. Such statement is not evidence; (e) as a personal defense or argument, however, it may and properly should be taken into consideration by the court. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2352.

While the statement is not evidence, and the accused is not in general to be held bound by the argumentative declarations contained in the same, yet, if he clearly and unequivocally admits therein facts material to the prosecution, such may properly be viewed by the court and reviewing officer as practically facts in the case. (f) So, where the accused, in his statement, fully admits that certain facts existed substantially as proved, he may be regarded as waiving objection to any irregularity in the form of the proof of the same. Ibid., par. 2353.

A large freedom of expression in his statement to the court is allowable to an accused, especially in his comments upon the evidence. So, an accused may be permitted to reflect within reasonable limits upon the apparent animus of his accuser or ^b Arraignment means the calling the offender to the bar of the court to answer the matter he is charged with, and in doing which the law directs (and, indeed, common compassion points out to us) that every person ought to be used with all the humanity and gentleness which is consistent with the nature of the thing, and under no terror or uneasiness than what proceeds from a sense of his guilt and the misfortune of his present circumstances, and, therefore, ought not to be brought to the bar in a contumelious manner, though charged with the highest crimes, as with his hands tied together, or any mark of ignominy and reproach, nor even with fetters on his feet, unless there be some danger of an escape or rescue. 92 Art. of War.

1809. All persons who give evidence before a court-martial shall be examined on oath, or affirmation, in the following form: "You swear (or affirm) that the evidence you shall give, in the case now in hearing, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you God." prosecutor, though a superior officer and of high rank. But an attack upon such a superior, of a personal character and not apposite to the facts of the case, is not legitimate; nor is language of marked disrespect employed toward the court. Matter of this description may indeed be required by the court to be omitted by the accused as a condition to his continuing his address or filing it with the record. Ibid., par. 2354.

Judge-advocate.—It is settled in our military procedure that the closing statement or argument, where addresses are presented on both sides, shall be made on the part of the prosecution. The judge-advocate, however, may, and, in practice, not rarely does, waive the right of offering any argument or remarks in reply to the address of the accused. On the other hand, the accused may waive the right, and the judge-advocate alone present a "statement." (a) Ibid., par. 2355.

In the trial of a commissioned officer in 1872 the judge-advocate proposed to present an argument in behalf of the prosecution, but his request was denied by the court on the ground that no statement or address had been submitted by the accused. In reviewing the case the Secretary of War disapproved the action of the court in this respect on the ground that "the judge-advocate has an undoubted right at the close of the trial to address the court for the purpose of commenting on the whole evidence and the law applicable to it; and this right is in no degree abridged by a waiver of the accused of his like privilege." G. C. M. O. No. 111, War Dept., 1872.

In the case of a commissioned officer tried in 1872 and sentenced to dismissal, the court refused to permit certain witnesses to be summoned at the request of the accused. In disapproving the action of the court in this respect the court was reminded by the reviewing authority that "the least denial to an accused person of any proper facility or opportunity for defense can serve only to defeat the ends of justice and may often lend impunity to guilt." G. C. M. O. No. 21, War Dept., 1872. In the case published in G. C. M. O. No. 24, War Dept., 1872, the exclusion of a single question caused the original reviewing authority (the department commander) to disapprove the finding upon an important specification. "Courts-martial had much better err on the side of liberality toward a prisoner than, by endeavoring to solve nice and technical refinements of the laws of evidence, assume the risk of injuriously denying him a proper latitude for defense." G. C. M. O. No. 32, War Dept., 1872; G. C. M. O. No. 7, War Dept., 1873; G. C. M. O. No. 25, ibid., 1875.

An officer or enlisted man who receives a summons to attend as a witness before any military court, board, civil court, or other tribunal competent to issue subpoenas, which is sitting beyond the limits of the department where he is serving, will, before starting to obey the summons, forward it through the proper channel to his depart-a The judge-advocate in our practice is entitled to the closing argument or address to the court, and he may present an address although the accused waives his right to present any; the function of the judge-advocate, at this stage of the proceedings, not being confined merely to a replying to the accused. The judge-advocate in his address is not authorized to read to the court evidence or written statements not introduced upon the trial and which the accused has had no opportunity to controvert or comment upon. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1542.

ment commander, that necessary orders, or authority to obey a civil process, may be given. In urgent cases, or when the public interest would be liable to suffer by delay, a post commander may authorize immediate departure, reporting his action and reasons therefor to the department commander. Par. 1025, Army Regulations of 1901.

Civilian witnesses.—The ordinary process for obtaining the attendance of a civilian witness is the writ of subpoena. This is a judicial writ commanding the witness to appear in court, on a day therein mentioned, to testify in the particular case named in the writ. In the practice of the Federal courts and that of courts-martial, the command of the writ runs in the name of the President (see the form of subpoena on page 128, Manual for Courts-Martial), and the writ is addressed, not to the officer who serves it, but to the witness himself. For this reason the writ may be served by any person of competent age and discretion. As there is no appropriation, however, which is available for the payment of officers of court, or for the compensation of civilians for the service of subpoenas, they should be served by military persons.

A summons may legally be served either by a military or a civil person, (a) but, for the reason above stated, will in general preferably be served by an officer or non-commissioned officer of the Army. A judge-advocate or a commanding or other officer to whom a summons is sent for service will not be authorized, by employing for the purpose a U. S. marshal or deputy marshal, or other civil official, to commit the United States to the payment of fees to such official. The action, however, of a judge-advocate in employing a deputy marshal to serve a summons, where apparently the service could not otherwise be so effectually or economically made, has in a few cases been so far ratified by the Secretary of War as to allow, out of the appropriation for army contingencies, the payment of a small and reasonable account of charges rendered by such official. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2470.

Service, to be legal or sufficient, must be personal; to constitute such service the original writ of subpoena must be delivered or read to the witness by the person deputed to serve it. Return of service is made by indorsing the fact of service on the back of the duplicate subpoena (for form of such affidavit of service, see p. 129, Manual for Courts-Martial). Service, to be sufficient as the basis for a writ of attachment, must be personal and must be made in the manner above described; to warrant the mere payment of fees, however, service by telegraph or in any other form will ordinarily suffice. See MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL.

Except where their testimony will be merely cumulative, and will clearly add nothing whatever to the strength of the defense, the accused is in general entitled to have any and all material witnesses summoned to testify in his behalf. (b) A prompt obedience to a summons is incumbent upon all witnesses, nor is a commanding or superior officer in general authorized to place any obstacles in the way of the prompt attendance, as a witness, of an inferior duly summoned or ordered to attend as such. Where the judge-advocate has declined to summon a witness for the accused, for the reason that he is not "satisfied" (in the words of par. 922 of the Army Regulations) that his testimony is "material and necessary to the ends of justice," the court may, in its discretion, direct him to be summoned. The court, however, will not in general properly sanction the summoning of a witness where it is not probable that his attendance can be secured within a reasonable time and his deposition legally be taken pursuant to the 91st Article of War. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2467.

In military law an accused party can not be deemed to be entitled to have a witness summoned from a distance whose military or administrative duties are of such a character that they can not be left without serious prejudice to the public interests. Article VI of the amendments to the Constitution, declaring that the accused shall be entitled "to be confronted with the witnesses against him," applies only to cases before the United States courts. (c) Thus, where the offense charged is not capital, and a deposition may therefore legally be taken under the 91st Article of War, the Secretary of War will not in general authorize the personal attendance at the place of trial of a witness whose office or duty makes it necessary or most important that he should remain elsewhere. Ibid., par. 2468.

The subpoena duces tecum.—In addition to the ordinary writ of subpoena (ad testificandum) for obtaining the attendance of a civilian witness, the judge-advocate is empowered, in a proper case, to issue writs of subpoena duces tecum. It is the purpose of this writ to secure the production of documents or writings which are in possession of a witness and are deemed, by either party, to be material to his case. This form of subpoena is issued in the same manner and under the same conditions

1810. Every judge-advocate of a court-martial shall have power to issue the like process to compel witnesses to appear and testify which courts of criminal jurisdiction within the State, Territory, or District where such military courts shall be ordered to sit may lawfully issue.¹

as the subpœna ad testificandum, and contains a clause of requisition in which the writing or document which is desired to be produced shall be particularly described. The operation of this writ does not extend to the production of any objects or things save documents or written instruments.

A subpœna duces tecum can only be used to compel the production of documentary evidence, books, papers, accounts, and the like. In re Shephard, 3 Fed. Rep., 12; 3 Starkie on Evidence, 172; Arny v. Long, 9 East, 473.

Telegraphic messages in the hands of telegraph companies are not privileged communications, so far as the companies are concerned, and their production will be compelled by subpœna duces tecum in aid of an investigation by a grand jury of supposed criminal acts of the senders and receivers of the messages, with which such companies and their officers are in no way connected. In re Storrow, 3 Fed. Rep., 564; Southern Law Review, vol. v (n. s.), 473; ex parte Brown, 72 Mo., 83; U. S. v. Babcock, 3 Dill., 566; U. S. v. Hunter, 15 Fed. Rep., 712; State v. Litchfield, 58 Maine, 267.

In view of the embarrassment which must generally attend the proof, before a court-martial, of the sending or receipt of telegraphic messages by means of a resort, by subpœna duces tecum, to the originals in possession of the telegraph company, (a) advised that the written or printed copy furnished by the company and received by the person to whom it is addressed should in general be admitted in evidence by a court-martial in the absence of circumstances casting a reasonable doubt upon its genuineness or correctness. But where it is necessary to prove that a telegram which was not received, or the receipt of which is denied and not proven, was actually duly sent, the operator or proper official of the company, or other person cognizant of the fact of sending, should be summoned as a witness. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1295.

A court-martial (by subpœna duces tecum, through the judge-advocate) may summon a telegraph operator to appear before it, bringing with him a certain telegraphic dispatch. But it is beyond the power of such court to require such witness against his will to surrender the dispatch, or a copy, to be used in evidence. Ibid., par. 1296.

¹The authority to issue process to compel civilian witnesses to appear and testify is vested, by section 1202, Revised Statutes, in "every judge-advocate of a court-martial." The present statute, however (unlike the original form), does not extend the authority to recorders of courts of inquiry. Further, the authority, being vested exclusively and independently in the judge-advocate, can not be exercised by the court. The attachment is thus not a writ or process of the court, but simply a compulsory instrumentality placed at the disposition of the judge-advocate as the prosecuting official representing the United States. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2478.

Section 1202, Revised Statutes, authorizes only judge-advocates of courts-martial to issue process to compel the attendance of witnesses. The court itself, general or inferior, has no such power. Ibid., par. 1551.

To authorize a resort to an attachment, there must have been a formal summons, duly issued and served upon the witness, and not complied with. Ibid., 2479.

A judge-advocate can not properly direct an attachment to a United States marshal or deputy marshal or other civil official. Some military officer or person should be designated by him, or detailed for the purpose by superior authority. In executing the attachment, the needful force may be employed, but no more. Ibid., par. 2481.

The judge-advocate is authorized only to initiate the process of attachment. The statute does not specify by whom it shall be executed, and the judge-advocate is not authorized to command any officer or person to serve it, nor has the court any such power. Ibid., par. 1551.

Judge-advocates of military posts, in issuing process under section 1202 of the Revised Statutes, to compel the attendance of witnesses, will formally direct the ^aThe subject of the extent of the authority of the courts to compel telegraph companies to produce original private telegrams for use in evidence is most fully treated in an essay by Henry Hitchcock, esq., on the "Inviolability of telegrams," published in the Southern Law Review for October, 1879.

Act of March 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 950).

Refusal to appear or testify.

same to an officer designated by the department commander to execute it.' The nearest military commander will furnish the necessary military force for the execution of the process, if force be required. A subpoena may be served by any person. Par. 1026, Army Regulations of 1901. See also MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL, pp. 31-34, 130.

A judge-advocate, having attached a civilian witness and had him brought to the place of the court, detained him one hour in the guardhouse before bringing him before the court. For this he was indicted for false imprisonment in a United States district court in Texas. Held, that his action was warranted under section 1202, Revised Statutes, and advised that the Attorney-General be requested to cause the prosecution to be discontinued. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1552.

The form of the process of attachment should, under the statute conferring authority to issue it, be "like" that employed in the procedure of the criminal courts, or a criminal court, of the State, Territory, or District (of Columbia) in which the court-martial is ordered to sit. Where there is no special form of process for the attachment of witnesses in criminal cases in use in the State, the statute will be sufficiently complied with if the general form of attachment of a witness for contempt for not obeying a summons be substantially followed. For form of attachment, see MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL, p. 161.

FEES OF WITNESSES.¹

Civilians in employ of the Government.
Par. 1066, A. R.
1901.

1812. Civilians in the employ of the Government when traveling upon summons as witnesses before military courts are entitled to transportation in kind from their place of residence to the place where the court is in session and return. If no transportation be furnished they are entitled to reimbursement of the cost of travel actually performed by the shortest usually traveled route, including transfers to and from railway stations, at rates not exceeding fifty cents for each transfer, and the cost of a double berth in a sleeping car or steamer when an extra charge is made therefor. They are also entitled to reimbursement of the actual cost of meals and rooms at a rate not exceeding three dollars per day for each day actually and unavoidably consumed in travel or in attendance upon the court under the order or summons. No allowance will be made to them when attendance upon court does not require them to leave their stations. Par. 1066, A. R. 1901.

Civilians not
employ.
Par. 1067, A. R.
1901.

1813. A civilian not in Government employ duly summoned to appear as a witness before a military court will receive one dollar and fifty cents for each day actually and unavoidably consumed in travel or in attendance upon the court under the summons, and five cents a mile for going from his place of residence to the place of trial or hearing and five cents a mile for returning. Civilian witnesses will be paid by the Pay Department.² Par. 1067, ibid.

¹ In view of the provision of section 1248, Revised Statutes, investing retiring boards with such powers of courts-martial as may be necessary to enable them to inquire into and determine the facts touching the disability of officers whose cases are referred to them, held that a retiring board might legally cause material witnesses to be summoned to attend its sessions, and that witnesses so summoned would probably be entitled to the fees of witnesses before courts-martial. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 756, par. 25.

Held that parties who appeared and testified before, and at the instance of, an officer charged with the preliminary investigation of a case, but were not required to attend at a subsequent trial, were not legally entitled to witness fees. Ibid., par. 2477.

The compensation allowed by the Secretary of War for witnesses summoned as experts in handwriting before a court-martial (see Smith v. U. S., 24 Ct. Cls., 209), held payable out of the annual appropriation "for compensation of witnesses attending upon courts-martial and courts of inquiry." Ibid., par. 2483.

Held that duly attending by a civilian witness before a duly authorized official to give a deposition, to be used in evidence on a military trial, was to be regarded as practically equivalent to attending a court-martial, and that the deponent was entitled to be paid the usual allowances (i. e., the same as those of witnesses appearing before the court), out of the regular appropriation for the "compensation of witnesses attending before courts-martial," etc. Ibid., par. 2484.

² Neither the appropriation "for the compensation of witnesses" attending military courts, nor the appropriation for the contingent expenses of the Army, is applicable to the payment of allowances, as witnesses before civil courts, of officers or soldiers of the Army, or of civil employees of the military establishment. For such allowances they must look to the laws and appropriations fixing and authorizing the payment of witness fees in these courts. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2486. See paragraph 1070, Army Regulations of 1901.

1814. The charges for return journeys of witnesses will be made upon the basis of the actual charges allowed for travel to the court, and the entire account thus completed will be paid upon discharge from attendance, without waiting for completion of return travel.¹ Par. 1068 ibid.

92 Art. of War.

¹ The items of expenditure authorized in paragraphs 1066 and 1067 (Army Regulations) will be set forth in detail and made a part of each voucher for reimbursement. No other items will be allowed. The correctness of the items will be attested by the affidavit of the witness, to be made when practicable before the judge-advocate, and the voucher will be accompanied by the original summons or a duly certified copy thereof. The certificate of the judge-advocate will be evidence of the fact and period of attendance, and will be made upon the voucher. Par. 1069, A. R. 1901.

² Oath.—This article prescribes a single specific form of oath to be taken by all witnesses. The Constitution, however (article 1 of amendments), has provided that Congress shall make no law prohibiting the free exercise of religion. Where, therefore, the prescribed form is not in accordance with the religious tenets of a witness, he should be permitted to be sworn according to the ceremonies of his own faith or as he may deem binding on his conscience.

The article does not prescribe by whom the oath shall be administered. By the custom of the service it is administered by the judge-advocate. (And see, now, the provision of the act of July 27, 1892, sec. 4.) When the judge-advocate himself takes the witness stand, he is properly sworn by the president of the court. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 274.

A witness who has once been sworn and has testified is not required to be resworn on being subsequently recalled to the stand by either party. The reswearing, however, of such a witness will not affect the legal validity of the proceedings or sentence.

A witness who has given his testimony should in general be allowed to modify the same where he desires to do so in a material particular. But where the court has refused to permit a witness to correct his statement as recorded, such refusal need not induce a disapproval of the proceedings unless it appear that the rights of the accused have thus been prejudiced. Ibid., par. 2472.

Witnesses should not in general be admitted to the court room, but should be kept as far as practicable apart, until required to appear and give their testimony. But that a witness or witnesses may have been permitted to remain in the court room and hear the testimony of witnesses previously called can not affect the legality of the proceedings.

A witness can have no authority to discharge or relieve himself from attendance on the ground that the testimony desired of him is immaterial or for any other reason. In the civil practice such an act would be a grave contempt of court. It is for the court to judge as to the materiality or pertinency of the evidence of witnesses, and unless a witness has been determined by the court to be incompetent or his testimony to be inadmissible, he should remain and stand his examination till informed by the court or judge-advocate that his attendance is no longer required in the case. Ibid., par. 2473. See also, in this connection, MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL.

COMPETENCY OF WITNESSES.

The rules governing the competency of witnesses before the criminal courts of the United States and the States are, where apposite, generally (though not always necessarily) followed in the practice of courts-martial. Ibid., par. 2460. See also MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL, p. 40.

The law by which, in the opinion of this court, the admissibility of testimony in criminal cases must be determined is the law of the State as it was when the courts of the United States were established by the judiciary act of 1789. The courts of the United States have uniformly acted upon this construction of these acts of Congress, and it has thus been sanctioned by a practice of sixty years. U. S. v. Reid, 12 How., 361, 363, 366; Logan v. U. S., 144 U. S., 263, 301.

A wife is not a competent witness for or against a person accused of crime, on his trial. Comment on her absence by the district attorney held to be reversible error. Graves v. U. S., 150 U. S., 118; U. S. v. Jones, 32 Fed. Rep., 569.

It has been uniformly held that the wife of a person on trial before a court-martial could not properly be admitted as a witness for or against him;^(a) and the statute authorizing accused parties to testify does not affect this rule. The wife, however, of an officer or soldier may be admitted to testify in his case before a court of inquiry, the proceeding before such a body not being a trial, but an investigation merely. Where a court-martial refused to admit in evidence (as being incompetent) the testimony of the wife of the prosecuting witness, held that its action was entirely erroneous, no legal objection existing to the competency of such a person. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2462. See also MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL.

A wife is not a competent witness to prove a charge of failing to support her, for which her husband is on trial. Ibid., par. 1305.

It is no objection to the competency of a witness that he is the officer upon whom will devolve the duty of reviewing authority when the proceedings are terminated. Ibid., par. 2464.

An insane person is no more competent as a witness before a court-martial than at common law. Testimony admitted of a person shown to be insane should be stricken out on motion made.

A person who is insane at the time is incompetent as a witness. An objection, however, to a witness on account of alleged insanity will not properly be allowed, unless sustained by clear proof, a man being always presumed to be sane till proven to be otherwise. Ibid., par. 2466.

A boy of five is not, as a matter of law, absolutely disqualified as a witness; and in this case the disclosures on the voir dire were sufficient to authorize his admission to testify. Wheeler v. U. S., 159 U. S., 523; Brasier's case, 1 Leach Crim. Law, 199; 1 Greenleaf, sec. 367; 1 Wharton, Evidence, secs. 398-400; 1 Best, secs. 155, 156; State v. Juneau, 88 Wisconsin, 180; Ridenhour v. Kansas City Cable Co., 102 Missouri, 270; McGuff v. State, 88 Alabama, 147; State v. Levy, 230 Minnesota, 104; Commonwealth v. Mullins, 2 Allen (Mass.), 295; Peterson v. State, 47 Georgia, 524; State v. Edwards, 79 North Carolina, 48; State v. Jackson, 9 Oregon, 457; Blackwell v. State, 11 Indiana, 196.

It is no objection to the competency of a witness that his name is not on the list of witnesses appended to the charges when served. The prosecution is not obliged to furnish any list of witnesses, nor, where one is furnished, to confine itself to the witnesses thus specified. The fact that material testimony is given by an unexpected witness may indeed constitute ground for an application by the accused (under article 93) for further time for the preparation of his defense. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2465.

The fact that a party is a public enemy of the United States, or has engaged in giving aid to the enemy, does not affect the competency of his testimony as a witness before a court-martial. Where testifying, however, in time of war, either in favor of a person in the enemy's service or an ally of or sympathizer with the enemy, or against a Federal officer or soldier, his statements (like those of an accomplice) are ordinarily to be received with caution unless corroborated. The fact that a party is under a political disability is not one which goes to his competency if offered as a witness. So the fact that a witness has been convicted of desertion may impair his credibility, but can not affect his competency. Ibid., par. 1297.

^a Nor will the testimony of the wife of an accused be admissible in favor of or against a party jointly charged with him, where her testimony will be material to the merits of the question of the guilt or innocence of her husband. See Territory v. Paul, 2 Montana, 314.

Desertion is not a felony and does not render a witness incompetent at common law or before a court-martial. Nor does the loss of citizenship upon conviction of desertion, under sections 1996 and 1998, Revised Statutes, have such effect, the competency of a witness not depending upon his citizenship. A pardon of a person thus convicted would not, therefore, add to his competency. But where it was proposed to introduce such a person as a material witness for the prosecution in an important case, advised that it would be desirable to remit the unexecuted portion of his sentence, if any. Ibid., par. 1298.

Where a conviction (of rape) rested mainly on the testimony of the victim, a child of 8 years of age, held that the competency of the witness was doubtful, and that the trial should have been suspended and the child instructed. (a) Where a court-martial received the testimony of a female child of 3½ years without swearing her, held that it had wholly exceeded its authority, unsworn testimony being entirely incompetent in any case. Ibid., par. 1306.

The president or any member of a court-martial, as also the judge-advocate, may legally give testimony before the court. That the court, at the time of a member's testifying, is composed of but five members will not affect the validity of the proceedings, since in so testifying he does not cease to be a member. It is in general, however, most undesirable that the judge-advocate, and still more that a member, should appear in the capacity of a witness, except perhaps where the evidence to be given relates simply to the good character or record of the accused. (b) Ibid., par. 2463.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

Courts-martial, in the absence of any specific statutory rules, are in general governed by the rules of evidence of the common law.

Courts-martial should in general follow, so far as opposite to military cases, the rules of evidence observed by the civil courts, and especially the courts of the United States, in criminal cases. (c) They are not bound, however, by any statute in this particular, and it is thus open to them, in the interests of justice, to apply these rules with more indulgence than the civil courts—to allow, for example, more latitude in the introduction of testimony and in the examination and cross-examination of witnesses than is commonly permitted by the latter tribunals. In such particulars, as persons on trial by courts-martial are ordinarily not versed in legal science or practice, a liberal course should in general be pursued, and an overtechnicality be avoided. (d) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1285.

The law by which the admissibility of testimony in criminal cases in the courts of the United States must be determined is the law of the State, as it was when these courts were established by the judiciary act of 1789. They have uniformly acted upon this construction of the judiciary act of 1789 and the crimes act of 1790, and it has thus been sanctioned by a practice of sixty years. U. S. v. Reid, 12 How., 361, 363, 366; Logan v. U. S., 144 U. S., 263, 300; xvii, Opin. Att. Gen., 310.

How applied.—The rules of evidence should be applied by military courts irrespective of the rank of the person to be affected. Thus a witness for the prosecution, whatever be his rank or office, may always be asked, on cross-examination, whether he has not expressed animosity toward the accused, as well as whether he has not on a previous occasion made a statement contradictory to or materially different from that embraced in his testimony. Such questions are admissible by the established

b In the British service until the year 1805 oaths were only administered to witnesses before general courts-martial. In that year, but against the advice of many general officers (including the Duke of Wellington), the provisions of the article were extended in this respect to the minor courts. *Clode, Mil. While the Federal courts sitting within a State must enforce the provisions of a local statute prescribing rules of evidence, unless it is in conflict with some law of the United States regulating the same subject, yet the decisions of the State courts construing common-law rules of evidence are not obligatory on the Federal courts, though they will be followed when the question at issue is balanced with doubt. *Union Pacific R. law of evidence, and imply no disrespect to the witness, nor can the witness properly decline to answer them on the ground that it is disrespectful to him thus to attempt to discredit him. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1288.

Character.—Evidence of the good character, record, and services of the accused as an officer or soldier is admissible in all military cases without distinction—in cases where the sentence is mandatory as well as those where it is discretionary, upon conviction. For, where such evidence can not avail to affect the measure of punishment, it may yet from the basis of a recommendation by the members of the court, or induce favorable action by the reviewing officer whose approval is necessary to the execution of the sentence. Where such evidence is introduced, the prosecution may offer counter testimony, but it is an established rule of evidence that the prosecution can not attack the character of the accused till the latter has introduced evidence to sustain it, and has thus put it in issue. Ibid., par. 1288.

It is in general competent, on trials by court-martial, for the accused to put in evidence any facts going to extenuate the offense and reduce the punishment, as the fact that he has been held in arrest or confinement an unusual period before trial, the fact that he has already been subjected to punishment or special discipline on account of his offense, the fact that his act was in a measure sanctioned by the act or practice of superior authority, etc. Ibid., par. 1301.

On the trial of a person accused of the commission of crime, he may, without offering himself as a witness, call witnesses to show that his character was such as to make it unlikely that he would be guilty of the crime charged, and such evidence is proper for the consideration of the jury in determining whether there is reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused. Edgington v. U. S., 164 U. S. 361; Com. v. Leonard, 140 Mass., 470; Heine v. Commonwealth, 91 Penn. St., 145; Remsen v. The People, 43 N. Y., 6; People v. Grabutt, 17 Mich., 29; Wharton, Crim. Law, Vol. I, §636.

Leading questions.—In commencing the examination of a witness it is a leading of the witness, and objectionable, to read to him the charge and specification or specifications, since he is thus instructed as to the particulars in regard to which he is to testify and which he is expected to substantiate. (b) So to read or state to him in substance the charge and ask him "what he knows about it," or in terms to that effect, is loose and objectionable as encouraging irrelevant and hearsay testimony. The witness should simply be asked to state what was said and done on the occasion, etc. A witness should properly also be examined on specific interrogatories and not be called upon to make a general statement in answer to a single general question. (c).

Burden of proof.—In criminal cases the burden of establishing guilt rests on the prosecution from the beginning to the end of the trial; but when a prima facie case has been made out, the necessity of adducing evidence then devolves on the accused. Agnew v. U. S., 165 U. S., 36; Coffin v. U. S., 156 U. S., 664.

Opinion.—Upon a trial where the offense is drunkenness or drunken conduct, charged under article 62, or drunkenness on duty, charged under article 38, it is not essential to confine the testimony to a description of the conduct and demeanor of the accused, but it is admissible to ask a witness directly if the accused "was drunk," or for a witness to state that the accused "was drunk," on the occasion or under the circumstances charged. Such a statement is not viewed by the authorities as of the class of expressions of opinion which are properly ruled out on objection unless given by experts, but as a mere statement of a matter of observation palpable to persons in general, and so proper to be given by any witness as a fact in his knowledge. (d) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1289.

A statement to the effect that a person was intoxicated is not admissible in evidence as being an expression of an opinion. Whether a person is drunk or sober is "a fact patent to the observation of all, requiring no scientific knowledge." (e) Ibid., par. 1290.

Every question is admissible of a military man, where it is founded on local knowledge, or circumstances which are not within the reach of all the members of the court; but where it is merely a question of military science, to affect the officer who is undergoing his trial, it is obvious that the court is met for no other purpose but to try that, and that they may have before them the facts in evidence on which they are to ground their conclusions. Case of Colonel Quentin, Simmons, 387. cases affecting the conduct of the accused, either as to deportment or language, it is not only proper, but often necessary, to require a witness to declare his opinion, because such opinion may be derived from the impression of a combination of circumstances occurring at the time referred to, difficult, if not impossible, fully to impart to the court; but it would be manifestly improper to draw the attention of a witness to facts, either derived from his own testimony or that of another witness, and to ask his opinion as to their accordence with military discipline or usage, because the court, being in possession of the facts, are the only proper judges of their tendency. Simmons, 388.

Experts.—An officer of the Quartermaster Department was admitted by a court-martial to testify as an "expert" in regard to the proper performance of his duties by a chief quartermaster of a military department. Held that such testimony was inadmissible and should have been ruled out, the subject being one regulated by law and orders, and the witness being in no proper sense an expert. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 400, par. 26.

Refreshing memory.—Where a witness for the prosecution was permitted by a court-martial to temporarily suspend his testimony and leave the court room for the purpose of refreshing his memory as to certain dates, held that such action was irregular and the further testimony of the witness as to such dates inadmissible. By the course pursued the court and accused were prevented from knowing by what means the memory of the witness had been refreshed—whether, for instance, it may not have been refreshed by oral statements of some person or persons. Ibid., par. 1304.

Confessions.—A confession is competent evidence when free and voluntary; otherwise where made through the influence of hope and fear. (b) So where an officer admitted to a superior, in writing, the commission of a military offense and promised not to repeat the same, under the well-founded hope and belief that a charge which had been preferred against him therefor would be withdrawn, held that, in case he were actually brought to trial upon such charge, the admission thus made would not properly be received in evidence against his objection. Confessions made by private soldiers to officers or noncommissioned officers, though not shown to have been made under the influence of promise or threat, should yet, in view of the military relations of the parties, be received with caution. (c) Mere silence on the part of an accused, when questioned as to his supposed offense, is not to be treated as a confession. (d) Ibid., par. 1299.

The true test of the admissibility in evidence of the confession of a person on trial for the commission of a crime is that it was made freely, voluntarily, and without compulsion or inducement, and this rule applies to preliminary examinations before a magistrate of persons accused of crime. Wilson v. U. S., 162 U. S., 13; Greenleaf on Evidence, §§ 224, 225; Sparf. v. U. S., 156 U. S., 51; Pierce v. U. S., 160 U. S., 355; Bram v. U. S., 168 U. S., 532.

Dying declarations.—It is essential to the admissibility of a dying declaration that it was made under a sense of impending death, and this preliminary fact must be proved by the party offering the declaration in evidence. Kelly v. U. S., 27 Fed. Rep., 616; Carver v. U. S., 164 U. S., 694; People v. Abbott, 4 Pac. Rep., 769; People v. Simpson, 12 N. W. Rep., 662; Binfield v. State, 19 ibid., 607; *People v. PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS.

Official communications between the heads of the Departments of the Government and their subordinate officers are privileged. Were it otherwise it would be impossible for such superiors to administer effectually the public affairs with which they are trusted.

PRESUMPTION AS TO PERFORMANCE OF DUTY.

The law presumes that public officers duly perform their official functions, and this presumption continues till the contrary is shown. Nofire v. U. S., 164 U. S., 657.

Sec. 858, R.S.

1815. In the courts of the United States no witness shall be excluded in any action on account of color, or in any civil action because he is a party to or interested in the issue tried: Provided, That in actions by or against executors, administrators, or guardians, in which judgment may be rendered for or against them, neither party shall be allowed to testify against the other, as to any transaction with, or statement by, the testator, intestate, or ward, unless called to testify thereto by the opposite party, or required to testify thereto by the court. In all other respects the laws of the State in which the court is held shall be the rules of decision as to the competency of witnesses in the courts of the United States in trials at common law and in equity and admiralty.¹

Administration of oaths.
July 27, 1892, s. 4, v. 27, p. 278.

1816. Judge-advocates of departments and of courts-martial, and the trial officers of summary courts, are hereby authorized to administer oaths for the purposes of the administration of military justice, and for other purposes of military administration. Sec. 4, act of July 27, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 278).

TESTIMONY OF ACCUSED PERSONS.

Accused persons may testify.
Mar. 16, 1878, v. 20, p. 30.

1817. In the trial of all indictments, informations, complaints, and other proceedings against persons charged with the commission of crimes, offenses, and misdemeanors, is, indeed, specially empowered to exercise this function, under certain circumstances, by statute, as by the second, eighty-fourth, and eighty-fifth articles of war; and, further, by section 183, Revised Statutes, in a case where, being an officer of the War Department, he is detailed to investigate frauds, etc. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1799.

The act of July 27, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 278), in authorizing certain military officers to administer certain oaths, does not, of course, affect the power of administering such oaths of other officials who may have been authorized to administer them before the passage of the act. Such officials may still administer the same, and when doing so should be paid their fees as notaries, commissioners, etc., as before. But, to avoid expense, it is desirable to resort to the officers empowered by the statute, where practicable. Ibid., par. 1801.

No witness is to be discredited merely because of his race or color; and, where counsel have asserted that comparatively little credit is to be attached to the evidence of ignorant or semibarbarous Indian witnesses, there is no error in the court's saying that both white men and Indians lie, and that the evidence of both is entitled to the same credit, and such credibility is to be determined by the same rules of law, when this is coupled with a correct statement of the jury's right to consider the intelligence, appearance, apparent candor, opportunities of knowledge, etc., of each witness. Shelp v. U. S., 81 Fed. Rep., 94.

in the United States courts, Territorial courts, and courts-martial, and courts of inquiry, in any State or Territory, including the District of Columbia, the person so charged shall, at his own request but not otherwise, be a competent witness. And his failure to make such request shall not create any presumption against him.¹ Act of March 16, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 30).

¹ The act of March 16, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 30), having provided that a person charged with the commission of a crime may, at his own request, be a competent witness in the trial, but that "his failure to make such request shall not create any presumption against him," all comment upon such failure must be excluded from the jury. Wilson v. U. S., 149 U. S., 60. Such failure to testify is not to create a presumption of guilt. U. S. v. Pendergrast, 32 Fed. Rep., 198. When such an accused person elects to testify in his own behalf his testimony may be impeached. U. S. v. Brown, 40 Fed. Rep., 437.

If he waives his privilege as to one act he does so fully in relation to that act; but he does not thereby waive his privilege of refusing to reveal other acts wholly unconnected with the act of which he has spoken, even though they be material to the issue. Low v. Mitchell, 18 Me., 372; Tillson v. Bowley, 8 Greenl., 163.

Where an accused party waives his constitutional privilege of silence and takes the stand in his own behalf and makes his own statement, the prosecution has a right to cross-examine him upon such statement with the same latitude as would be exercised in the case of an ordinary witness as to the circumstances connecting him with the alleged crime. Fitzpatrick v. U. S., 178 U. S., 304.

Where a witness has voluntarily answered as to material criminating facts, it is held with uniformity that he can not then stop short and refuse further explanation, but must disclose fully what he has attempted to relate. This view is adopted by the text-writers, and is very well explained in several of the authorities, where the principle is laid down and enforced. 1 Starkie Evid. (9th Am. ed.); Roscoe's Crim. Ev., 174; 1 Greenl., sec. 451; 2 Phill. Ev., 935; 2 Russ. Cr., 931; Coburn v. Odell, 10 Foster, 540; State v. K., 4 N. H., 562; State v. Foster, 3 Foster, 348; *Foster v. C., 216; Norfolk v. Gaylord, 28 Conn., 309.

The testimony of an accused party is competent only when presented as authorized by the act of March 16, 1878, viz, when the party himself requests to be admitted to testify. But such testimony is not excepted from the ordinary rules governing the admissibility of evidence, nor from the application of the usual tests of cross-examination, rebuttal, etc. (Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1300.) See, also, MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL.

It was heretofore an established rule that accused parties could not legally testify as witnesses before military courts. (a) But now, by the act of March 16, 1878, it is expressly provided that at trials, not only before the courts of the United States, but before courts-martial and courts of inquiry, "the person charged shall, at his own request, but not otherwise, be a competent witness." It is added: "And his failure to make such request shall not create any presumption against him." But parties testifying under this act have no exceptional status or privileges; they must take the stand and be subject to cross-examination like other witnesses. The submission by the accused of a sworn written statement is not a legitimate exercise of the authority to testify conferred by the statute, and such a statement should not be admitted in evidence by the court. (b)

The testimony of the defendant in a criminal case is to be considered and weighed by the jury, taking all the evidence into consideration, and such weight is to be given

CRIMINATING QUESTIONS.

The privilege, recognized by the common law, of a witness to refuse to respond to a question the answer to which may criminate him, is a personal one, which the witness may exercise or waive, as he may see fit. It is not for the judge-advocate or accused to object to the question or to check the witness, or the court to exclude the question or direct the witness not to answer. Where, however, he is ignorant of his right, the court may properly advise him of the same. But where a witness declines to answer a question on the ground that it is of such a character that the answer thereto may criminate him, but the court decides that the question is not one of this nature and that it must be answered, the witness can not properly further refuse to respond, and, if he does so, will render himself liable to charges and trial under article 62. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2474.

It is not sufficient to excuse the witness from testifying that he may, in his own mind, think his answer to the question might, by possibility, lead to a criminal charge against him, or tend to convict him of it if made. The court must be able to perceive that there is reasonable ground to apprehend danger to the witness from his being compelled to answer. U. S. v. McCarty, 18 F. R., 87.

Upon a trial of a cadet of the Military Academy, the court (against the objection of the accused) required another cadet, introduced as a witness for the prosecution, to testify as to facts which would tend to criminate him. Held, that such action was erroneous, the not answering in such cases being a privilege of the witness only, who (whether or not objection were made) could refuse to testify, and who, if ignorant of his rights, should be instructed therein by the court. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1308.

Section 860, Revised Statutes.—In the case of Tucker v. United States (151 U. S., 164, 168) the Supreme Court of the United States has placed an interpretation upon certain clauses of section 860, Revised Statutes. That section contains the requirement that "no pleading of a party, nor any discovery or evidence obtained from a party or witness by means of a judicial proceeding in this or any foreign country, shall be given in evidence or in any manner used against him or his property or estate, in any court of the United States, in any criminal proceeding, or for the enforcement of any penalty or forfeiture: Provided, That this section shall not exempt any party or witness from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in discovering or testifying as aforesaid." In its decision the court held that "pleadings of parties" are the allegations made by the parties to a civil or criminal case for the purpose of definitely presenting the issue to be tried and determined between them. "Discovery or evidence obtained from a witness by means of a judicial proceeding" includes only facts or papers which the party or witness is compelled by subpoena, interrogatory, or other judicial process to disclose, whether he will or no, and is inapplicable to testimony voluntarily given or to documents voluntarily produced. The clause as to discovery or evidence is conceived in the same spirit as the fifth amendment of the Constitution, declaring that "no person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself;" and as the act of March 16, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 30), enacted that a defendant in any criminal case may be a witness at his own request, but not otherwise, and that his failure to make such request shall not create any presumption against him. Tucker v. U. S., 151 U. S., 164, 168; Boyd v. U. S., 116 U. S., 616; Wilson v. U. S., 149 U. S., 60; Lees v. U. S., 150 U. S., 476. No statute which (like section 860, R. S.) leaves the party or witness subject to prosecution, after he answers the criminating question put to him, can have the effect of supplanting the privilege conferred by the Constitution. Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U. S., 547.

The immediate object of the legislation of February 25, 1868, from which section 860, R. S., is taken, was to protect against certain forfeitures agents of the Confederate States whose testimony in regard to assets of the Confederacy it was desired to obtain abroad. Congressional Globe, 2d sess., 40th Cong., part 2, p. 1334.

A witness can not avoid answering any question by the mere statement that the answer would tend to incriminate him, without regard to whether the statement is reasonable or not. On the contrary, it is for the judge before whom the question arises to decide whether an answer thereto may reasonably have a tendency to criminate the witness, or to furnish proof of an element or link in the chain of evidence necessary to convict him of a crime. Ex parte Irvine, 74 Fed. Rep., 954; ex parte Wagner, ibid. "To entitle a party called as a witness to the privilege of silence, the court must see, from the circumstances of the case and the nature of the evidence which the witness is called upon to give, that there is reasonable ground to apprehend danger to the witness from his being compelled to answer," but that "if the fact of the witness being in danger be once made to appear, great latitude should be allowed to him in judging for himself of the effect of any particular question, there being no doubt * * * that a question which might appear at first sight a very innocent one might, by affording a link in the chain of evidence, become the means of bringing home an offense of the party answering." Ex parte Reynolds, 20 Chancery Div., 294; Regina v. Boyes, 1 Best and S. 329; People v. Mather, 4 Wendell, 229; Wharton, Crim. Evid., sec. 469, note 1.

On the trial of a cadet at the Military Academy, a witness declined to answer certain questions upon the ground that the answers might criminate him. Upon being directed by the court to answer the questions to which the above objection had been made, the witness (a cadet) persisted in his refusal. For this charges were preferred and the cadet was brought to trial, found guilty, and sentenced to dismissal. The Secretary of War in reviewing the case remarked that "it was the province of the court to determine, under all the circumstances of the case, whether the accused should answer the questions propounded to him as a witness. He should have submitted to that decision." G. C. M. O., No. 23, War Dept., 1873.

¹ Public documents.—The muster rolls on file in the War Department are official records, and copies of the same, duly certified, are primary evidence of the facts originally entered therein and not compiled from other sources, (a) subject, of course, to be rebutted by evidence that they are mistaken or incorrect. So, though such rolls are evidence that the soldier was duly enlisted or mustered into the service, and is therefore duly held as a soldier, they may be rebutted in this respect by proof of fraud or illegality in the enlistment or muster (on the part of the representative of the United States or otherwise), properly invalidating the proceeding and entitling the soldier to a discharge. (But that the entries in such rolls are not proof of the commission of an offense, as desertion; for example, see Desertion.) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1293.

General orders issued from the War Department or Headquarters of the Army may ordinarily be proved by printed official copies in the usual form. The court will, in general, properly take judicial notice of the printed order as genuine and correct. A court-martial, however, should not, in general, accept in evidence, if objected to, a printed or written special order (which has not been made public to the Army) without some proof of its genuineness and official character. (b) Ibid., par. 1294; see also par. 1312.

The "enlistment paper," the "physical examination paper," and the "outline card" are original writings made by officers in the performance of duty and competent evidence of the facts recited therein. Copies, authenticated under the seal of the War Department, according to section 882, Revised Statutes, are equally admissible with the originals. Ibid., par. 1310.

A descriptive list is but secondary evidence and not admissible to prove the facts recited therein. It is not a record of original entries, made by an officer under a duty imposed upon him by law or the custom of the service, but is simply a compilation of facts taken from other records. Ibid., par. 1314.

The morning report book is an original writing. To properly admit extracts in evidence, the book should be first identified by the proper custodian, and the extracts then not merely read to the court by the witness, but copied, and the copies, properly verified, attached as exhibits to the record of the court. Ibid. par. 1313.

Official books and papers pertaining to the administration of a military post are produced and identified by their proper custodians—papers from the post headquar-

^a But note in this connection the ruling of the supreme court of Massachusetts in the case of Hanson v. S. Scituate, 115 Mass., 336, that an official certificate from the Adjutant-General's Office to the effect that certain facts appeared of record in that office, but which did not purport to be a transcript from the record itself, and was therefore simply a personal statement, was not competent evidence of such facts.

It has been held by the United States Supreme Court in a recent case, Evanston v. Gunn, 9 Otto, 660, that the record made by a member of the United States Signal Corps of the state of the weather and the direction and velocity of the wind on a certain day was competent evidence of the facts reported, as being in the nature of an official record kept by a public officer in the discharge of a public duty.

¹ Except by the consent of the opposite party, the testimony contained in the record of a previous trial of the same or a similar case can not properly be received in evidence on a trial by court-martial; nor can the record of a board of investigation ordered in the same case be—otherwise—so admitted. In all cases (other than that provided for by the one hundred and twenty-first article of war) testimony given upon a previous hearing, if desired to be introduced in evidence upon a trial, must (unless it be otherwise specially stipulated between the parties) be offered de novo and as original matter. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1291.

At the trial, in 1894, of an officer charged with a disorder and breach of discipline which involved the killing by him of another officer, there was offered in evidence, on the part of the accused, to exhibit the character and disposition of the officer killed, a copy of a general court-martial order of 1872, setting forth certain charges alleging dishonest and unbecoming conduct upon which the latter officer was then tried and convicted, and the findings of the court thereon. Held, that such evidence was wholly inadmissible for the purpose designed. Ibid., par. 1317.

Private documents.—To the admission in evidence of a letter written and signed by the accused (of which the introduction is contested) proof of his handwriting is necessary. Evidence of handwriting by comparison is not admissible at common law except where the standard of comparison is an acknowledged or proved genuine writing already in evidence in the case. A writing not in evidence and simply offered to be used as a standard is not admissible. Ibid., par. 1316.

Strictly speaking, a press copy is secondary to the original document from which it is taken. Such a copy is receivable in evidence on proof of the loss of the original. At the best, however, it continues secondary; hence it has been held that a copy can be produced from a press copy of a lost writing without producing the principal copy. Photographs and other reproductions are secondary. 1 Wharton Ev., sec. 93.

Where the standards of comparison are properly in evidence for another purpose, the handwriting may be compared. Green v. Terwilliger, 56 Fed. Rep., 384; Moore v. U. S., 91 U. The records and judicial proceedings of the courts of any State or Territory, or of any such country, shall be proved or admitted in any other court within the United States, by the attestation of the clerk, and the seal of the court annexed, if there be a seal, together with a certificate of the judge, chief justice, or presiding magistrate, that the said attestation is in due form. And the said records and judicial proceedings, so authenticated, shall have such faith and credit given to them in every court within the United States as they have by law or usage in the courts of the State from which they are taken.¹

1826. All records and exemplifications of books which may be kept in any public office of any State or Territory, or of any country subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, not appertaining to a court, shall be proved or admitted in any court or office in any other State or Territory, or in any such country, by the attestation of the keeper of the said records or books, and the seal of his office annexed, if there be a seal, together with a certificate of the presiding justice of the court of the county, parish, or district in which such office may be kept, or of the governor, or secretary of state, the chancellor or keeper of the great seal of the State, or Territory, or country, that the said attestation is in due form, and by the proper officers. If the said certificate is given by the presiding justice of a court, it shall be further authenticated by the clerk or prothonotary of the said court, who shall certify, under his hand and the seal of his office, that the said presiding justice is duly commissioned and qualified; or, if given by such governor, secretary, chancellor, or keeper of the great seal, it shall be under the great seal of the State, Territory, or country aforesaid in which it is made. And the said records and exemplifications, so authenticated, shall have such faith and credit given to them in every court and office within the United States as they have by law or usage in the courts or offices of the State, Territory, or country, as aforesaid, from which they are taken.

DEPOSITIONS.

Depositions.
91 Art of War.

1828. The deposition¹ of witnesses residing beyond the limits of the State, Territory, or district in which any military court may be ordered to sit, if taken on reasonable notice to the opposite party and duly authenticated,²

¹ Procedure.—The party, prosecutor or defendant, desiring the deposition, submits to the court a list of interrogatories to be propounded to the absent witness; the opposite party then prepares and submits a list of cross-interrogatories, a reasonable time being allowed for this purpose; redirect and recross-interrogatories are added, if desired; finally the court, having assented to the interrogatories thus submitted, adds such as in its judgment may be necessary to elucidate the whole of the witness's testimony.

The interrogatories having been accepted by the court, the judge-advocate will prepare duplicate subpoenas requiring the witness to appear in person, at a time and place to be fixed by the officer, military or civil, who is to take the deposition. If the name of this officer is not known, the space for it will be left blank. (a)

The judge-advocate will then send the interrogatories and subpoenas to the convening authority, with a request that the deposition be secured.

Depositions may also be taken before the assembling of the court-martial, on interrogatories and cross-interrogatories or reasonable notice, subject to exceptions when read in court.

Judge-advocates of departments and of courts-martial, and the trial officers of summary courts, are authorized to administer oaths and take depositions. If none of these officers are available, any other army officer may be designated to see that the deposition is properly taken; (b) but the oath in such a case must be administered and the deposition authenticated by a civil officer empowered by law to administer oaths for general purposes.

Upon the return of the interrogatories and deposition they will be submitted to the court by the president or judge-advocate. The papers will then be properly marked, appended to the record, and referred to in the proceedings, where all action upon the subject necessary for the information of the reviewing authority will be recorded.

Upon the receipt of the deposition, the judge-advocate will also prepare and sign the ordinary "accounts for a civilian witness," substituting for the usual statement in regard to attendance before the court a statement that he duly attended as a witness at a certain time and place and duly gave his deposition before a certain official named, and then transmit them to the witness with duplicate copies of the order convening the court. The period of attendance can be ascertained from the deposition. Manual for Courts-Martial, pp. 37 and 38.

A deposition, introduced by either party, which is not "duly authenticated," should not be admitted in evidence by the court, although the other party may not object. A deposition held irregular and inadmissible where it failed to show that the officer by whom it was taken was authorized to take it, or that he was qualified to administer the oath to the witness. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 263.

A court-martial has no power to qualify or authorize a commanding officer, or any other officer or person, to take a deposition or administer an oath. Ibid., par. 265.

a The judge-advocate, in forwarding the interrogatories for a deposition, should transmit with them a subpoena (in duplicate) requiring the witness to appear at a stated place and date before a certain person who is to take the deposition. Particulars not ascertained may be left blank, to be supplied by the officer or person by whom the subpoena is served. When the deposition has been duly taken and returned, the judge-advocate should transmit to the witness (or to some officer, etc., for him) the usual certificate of attendance (accompanied by a copy of the convening order), the duration of the attendance to be ascertained from the deposition. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1553.

b The officer detailed to have a deposition taken, i. e., to see to its being taken, should, before serving the subpoena, complete it, if necessary, by inserting the name and official designation of the notary (or other official having authority to administer the oath) before whom it is to be taken, and the date on which and the place where it is proposed to take it. And when the deposition has been duly taken, he should certify it as so taken, and transmit it in a sealed package to the president of the court. Ibid., par. 269.

may be read in evidence¹ before such court in cases not capital.² Ninety-first Article of War.

¹ This article, in any case within its terms and in which its conditions are complied with, entitles either party to have depositions taken and "read in evidence." The court alone has no power to decide that a deposition, where legal and material, shall not be taken. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 262.

Where the judge-advocate offered in evidence, on the part of the prosecution, a deposition which proved to have been given by a person other than the one to whom the interrogatories were addressed, and the accused objected to its introduction, but the objection was overruled by the court, held error; the fact that the intended deponent was but the agent, in the transaction inquired about, of the person who actually furnished the deposition not being sufficient to make such deposition admissible except by consent of parties. (a) Ibid., par. 261.

The party at whose instance a deposition has been taken can not be admitted, against the objection of the other party, to introduce only such parts of the deposition as are favorable to him or as he may elect to use; he must offer the deposition in evidence as a whole or not offer it at all. Ibid., par. 258.

If the party at whose instance a deposition has been taken decides not to put it in, it may be read in evidence by the other party. One party can not withhold a deposition (duly taken and admissible under this article) against the consent of the other. Ibid., par. 259.

² A deposition can not be read in evidence in a capital case, as in a case of a violation of article 21, or a case of a spy, or one of desertion in time of war; otherwise in a case of desertion in time of peace. Nor is the deposition admissible of a witness who resides in the State, etc., within which the court is held, except by consent. Ibid., par. 256.

A deposition duly taken, under the article, on the part of the prosecution, is not subject to objection by the accused and can not be rejected by the court merely upon the ground that it is declared in the sixth amendment to the Constitution that "in all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right * * * to be confronted with the witnesses against him." This constitutional provision has no application to courts-martial; the "criminal prosecutions" referred to are prosecutions in the United States civil courts. Ibid., par. 272.

A deposition is not in general satisfactory evidence for purposes of personal identification by description, and should not be resorted to for the identification of an accused where reliable oral testimony can be obtained. Ibid., par. 266.

The depositions of civilian witnesses, while their taking generally involves less expense than would the personal attendance of the parties, are usually quite sufficient as testimony, except when the purpose of the evidence is to personally identify the accused before the court. Ibid., par. 267.

Civilian witnesses who duly give their depositions under this article are entitled to the same fees and allowances as are witnesses who duly attend the court in person. (See Circular No. 9 (H. Q. A.) 1883.) The voucher, to enable such a witness to obtain his dues, should simply set forth the facts as to his service, substituting, for the usual statement in regard to attendance before the court, a statement that he duly attended as a witness at a certain time and place, and duly gave his deposition before a certain official named. Ibid., par. 270.

Held that duly attending by a civilian witness before a duly authorized official to give a deposition to be used in evidence on a military trial was to be regarded as practically equivalent to attending a court-martial, and that the deponent was entitled to be paid the usual allowances (i. e., the same as those of witnesses appearing before the court) out of the regular appropriation for the "compensation of witnesses attending before courts-martial." Ibid., par. 2484.

The so-called depositions ("affidavits or depositions") referred to in paragraph 683, Army Regulations, are entirely distinct from the depositions provided for in article 91, being merely sworn ex parte statements used for the purpose of settling questions of "property accountability." The regulation has no application whatever to depositions proper of the class authorized by this article. (b)

^a See Gen. Court-Martial Orders, No. 9, H. Q. Army, 1879.

^b In the case of Private Harnett, tried for desertion in 1873 and convicted, the proceedings were disapproved in part on account of the admission by the court of an ex parte affidavit in support of the case for the prosecution. As the facts which it was proposed to prove by the affidavit had been admitted by the accused, and as no injury resulted to the accused by the error of the court, the findings and sentence were approved. General Court-Martial Orders, No. 83, War Dept., 1878.

THE FINDING.

Order of voting:
95 Art. of War.

1829. Members of a court-martial, in giving their votes, shall begin with the youngest in commission.¹ Ninety-fifth Article of War.

A tie vote upon any proposition submitted to the court is equivalent to a vote in the negative—a majority vote being necessary to a determination in the affirmative—and the proposition is not approved. Where the vote is a tie upon an objection to testimony, the objection is not sustained. Where it is tied upon a certain proposed finding or form of sentence, the same is not adopted.

THE FINDING.

There should be a separate and independent finding upon each charge and specification, and each separate finding should cover the charge or specification as to which it is made; so that if any charge or specification is deemed by the court to be proved only in part, the finding shall show specifically what is found to be proved and what not. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1354.

The finding of the court should be governed by the evidence considered in connection with the plea. Where no evidence is introduced, the general rule is that the finding should conform to the plea. Ibid., par. 1352.

The finding on the charge should be supported by the finding on the specification (or specifications), and the two findings should be consistent with each other. A finding of guilty on the charge would be quite inconsistent with a finding of not guilty, or guilty without attaching criminality, on the specification. So a finding of guilty upon a well-pleaded specification, apposite to the charge, followed by a finding of not guilty either of the offense charged or some lesser offense included in it, would be an incongruous verdict. No matter how many specifications there may be, it requires a finding, of guilty or not guilty, on but one specification (apposite to the charge) to support a similar finding upon the charge. Ibid., par. 1353.

It is not competent for a court-martial to find an accused not guilty of the specification, and yet guilty of the charge, where there is but one specification. By finding him not guilty of the specification, they acquit him of all that goes to constitute the offense described in the charge. Where the court believe that the accused is guilty of the charge, but not precisely as laid in the specification, they should find him guilty of the latter, but with such exceptions or substitutions as may be necessary to present the facts as proved on the trial, and then guilty of the charge. Ibid., par. 1356.

In finding guilty upon a specification—to except from such finding the word or words which express the gravamen of the act as charged and found, is contradictory and irregular. As—from a finding of guilty on a specification to a charge of fraud under Art. 60, to specially except the word "fraudulent" or "fraudulently," while at the same time finding the accused guilty generally upon the charge. Ibid., par. 1358.

Where, upon the finding, the vote on a charge or specification is tied, the accused is, in law, found not guilty thereon; a majority vote being necessary to any conviction. A statement in the record to the effect that the vote upon a specification, etc., was a tie, and that the accused was therefore acquitted, is of course irregular and improper.^a Ibid., par. 1364.

Exceptions and substitutions.—It is a peculiarity of the finding at military law that a court-martial, where of opinion that any portion of the allegations in a specification is not proved, is authorized to find the accused guilty of a part of a specification only, excepting the remainder; or, in finding him guilty of the whole (or any part), to substitute correct words or allegations in the place of such as are shown by the evidence to have been inserted through error. And provided the exceptions or substitutions

^a As to the offense and irregularity involved in stating that a particular finding was unanimous, see the 84th Article of War; see also the title "Oaths," supra.

As the affirmative of any proposition can be adopted by a court-martial only by a majority vote, and as all tie votes on the findings inure to the benefit of the accused, a finding of acquittal thereon should have been recorded. G. C. M. O. 17, War Dept., 1871. See also G. C. M. O., No. 1, War Dept., 1872.

1830. Whenever a court-martial shall sit in closed ses-^{Closed sessions. July 27, 1892, s. 2, v. 27, p. 278.} sion the judge-advocate shall withdraw, and when his legal advice or assistance in referring to the recorded evidence leave the specification still appropriate to the charge and legally sufficient thereunder, the court may then properly find the accused guilty of the charge in the usual manner. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1355.

Familiar instances of the exercise of the authority to except and substitute in a finding of guilty occur in cases where, in the specification, the name or rank of the accused, or some other person, is erroneously designated, or there is an erroneous averment of time or place, or a mistaken date, or an incorrect statement as to amount, quantity, quality, or other particular, of funds or other property, etc. Ibid., par. 1357.

In a case where a court-martial made such exceptions and substitutions in its finding upon the specification to a charge of "Forgery to the prejudice of good order and military discipline" as to negative the material allegation of false writing and leave no legal basis for the finding arrived at of guilty of the charge—advised that the findings be disapproved as incongruous and insufficient to sustain the sentence. Ibid., par. 1366.

Finding of a minor included offense.—The practice of making exceptions and substitutions in the findings is well illustrated by the finding—authorized at military law when called for by the evidence (a)—of a lesser kindred offense included as a constituent element in the specific offense charged. (b) Of this form of verdict the most familiar instance is the finding of guilty of absence without leave under a charge of desertion. A full acquittal of desertion includes, of course, an absence without leave involved in it; but where the evidence falls short of establishing a desertion, but shows an unauthorized absenting of himself by the accused, he may and should be convicted of absence without leave as his actual offense. In arriving at this conclusion, the findings on the specification and charge should be consistent, and the finding on the former should be such as to support the latter. In their finding of guilty upon the specification, the court should in terms except from its application such words of the specification as allege or describe desertion exclusively, and substitute words describing the lesser offense; the words "did desert," for example, being excepted, and the words "did absent himself without authority" being substituted. The finding on the charge should regularly be "not guilty, but guilty of absence without leave." (c) Ibid., par. 1359.

But the authority to find guilty of a minor included offense, or otherwise to make exceptions or substitutions in the finding, can not justify the conviction of the accused of an offense entirely separate and distinct in its nature from that charged. Thus held that it was not a finding of a lesser included offense to find the accused guilty merely of absence without leave under a charge of a violation of the forty-second Article of War in abandoning his post before the enemy. And so held of a finding, under a charge of a violation of article 39, of not guilty but guilty of a violation of article 40. So, where a soldier charged with "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline," in concealing the fact that a fellow soldier had appropriated to his own use certain public property, was found not guilty of the specification as laid, but guilty of "having stolen the property himself," and guilty of the charge, and was accordingly sentenced to imprisonment—held that such a finding was manifestly unauthorized. Having been found not guilty of the offense set forth in the specification, and which alone he was called upon to answer, he should have been acquitted on both charge and specification; the offense of which he was found guilty was not alleged against him, and not being included in that charged, could not properly form the subject of a finding. The remission of his sentence therefore recommended. Ibid., par. 1360.

It is a further peculiarity of the finding at military law that, where an accused is charged with "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman," or with any specific offense made punishable by the Articles of War, and the court is of opinion that while the material allegations in the specification or specifications are substantially made out, they do not fully sustain the charge as laid, but do clearly establish the commission of a neglect of military duty or a disorder in breach of military discipline, as involved in the acts alleged, the accused may properly be found guilty of the specification (or specifications), and not guilty of the charge, but guilty of "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline." Such a form of finding is now common in our practice (especially where the charge is laid under article 61), and its legality is no longer questioned. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1361.

The authority thus to find, however, has not been extended beyond the case indicated in the last paragraph; the reverse, for example, of this form of finding has never been sanctioned. A finding of guilty of a certain specific offense, under a charge of another specific offense, or under a charge of "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman," or of "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline," would be wholly irregular and invalid. Thus a finding of guilty of disobedience of orders (or of a violation of article 21), under a charge of mutiny in violation of article 22, or a finding of drunkenness on duty (or of a violation of article 38), under a charge for a drunken disorder laid under article 62 or 61, would be not only unauthorized, but now almost unprecedented, and, if such a finding were made, it could scarcely fail to be formally disapproved. And so of a finding of "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman" under a charge of "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline." Ibid., par. 1362.

The general finding of "conduct to the prejudice," etc., in the cases above indicated is sanctioned in order to prevent a failure of justice, not for the purpose of relieving the accused of any of his due share of culpability. It should not therefore be resorted to where the specific offense charged is substantially made out by the testimony. Thus in a case where the facts set forth in the specification to a charge of "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman," and clearly established by the evidence, fixed unmistakably upon the accused dishonorable behavior compromising him officially and socially—held that a finding by the court that he was guilty only of "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline" should not be accepted, but that the court should be reconvened for the purpose of inducing, if practicable, a finding in accordance with the facts and with justice. Ibid., par. 1363.

It is an important part of the judgment of the court, in a case where the evidence is conflicting, to determine the measure of the credibility to be attached to the several witnesses. In its finding, therefore, the court may, in connection with the testimony, properly take into consideration the appearance and deportment of the witnesses on the stand and their manner of testifying, especially when under cross-examination. Ibid., par. 1365.

² Procedure.—The best approved practice of military courts in determining upon their sentences is believed to be as follows: For each member to write a sentence and deposit it with the judge-advocate; and, no sentence having been adopted by a majority of votes, for the court, after all the sentences have been read to it, to proceed to vote upon them in the order of their severity, beginning with the least severe, until some one of those proposed is agreed upon by a majority of votes. It is not essential, indeed, that this form of voting should be pursued—it being open to the court, in its discretion, to adopt a different one. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2308.

That, upon a conviction by a majority vote of the court, all the members of the court, those who voted for an acquittal equally with those who voted for conviction, must vote for some sentence—though formerly doubted—has long been established as a principle in our military law. While a member who voted for an acquittal can not of course be compelled to vote a punishment, yet his persistent refusal to do so would be a neglect of duty, rendering him amenable to a charge under article 62. Ibid., par. 2309.

A sentence, to be valid, must of course rest upon an approved finding of guilty of an offence for which the accused has been tried. Thus a duly approved finding of guilty on one of several charges, a conviction upon which requires or authorizes the sentence adjudged, will give validity and effect to such sentence, although the similar findings on all the other charges are disapproved as not warranted by the testimony. But a finding of guilty of a specification to a charge but not guilty of the charge itself will not support a sentence, unless, indeed, there is added a conviction of some lesser offence included in that charged. Ibid., par. 2312.

A punishment, adjudged upon conviction of the accused on several charges, is valid and operative provided it is a punishment legally imposable on conviction of any one of the charges of which the conviction is duly approved by the reviewing authority. Ibid., par. 2311.

The word "month" or "months," employed in a sentence, is to be construed as meaning calendar month or months; the same significance being given to the term as is now commonly given to it in the construction of American statutes in which the word is employed. The old doctrine that "month," in a sentence of court-martial, meant lunar month, has long since ceased to be accepted in our military law. Ibid., par. 2314.

A legal sentence of court-martial, when once duly approved and executed, can not be reached by a pardon, nor revoked, recalled, modified or replaced by a milder punishment, or other proceeding, either by the Executive or by Congress. (a) The only remedy for a party who has suffered injustice from such a sentence is either a new appointment to the Army by the President or some legislation within the province of Congress relieving or indemnifying him for and on account thereof. Ibid., par. 2323.

¹A sentence of death imposed by a court-martial, upon a conviction of several distinct offences, will be authorized and legal if any one of such offences is made capitally punishable by the Articles of War, although the other offenses may not be so punishable. Ibid., par. 285.

A court-martial, in imposing a death sentence, should not designate a time or place for its execution, such a designation not being within its province but pertaining to that of the reviewing authority. If it does so designate, this part of the sentence may be disregarded and a different time or place fixed by the commanding general. Ibid., par. 286.

Where a death sentence imposed by a court-martial has been directed by the proper authority to be executed on a particular day, and this day, owing to some exigency of the service, has gone by without the sentence being executed, it is competent for the same authority, or his proper superior, to name another day for the purpose, the time of its execution being an immaterial element of this punishment. (b) Ibid., par. 287.

Article VIII of the amendments to the Constitution prohibits the infliction of ^aThe well-established principles—that mere irregularities in the proceedings will not affect the validity of an executed sentence, and that a legal sentence once duly confirmed and executed is "no longer subject to review by the President"—so pointedly set forth (in 1843) in IV Opins., 274, are further illustrated in XIV Id., 290, 432.

^bIt was held by the Supreme Court, in Coleman v. Tennessee (7 Otto, 519-520), that a soldier who had been convicted of murder and sentenced to death by a general court-martial in May, 1865, but the execution of whose sentence had been meanwhile deferred by reason of his escape and the pendency of civil proceedings in his case, might at the date of the ruling "be delivered up to the military authorities of the United States to be dealt with as required by law."

More recently it has been held in this case by the Attorney-General that the death sentence might legally be executed notwithstanding the fact that the soldier had meanwhile been discharged from the service, such discharge, while formally separating the party from the Army, being viewed as not affecting his legal status as a military convict. But in view of all the circumstances of the case it was recommended that the sentence be commuted to imprisonment for life or a term of years. XVI Opin. Att. Gen., 349.

Prohibited
punishments.
98 Art. of War.

1833. No person in the military service shall be punished by flogging, or by branding, marking, or tattooing on the body. Ninety-eighth Article of War.

"cruel and unusual punishments." While this provision does not necessarily govern courts-martial, inasmuch as they are not a part of the judiciary of the United States, (a) it should be observed as a general rule. Thus, where for an offence not peculiarly aggravated a court-martial imposed upon a soldier, in connection with a forfeiture of pay for six months, the further penalty of carrying a loaded knapsack weighing twenty-four pounds every alternate hour from sunrise to sunset of each day (Sundays excepted) during that period, held that this punishment was excessive and exceptional, and, the same having been suffered by the soldier for three months, recommended that its unexpired term be at once remitted. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2313, note 1.

The punishment of ball and chain, though sanctioned by the usage of the service, should, in the opinion of the Judge-Advocate-General, be imposed only in extreme cases. Its remission has, in general, been recommended by him except in cases of old offenders, or aggravated crime, where deemed serviceable as a means of obviating violence or preventing escape. This penalty, like those of shaving the head and drumming out of the service, has become rare in our Army since the further corporal punishment of branding or marking has been expressly prohibited by statute. (b) Ibid., par. 2314.

Military duty is honorable, and to impose it in any form as a punishment must tend to degrade it, to the prejudice of the best interests of the service. Thus, advised that a sentence "to do extra duty" for a certain term would properly be disapproved. So advised of sentences imposing "guard duty" for certain periods. So advised of a sentence imposing, in connection with a term of confinement in charge of the guard, the penalty of "sounding all the bugle calls at the post during the same period." So advised in regard to a sentence which required a deserter—not for the purpose of making good the time lost by his desertion, but as a punishment—to serve for an additional year after the expiration of his term of enlistment. (c) Ibid., par. 2315.

The existing law fixing the term of a soldier's enlistment at three years, a court-martial can have no power to prolong it by adding to such term an additional period by way of punishment. Thus a sentence—"to make good, at the expiration of his term, a period of fifty-seven days during which his services were lost to the United States by being held in hospital on account of pistol wound received by him while in the commission of a disorder in violation of the 62d Article of War"—held unauthorized and properly disapproved. Ibid., par. 2316.

A sentence can not legally extend the time of the service of a soldier beyond the term for which he originally contracted. Ibid.

Discretionary sentences.—In a case where its sentence is discretionary, a court-martial may impose any punishment that is sanctioned by usage (the "custom of the service" referred to in Art. 84), although (in cases of soldiers) the same may not be included in the list of the more usual punishments contained in the manual for courts-martial. Ibid., par. 2313. Such discretion on the part of the court-martial, however, is regulated in its exercise in respect to enlisted men by the orders of the President imposing limits of punishment which will presently be described.

Under the authority conferred by the act of September 27, 1890, three orders have been issued by the President prescribing a system of maximum punishments to be imposed by the several military tribunals upon enlisted men who have been convicted of one or more of the offenses therein set forth. The first of these orders was a That the provisions of the Vth, VIth, and VIIIth amendments to the Constitution, relating to criminal proceedings, apply only to the courts, etc., of the United States. See Barron v. Mayor of Baltimore, 7 Peters, 243; Ex parte Watkins, Id. 573; Twitchell v. The Commonwealth, 7 Wallace, 326; Edwards v. Elliott, 21 Id., 557; Walker v. Sauvinet, 2 Otto, 90; Pearson v. Yewdall, 5 Id. 294; 1 Bish. Cr. L., § 725.

b The exercise of the power conferred upon the President by the act of September 27, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 491), to prescribe limits for discretionary punishments has operated to introduce uniformity among the sentences imposed upon enlisted men by the various military tribunals. See, also, as in accord with the spirit of this paragraph, G. C. M. O. No. 329, A. G. O. 1864; G. O. 17, Department of the Missouri, 1861; G. O. 56, A. of P., 1862; G. O. No. 3, Department of the Northwest, 1864; G. O. No. 49, Middle Department, 1864.

c The duty of a sentinel is important and honorable, and, by Army Regulations, all persons are required to observe respect toward sentinels. It is deemed improper to impose as a punishment anything presenting the semblance of the performance of the duty of a sentinel. G. C. M. O. 7, War Dept., 1871.

A sentence imposing solitary confinement in a dark cell was imposed by a general court-martial in 1873; so much of the sentence as required the confinement to be served in a dark cell was remitted by the Secretary of War as amenable to the objection of being "cruel and unusual punishment." G. C. M. O. 24, War Dept., 1873.

1834. No officer shall be discharged or dismissed from the service, except by order of the President, or by sentence of a general court-martial; and in time of peace no officer shall be dismissed, except in pursuance of the sentence of a court-martial, or in mitigation thereof.¹

promulgated in General Orders, No. 21, A. G. O., of 1891; a second order on the same subject was embodied in General Orders, No. 16, of 1895; the third, which is now in force, was embodied in Executive Orders of March 30, 1898, and was promulgated to the Army in General Orders, No. 16, A. G. O., of 1898. Under the strict terms of the statute the orders of the President fixing a schedule of maximum punishments are operative only in time of peace, and, although courts-martial may, at their discretion, apply their provisions in determining sentences imposed by them in time of war, they are under no legal obligation to do so. For the maximum-punishment order now in force, see page 1067, post.

Upon the conviction of an officer or soldier under a charge of a crime, such as manslaughter, robbery, larceny, etc., to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, while the statute of the United States or State, providing for its punishment as a civil offence, may well be referred to as indicating the nature and extent of the punishment deemed proper for the same by the civil authorities, the punishment to be imposed by the court-martial should, nevertheless, be measured less by the criminality of the act as a civil offence than by its gravity as a breach of military discipline. Thus, where a soldier, having been brought to trial before a civil court for the homicide of another soldier, and inadequately sentenced, was subsequently tried by a general court martial for the military offence involved in his act, held that the court would only properly impose upon him a penalty proportioned to the injury done to the good order and discipline of the service, and should not, by an excessive punishment, attempt to compensate for the over-lenient judgment of the civil court. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2318.

A sentence of confinement until a certain sum of public money, proved to have been embezzled by an accused, is paid, is proper for the reason "that without this provision in a sentence there is no means, in the case of an officer not bonded, of enforcing such restitution beyond the extent of his pay." G. C. M. O. 27, War Dept., 1872.

Mandatory punishment.—Where the Article of War under which the charge is laid is mandatory as to the punishment (as in the cases of Arts. 6, 8, 13, 14, 15, 18, 26, 37, 38, 50, 57, 59, 61, 65), and the sentence imposes, in connection with the mandatory punishment, a further penalty or penalties, this addition to the sentence does not affect its legality so far as relates to the mandatory punishment; as to this it is valid and operative, though as to the rest it is a nullity. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2310.

Where a sentence in excess of the legal limit is divisible, such part as is legitimate may be approved and executed. Thus where a sentence of an inferior court imposes a fine or forfeiture beyond the limit of the 83d Article of War, the sentence may be approved and executed as to so much as is within the limit. Ibid., par. 2324.

Cumulative punishment.—Where, while an officer or soldier is undergoing a certain sentence, he is again brought to trial for a military offence, and a further sentence is adjudged him, imposing a punishment of the same species as that which is being executed, it is the general rule of the service that the second sentence is to be regarded as cumulative upon the first, and that its execution is to commence when the execution of the first is completed. This, whether or not the court, in the second sentence, may have in terms specified that the second punishment should be additional to the first; such second punishment being made cumulative by operation of law irrespective of any direction (and such direction is, in fact, rarely expressed) in the sentence. Ibid., par. 2317.

¹Courts-martial are empowered and required to adjudge dismissal upon officers of the Army by the 3d, 6th, 8th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 18th, 26th, 27th, 28th, 38th, 50th, 54th, 59th, 61st and 65th Articles of War, upon conviction of the specific offences therein described. In Articles 8 and 50 the punishment of dismissal is referred to as "cashiering"—a term which has almost passed out of use in our service, and when employed means no more than dismissal. Ibid., par. 1196.

A legal sentence of dismissal of an officer when finally confirmed by the competent authority, according to the 106th or 109th Article of War, takes effect upon the officer on the day on which the confirmation is officially communicated to him, either by the promulgation of the order of confirmation at his station or other form of tion of sentence.

100 Art. War.

1835. When an officer is dismissed from the service for cowardice or fraud, the sentence shall further direct that the crime, punishment, name, and place of abode of the delinquent shall be published in the newspapers in and about the camp, and in the State from which the offender came, or where he usually resides; and after such publication it shall be scandalous for an officer to associate with him.¹ One hundredth Article of War.

official notice. Thus the date of the actual confirmation is not necessarily—is not probably in the majority of cases—the date on which the dismissal goes into effect. The declaration is indeed sometimes added in the order of confirmation, that the party “ceases thereupon to be an officer of the Army;” but this declaration is immaterial and surplusage. It not unfrequently happens—especially in time of war, and particularly when the officer has, since his trial, been taken prisoner by the enemy—that a considerable period may elapse before the officer is officially informed of the confirmation of the sentence and thus becomes, in law and fact, dismissed from the service. Dig. Opin. J. A. G. par. 1197.

A sentence of dismissal does not attach any legal disability to the person dismissed. He is not—as is indeed indicated by sec. 1228, Revised Statutes, above cited—disqualified to be newly appointed to the Army, nor is he disqualified to be enlisted as a soldier, or to hold civil office under the United States. Ibid., par. 1201.

The punishment of suspension, as imposed by sentence, is usually in the form of a suspension from rank, or from command, for a stated term, sometimes accompanied by a suspension from pay for the same period. Suspension from rank includes suspension from command. Ibid., par. 2408.

In rare cases the form, “to be suspended from the service,” has been employed in the sentence. Such a suspension is equivalent in substance to a suspension from rank.

A still rarer form, “to be suspended from duty,” has been deemed to be practically equivalent to a sentence of suspension from command. (c) These forms are now rarely resorted to. Ibid., 732, par. 12.

A sentence, “to be suspended from the Military Academy,” in a case of a cadet, practically severs him from the military service as a cadet during the term of the suspension. It is usually added in such a sentence that, at the end of such term, the party is to join the next lower class. Ibid., par. 2416.

Like dismissal, suspension takes effect upon and from notice of the approval of the sentence officially communicated to the officer, either by the promulgation of the same at his station, or—where he is absent therefrom by authority—by the delivery to him of a copy of the order of approval or other form of official personal notification of the fact of the approval. Ibid., par. 2423.

² A suspension from rank does not affect the right of the officer to his office. He retains the same as before, and, as an officer, remains subject as before to military control as well as to the jurisdiction of a court-martial for any military offence committed pending the term of suspension. (d) Ibid., par. 2418.

a Note the action taken in the case published in G. C. M. O. 27, War Dept., 1872.

b As in cases published in G. O. (A. and I. G. O.) of May 13, 1820; do. 168, Dept. of the Missouri, 1865.

c Suspension from duty, as distinguished from suspension from rank, is a recognized punishment in the naval service. Navy Regulations, Art. 32, sec. 2; Harwood, 134-5. The form, “to be suspended from rank and duty,” occurs in G. C. M. O. 19, of 1885.

d See v. Opin. Att. Gen., 740; vi. Ibid., 715.

1837. No person in the military service shall, under the sentence of a court-martial, be punished by confinement in a penitentiary unless the offense of which he may be convicted would, by some statute of the United States, or by some statute of the State, Territory, or District in which such offense may be committed, or by the common law, as the same exists in such State, Territory, or District, subject such convict to such punishment.¹ Ninety-seventh Article of War.

Confinement
in a penitentiary.
97 Art. War.

The term "penitentiary," as employed in this article, has reference to civil prisons only, as the penitentiary of the United States or District of Columbia at Washington, the public prisons or penitentiaries of the different States, and the penitentiaries "erected by the United States" (see section 1892, Revised Statutes) in most of the Territories. The military prison at Leavenworth is not a penitentiary in the sense of the article. The term State or State's prison in a sentence is equivalent to penitentiary. Ibid, par. 292.

Where a soldier is sentenced to be confined in a penitentiary the proper reviewing authority may legally designate for the execution of the punishment any State or Territorial penitentiary within his command. Where there is no such penitentiary available for the purpose, or desirable to be resorted to, he will properly submit the case to the Secretary of War for the designation of a proper penitentiary.

A military prisoner duly sentenced or committed to a penitentiary becomes subject to the government and rules of the institution. Ibid., par. 293.

An offence charged as "Conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline," which, however, is in fact a larceny, (b) embezzlement, violent crime, or other offence made punishable with penitentiary confinement by the law of the State, etc., may legally be visited with this punishment. Ibid., par. 291.

Where the act is charged as a crime under article 62, and charge and specification taken together show an offence punishable with confinement in a penitentiary by the law of the locus of the crime, the sentence may legally adjudge such a punishment.

So held—in a case where charge and specification together made out an allegation of perjury under section 5392, Revised Statutes. (c) Ibid., par. 297.

LIMITS OF PUNISHMENT.

President to prescribe limit of
punishment.
Sept. 27, 1890, v.
26, p. 491.

^a See General Orders, No. 4, War Dept., 1867; G. O. 21, Dept. of the Platte, 1866; 21 ibid., 1871; G. O. 44, Eighth A. C., 1862; G. C. M. O., Nos. 34, 35, 43, 46, 72, and 73, Dept. of the Missouri, 1870.

^b In a case of larceny the court should inform itself as to whether the value of the property stolen be not too small to permit of penitentiary confinement for the offence under the local law. See G. O. 44, Eighth Army Corps, 1862; G. C. M. O. 63, Dept. of the Platte, 1872.

^c Held that penitentiary confinement could not legally be adjudged upon a conviction of a violation of the 21st article, alleged in the specification to have consisted in the lifting up of a weapon (a pistol) against a commanding officer and discharging it at him with intent to kill. By charging the offence under this article the Government elected to treat it as a purely military offence subject only to a military punishment. So, upon a conviction of joining in a mutiny, in violation of article 22, held that a sentence of confinement in a penitentiary would not be legal although the mutiny involved a homicide, set forth in the specification as an incidental aggravating circumstance. To have warranted such a punishment in either of these cases the Government should have treated the act as a "crime," and charged and brought it to trial as such, under article 62. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 296.

court-martial the punishment therefor shall not, in time of peace, be in excess of a limit which the President may prescribe.¹ Act of September 27, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 491).

Disciplinary punishments.—The several Articles of War, and other statutes of similar character, conferring jurisdiction upon certain military tribunals for the trial and punishment of military offenses, operate to deprive commanding and other officers of the power to inflict punishment upon officers and enlisted men under their command save in accordance with the methods prescribed in the statutes above indicated.

A military punishment can legally be imposed only by sentence of court-martial after a regular trial and conviction. Such a punishment can not be imposed by a mere order.

We have in our military law no system of disciplinary punishments. Except in a few cases, unimportant in themselves or of rare occurrence in practice (see arts. 25, 52, 53, and 54), our code recognizes no punishments other than such as may be adjudged upon trial and conviction by a military court. In the General Orders punishments inflicted merely at the will of military commanders have been repeatedly condemned as illegal and forbidden in practice. [See G. O. 81 (A. G. O.), 1822; do. 53, Hdqrs. of Army, 1842; do. 2, 4, War Dept., 1843; do. 39, Hdqrs. of Army, 1845; do. 645, War Dept., 1865; do. 49, Northern Dept., 1864; do. 22, Dept. of the Platte, 1867; do. 44, id., 1871; do. 63, Dept. of Dakota, 1868; do. 106, id., 1871; do. 40, Dept. of the East, 1868; G. O. 50, Dept. of the Missouri, 1871.] Officers who have resorted to such punishments have been repeatedly brought to trial and sentenced. [See G. O. (A. and I. G. O.), of June 30, 1821; do. 8 (A. G. O.), 1826; do. 28, id., 1829; do. 64, id., 1832; do. 2, 6, 68, War Dept., 1843; do. 39, Hdqrs. of Army, 1845; do. 53, Dept. of Va. and No. Ca., 1864; do. 22, Dept. of the Platte, 1867; do. 9, Mil. Div. of the Atlantic, 1869; do. 14, Dept. of South, 1869; G. C. M. O. 50, Dept. of the Missouri, 1871.] And enlisted men, tried and sentenced for insubordinate conduct, where such conduct has been induced or aggravated by illegal corporal punishments inflicted upon them by superiors, have commonly had their sentences remitted or mitigated, or altogether disapproved. [See G. O. 49, 76, Northern Dept., 1864; do. 40, Dept. of the East, 1868; G. C. M. O. 90, id., 1871; G. O. 63, Dept. of Dakota, 1868; do. 76, id., 1871; G. C. M. O. 45, id., 1880; do. 93, Dept. of the South, 1873.] In proper cases, of course, as where violence is employed, escape attempted, etc., by soldiers who are mutinous or disorderly, or in arrest under charges, force may be used against them according to the necessities of the case. [See also G. O. 53, Hdqrs. of Army, 1842; do. 2, War Dept., 1843; G. C. M. O. 47, Hdqrs. of Army, 1877; G. O. 53, Dept. of Va. and No. Ca., 1864; do. 40, Dept. of the East, 1868; G. C. M. O. 112, id., 1870; do. 90, id., 1871; G. O. 23, Dept. of the Lakes, 1870; do. 106, Dept. of Dakota, 1871; do. 93, Dept. of the South, 1873; do. 31, Mil. Div. of the Atlantic, 1873; G. C. M. O. 37, Dept. of Texas, 1880.] This, however, is prevention and restraint, not punishment; the authority to use the needful force in such cases will not justify the superior, when the offender is repressed or apprehended, in subjecting him to arbitrary punitive treatment.

Discretion regarding trial by summary court.—Paragraph 7, Circular No. 13, Adjutant-General's Office, December 5, 1891, reads as follows:

"The fact that the number of trials by inferior court-martial has greatly increased since the establishment of the summary court indicates that officers of the Army have the impression that under the present system they must bring every dereliction of duty before a court for trial, and that they are allowed no discretion in the matter. This is a mistake. Their discretion is the same now as it was under the garrison court system, and they are not obliged to bring cases before the summary court which they believe ought to be disposed of with an admonition or the withholding of privileges or indulgences. The extent of the exercise of this discretion, within these limits, is subject to the control of the commanding officer."

In accordance with the spirit of the foregoing, company commanders are authorized, subject to the control of the commanding officer of the post, to dispose of cases of derelictions of duty in their commands which would be within the jurisdiction of inferior courts-martial, by requiring extra tours of fatigue, unless the soldier concerned demands a trial. This right to demand a trial must be made known to him. Circular 5, A. G. O., 1898.

¹The legal record of a court-martial is that record which is finally approved and adopted by the court as a body and authenticated by its president and judge-advocate. The court as a whole is responsible for the record, and the instrument which it approves as such is its record, however the same may have been made up. It is immaterial to the sufficiency of a record whether the same was kept or written by the judge-advocate or a clerk. So where a clerk or reporter, appointed and sworn to keep the record, did not act, but the record was prepared by the judge-advocate or some other person employed by him to assist him, held that this circumstance did not affect the validity of the record as finally approved by the court. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2140.

For rules respecting the contents and preparation of the records of general courts-martial see Ibid., paragraphs 2136-2140:

Exhibits and appendixes.—It is not necessary to encumber a record by spreading upon its documents, or other writing or matter, excluded by the court. But it should specify the character of the writing and the grounds upon which it was ruled out.

Papers, books, certified copies of documents authorized by law to be used in evidence, and other instruments of documentary evidence which are submitted to the court and read in evidence during the progress of the trial, are noted in the record as "read to the court and appended, marked A, B, C," etc. When it is proposed to submit documentary evidence, its nature and character are explained to the court by the party in whose behalf it is submitted, and these statements, together with any objections to its admission which may be made by the opposite party, and the decision of the court in respect to its admission, are fully set forth in the record.

Loss or destruction of record.—Where the proceedings of a court-martial have regularly terminated, and the sentence has been confirmed and ordered to be executed by the proper and final reviewing authority, the fact that the record has since been lost does not impair or affect the judgment of the court, and constitutes no legal obstacle to the enforcement of the penalty. But where the record of the trial of a soldier who had pleaded not guilty, and in whose case considerable evidence had been introduced, was, by a casualty of war, lost before any action had been taken upon the sentence by the reviewing officer, held that, unless the court could be reconvened and a new record could be made out from extant original notes, the proceedings, inasmuch as they could not be intelligently reviewed or formally approved, should properly be considered as inoperative and the sentence of no effect. Ibid., par. 2139.

Held that the destruction, by fire or other casualty, of the record of the trial, conviction, and sentence of a deserter, before action could be taken upon the same, was of similar effect in law to an acquittal, and relieved the deserter from the forfeiture of pay due at the date of his desertion. Ibid.

1842. When the record of a court exhibits error in preparation, or seemingly erroneous conclusions, the reviewing authority may reconvene the court for a reconsideration of its action, pointing out defects.¹ Should the court con-the officer ordering the court, or by the officer commanding for the time being." The record should therefore be forwarded by the judge-advocate to the convening officer, or to his successor in command, who, under the law, is authorized, by his approval of the findings and sentence, to make the latter operative. The proceedings are forwarded through the same channel, even where the sentence imposed is one which can only be made legally operative by the approval of superior authority; and it is the duty of the original reviewing officer to subject such proceedings to the same examination and review as would be applied to cases in which his approval and orders are final and conclusive.

Disposition of record.—Where the court was convened by a military officer—as, in a case of a general court, the general of the army or a department or army commander—it is the duty of the judge-advocate, upon the completion of the record, to transmit the same to such officer (or his successor in his command) for the proper action. Where the court was convened by the President, it is the duty of the judge-advocate to transmit the completed proceedings directly to the Judge-Advocate-General, (a) in order that, as the staff officer of the President, he may exercise the revisory function reposed in him by section 1199, Revised Statutes. (b)

¹*Revision proceedings.*—Where the record of a trial, as forwarded to the reviewing authority for his action, is deemed by him to exhibit some error, omission, or other defect in the proceedings capable of being supplied or remedied by the court; as, for example, an inadequate, excessive, illegal, or irregular sentence, or a finding not authorized by the evidence; or an omission of some material matter—as a failure to prefix to the record a copy of the convening order, or to authenticate the proceedings by the signatures of the President or Judge-Advocate, or to enter the proper statement as to the members present, or to recite as to the offering to the accused of an opportunity to object to the same, or as to the qualifying of the court by the prescribed oaths, or to fully record the plea, finding, or sentence; or some mere clerical error in a matter of form—the court may and in general properly will be reconvened by the order of the reviewing officer (the convening authority or his successor in the command), for the purpose of correcting the record in the faulty particular, provided a correction be practicable. In a case of an omission the object of course is that the record may be made to conform with the fact. If the fact is that the proceeding, apparently merely omitted to be recorded, was actually not had, the proposed correction can not of course be made. There is no limit to the number of times that a court may be reconvened for a revision of its proceedings. It is not often, however, reassembled a second time where it declines on the first occasion to make the correction desired. (c) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2249.

The order reassembling the court will properly indicate the particular or particulars as to which a revision or correction is desired, or refer to papers accompanying it in which the supposed omission or other defect is set forth. Whether to make or not the proposed correction will be in the discretion of the court. The reviewing authority can not of course compel and would scarcely be authorized to command the court to make it. Ibid., par. 2250.

A correction can be made only by a legal court. At least five, therefore, of the members of the court who acted upon the trial must be present. That there are fewer members at the reassembling than at the trial is immaterial, provided five are

^b It may here be noted that the One hundred and thirteenth Article of War, the only statute relating to the forwarding, by judge-advocates, of the proceedings of general courts, is incomplete, and not in harmony with the provisions of arts. 104 and 109. The practice on the subject—as determined by par. 1057, Army Regulations, and the supplementary orders indicated in the foregoing note—represents quite accurately the existing law, and is as stated in the text.

^c In the case of Judge-Advocate-General Swaim, tried by court-martial in 1885, the record was twice returned for revision. G. C. M. O., No. 19, War Dept., 1885.

cur in the views submitted, it will proceed by amendment to correct its errors, and may modify or completely change its findings. A reopening of the case, by calling or recalling witnesses, is illegal. Par. 1059, Army Regulations, 1901.

present. The judge-advocate should be present. If the court closes, however, he should withdraw. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2251.

It is not in general necessary or desirable that the accused be present at a revision. Where, however, any possible injustice may result from his absence, he should be required or permitted to be present, and with counsel if preferred. Thus where the defect to be corrected consists in an omission properly to set forth a special plea made or objection taken by the accused, it may be desirable that he should be present in order that he may be heard as to the proper form of the proposed correction. Where the error is clerical merely, or, though relating to a material particular, consists in the omission of a formal statement only, the presence of the accused is not in general called for. Ibid., par. 2252.

It is now settled in our law that a court-martial is not empowered at this proceeding to take or receive testimony. (a) Ibid., par. 2253.

The amendment can only be made by the court when duly reconvened for the purpose, and when made must be the act of the court as such. A correction made by the president or other member, or by the judge-advocate independently of the court, and by means of an erasure or interlineation or otherwise, is unauthorized and a grave irregularity. The correction must be wholly made and recorded in and by the formal proceedings upon the revision. The record of the correction as thus made will refer of course to the page or part of the record of the trial in which the omission or defect occurs; but this part of the record must be left precisely as it stands. The court is no more authorized to correct the same by erasure or interlineation on the page, or by the substitution for the defective portion of a rewritten corrected statement, than would be the judge-advocate or a member. (b) Ibid., par. 2254.

Where the court has been dissolved, or, by reason of any casualty or exigency of the service, can not practically be reconvened, there can of course be no correction of its proceedings. Ibid., par. 2257.

The procedure here contemplated is of course quite distinct from the ordinary revision and correction of its proceedings by a court-martial from day to day during a trial and before the record is completed. Ibid., par. 2258.

^aSee G. O. 47, Hdqrs. of Army, 1879.

^bA record can not legally be corrected by an interlineation by the judge-advocate—as by the words “at hard labor” interlined in the sentence. Nor can it legally be corrected by a statement on the margin of a page, signed by the judge-advocate. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., 651, par. 15.

In the case of Private Gundlach, of the Hospital Corps, the sentence was set aside by the order of the President. “The record of the trial failed to show that the members of the court and judge-advocate were sworn, and on being returned for necessary action the court was not reconvened, as contemplated by paragraph 2, page 56, Court-Martial Manual, 1898, but the judge-advocate interlined a statement in the record that the members of the court and the judge-advocate were duly sworn. This action was unauthorized and invalid. A defective record returned for correction can only be amended to conform to the actual facts and by the court itself on revision when duly reconvened for the purpose.” S. O., 99, H. Q. A. 1900. In the case of a cadet tried by general court-martial at the Military Academy in 1844 a verdict of acquittal was reached by the full court composed of seven members. On the following day, six members only being present, the acquittal reached at the previous day’s session was revoked and a finding of guilty was reached and entered upon the record. In respect to this action on the part of the court it was remarked by the Secretary of War that “however it may be asserted that the usage and laws of courts-martial may sanction the right of the court to annul and entirely change their positive decision at any time before their final adjournment, yet it is a right which should be cautiously exercised, and only on obvious and extraordinary occasions. In the present case a full court acquitted the prisoner, and upon the next day a mutilated court—one member being absent—undertake to rescind the judgment of the previous day, and to pronounce the accused guilty and sentence him to punishment. It is not necessary to go into reasons and examples to show the danger and injustice which might result from a portion of the court upon the occasion of an accidental absence of one or more of its members reversing their judgment and changing innocence to guilt. To justify such a reversal the court should be as full and constituted precisely as it was when the judgment was pronounced. In consequence of this irregularity the proceedings of the court are disapproved and the accused ordered to be released from arrest and restored to duty. G. O. No. 40, War Dept., 1844.

Approval of sentence by officer ordering court.
104 Art. War.

¹ This term is employed in military parlance to designate the officer whose province and duty it is to take action upon—approve or disapprove, etc.—the proceedings of a court-martial after the same are terminated, and when the record is transmitted to him for such action. This officer is ordinarily the commander who has convened the court. In his absence, however, or where the command has been otherwise changed, his successor in command, or, in the language of articles 104 and 109, “the officer commanding for the time being,” is invested (by those articles) with the same authority to pass upon the proceedings and order the execution of the sentence in a case of conviction. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2227.

While approval gives life and operation to proceedings or sentence, disapproval, on the other hand, quite nullifies the same. A disapproval of the proceedings of a court-martial by the legal reviewing authority is not a mere expression of disapprobation, but a final, determinate act, putting an end to such proceedings in the particular case, and rendering them entirely nugatory and inoperative; and the legal effect of a disapproval is the same whether or not the officer disapproving is authorized finally to confirm the sentence. But to be thus operative a disapproval should be express. As frequently remarked in the opinions of the Judge-Advocate General, the mere absence of an approval is not a disapproval, nor can a mere reference of the proceedings to a superior without words of approval operate as a disapproval of the proceedings or sentence. (a) The effect of the disapproval, wholly, of a conviction or sentence is not merely to annul the same as such, but also to prevent the accruing of any disability, forfeiture, etc., which would have been incidental upon an approval. (b) A disapproval of a conviction of a particular offense also operates to nullify the conviction of any lesser included offense, involved in the conviction of the specific offense charged.

Where the original reviewing officer disapproves a sentence, to the execution of which the confirmation of superior authority is made requisite by the code, as where (in time of peace) the department commander who has convened the court, in the case of an officer, disapproves a sentence of dismissal adjudged thereby, the sentence being nullified in law, there remains nothing for the superior authority to act upon, and to transmit the proceedings to him for action will be improper and unauthorized.

A reviewing officer can not disapprove a sentence and then proceed to mitigate or commute the punishment, since upon the disapproval there is nothing left in the case upon which any such action can be based.

It is quite immaterial to the legal effect of a disapproval whether any reasons are given therefor, or whether the reasons given are well founded in fact or sufficient in law. Ibid., par. 2229.

² The “officer commanding for the time being,” indicated in this article, is an officer who has succeeded to the command of the officer who convened the court, as where the latter has been regularly relieved and another officer assigned to the command, or where the command of the convening officer has been discontinued and merged in a larger or other command, at some time before the proceedings of the court are completed and require to be acted upon. Thus where, under the circumstances, a

^a See XVI Opin. Att. Gen., 312, where it is remarked that it is not a legal disapproval of a conviction or sentence for the original reviewing officer, in forwarding the proceedings for the action of superior authority, to indorse upon the same an opinion to the effect that the finding is not sustained by the evidence.

^b A disapproval of a sentence by the proper reviewing authority is “tantamount to an acquittal by the court.” XIII Opin. Att. Gen., 460.

1844. No sentence of a court-martial appointed by the commander of a division or of a separate brigade of troops, directing the dismissal of an officer, shall be carried into execution until it shall have been confirmed by the general commanding the army in the field to which the division or brigade belongs. One hundred and seventh Article of War.

The same, confirmation by division or brigade commanders.
Dec. 24, 1861, c. 3, v. 12, p. 330.

separate brigade has ceased to exist as a distinctive organization and been merged in a division, or a division has been similarly merged in an army or department, the commander of the division in the one case, and of the army or department in the other, is "the officer commanding for the time being" in the sense of the article. So where, before the proceedings of a garrison court convened by a post commander were completed, the post command had ceased to exist and the command become distributed in the department, held that the department commander, as the legal successor of the post commander, was the proper authority to approve the sentence under this article. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 326.

Where a department command was discontinued, without being transferred to or included in any other specific command, held that the general in command of the army was "the officer commanding for the time being," and the proper authority to act, under this article and the one hundred and ninth, upon the proceedings and sentence of a court which had been ordered by the department commander, but whose judgment had not been completed at the time of the discontinuance of the command. Ibid., par. 333.

The "officer commanding for the time being" must, to legally act, have the necessary qualifications. Thus, where the sentence is one of a general court-martial, this officer must have the same rank and status as the convening officer must have had under the seventy-second article, i. e., he must be either a general officer commanding the army, division, or department, or a colonel commanding the department. Ibid., par. 335.

In cases, however, of sentences of dismissal and of death, imposed in time of peace, and of some death sentences adjudged in time of war, as also of all sentences, "respecting general officers," while the convening officer (or his successor) is the original reviewing authority, with the same power to approve or disapprove as in other cases, yet inasmuch as it is prescribed by articles 105, 106, 108, and 109 that the sentence shall not be executed without the confirmation of the President, the latter becomes in these cases the final reviewing officer, when, the sentence having been approved by the commander (for, if disapproved by him, there is nothing left to be acted upon by the superior), the record is transmitted to him for his action. A similar division of the reviewing function exists in cases in which sentences are approved, but the execution of the same is suspended, and the question of their execution referred to the President, under article 111. The same function is also shared between inferior and superior commanders, under article 107, in cases in which sentences are imposed by division or separate brigade courts. So, under article 110, in cases of sentences adjudged by field officers' courts in time of war.

Where a general court-martial is convened directly by the President, as commander in chief, he is, of course, both the original and final reviewing authority. Ibid. See, also, in connection with the review of proceedings, the MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL.

The reviewing authority should properly authenticate the action taken by him in any case by subscribing in his own hand (adding his rank and command, as indicating his legal authority to act) the official statement of the same as written in or upon the record. Impressing the signature by means of a stamp is not favored. Ibid., par. 2233.

In acting upon the proceedings of a court-martial, the legal reviewing officer acts partly in a judicial and partly in a ministerial capacity. He "decides" and "orders," and the due exercise of his proper functions can not be revised by superior military authority. Thus held that a reviewing officer who had duly acted upon a sentence and promulgated his action in orders could not be required by a higher commander, or by the Secretary of War, to revoke such action. If the sentence be deemed unwarranted or excessive, relief may be extended through the power of pardon or remission. Ibid., par. 2243.

This article is properly to be complied with by an approval of the sentence (where the same is approved in fact) by "the officer ordering the court," etc., although—as in a case of a sentence of dismissal in time of peace—he may not be empowered finally to confirm and give effect to the sentence. His approval is required as showing that he does not, as he is authorized to do, disapprove. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par 323.

The same, confirmation by officer ordering court.

100 Art. War.

1845. All sentences of a court-martial may be confirmed and carried into execution by the officer ordering the court, or by the officer commanding for the time being, where confirmation by the President, or by the commanding general in the field, or commander of the department, is not required by these articles. One hundred and ninth Article of War.

The approval of the sentence indicated by this article should properly be of a formal character. An indorsement, signed by the commander, of the single word "approved"—a form not unfrequently employed during the late war—though strictly sufficient in law, is irregular and objectionable. So, held that a mere statement, written in or upon the proceedings, in transmitting them to the President, that the record was "forwarded" for the action of superior authority, was insufficient as not implying the requisite approval according to the article. And similarly held of a mere recommendation that the proceedings be approved by such authority. Ibid., par. 324.

A military commander can not, of course, delegate to an inferior or other officer his function as reviewing authority of proceedings or sentence of a court-martial, as conferred by the one hundred and fourth or one hundred and ninth article of war or other statute. Nor can he, regularly, authorize a staff or other officer to write and subscribe for him the action, by way of approval, disapproval, etc., which he has decided to take upon such proceedings. An approval purporting to be subscribed by the commander, "by" his staff judge-advocate or assistant adjutant-general, would be open to question and quite irregular, as would also be any action subscribed by such an officer purporting to be taken "in the absence and by the direction of" the commander. Ibid., par. 2234.

Action taken by a reviewing officer upon the proceedings and sentence of a court-martial may be recalled and modified before it is published, and the party to be affected is duly notified of the same. After such notice the action is beyond recall. The power of remission, indeed, may be exercised so long as any part of the punishment imposed remains unexecuted. But when the final approval of the sentence (or other action taken) has been once officially communicated to the accused, the function and authority of the reviewing authority as such over and respecting the same is exhausted and can not be revived. An approval can not then be substituted for a disapproval, or vice versa. Ibid., par. 2235.

A disapproval of a finding by the proper reviewing authority has the same legal effect as an acquittal, and the soldier can not be made to suffer any of the legal consequences of a conviction. Ibid., 675, par. 9.

Held a good ground for the disapproval of a sentence that the court denied the request of the accused to have summoned a clearly material and important witness, whose testimony would not have been merely cumulative. Ibid., par. 2238.

It is beyond the power of the reviewing officer to change, by his own action, a finding. Thus where, in a case of conviction of desertion, the reviewing authority approved "so much only of the finding of guilty of desertion as convicted the accused of absence without leave," held that he thus substituted a finding of his own for that of the court, and that his action was unauthorized. Ibid., par. 2239.

It is within the authority of a department commander, as reviewing officer, in a case in which a soldier of his command has been sentenced to confinement in a penitentiary, to designate a particular penitentiary within such command as the place of confinement. Ibid., par. 2240.

It is an established principle that when the final action of the reviewing officer has been published in orders to the command and notified to the accused, his power of approval and disapproval in the case is exhausted, and his action can not be recalled or modified. Where a department commander applied to the War Department for the return of the proceedings in a case in order that he might modify his action thereon, held that as the same had been formally promulgated in orders and had duly taken effect, the power of the reviewing officer over the case was exhausted, and the application could not legally be complied with. Ibid., par. 2236.

But where, after the reviewing commander had approved a sentence in general orders, and the court had been dissolved, it was discovered that there was a fatal defect in the proceedings in that they did not show that the court or judge-advocate had been sworn in the case, held that the commander would properly issue a supple-

Where the convening commander dissolves a court pending a trial, his power as to that court is exhausted, and he can not revive it as such. He may reconvene the same members as a court-martial, but it will be another and distinct tribunal. Ibid., 676, par. 16.

¹The article does not require that the confirmation of the sentence shall be signed by the President, nor does it prescribe any form in which the confirmation shall be declared. Held, therefore, that a written approval of a sentence of dismissal authenticated by the signature of the Secretary of War, or expressed to be by his order, was a sufficient confirmation within the article; the case being deemed to be governed by the well-established principle that where, to give effect to an Executive proceeding, the personal signature of the President is not made essential by law, that of the head of the Department to which the subject belongs shall be sufficient for the purpose; the assent of the President to his order or direction being presumed, and his act being deemed in law the act of the President whom he represents. (b) Ibid., par. 337.

The word "approved," employed by the President in passing upon a sentence of dismissal, held to be substantially equivalent to "confirmed," the word used in the ^aSee G. C. M. O., 23, Dept. Dakota, 1888, setting aside void sentences and restoring to duty the prisoners, both of whom were serving confinement, and had been under the terms of the void sentences dishonorably discharged. See also G. C. M. O., 20, Dept. Cal., 1890, where a void sentence was set aside, the dishonorable discharge "canceled" and the prisoner restored to duty.

If, however, the court has not been dissolved it may be reconvened to amend its record to conform to the actual facts; that is, to make it speak the truth. See par. 19, S. O., 99, A. G. O., 1900, in which the following is promulgated: "By direction of the President, the sentence in the case * * * published in paragraph 1, Special Orders, No. 214, Headquarters Separate Brigade, Provost Guard, Manila, Philippine Islands, November 8, 1899, is set aside. The record of the trial failed to show that the members of the court and judge-advocate were sworn, and on being returned [by the War Department] for necessary action the court was not reconvened, as contemplated by paragraph 2, page 56, Court-Martial Manual, 1898, but the judge-advocate interlined a statement in the record that the members of the court and judge-advocate were duly sworn. This action was unauthorized and invalid. A defective record returned for correction can only be amended to conform to the actual facts and by the court itself on revision when duly reconvened for the purpose."

^bThis view has been sustained by an opinion of the Attorney-General of June 6, 1877 (XV Opins., 290), and by a report of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate of March 3, 1879, Report No. 168, Forty-fifth Congress, third session. From this report, indeed, two members of the committee dissented in a subsequent report of April 7, 1879, Mis. Doc. No. 21, Forty-sixth Congress, first session.

article. In practice the two words are used indifferently in this connection. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 386.

This subject has been more recently considered by the United States Supreme Court in a succession of cases (Runkle v. U. S., 122 U. S., 543; U. S. v. Page, 137 U. S., 673; U. S. v. Fletcher, 148 U. S., 84), the effect of which is that a statement of approval of a sentence of dismissal, authenticated by the Secretary of War, is legally sufficient, provided that it appear by clear presumption therefrom that the proceedings have actually been submitted to the President.

In an opinion of the Attorney-General of April 1, 1879 (XVI Opins., 298), it was held that a confirmation of a sentence of dismissal of an officer, though irregularly and unduly authenticated, would be ratified by an appointment by the President of another officer to fill the supposed vacancy, and that the appointment thus made would be valid and operative.

¹An officer suspending the execution of a sentence for the action of the President under this article should first formally approve the same. Simply to forward the proceedings, stating that the sentence has been suspended, is incomplete and irregular. If the commander disapproves the sentence, he can not, of course, suspend and transmit under this article, since there remains nothing for the President to act upon. Ibid., par. 339.

Where a case is submitted to the President for his action under this article, he may approve or disapprove the sentence in whole or in part, and, if approving, may exercise the power of remission or mitigation. Ibid., par. 340.

²The reviewing authority, in approving the punishment adjudged by the court and ordering its enforcement, is authorized, if he deems it too severe, to graduate it to the proper measure by reducing it in quantity or quality, without changing its species; this is mitigation. Imprisonment, fine, forfeiture of pay, and suspension are punishments capable of mitigation. As an instance of a mitigation both in quantity and quality, held that a sentence of imprisonment for three years in a penitentiary was mitigable to an imprisonment for two years in a military prison. (a) Ibid., par. 345.

Held that a reviewing officer other than the President was not empowered by this article to commute a punishment; that the "pardon" here specified was remission, which, unlike the pardoning power vested in the President, did not include commutation or conditional pardon. So, held that a reviewing commander was not authorized to commute the punishment of dishonorable discharge, and that, as such pun-

(a) The power to remit or commute sentences of death and dismissal is reserved by this article for the President. A military commander can not exercise such power, even where, in time of war, he is authorized to approve and execute the sentence. He may then, however, if he thinks that the sentence should be remitted or commuted, suspend its execution for the action of the President (with a recommendation to clemency) under the preceding article. ishment was not susceptible of mitigation, it could not legally be reduced under this article. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 347.

The substitution of the punishment of confinement for that of dishonorable discharge, imposed by sentence of court-martial, would not, of course, be authorized by way of mitigation (which can not change the nature of the punishment), but may be affected by a commutation of the sentence by the President, accepted by the soldier. See the action of the President in the case of Private Hayes, Fifth Artillery, in G. C. M. O., 58, of 1888. Ibid., par. 348.

The order prescribing maximum punishments was not intended to and does not affect the established principle that the reviewing authority, in the exercise of his power of mitigation, can not change the kind of punishment. The power of substitution which may be exercised by the court under the order has no relation to the power of the reviewing officer. Thus held that the substitution by the reviewing officer of confinement for forfeiture, though the period of confinement proposed were less than the court could have substituted, would not be legal mitigation. Ibid., par. 357.

Where a prisoner is serving out a sentence of imprisonment at a military prison or place of confinement within the command of the officer who approved the proceedings, such officer (or his successor in the command) may, under this article, remit at any time the unexpired portion of the pending confinement, although the punishment of dishonorable discharge, imposed by the same sentence, may meanwhile have been duly executed. Ibid., par. 349.

A military commander vested with the power of pardon or mitigation under this article is not authorized to delegate the same to an inferior. Thus held that a department commander could not legally authorize a post commander to remit in part, upon good behavior, the punishment of a soldier under sentence at the post of the latter, who had been convicted by a general court, convened, and whose proceedings had been acted upon, by the former. Ibid., par. 342.

A punishment can not be pardoned or mitigated under this article where it has been once duly executed. Where, however, a sentence has been executed only in part, it may be remitted as to the portion remaining unexecuted. Ibid., par. 343.

The pardoning power here given is not limited in its exercise to the moment of the approving of the sentence, but may be employed as long as there remains any material for its exercise. Under this article, as interpreted by the usage of the service, a department (or army) commander may remit at any time, in his discretion, for any cause deemed by him to be sufficient, the unexecuted portion of the sentence of any soldier confined in his command under a sentence imposed by a court-martial convened by him or by a predecessor in the command. Ibid., par. 344.

1852. Any soldier who thinks himself wronged by any officer may complain to the commanding officer of his regiment, who shall summon a regimental court-martial for the doing of justice to the complainant.¹ Either party may appeal from such regimental court-martial to a general court-martial; but if, upon such second hearing, the appeal appears to be groundless and vexatious, the party appealing shall be punished at the discretion of said general court-martial.² Thirtieth Article of War.

materially restricted by the act of June 18, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 483), which created the summary court. These courts can now try only noncommissioned officers, who if they object to trial by the summary court are required to be brought before regimental or garrison courts for trial, unless their trial by summary court is directed by the authority "of the officer competent to order their trial by general court-martial," and by the act of March 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 951), which authorizes an enlisted man, in the case therein stated, to appeal to a garrison or regimental court. See paragraph 1854, post.

²There are two manifest and unqualified limitations to the province of the regimental court under this article, viz: (1) It can not usurp the place of a court of inquiry; (2) it can take no cognizance of matters which it would be beyond the power of the regimental commander to redress. When the matter is beyond the reach of the commander, it is beyond the jurisdiction of this court. If it involve a question of irregular detail, excessive work or duty, wrongful stoppages of pay or the like, a regimental court under this article may be resorted to for the correction of the wrong. Otherwise when the case is one of a wrong such as can be righted only by the punishment of the officer. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 42.

The "regimental court-martial" under the 30th A. W. can not be used as a substitute for a general court-martial or court of inquiry, for it can not try an officer nor make an investigation for the purpose of determining whether he shall be brought to trial. When, if the soldier's complaint should be sustained, the only redress would be a reprimand to the officer, the matter would not be within the jurisdiction of this court. It can only investigate such matters as are susceptible of redress by the doing of justice to the complainant—that is, when in some way he can be set right by putting a stop to the wrongful condition which the officer has caused to exist. Erroneous stoppages of pay, irregularity of detail, the apparent requirement of more labor than from other soldiers and the like might in this way be investigated and the wrongful condition put an end to. The court will in such cases record the evidence and its conclusions of fact and recommend the action to be taken. The members of the court (and the judge-advocate) will be sworn faithfully to perform their duties as members (and judge-advocate) of the court, and the proceedings will be recorded as nearly as practicable in the same manner as the proceedings of ordinary courts-martial. MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL.

³It is not essential that the "officer commanding" should be of the rank of field officer. A commanding officer, though a captain or lieutenant, may convene a court-martial under this article, provided he has the required command. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 214.

⁴The general term "other place" is deemed to be intended to cover and include any situation or locality whatever—post, station, camp, halting place, etc.—at which there may remain or be, however temporarily, a separate command or detachment in which different corps of the Army are represented, as indicated in the next paragraph. If such a command, so situated, contains three officers, other than the commander, available for service on court-martial, the commander will be competent to exercise the authority conferred by this article. Ibid., par. 216.

shall, subject to the provisions of article eighty,¹ be competent to appoint, for such garrison or other place, courts-martial, consisting of three officers, to try offenses not capital.² Eighty-second Article of War.

1854. Regimental and garrison courts-martial and summary courts detailed under existing laws to try enlisted men shall not have power to try capital cases or commissioned officers, but shall have power to award punishment not to exceed confinement at hard labor for three months or forfeiture of three months' pay, or both, and in addition thereto, in the case of noncommissioned officers, reduction to the ranks, and in the case of first-class privates, reduction to second-class privates: Provided, That a summary court shall not adjudge confinement and forfeiture in excess of a period of one month, unless the accused shall before trial consent in writing to trial by said court, but in any case of refusal to so consent, the trial may be had either by general, regimental, or garrison court-martial, or by said summary court, but in case of trial by said summary court without consent as aforesaid, the court shall not adjudge confinement or forfeiture of pay for more than one month.³ Section 4, act of March 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 951.)

thereunder, that the presence on duty with a garrison, detachment, or other separate command, at a fort, arsenal, or other post or place, and as a part of such command, of a single representative, officer or soldier, of a corps, arm, or branch of the service other than that of which the bulk of the command is composed—as an officer of the quartermaster, subsistence, or medical department, a chaplain, an ordnance sergeant or hospital steward, an officer or soldier of artillery where the command consists of infantry or cavalry, or vice versa, etc.—might be deemed sufficient to fix upon the command the character of one “where the troops consist of different corps,” in the sense of this article, and to empower the commanding officer to order a court-martial under the same. The presence, however, with the command of a civilian employee of the Army—an acting assistant or contract surgeon—could have no such effect. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 217.

¹The Eightieth Article of War, which was repealed by the act of June 18, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 483), gave the field officers court exclusive jurisdiction, in time of war, to try enlisted men for offenses cognizable by the inferior courts-martial. As this court was abolished by the act of June 18, 1898, and its jurisdiction vested in the new summary court created by that act, this clause is no longer operative.

²A commanding officer is not authorized to detail himself, with two other officers, as a court under this (or the preceding) article. An “acting assistant surgeon,” not being an officer of the Army, can not be detailed on such court. Ibid., par. 215.

³Capital offenses (i. e., offenses capitally punishable), not being within the jurisdiction of inferior courts, such courts can not take cognizance of acts specifically made punishable by article 21, however slight be the offenses actually committed. (a)

While inferior courts have, equally with general courts, jurisdiction of all military offenses not capital, committed by enlisted men, yet, in view of the limitations upon their authority to sentence, it is in general inexpedient to resort to them for the trial of the graver offenses, such as larcenies, aggravated acts of drunkenness, protracted absences without leave, etc., a proper and adequate punishment for which would be beyond the power of such tribunals. The more serious offenses should, where practicable, be referred for trial to general courts, which alone are vested with a full dis-

THE SUMMARY COURT.

Constitution
and composition.

v. 30, p. 483.

1855. The commanding officer of each garrison, fort, or other place, regiment or corps, detached battalion or company, or other detachment in the Army, shall have power to appoint for such place or command, or in his discretion for each battalion thereof, a summary court to consist of one officer to be designated by him, before whom enlisted men who are to be tried for offenses, such as were prior to the passage of the act "to promote the administration of justice in the Army," approved October first, eighteen hundred and ninety, cognizable by garrison or regimental courts-martial, and offenses cognizable by field officers detailed to try offenders under the provisions of the eightieth and one hundred and tenth Articles of War,¹ shall be brought to trial within twenty-four hours of the time of the arrest, or as soon thereafter as practicable,² cretion to impose punishment in proportion to the gravity of the offense. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 224.

A sentence forfeiting pecuniary allowances in addition to pay, where the entire forfeiture amounted to a sum greater than one month's pay, held not authorized under this article. Ibid., par. 220.

A sentence, adjudged by a garrison court, of confinement "till the expiration of the term of service" of a soldier, held unauthorized unless the soldier had not more than one month left to serve. Ibid., par. 221.

The limitation of the authority of inferior courts in regard to sentences of imprisonment and fine, held not to preclude the imposition by them of other punishments sanctioned by the usage of the service; such, for example, as reduction to the ranks, either alone or in connection with those or one of those expressly mentioned. Ibid., par. 222.

The limitations imposed by the article have reference, of course, to single sentences. For distinct offenses made the subject of different trials, resulting in separate sentences, a soldier may be placed at one and the same time under several penalties of forfeiture and imprisonment, or of either, exceeding together the limit affixed by the article for a single sentence. (a) Ibid., par. 223.

¹ This court replaces the summary court created by the act of October 1, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 648), which was restricted in its operations to a time of peace. The jurisdiction of the new summary court extends to cases which were formerly tried by regimental and garrison courts, and is exclusive, in respect to the trial of enlisted men charged with minor offenses, except in cases of noncommissioned officers who object to being tried by the summary court. When such objection is made the offender, being a noncommissioned officer, is entitled to be tried by a regimental or garrison court, unless the authority for his trial has been obtained from the authority competent to order the trial of the offender by a general court-martial. The act of June 18, 1898, became operative, in accordance with its terms, on August 17, 1898 (G. O., 80, A. G. O., 1898). Commanding officers of division field hospitals and division ambulance companies, being responsible direct to the division surgeons and division commanders, have authority to appoint summary courts. Par. 2, Circular No. 49, A. G. O., 1898.

² The provision of the act that accused soldiers shall be brought before the summary court for trial "within twenty-four hours from the time of their arrest" is not a statute of limitations nor jurisdictional in its character, but directory only—directory upon the officers whose duty it is to bring offenders before the court. The proceedings will thus be legally valid though the accused does not appear for trial except when the accused is to be tried by general court-martial; but such summary court may be appointed and the officer designated by superior authority when by him deemed desirable.¹ Act of June 18, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 483).

1856. The officer holding the summary court shall have power to administer oaths and to hear and determine such cases, and when satisfied of the guilt of the accused adjudge the punishment to be inflicted,² which said punishment shall not exceed confinement at hard labor for three months and forfeiture of three months' pay, and, in addition thereto, in the case of a noncommissioned officer, reduction to the ranks; and, in the case of first-class privates, reduction to second-class privates. Ibid.

Jurisdiction.
Ibid.

1857. There shall be a summary court record kept at each military post and in the field at the headquarters of the proper command, in which shall be entered a record of all cases heard and determined and the action had thereon; and no sentence adjudged by said summary court shall be executed until it shall have been approved by the officer appointing the court, or by the officer commanding for the time being.³ Ibid.

Record.

within the period specified. So held, in a case of an accused soldier arrested on Saturday, that the court did not, by not sitting on Sunday, lose jurisdiction; and therefore that it is not necessary that a summary court should ever sit on a Sunday. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2395.

The provision in the act in regard to the trial being had within twenty-four hours of the arrest being directory only, a trial held after that time is entirely valid. Thus, where a soldier, by reason of drunkenness or otherwise, is not in a condition to be tried within that time, his trial may be postponed till he is in such condition. Ibid., par. 2396.

¹ The procedure of the summary court should be similar to that of the older courts-martial. The charges and specifications should be read to the accused, and he be required to plead guilty or not guilty, and the witnesses should be sworn. But the testimony is not set forth in the record. Ibid., par. 2398. For procedure of this court see MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL, pp. 65-69, 121, 122.

Held that the provision of the ninety-fourth Article of War relating to the hours of session of courts-martial was not applicable to summary courts. Ibid., par. 2397.

A summary court is not empowered to issue process of attachment to compel the attendance of a civilian witness. Ibid., par. 2400.

A summary court is not empowered to impose a sentence of dishonorable discharge. Such punishment is not in terms authorized by article 83 to be adjudged by regimental or garrison courts, and it is impliedly restricted to general courts by the fourth Article of War. Ibid., par. 2402.

Discretion respecting trials by summary courts.—Paragraph 7, Circular No. 13, A. G. O., December 5, 1891, reads as follows: "The fact that the number of trials by inferior courts-martial has greatly increased since the establishment of the summary court indicates that officers of the Army have the impression that under the present system they must bring every dereliction of duty before a court for trial, and that they are allowed no discretion in the matter. This is a mistake. Their discretion is the same now as it was under the garrison-court system, and they are not obliged to bring cases before the summary court which they believe ought to be disposed of with an admonition, or the withholding of privileges or indulgences. The extent of the exercise of this discretion within those limits is subject to the control of the commanding officer." In accordance with the spirit of the foregoing, company commanders are authorized, subject to the control of the commanding officer of the post, to dispose of cases of derelictions of duty in their commands which would be within the jurisdiction of inferior courts-martial by requiring extra hours of fatigue, unless the soldier demands a trial. This right to demand a trial must be made known to him. Circular No. 5, A. G. O., 1898.

Courts of Inquiry.

¹*Authority and history.*—By a practice from 1847, (a) and renewed and firmly establish during the late war, (b) military commissions have become adopted as authorized tribunals in this country in time of war. They are simply criminal war courts, resorted to for the reason that the jurisdiction of courts-martial, creatures as they are of statute, is restricted by law, and can not be extended to include certain classes of offenses, which, in war, would go unpunished in the absence of a provisional forum for the trial of the offenders. Their authority is derived from the Law of War, (c) though in some cases their powers have been added to by statute. (d) Their competency has been recognized not only in acts of Congress, (e) but in Executive proclamations, (f) in rulings of the courts, (g) and in opinions of the Attorneys-General. (h) During the rebellion they were employed in several thousand cases; more recently they were resorted to under the "Reconstruction" act of 1867; and still later one of these courts has been convened for the trial of Indians as offenders against the laws of war. ¹ This article authorizes the institution of a court of inquiry (a) only in a case of an "officer or soldier," and the word "officer," as employed in the articles, is defined by section 1342, Revised Statutes, to mean commissioned officer. A court of inquiry can not, therefore, be convened on the application or in a case of a person who is not an officer (or soldier) of the Army at the time. Such a court can not be ordered to investigate transactions of, or charges against, a party who, by dismissal, discharge, resignation, etc., has become separated from the military service, although such transactions or charges relate altogether to his acts or conduct while in the Army. A court of inquiry can not be ordered in a case of an "acting assistant surgeon," who is not an officer of the Army, but only a civil employee. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 366.

A court of inquiry should not in general be ordered by an inferior—post or regimental—commander where the charges required to be investigated are not such as an inferior court-martial could legally take cognizance of. Courts of inquiry convened by such commanders are, however, of rare occurrence in our service. Ibid., par. 367.

Though a court of inquiry has sometimes been compared to a grand jury, there is little substantial resemblance between the two bodies. The accused appears and examines witnesses before such a court as freely as before a court-martial (see article 118), and its proceedings are not required to be secret, but may be open at the discretion of the court. Ibid., par. 368.

Although neither article 88 nor other provision of the code specifically authorizes the challenging of the members of a court of inquiry, yet, in the interests of justice and by the usage of the service in this country, this proceeding is permitted in the same manner as before courts-martial. Article 117 requires that members of courts of inquiry shall be sworn "well and truly to examine and inquire, according to the evidence, without partiality, prejudice," etc.; and it is the sense of the service that their competency so to do should be liable to be tried by the same tests as in a case of a court-martial. (b) Ibid., par. 368, note 1.

² A court of inquiry has no power to punish as for a contempt. Such power of this nature as is conferred by article 86 is restricted in terms to courts-martial. Moreover, a court of inquiry, not being in a proper sense a court, can not exercise the strictly judicial function of punishing contempts. A loose observation of Hough (Authorities, 10), that "contempts before courts of inquiry are as much punishable as before courts-martial," has been carelessly repeated by several American writers. The recent English writer, Clode, correctly states the law (as to witnesses) in saying (Mil. and Mar. Law, 198) that a court of inquiry "has no power to punish them for contumacy or silence." The act of March 2, 1901 (G. O. 27, A. G. O., 1901), providing for the punishment of civilian witnesses refusing to appear or testify, is limited by its terms to general courts-martial.

a A court of inquiry is not a court in the legal sense of the term, but rather a council, commission, or board of investigation. It does not administer justice; no plea or specific issue is presented to it for trial; its proceedings are not a trial of guilt or innocence; it does not come to a verdict or pass a sentence. For purposes of investigation, however, a court of inquiry in this country is clothed with ample powers, and, in an important case, its opinions may be scarcely less significant and even final than that of a military court proper, that is to say, a court-martial. 1 Winthrop's Military Law and Precedents, chapter 24.

b See Macomb, sec. 204; O'Brien, 292; De Hart, 278. In the joint resolution of Congress of February 13, 1874, authorizing the President to convene a certain special court of inquiry, it was "provided that the accused may be allowed the same right of challenge as allowed by law in trials by court-martial." It appears, however, to have been regarded in the debate on this resolution (see Congressional Record, vol. 2, Nos. 38, 40) that this provision was unnecessary to entitle the party to the privilege.

the matter now before you, without partiality, favor, affection, prejudice, or hope of reward: so help you God." After which the president of the court shall administer to the recorder the following oath: "You, A B, do swear that you will, according to your best abilities, accurately and impartially record the proceedings of the court and the evidence to be given in the case in hearing: so help you God." One hundred and seventeenth Article of War.

1866. A court of inquiry, and the recorder thereof, shall have the same power to summon and examine witnesses as is given to courts-martial and the judge-advocates thereof. Such witnesses shall take the same oath which is taken by witnesses before courts-martial,¹ and the party accused shall be permitted to examine and cross-examine them, so as fully to investigate the circumstances in question. One hundred and eighteenth Article of War.

While it is of course desirable that the members of a court of inquiry, directed to express an opinion, should concur in their conclusions, they are not required to do so by law or regulation (a). The majority does not govern the minority, as in the case of a finding or sentence by court-martial. If a member or a minority of members can not conscientiously, and without a weak yielding of independent convictions, agree with the majority, it is better that such member or members should formally disagree and present a separate report or reports accordingly. The very disagreement, indeed, of intelligent minds is a material and important fact in the case, and one of which the reviewing authority is entitled to have the advantage in his consideration of and action upon the same. Ibid., par. 370.

Where, as in the majority of cases, the inquiry is instituted with a view of assisting the determination by the President, or a military commander, of the question whether the party should be brought to trial, the opinion of the court will properly be as to whether further proceedings before a court-martial are called for in the case, with the reasons for the conclusions reached. Where no such view enters into the inquiry, but the court is convened to investigate a question of military right, responsibility, conduct, etc., the opinion will properly confine itself to the special question proposed and its legitimate military relations. A court of inquiry, composed as it is of military men, will rarely find itself called upon to express an opinion upon questions of a purely legal character (b). Ibid., par. 371.

It is not irregular, but authorized, for a court of inquiry, in a proper case, to reflect, in connection with its opinion, upon any improper language or conduct of the accused, prosecuting witness, or other person appearing before it during the investigation (c).

a In the case of the court of inquiry (composed of seven general officers) on the Cintra Convention, in 1808, the members who dissented from the majority were required by the convening authority to put on record their opinions, and three dissenting opinions were accordingly given. A further instance, in which two of the five members of the court gave each a separate dissenting opinion, is cited by Hough (Precedents, 642). Mainly upon the authority of the former case, both Hough (Precedents, 642) and Simmons (sec. 339) hold that members nonconcurring with the majority are entitled to have their opinions reported in the record.

b In an exceptional case, that of the special court of inquiry authorized by Congress in the joint resolution of February 13, 1874, the court was required to express an opinion not only upon the "moral" but upon the "technical and legal responsibility" of the officer for the "offenses" charged.

c Thus the court of inquiry on the conduct of the Seminole war adverted, in its opinion, unfavorably upon certain offensive and reprehensible language employed against each other by the two general officers concerned, the one in his statement to the court and the other in his official communications, which were put in evidence. See G. O. 13, Headquarters of Army, 1837.

1869. The proceedings of a court of inquiry may be admitted as evidence by a court-martial, in cases not capital, nor extending to the dismissal of an officer: Provided, That the circumstances are such that oral testimony can not be obtained.¹ One hundred and twenty-first Article of War.

1880. An alien may be admitted to become a citizen of the United States in the following manner, and not otherwise:

Naturalization of aliens.

Sec. 2165, R. S.

First. He shall declare on oath, before a circuit or district court of the United States, or a district or supreme court of the Territories, or a court of record of any of the States having common-law jurisdiction, and a seal and clerk, two years, at least, prior to his admission, that it is bona fide his intention to become a citizen of the United States, and to renounce forever all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty, and, particularly, by name, to the prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty of which the alien may be at the time a citizen or subject.

Declaration of intention.

Apr. 14, 1802, c. 28, ss. 1, 3, v. 2, pp. 153, 155; May 26, 1824, c. 186, s. 4, v. 4, p. 69; Feb. 1, 1876, c. 5, v. 19, p. 2.

¹The power of naturalization is exclusively in Congress. Chirac v. Chirac, 2 Wheat., 260. Jurisdiction for that purpose having been conferred by Congress, courts of record in the several States and Territories have the power to extend the privileges of citizenship to aliens by an application of the provisions of the naturalization laws of the United States. Campbell v. Gordon, 6 Cr., 176; Stark v. Chesapeake Ins. Co., 7 Cr., 420; Chirac v. Chirac, 2 Wheat., 259; Osborn v. United States Bank, 9 Wheat., 827; Spratt v. Spratt, 4 Pet., 393.

For a discussion of the power of the several States to confer the privilege of State citizenship upon aliens, see Collet v. Collet (2 Dall., 294).

Oath to support the Constitution of the United States.
Apr. 14, 1802,
c. 28, s. 1, v. 2. p. 153.

Second. He shall, at the time of his application to be admitted, declare, on oath, before some one of the courts above specified, that he will support the Constitution of the United States, and that he absolutely and entirely renounces and abjures all allegiance and fidelity to every foreign prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty; and, particularly, by name, to the prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty of which he was before a citizen or subject; which proceedings shall be recorded by the clerk of the court.

Residence in United States or States, and good moral character.

Third. It shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the court admitting such alien that he has resided within the United States five years at least, and within the State or Territory where such court is at the time held, one year at least; and that during that time he has behaved as a man of good moral character, attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same; but the oath of the applicant shall in no case be allowed to prove his residence.¹

Titles of nobility to be renounced.

Fourth. In case the alien applying to be admitted to citizenship has borne any hereditary title, or been of any of the orders of nobility in the kingdom or state from which he came, he shall, in addition to the above requisites, make an express renunciation of his title or order of nobility in the court to which his application is made, and his renunciation shall be recorded in the court.

Persons residing in the United States before Jan. 29, 1795.

Fifth. Any alien who was residing within the limits and under the jurisdiction of the United States before the twenty-ninth day of January, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-five, may be admitted to become a citizen, on due proof made to some one of the courts above specified, that he has resided two years, at least, within the jurisdiction of the United States, and one year, at least, immediately preceding his application, within the State or Territory where such court is at the time held; and on his declaring on oath that he will support the Constitution of the United States, and that he absolutely and entirely renounces and abjures all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty, and, particularly, by name,

But the treaty neither mentions nor refers to British subjects or the subjects of any foreign nation other than Russia. Such persons, therefore, residing in the Territory, can become citizens only in the mode and form prescribed by the United States naturalization laws. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., par. 400.

to the prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty whereof he was before a citizen or subject; and, also, on its appearing to the satisfaction of the court, that during such term of two years he has behaved as a man of good moral character, attached to the Constitution of the United States, and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same; and where the alien, applying for admission to citizenship, has borne any hereditary title, or been of any of the orders of nobility in the kingdom or state from which he came, on his, moreover, making in the court an express renunciation of his title or order of nobility. All of the proceedings, required in this condition to be performed in the court, shall be recorded by the clerk thereof.

Sixth. Any alien who was residing within the limits and under the jurisdiction of the United States, between the eighteenth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-eight, and the eighteenth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and twelve, and who has continued to reside within the same, may be admitted to become a citizen of the United States without having made any previous declaration of his intention to become such; but whenever any person, without a certificate of such declaration of intention, makes application to be admitted a citizen, it must be proved to the satisfaction of the court that the applicant was residing within the limits and under the jurisdiction of the United States before the eighteenth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and twelve, and has continued to reside within the same; and the residence of the applicant within the limits and under the jurisdiction of the United States, for at least five years immediately preceding the time of such application, must be proved by the oath of citizens of the United States, which citizens shall be named in the record as witnesses; and such continued residence within the limits and under the jurisdiction of the United States, when satisfactorily proved, and the place where the applicant has resided for at least five years shall be stated and set forth, together with the names of such citizens, in the record of the court admitting the applicant; otherwise the same shall not entitle him to be considered and deemed a citizen of the United States.

1882. Any alien of the age of twenty-one years and upward, who has enlisted, or may enlist, in the armies of the United States, either the regular or volunteer forces, and has been, or may be hereafter, honorably discharged, shall be admitted to become a citizen of the United States, upon his petition, without any previous declaration of his intention to become such; and he shall not be required to prove more than one year's residence within the United States previous to his application to become such citizen; and the court admitting such alien shall, in addition to such proof of residence and good moral character, as now provided by law, be satisfied by competent proof of such person's having been honorably discharged from the service of the United States.¹

Aliens honorably discharged from the naval service.

July 26, 1894, v. 28, p. 124.

1883. Any alien of the age of twenty-one years and upward who has enlisted or may enlist in the United States Navy or Marine Corps, and has served or may hereafter serve five consecutive years in the United States Navy or one enlistment in the United States Marine Corps, and has been or may hereafter be honorably discharged, shall be admitted to become a citizen of the United States upon his petition, without any previous declaration of his intention to become such; and the court admitting such alien shall, in addition to proof of good moral character, be satisfied by competent proof of such person's service in and honorable discharge from the United States Navy or Marine Corps. Act of July 26, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 124).

Under the act of July 30, 1892, an enlisted man, to be eligible for promotion as commissioned officer, must be a citizen of the United States. And, in order to be promptly naturalized, under section 2166, Revised Statutes, he must first be honorably discharged. So, advised that such alien, to be qualified for examination and appointment under the act, should be discharged and, after naturalization, be reenlisted. Ibid., par. 403.

The mere enlistment and honorable discharge of an alien as a soldier of our Army do not per se constitute him a citizen of the United States. He must still make formal petition to one of the courts, etc., specified in section 2165, Revised Statutes, and present thereupon the evidence required by section 2166. Ibid., par. 738.

A native-born minor is a citizen of the United States under the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution. Ibid., par. 737.

1884. Any alien, being under the age of twenty-one years, who has resided in the United States three years next preceding his arriving at that age, and who has continued to reside therein to the time he may make application to be admitted a citizen thereof, may, after he arrives at the age of twenty-one years, and after he has resided five years within the United States, including the three years of his minority, be admitted a citizen of the United States, without having made the declaration required in the first condition of section twenty-one hundred and sixty-five; but such alien shall make the declaration required therein at the time of his admission; and shall further declare, on oath, and prove to the satisfaction of the court, that, for two years next preceding, it has been his bona fide intention to become a citizen of the United States; and he shall in all other respects comply with the laws in regard to naturalization.

1885. When any alien, who has complied with the first condition specified in section twenty-one hundred and sixty-five, dies before he is actually naturalized, the widow and the children of such alien shall be considered as citizens of the United States, and shall be entitled to all rights and privileges as such, upon taking the oaths prescribed¹ by law.

June 17, 1870, c. 133, s. 5, v. 16, p. 154.

1891. Every seaman, being a foreigner, who declares his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States in any competent court, and shall have served three years on board of a merchant vessel of the United States subsequent to the date of such declaration, may, on his application to any competent court, and the production of his certificate of discharge and good conduct during that time, together with the certificate of his declaration of intention to become a citizen, be admitted a citizen of the United States; and every seaman, being a foreigner, shall, after his declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States, and after he shall have served such three years, be deemed a citizen of the United States for the purpose of manning and serving on board any merchant vessel of the United States, anything to the contrary in any act of Congress notwithstanding; but such seaman shall, for all purposes of protection as an American citizen, be deemed such, after the filing of his declaration of intention to become such citizen.¹

¹For statutory provisions respecting seamen in the naval service of the United States, see paragraph 1883, ante.

1892. That upon the completion of said allotments and the patenting of the lands to said allottees, each and every member of the respective bands or tribes of Indians to whom allotments have been made shall have the benefit of and be subject to the laws, both civil and criminal, of the State or Territory in which they may reside; and no Territory shall pass or enforce any law denying any such Indian within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the law. And every Indian born within the territorial limits of the United States to whom allotments shall have been made under the provisions of this act, or under any law or treaty, and every Indian born within the territorial limits of the United States who has voluntarily taken up, within said limits, his residence separate and apart from any tribe of Indians therein, and has adopted the habits of civilized life, is hereby declared to be a citizen of the United States, and is entitled to all the rights, privileges, and immunities of such citizens, whether said Indian has been or not, by birth or otherwise, a member of any tribe of Indians within the territorial limits of the United States without in any manner impairing or otherwise affecting the right of any such Indian to tribal or other property.¹ Sec. 6, act of February 8, 1887 (24 Stat. L., 390).

Citizenship to be accorded to allottees and Indians adopting civilized life.
Sec. 6, Feb. 8, 1887, v. 24, p. 390.

 Sec. 2045, R. S.

² The act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 422), repealed the above requirement in respect to semiannual examinations by inspectors.

place temporarily, subject to the approval of the President, making immediate report of such suspension and designation; and upon the conclusion of each examination a report shall be forwarded to the President without delay. The inspectors, in the discharge of their duties, jointly and individually, shall have power, by proper legal proceedings, which it shall be the duty of the district attorney of the United States for the appropriate district duly to effectuate, to enforce the laws and to prevent the violation of law in the administration of affairs in the several agencies and superintendencies. So far as practicable, the examinations of the agencies and superintendencies shall be made alternately by different inspectors, so that the same agency or superintendency may not be examined twice in succession by the same inspector or inspectors.

Indian agents. 1898. The President is authorized to appoint from time to time, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, the following Indian agents:¹
Feb. 14, 1873, c. 138, s. 1, v. 17, p. 437; June 22, 1874, c. 389, v. 18, p. 147. Sec. 2052, R.S.

Term of office. 1899. Each Indian agent shall hold his office for the term of four years [and until his successor is duly appointed and qualified].²

Bonds. 1900. Each Indian agent, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall give bond in such penalties and with such security as the President or the Secretary of the Interior may require.³
Feb. 27, 1851, c. 14, s. 6, v. 9, p. 587; Mar. 3, 1875, c. 132, s. 10, v. 18, p. 451. Sec. 2057, R.S.

Limits of superintendencies, agencies, and subagencies. 1901. The limits of each superintendency, agency, and subagency shall be established by the Secretary of the Interior, either by tribes or geographical boundaries.
June 30, 1834, c. 162, s. 7, v. 4, p. 736; Mar. 3, 1847, c. 66, s. 1, v. 9, p. 203. Sec. 2066, R.S.

Residence of Indian agents. 1902. Every Indian agent shall reside and keep his agency within or near the territory of the tribe for which he may be agent, and at such place as the President may designate, and shall not depart from the limits of his agency without permission.
Ibid. Sec. 2060, R.S.

² Amended by the insertion of the words in brackets by the act of May 17, 1882 (22 Stat. L., 87).

³ For statute authorizing additional security to be required in certain cases see paragraph 1915, post.

^a The act of July 4, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 76), contained a provision repealing all statutes fixing compensation of Indian agents in excess of the amounts therein appropriated. For a list of agencies, with the salaries thereto pertaining, as fixed by the act of August 15, 1884 (28 Stat. L., 286), see Vol. II, Supplement to the Revised Statutes, page 244, note 2.

1903. The President may require any military officer of the United States to execute the duties of an Indian agent; and when such duties are required of any military officer, he shall perform the same without any other compensation than his actual traveling expenses.¹

Officers of the Army may be required to act as Indian agents. June 30, 1834, c. 162, ss. 4, 12, v. 4, pp. 735-737. Sec. 2062, R.S.

1904. Hereafter the President may detail officers of the United States Army to act as Indian agents at such agencies as, in the opinion of the President, may require the presence of an army officer, and while acting as Indian agents such officers shall be under the orders and direction of the Secretary of the Interior.² Act of July 1, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 573).

The same. July 1, 1898, v. 30, p. 573.

1905. No compensation beyond their actual expenses for extra services shall be allowed any Indian agent or sub-agent for services when doing duty under the order of the Government, detached from their agency and the boundary of the tribe to which they are agents or subagents.

Compensation for extra services. May 31, 1832, c. 109, s. 2, v. 4, p. 520. Sec. 2063, R.S.

1906. All special agents and commissioners not appointed by the President shall be appointed by the Secretary of the Interior.

Special agents and commissioners. Mar. 3, 1863, c. 99, s. 1, v. 12, p. 792. Sec. 2067, R.S.

1907. A competent number of sub-Indian agents shall be appointed by the President, with a salary of one thousand dollars a year each, to be employed, and to reside wherever the President may direct, and who shall give bonds, with one or more sureties, in the penal sum of one thousand dollars, for the faithful execution of their duties. But no subagent shall be appointed who shall reside within the limits of any agency where there is an agent appointed.

Appointment of sub-Indian agents. June 30, 1834, c. 162, s. b, v. 4, p. 736. Sec. 2055, R.S.

1908. The Commissioner of Indian Affairs, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, may devolve the duties of any Indian agency upon the superintendent of the Indian training school located at such agency, whenever in his judgment such superintendent can properly perform the duties of such agency. And the superintendent upon whom such duties devolve shall give bond as other Indian agents.³ Act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 924.)

Superintendent of training school to act as agent.

Bond. Mar. 3, 1899, v. 30, p. 924.

¹ Officers of the Army acting as Indian agents at places where there are suitable quarters provided by the Government are not entitled to commutation of quarters. IV Compt. Dec., 212; III, ibid., 223.

² The acts of July 1, 1898 (30 Stat. L., 573), March 2, 1899 (ibid., 926), and May 31, 1900 (31 ibid., 224), have contained the requirement that the sums appropriated for compensation of Indian agents "shall not take effect or become available in any case for or during the time in which any officer of the Army of the United States shall be engaged in the performance of the duties of Indian agent at any of the agencies" named therein.

³ The act of June 10, 1896 (29 Stat. L., 321), contained the same requirement.

Oaths in pension cases.

July 26, 1892, s. 2, v. 27, p. 272.

1909. Declaration in (pension) claims of Indians may be made before a United States Indian agent. Sec. 2, act of July 26, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 272).

Acknowledgment of deeds, etc., by agents.

Mar. 3, 1855, c. 204, s. 10, v. 10, p. 701.

Sec. 2064, R. S.

1910. Indian agents are authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds and other instruments of writing, and to administer oaths in investigations committed to them in Indian country, pursuant to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed for that purpose by the Secretary of the Interior; and acknowledgments so taken shall have the same effect as if taken before a justice of the peace.

Administration of oaths.

Mar. 1, 1899, v. 30, p. 924.

1911. Hereafter each special agent, supervisor of schools, or other official charged with the investigation of Indian agencies and schools, in the pursuit of his official duties, shall have power to administer oaths and to examine, on oath, all officers and persons employed in the Indian service, and all such other persons as may be deemed necessary and proper. Act of March 1, 1899 (30 Stat. L., 924).

MISCELLANEOUS.

No person to hold two offices; leave of absence.

June 30, 1834, c. 162, s. 10, v. 4, p. 737.

Sec. 2074, R. S.

1912. No person shall hold more than one office at the same time under this Title;¹ nor shall any agent, subagent, interpreter, or person employed under this Title, receive his salary while absent from his agency or employment without leave of the superintendent or Secretary of the Interior; but such absence shall at no time exceed sixty days.

Minis v. U. S., 15 Pet., 423.

Sec. 2077, R. S.

1914. Where persons are required, in the performance of their duties, under this Title,¹ to travel from one place to another, their actual expenses, or a reasonable sum in lieu thereof, may be allowed them, except that no allowance shall be made to any person for travel or expenses in coming to the seat of Government to settle his accounts, unless thereto required by the Secretary of the Interior.

Additional security from disbursing officers, etc.

June 30, 1834, c. 162, s. 8, v. 4, p. 737.

Sec. 2075, R. S.

1915. The President may, from time to time, require additional security, and, in larger amounts, from all persons charged or trusted, under the laws of the United States, with the disbursement or application of money, goods, or effects of any kind, on account of Indian affairs.

DISCONTINUANCE OF AGENCIES.

1916. It shall be the duty of the President to dispense with the services of such Indian agents and superintendents as may be practicable; and where it is practicable he shall require the same person to perform the duties of two agencies or superintendencies for one salary.

Services of certain agents, etc., to be dispensed with.

¹The internal affairs of the Indians were never interfered with by England, and the United States has always recognized them as nations separate from, but dependent upon, us. Worcester v. Georgia, 6 Pet., 515.

If the tribal organization is recognized by the National Government as existing, the States can not regard it as gone. The Kansas Indians, 5 Wall., 737.

While the Government of the United States has recognized in the Indian tribes heretofore a state of semiindependence and pupilage, it has the right and authority, instead of controlling them by treaties, to govern them by acts of Congress, they being within the geographical limits of the United States and being necessarily subject to the laws which Congress may enact for their protection and for the protection of the people with whom they come in contact. U. S. v. Kagama, 118 U. S., 375; Choctaw Nation v. U. S., 119 U. S., 1.

The States have no such power over them as long as they maintain their tribal relations. Ibid.

The Indians owe no allegiance to a State within which their reservation may be established, and the State gives them no protection. Ibid.

Where Indians on a reservation made by order of the President are organized tribes or bands, and are placed under the charge of an agent appointed by the Government, the laws applicable to Indian reservations must be regarded as applicable to them. XVIII Opin. Att. Gen., 563.

All children born of a marriage heretofore solemnized between a white man and an Indian women by blood and not by adoption, where said Indian woman is at this time, or was at the time of her death, recognized by any tribe, shall have the same rights and privileges to the property of the tribe to which the mother belongs, or belonged at the time of her death, by blood, as any other member of the tribe, and no prior act of Congress shall be construed to debar such child of such right. Sec. 10, act of June 7, 1897 (30 Stat. L., 62).

Purchases or grants from Indians. 1950. No purchase, grant, lease, or other conveyance of lands, or of any title or claim thereto, from any Indian nation or tribe of Indians shall be of any validity in law or equity unless the same be made by treaty or convention entered into pursuant to the Constitution. Every person who, not being employed under the authority of the United States, attempts to negotiate such treaty or convention, directly or indirectly, or to treat with any such nation or tribe of Indians for the title or purchase of any lands by them held or claimed, is liable to a penalty of one thousand dollars. The agent of any State who may be present at any treaty held with Indians under the authority of the United States, in the presence and with the approbation of the commissioner of the United States appointed to hold the same, may, however, propose to, and adjust with, the Indians the compensation to be made for their claim to lands within such State which shall be extinguished by treaty.¹

² The term "Indian country" contained in section 1 of the act of June 30, 1834 (4 Stat. L., 79), though not incorporated in the Revised Statutes, and though repealed simultaneously with their enactment, may be referred to in order to determine what is meant by the term when used in statutes; and it applies to all the country to which the Indian title has not been extinguished within the limits of the United States, whether within a reservation or not, and whether acquired before or since the passage of that act. Ex parte Crow Dog, 109 U. Held (October, 1877) that the term "Indian country," as employed in the statutes regulating trade and intercourse with the Indians (see, particularly, Ch. IV, Title XXVIII, Rev. Stat.), might properly be defined in general as including the following territory, viz: Indian reservations occupied by Indian tribes; other districts so occupied to which the Indian title has not been extinguished; any districts not in other respects Indian country over which the operation of those statutes may be extended by treaty or act of Congress. ¹ The Secretary of War has no general authority to license the introduction of spirituous liquors into the Indian country. Under section 2139, Revised Statutes, and the act of July 23, 1892, chapter 234, amending that section and extending it to beer and other malt liquors, the Secretary of War is without authority to permit the introduction into that country of any spirituous or malt liquors intended for sale. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1500.

Where an enlisted Indian soldier belongs to a tribe which remains "under the charge of any Indian superintendent or agent," it is an offense under section 2139, Revised Statutes, to sell him spirituous liquor. Otherwise if he be attached to no such tribe and is under no such "charge." (a) Ibid., par. 1508.

Held that there was no statute of the United States under which the selling of spirituous liquor to Indian soldiers (not under the charge of an Indian agent) stationed on a United States military reservation, by a civilian making the sales off the reservation, could be punished as an offense. Ibid., par. 1510.

In view of the terms of the act of May 21, 1884, establishing a civil government for Alaska, held that the military authorities could no longer legally issue permits for the introduction of liquors into Alaska under G. O. 57 of 1874; section 14 of said act being deemed impliedly to repeal, as to Alaska, that portion of section 2139, Revised Statutes, which empowered the Secretary of War to authorize such introduction. (b) Ibid., par. 1502.

1983. If any superintendent of Indian affairs, Indian agent, or subagent, or commanding officer of any military post has reason to suspect or is informed that any white person or Indian is about to introduce or has introduced any spirituous liquor or wine into the Indian country in violation of law, such superintendent, agent, subagent, or commanding officer may cause the boats, stores, packages, wagons, sleds, and places of deposit of such person to be searched; and if any such liquor is found therein, the same, together with the boats, teams, wagons, and sleds used in conveying the same, and also the goods, packages, and peltries of such person, shall be seized and delivered to the proper officer, and shall be proceeded against by libel in the proper court, and forfeited, one-half to the informer and the other half to the use of the United States; and if such person be a trader his license shall be revoked and his bond put in suit. It shall, moreover, be the duty of any person in the service of the United States or of any Indian to take and destroy any ardent spirits or wine found in the Indian country, except such as may be introduced therein by the War Department. In all cases arising under this and the preceding section Indians shall be competent witnesses.²

¹The above statute relates to the Indian Territory, and is for that reason not operative elsewhere. The act of May 2, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 81, 97), establishing a temporary government for Oklahoma Territory, confers original jurisdiction upon the United States court for the Indian Territory to enforce the provisions of Title XXVIII, chapters three and four of the Revised Statutes, except as to the offenses defined and embraced in sections 2142 and 2143 of the Revised Statutes. Concurrent jurisdiction over the offenses defined in section 2139 was conferred upon this court in connection with the United States courts for the western district of Arkansas and the eastern district of Texas.

²The act of July 4, 1884, provides that no part of section twenty-one hundred and thirty-nine or of section twenty-one hundred and forty of the Revised Statutes shall be a bar to the prosecution of any officer, soldier, sutler or storekeeper, attaché, or employee of the Army of the United States who shall barter, donate, or furnish in any manner whatsoever liquors, wines, beer, or any intoxicating beverage whatsoever to any Indian. 23 Stat. L., 94.

In view of the positive terms of section 2140, Revised Statutes, an officer of the Army not only may but should "take and destroy any ardent spirits or wine found in the Indian country except such as may be introduced therein by the War Department." The section imposes this as a "duty" upon "any person in the service of the United States," including, of course, military as well as civil officials. Held, however, that the authority given by the statute to destroy liquor brought into an Indian reservation did not authorize the destruction by the military of a building, the private property of a citizen, in which the liquor was found stored. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1503.

In view of the duty devolved by section 2140, Revised Statutes, upon "any person in the service of the United States," to take and destroy spirituous liquors in the Indian country, held that a post commander in such country who seized and destroyed a quantity of such liquors introduced into such country without the authority of the Secretary of War, but not found within the limits of his military command, had not exceeded his powers. Ibid., par. 1504.

1984. No part of section twenty-one hundred and thirty-nine or of section twenty-one hundred and forty of the Revised Statutes shall be a bar to the prosecution of any officer, soldier, sutler or storekeeper, attaché, or employee of the Army of the United States who shall barter, donate, or furnish in any manner whatsoever liquors, wines, beer, or any intoxicating beverage whatsoever to any Indian.¹

Indians, while preserving their tribal relations and residing upon a reservation set apart for them by the United States, are wards of the General Government and as such the subject of Federal authority, and the power to legislate for them is exclusively in Congress, and for acts committed within the limits of the reservation they are not subject to the criminal laws of the State. State v. Campbell, 55 N. W. Rep., 553. Independently of any question of title the Federal courts have jurisdiction, for, regarding the Indians as wards of the nation, the United States has full power to pass such laws as may be necessary to their protection and to punish all offenses committed against them within the limits of the reservation. *U. Unless otherwise provided by treaty stipulations with an Indian tribe or by the act admitting the State into the Union, the criminal laws of the State, except so far as restricted by the authority of Congress, "to regulate commerce with the Indian tribes," extend to all crimes committed on an Indian reservation by persons other than tribal Indians. *State v. The supreme court of the District of Columbia has jurisdiction of an offense committed by one Indian upon another Indian when committed outside the Indian country. In re Wolf, 27 Fed. Rep., 60. The prohibition against the jurisdiction of the United States courts to try an Indian for an offense committed on another Indian applies only when the offense is committed in the Indian country. When the Indian commits a crime outside the Indian country (although that crime may be on another Indian) he is, like any other person, amenable to the criminal laws of the place where the crime is committed. Pablo v. People, 46 Pac. Rep., 636.

The power of Congress to regulate the intercourse between the inhabitants of the United States and the Indian tribes therein is not limited by State lines or governments, but may be exercised and enforced wherever the subject—Indian tribes—exists. U. S. v. Bridleman, 7 Fed. Rep., 894; U. S. v. Earl, 17; Ibid, 75. In the exercise of its constitutional power to regulate intercourse with the Indian tribes, Congress may define and punish crimes committed by white men upon the person or property of an Indian, and vice versa, within as well as without the limits of a State. U. S. v. Martin, 14 Fed. Rep., 817; U. S. v. Renfrew, 41 Pac. Rep., 161.

Punishment.

1994. Any person hereafter convicted of any robbery or burglary in the Indian Territory shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding fifteen years, or both, at the discretion of the court: Provided, That this act shall not be so construed as to apply to any offense committed by one Indian upon the person or property of another Indian, or so as to repeal any former act in relation to robbing the mails or robbing any person of property belonging to the United States: And provided further, That this act shall not affect or apply to any prosecution now pending, or the prosecution of any offense already committed. Section 2, ibid.

June 30, 1834, c.
161, s. 16, v. 4, p.
731.

Sec. 2154, B.S.

1996. Whenever, in the commission, by a white person, of any crime, offense, or misdemeanor, within the Indian country, the property of any friendly Indian is taken, injured, or destroyed, and a conviction is had for such crime, offense, or misdemeanor, the person so convicted shall be sentenced to pay to such friendly Indian, to whom the property may belong, or whose person may be injured, a sum equal to twice the just value of the property so taken, injured, or destroyed.

Payment where the offender is unable to make same.

June 30, 1834, c.
161, s. 16, v. 4, p.
731.

Sec. 2155, B.S.

1997. If such offender shall be unable to pay a sum at least equal to the just value or amount, whatever such payment shall fall short of the same shall be paid out of the Treasury of the United States. If such offender can not be apprehended and brought to trial, the amount of such property shall be paid out of the Treasury. But no Indian shall be entitled to any payment out of the Treasury of the United States for any such property if he, or any of the nation to which he belongs, have sought private revenge, or have attempted to obtain satisfaction by any force or violence.

1998. If any Indian, belonging to any tribe in amity with the United States, shall, within the Indian country, take or destroy the property of any person lawfully within such country, or shall pass from Indian country into any State or Territory inhabited by citizens of the United States, and there take, steal, or destroy, any horse, or other property, belonging to any citizen or inhabitant of the United States, such citizen or inhabitant, his representative, attorney, or agent, may make application to the proper superintendent, agent, or subagent, who, upon being furnished with the necessary documents and proofs, shall, under the direction of the President, make application to the nation or tribe to which such Indian shall belong, for satisfaction; and if such nation or tribe shall neglect or refuse to make satisfaction, in a reasonable time not exceeding twelve months, such superintendent, agent, or subagent shall make return of his doings to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, that such further steps may be taken as shall be proper, in the opinion of the President, to obtain satisfaction for the injury.

Injuries to property by Indians.

June 30, 1834, c. 161, §. 17, v. 4, p. 731; Feb. 28, 1859, c. 66, §. 8, v. 11, p. 401.

Sec. 2156, R.S.

1999. Every person who unlawfully cuts, or aids or is employed in unlawfully cutting, or wantonly destroys or procures to be wantonly destroyed, any timber standing upon the land of the United States which, in pursuance of law, may be reserved or purchased for military or other purposes, or upon any Indian reservation, or lands belonging to or occupied by any tribe of Indians under authority of the United States, shall pay a fine of not more than five hundred dollars or be imprisoned not more than twelve months, or both, in the discretion of the court.¹ Act of June 4, 1888 (25 Stat. L., 166).

¹The act of June 4, 1888, prohibiting the cutting of timber on Indian lands, is operative upon the Osage Reservation, and in respect to the Osage Indians. Labadie v. U. S., 51 Pac. Rep., 666. The act also applies to an Indian sustaining tribal relations who cuts timber for speculative purposes. Ibid.

Indians occupying reservations, the title to which is in the United States subject to their occupancy, have no right to cut and remove the dead and fallen timber thereon for the purpose of sale alone; such timber, where not used by the Indians for fuel or for agricultural purposes connected with the occupation of the land, being the property of the United States. Disposal of dead and fallen timber.

Feb. 16, 1889, v.
25, p. 673.

2000. The President of the United States may from year to year, in his discretion, under such regulations as he may prescribe, authorize the Indians residing on reservations or allotments, the fee to which remains in the United States, to fell, cut, remove, sell, or otherwise dispose of the dead timber standing or fallen, on such reservation or allotment, for the sole benefit of such Indian or Indians. But whenever there is reasonable cause to believe that such timber has been killed, burned, girdled, or otherwise injured for the purpose of securing its sale under this act, then in that case such authority shall not be granted.¹

Sec. 2147, R.S.

2001. The superintendent of Indian affairs, and the Indian agents and subagents, shall have authority to remove from the Indian country all persons found therein contrary to law; and the President is authorized to direct the military force to be employed in such removal.²

Penalty for re-

Aug. 18, 1856, c.

Sec. 2148, R.S.

2002. If any person who has been removed from the Indian country shall thereafter at any time return or be found within the Indian country, he shall be liable to a penalty of one thousand dollars.

¹ A contract by an Indian to cut and deliver to a purchaser a certain quantity of dead timber from a reservation, "more or less," or "about," and which is approved by the President under the act of February 16, 1889, limits the quantity to which the purchaser can obtain title thereunder to that stated; allowance being made only for immaterial and accidental variation. U. S. v. Pine River Logging Co., 90 Fed. Rep., 907. The timber on Indian reservations belongs to the United States, and, in the absence of legislative authority, the Indians have no authority to cut or dispose of it. Ibid. The act empowering the President to authorize Indians to cut and remove from their reservations "dead timber" includes in that designation trees still living, but vitally injured, so that they will die in a short time, but not living and uninjured trees merely because they stand among trees a large proportion of which are dead. Ibid. It is not unlawful for an Indian having a contract, approved by the President, to cut and deliver a certain quantity of dead timber from a reservation, to permit other Indians to cut and deliver timber thereunder in his name. Ibid.

² Under section 2147, Revised Statutes, authorizing the use of the military in the removal from the Indian country of "persons found therein contrary to law," held that the President was authorized to direct that a company of United States troops be stationed in the Indian Territory near the Kansas line to act as a patrol, and to apprehend and return within that line any and all lawless persons, guilty of crimes committed in Kansas, who have escaped from justice into the Indian country. Dig. Opin. J. A. G. par. 1505.

Under the Constitution, the acts of Congress, and the regulations adopted by the Indian department, the power of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and the agent acting under him and by his direction in removing any one not a member of an Indian tribe is a matter intrusted to the discretion of the Commissioner, and is not reviewable. Adams v. Freeman, 50 Pac. Rep., 135.

An order from a State court restraining an Indian agent from ousting trespassers from an Indian reservation should be disregarded as without jurisdiction. XX Opin. Att. Gen., 245.

An Indian agent has no authority forcibly to eject persons from land not within an Indian reservation, although it is inclosed in allotments made to Indians in fulfillment of a treaty stipulation, and may be restrained by injunction from so ejecting one who, before such allotment, entered the land as a homestead and made valuable improvements thereon. La Chapelle v. Bubb, 2 Fed. Rep., 545.

2003. The Commissioner of Indian Affairs is authorized and required, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, to remove from any tribal reservation any person being therein without authority of law, or whose presence within the limits of the reservation may, in the judgment of the Commissioner, be detrimental to the peace and welfare of the Indians; and may employ for the purpose such force as may be necessary to enable the agent to effect the removal of such person.

Employment of military force in apprehending persons violating the law.
June 30, 1834, c.
161, ss. 21, 23, v. 4,
p. 732.
Sec. 2150, R.S.

First. In the apprehension of every person who may be in the Indian country in violation of law; and in conveying him immediately from the Indian country, by the nearest convenient and safe route, to the civil authority of the Territory or judicial district in which such person shall be found, to be proceeded against in due course of law;

Second. In the examination and seizure of stores, packages, and boats, authorized by law;

Third. In preventing the introduction of persons and property into the Indian country contrary to law; which persons and property shall be proceeded against according to law;

Fourth. And also in destroying and breaking up any distillery for manufacturing ardent spirits set up or continued within the Indian country.¹

¹ Under section 2150, Revised Statutes, a military commander may be authorized and directed by the President to arrest by military force and deliver to the proper civil authorities for trial any white persons or Indians who may be in the Indian country engaged in furnishing liquor to Indians in violation of law, as also to prevent by military force the entry into such country of persons designing to introduce liquor therein contrary to law. Held that this authority to prevent was clearly an authority to arrest where arrests were found necessary to restrain persons attempting to introduce liquor or other inhibited property. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1506.

The troops of the United States can not be employed in the Indian Territory for the purpose of assisting in the preservation of the peace and the arrest of bandits and outlaws unless they are trespassing upon Indian country, or absconding offenders within the provisions of section 2152 of the Revised Statutes. XXI Opin. Att. Gen., 72.

Whatever may be the rule in time of war and in the presence of actual hostilities, military officers can no more protect themselves than civilians for actual wrongs committed in time of peace under orders emanating from a source which is itself without authority in the premises. Hence a military officer seizing liquors supposed to be in Indian country when they are not is liable to an action as a trespasser. Bates v. Clark, 95 U. S., 204.

Officers of the Army making arrests under section 23 of the act of June 30, 1834 (4 Stat. L., 732; sec. 2150, Revised Statutes), act as officers of civil law. To justify such arrests there must be strong probable cause. In re Carr, 3 Sawyer, 316.

The troops of the United States can not be employed in the Indian Territory to aid in the preservation of the peace and in the arrest of alleged "outlaws" and "bandits" unless such persons are trespassing, or are absconding offenders within the provisions of section 2152, Revised Statutes. XXI Opin. Att. Gen., 72.

Detention of persons apprehended by the military.

Sec. 23, ibid.
Sec. 2151, R.S.

2005. No person apprehended by military force under the preceding section shall be detained longer than five days after arrest and before removal. All officers and soldiers who may have any such person in custody shall treat him with all the humanity which the circumstances will permit.

Arrest of absconding Indians guilty of crime.

June 30, 1884, c. 161, s. 19, v. 4, p. 732.

Sec. 2152, R.S.

2006. The superintendents, agents, and subagents shall endeavor to procure the arrest and trial of all Indians accused of committing any crime, offense, or misdemeanor, and of all other persons who may have committed crimes or offenses within any State or Territory, and have fled into the Indian country, either by demanding the same of the chiefs of the proper tribe, or by such other means as the President may authorize. The President may direct the military force of the United States to be employed in the apprehension of such Indians, and also in preventing or terminating hostilities between any of the Indian tribes.¹

Marshals to execute process in.

June 4, 1888, v. 25, p. 167.

2007. After the passage of this act any United States marshal is hereby authorized and required, when necessary to execute any process connected with any criminal proceeding issued out of the circuit or district court of the United States for the district of which he is marshal, or by any commissioner of either of said courts, to enter the Indian Territory, and to execute the same therein in the same manner that he is now required by law to execute like processes in his own district. *Act of June 4, 1888 (25 Stat. In executing process in the Indian country, the marshal may employ a posse comitatus, not exceeding three persons in any of the States respectively, to assist in executing process by arresting and bringing in prisoners from the Indian country, and allow them three dollars for each day in lieu of all expenses and services.

Superintendents, etc., authorized to take depositions.

June 30, 1884, c. 161, s. 18, v. 4, p. 732.

Sec. 2157, R.S.

2009. The superintendents, agents, and subagents within their respective districts are authorized and empowered to take depositions of witnesses touching any depredations, within the purview of the three preceding sections, and to administer oaths to the deponents.

Held that in the execution of process of arrest under the act of March 3, 1885 (rendering Indians amenable to the criminal laws of the Territories), the military may, by direction of the President, legally be employed to aid the civil officials in such arrests, such employment being expressly authorized by section 2152, Revised Statutes. Ibid., par. 490.

2010. All officers and agents of the Army and Indian Bureaus are prohibited, except in a case specially directed by the President, from granting permission in writing or otherwise to any Indian or Indians on any reservation to go into the State of Texas under any pretext whatever; and any officer or agent of the Army or Indian Bureau who shall violate this provision shall be dismissed from the public service. And the Secretary of the Interior is hereby directed and required to take at once such other reasonable measures as may be necessary in connection with said prohibition to prevent said Indians from entering said State. Sec. 4, act of May 11, 1880 (21 Stat. L., 132).

¹The establishment of Indian police has been authorized by the several acts of appropriation since that of March 27, 1868 (20 Stat. L. 86). The detachments of this force authorized by the Secretary of the Interior to be maintained at the several Indian reservations are employed, under the direction of the respective Indian agents, in the preservation of order and in the execution of the laws relating to the management of Indians and the government of the Indian country.

The powers and duties of the Indian police authorized by the act of May 15, 1886, can not be exercised outside the reservation to which they may be assigned. XVIII Opin. Att. Gen., 440.

A member of the Indian police is not an officer of the United States within the meaning of the first clause of section 5398 of the Revised Statutes, imposing a penalty for resisting any officer of the United States in serving a writ or process; but such police are included among the other persons who may be authorized to serve writs or process within the last clause of the section. *U. ¹ The power to enforce its laws and to execute its functions in all places does not derogate from the power of the State to execute its laws at the same time and in the same places. The one does not exclude the other except where both can not be executed at the same time. In that case the words of the Constitution itself show which is to yield; "this Constitution and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof; * * * shall be the supreme law of the land."

Although no State could establish and maintain a permanent military government, yet it may use its military power to put down an armed insurrection too strong to be controlled by the civil authority. The State must determine for itself what degree of force the crisis demands. Luther v. Borden, 7 How., 1. See also XVI Opin. Att. Gen., 162. See also note to paragraph 2018, post.

² The National Government has the right to use physical force in any part of the United States to compel obedience to its laws, and to carry into execution the powers conferred upon it by the Constitution. "We hold it to be an incontrovertible principle that the Government of the United States may, by means of physical force, exercised through its official agents, execute on every foot of American soil the powers and functions that belong to it." Ex parte Siebold, 100 U. S., 371, 395; U. S. v. Neagle, 135 U. S., 1, 60; Logan v. U. S., 144, U. S., 263, 294; in re Waite, 81 Fed. Rep., 359; U. S. v. Debs, 164, U. S. 724; U. S. v. Cassidy, 67 Fed. Rep., 698.

An officer who, in the performance of what he conceives to be his official duties, transcends his authority, and invades private rights, is answerable therefor to the Government under whose appointment he acts, and to individuals injured by his action; but where there is no criminal intent, he is not liable to answer the criminal process of another Government. In re Lewis, 83 Fed. Rep., 159; in re Fair et al. 100, ibid. 149.

2018. In case of an insurrection in any State against the government thereof, it shall be lawful for the President, on application of the legislature of such State, or of the executive, when the legislature can not be convened, to call forth such number of the militia of any other State or States, which may be applied for, as he deems sufficient to suppress such insurrection; or, on like application, to employ, for the same purposes, such part of the land or naval forces of the United States as he deems necessary.¹ disperse.

2019. Whenever, in the judgment of the President, it becomes necessary to use the military forces under this ries resulting from his military orders or acts; nor could he be required by a civil tribunal to justify or explain them upon any allegation of the injured party that they were not justified by military necessity. He was subject to the laws of war, and amenable only to his own Government. Dorr v. Johnson, 100 U. S., 158; Luther v. Borden, 7 Howard, 1, 46.

As a necessary incident of the power to declare and prosecute war, the Federal Government has a right to transport troops through and over the territory of any State of the Union. Crandall v. Nevada, 6 Wall., 35. See also XVI Opin. Att. Gen., 162; XVII ibid., 242, 333; XIX ibid., 293, and note to par. 2072, post.

¹ Under article 4, section 4, of the Constitution, the Army may be employed to protect a State from "invasion" or "domestic violence" only by order of the President, made "on application of the legislature, or of the executive when the legislature can not be convened." A military commander, of whatever rank or command, can have no authority, except by the order thus made of the President, to furnish troops to a governor or other functionary of a State, to aid him in making arrests or establishing law and order. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 483.

The proviso of the Constitution, "when the legislature can not be convened," may be said to mean when it is not in session, or can not, by the State law, be assembled forthwith or in time to provide for the emergency. When it is in session, or can legally and at once be called together, it will not be lawful for the President to employ the army on the application merely of the governor. Ibid., par. 484.

Where calls are made upon the President, under section 4, article 4, of the Constitution, by two persons, each claiming to be governor of the same State, to protect the State against domestic violence, it of necessity devolves upon the President to determine, before giving the required aid, which of such persons is the lawful incumbent of the office. XIV Opin. Att. Gen., 391; VII ibid., 8; Prize Cases, 2 Black, 97; Dodge v. Woolsey, 18 Howard, 373; Ex parte Milligan, 4 Wallace, 129.

A military force employed according to article 4, section 4, of the Constitution, is to remain under the direction and orders of the President as Commander in Chief and his military subordinates; it can not be placed under the direct orders or exclusive disposition of the governor of the State. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 485.

In all cases of civil disorders or domestic violence it is the duty of the Army to preserve an attitude of indifference and inaction till ordered to act by the President, by the authority of the Constitution or of section 2150, 5297, or 5298, Revised Statutes, or other public statute. An officer or soldier may, indeed, interfere to arrest a person in the act of committing a crime, or to prevent a breach of the peace in his presence, but this he does as a citizen and not in his military capacity. Any combined effort by the military, as such, to make arrests or otherwise prevent breaches of the peace or violations of law in civil cases, except by the order of the President or the requirement of a United States official authorized to require their services on a posse comitatus, must necessarily be illegal. In a case of civil disturbance in violation of the laws of a State, a military commander can not volunteer to intervene with his command without incurring a personal responsibility for his acts. In the absence of the requisite orders he may not even march or array his command for the purpose of exerting a moral effect or any effect in terrorem; such a demonstration, indeed, could only compromise the authority of the United States, while insulting the sovereignty of the State. Ibid., par. 488.

See also General Orders, No. 26, Adjutant-General's Office, of 1894 (A. R., 487), for instructions as to the use of the military force in support of the civil authority.

title, the President shall forthwith, by proclamation, command the insurgents to disperse and retire peaceably to their respective abodes, within a limited time.¹

2020. Whenever the United States are invaded, or are in imminent danger of invasion from any foreign nation or Indian tribe, or of rebellion against the authority of the Government of the United States, it shall be lawful for the President to call forth such number of the militia of the State or States, most convenient to the place of danger, or scene of action, as he may deem necessary to repel such invasion, or to suppress such rebellion, and to issue his orders for that purpose to such officers of the militia as he may think proper.²

2021. When the militia of more than one State is called into the actual service of the United States by the President, he shall apportion them among such States according to representative population.

2022. The militia, when called into the actual service of the United States for the suppression of rebellion against and resistance to the laws of the United States, shall be subject to the same rules and articles of war as the regular troops of the United States.

¹See XVII Opin. Att. Gen., 333. Section 2 of the act of May 4, 1880 (21 Stat. L., 113), contained the requirement "that no money appropriated in this act is appropriated or shall be paid for the subsistence, equipment, transportation, or compensation of any portion of the Army of the United States to be used as a police force to keep the peace at the polls at any election held within any State: Provided, That nothing in this provision shall be construed to prevent the use of troops to protect against domestic violence in each of the States on application of the legislature thereof or of the executive when the legislature can not be convened."

²The act of February 28, 1795 (1 Stat. L., 424), authorizing the President, under certain circumstances, to call out the militia, is constitutional, and the President is the final judge of the emergency justifying such a call. Martin v. Mott, 12 Wheat., 19. By this act the power of deciding whether the exigency had arisen upon which the Government of the United States is bound to interfere is given to the President. He is to act upon the application of the legislature, or of the executive, and consequently he must determine what body of men constitute the legislature, and who is the governor before he can act. The fact that both parties claim the right to the government can not alter the case, for both can not be entitled to it. If there is an armed conflict, like the one of which we are speaking, it is a case of domestic violence, and one of the parties must be in insurrection against the lawful government. And the President must, of necessity, decide which is the government, and which party is unlawfully arrayed against it, before he can perform the duty imposed upon him by the act of Congress. Luther v. Borden, 7 How., I, II.

In the case of Houston v. Moore (5 Wheat., 1), it was decided that although a militiaman who refused to obey the orders of the President calling him into the public service was not, in the sense of the act of February 28, 1795, "employed in the service of the United States," so as to be subject to the Rules and Articles of War, yet that he was liable to be tried for the offense under the fifth section of the same act, by court-martial called under the authority of the United States. The great doubt in that case was whether the delinquent was liable to be tried for the offense by a court-martial organized under State authority. Martin v. Mott, 12 Wheat., 19, 34.

2042. Whenever the President shall deem it impracticable, by reason of unlawful combinations of persons in opposition to the laws of the United States, to collect the duties on imports in the ordinary way, at any port of entry in any collection district, he may cause such duties to be collected at any port of delivery in the district until such obstruction ceases; in such case the surveyor at such port of delivery shall have the powers and be subject to all the obligations of a collector at a port of entry. The Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, shall also appoint such weighers, gaugers, measurers, inspectors, appraisers, and clerks as he may deem necessary, for the faithful execution of the revenue laws at such port of delivery, and shall establish the limits within which such port of delivery is constituted a port of entry. And all the provisions of law regulating the issue of marine papers, the coasting trade, the warehousing of imports, and the collection of duties, shall apply to the ports of entry thus constituted, in the same manner as they do to ports of entry established by law.

2043. Whenever, at any port of entry, the duties on imports can not, in the judgment of the President, be collected in the ordinary way, or by the course provided in the preceding section, by reason of the cause mentioned therein, he may direct that the custom-house for the district be established in any secure place within the district, either on land or on board any vessel in the district, or at sea near the coast; and in such case the collector shall reside at such place, or on shipboard, as the case may be, and there detain all vessels and cargoes arriving within or approaching the district, until the duties imposed by law on such vessels and their cargoes are paid in cash. But if the owner or consignee of the cargo on board any vessel thus detained, or the master of the vessel, desires to enter a port of entry in any other district where no such obstructions to the execution of the laws exist, the master may be permitted so to change the destination of the vessel and cargo in his manifest; whereupon the collector shall deliver him a written permit to proceed to the port so designated. And the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, shall make proper regulations for the enforcement on shipboard of such provisions of the laws regulating the assessment and collection of duties as in his judgment may be necessary and practicable.

lamation. And thereupon all right of importation, warehousing, and other privileges incident to ports of entry shall cease and be discontinued at such port so closed until it is opened by the order of the President on the cessation of such obstructions. Every vessel from beyond the United States, or having on board any merchandise liable to duty, which attempts to enter any port which has been closed under this section, shall, with her tackle, apparel, furniture, and cargo, be forfeited.

Vessels in addition to revenue cutters may be employed.

Sec. 7, ibid.
Sec. 5318, R.S.

2046. In the execution of laws providing for the collection of duties on imports and tonnage, the President, in addition to the revenue cutters in service, may employ in aid thereof such other suitable vessels as may, in his judgment, be required.

Forfeiture of vessels belonging to citizens of insurrectionary States.

Ibid.
Sec. 5319, R.S.

2047. From and after fifteen days after the issuing of the proclamation, as provided in section fifty-three hundred and one [Rev. Stat.],¹ any vessel belonging in whole or in part to any citizen or inhabitant of such State or part of a State whose inhabitants are so declared in a state of insurrection, found at sea, or in any port of the rest of the United States, shall be forfeited.²

Refusal of clearance to vessels laden with suspected merchandise.

May 20, 1862, c. 81, § 1, v. 12, p. 404.

Sec. 5320, R.S.

2048. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to refuse a clearance to any vessel or other vehicle laden with merchandise, destined for a foreign or domestic port, whenever he shall have satisfactory reason to believe that such merchandise, or any part thereof, whatever may be its ostensible destination, is intended for ports in possession or under control of insurgents against the United States; and if any vessel for which a clearance or permit has been refused by the Secretary of the Treasury, or by his order, shall depart or attempt to depart for a foreign or domestic port without being duly cleared or permitted, such vessel, with her tackle, apparel, furniture, and cargo, shall be forfeited.

Bond upon clearance.

in affording aid or comfort to any person or parties in insurrection against the authority of the United States.

2050. In all cases wherein any vessel, or other property, is condemned in any proceeding by virtue of any laws relating to insurrection or rebellion, the court rendering judgment of condemnation shall, notwithstanding such condemnation, and before awarding such vessel, or other property, or the proceeds thereof, to the United States, or to any informer, first provide for the payment, out of the proceeds of such vessel, or other property, of any bona-fide claims which shall be filed by any loyal citizen of the United States, or of any foreign state or power at peace and amity with the United States, intervening in such proceeding, and which shall be duly established by evidence as a valid claim against such vessel, or other property, under the laws of the United States or any State thereof not declared to be in insurrection. No such claim shall be allowed in any case where the claimant has knowingly participated in the illegal use of such ship, vessel, or other property. This section shall extend to such claims only as might have been enforced specifically against such vessel, or other property, in any State not declared to be in insurrection, wherein such claim arose.¹

2054. First. If two or more persons in any State or Territory conspire to prevent, by force, intimidation, or threat, any person from accepting or holding any office, trust, or place of confidence under the United States, or from discharging any duties thereof; or to induce by like means any officer of the United States to leave any State, district, or place, where his duties as an officer are required to be performed, or to injure him in his person or property on account of his lawful discharge of the duties of his office, or while engaged in the lawful discharge thereof, or to injure his property so as to molest, interrupt, hinder, or impede him in the discharge of his official duties;

Second. If two or more persons in any State or Territory conspire to deter, by force, intimidation, or threat, any party or witness in any court of the United States from attending such court, or from testifying to any matter pending therein, freely, fully, and truthfully, or to injure such party or witness in his person or property on account of his having so attended or testified, or to influence the verdict, presentment, or indictment of any grand or petit juror in any such court, or to injure such juror in his person or property on account of any verdict, presentment, or indictment lawfully assented to by him, or of his being or having been such juror; or if two or more persons conspire for the purpose of impeding, hindering, obstructing, or defeating, in any manner, the due course of justice in any State or Territory, with intent to deny to any citizen the equal protection of the laws, or to injure him or his property for lawfully enforcing, or attempting to enforce, the right of any person, or class of persons, to the equal protection of the laws;

Third. If two or more persons in any State or Territory conspire, or go in disguise on the highway or on the premises of another, for the purpose of depriving, either directly or indirectly, any person or class of persons of the equal protection of the laws, or of equal privileges and immunities under the laws; or for the purpose of preventing or hindering the constituted authorities of any State or Territory from giving or securing to all persons within such State or Territory the equal protection of the laws; or if two or more persons conspire to prevent by force, intimidation, or threat, any citizen who is lawfully entitled to vote, from giving his support or advocacy in a legal manner, toward or in favor of the election of any lawfully qualified person as an elector for President or Vice-President, or as a member of Congress of the United States; or to injure any citizen in person or property on account of such support or advocacy; in any case of conspiracy set forth in this section, if one or more persons engaged therein do, or cause to be done, any act in furtherance of the object of such conspiracy, whereby another is injured in his person or property, or deprived of having and exercising any right or privilege of a citizen of the United States, the party so injured or deprived may have an action for the recovery of damages, occasioned by such injury or deprivation, against any one or more of the conspirators.

2055. Every person who, having knowledge that any of the wrongs conspired to be done, and mentioned in the preceding section, are about to be committed, and having power to prevent or aid in preventing the commission of the same, neglects or refuses so to do, if such wrongful act be committed, shall be liable to the party injured or his legal representatives, for all damages caused by such wrongful act, which such person by reasonable diligence could have prevented; and such damages may be recovered in an action on the case; and any number of persons guilty of such wrongful neglect or refusal may be joined as defendants in the action; and if the death of any party be caused by any such wrongful act and neglect, the legal representatives of the deceased shall have such action therefor, and may recover not exceeding five thousand dollars damages therein, for the benefit of the widow of the deceased, if there be one, and if there be no widow, then for the benefit of the next of kin of the deceased. But no action under the provisions of this section shall be sustained which is not commenced within one year after the cause of action has accrued.

Accepting a foreign commission.

Apr. 20, 1818, c. 88, s. 1, v. 3, p. 447.
 Sec. 5281, R. S.

2079. Every citizen of the United States who, within the territory or jurisdiction thereof, accepts and exercises a commission to serve a foreign prince, state, colony, district, or people, in war, by land or by sea, against any prince, state, colony, district, or people with whom the United States are at peace, shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and shall be fined not more than two thousand dollars and imprisoned not more than three years.²

¹ The neutrality act has been uniformly treated, by the Executive Departments and by judges of the United States courts, as embracing warlike enterprises set on foot in this country against a friendly power at peace with all the world. U. S. v. Sullivan, 9 N. Y. Leg. Obs., 257.

Neutrality, strictly speaking, consists in abstinence from any participation in a public, private, or civil war, and in impartiality of conduct toward both parties; but the maintenance unbroken of peaceful relations between two powers when the domestic peace of one of them is disturbed is not neutrality in the sense in which the word is used when the disturbance has acquired such head as to have demanded the recognition of belligerency; and, as mere matter of municipal administration, no nation can permit unauthorized acts of war within its territory in infraction of its sovereignty, while good faith toward friendly nations requires their prevention. The Three Friends, 166 U. S., 1.

The organization, in one country or State, of combinations to aid or abet rebellion in another, or in any other way to act on its political institutions, is a violation of national amity and comity, and an act of semiohostile interference with the affairs of other peoples. * * * But there is no municipal law to forbid and punish such combinations, either in the United States or Great Britain. VIII Opin. Att. Gen., 216.

The policy of this country is, and ever has been, a perfect neutrality and noninterference in the quarrels of other nations. III Opin. Att. Gen., 739.

The act of April 30, 1818, like that of June 5, 1794, was intended to secure, beyond all risk of violation, the neutrality and pacific policy which they consecrate as our fundamental law. Ibid., 741.

In the absence of express authority from Congress, an officer of the Army can not accept remuneration from a foreign power, in return for military or other public service rendered, without a violation of Art. I, sec. 9, par. 7, of the Constitution. (a) Nor can such an officer (in the absence of such authority) properly be granted a leave of absence for the purpose of rendering foreign service, even without compensation, since such a proceeding would be contrary to the spirit and intent of the laws relating to the Army, which clearly contemplate that the services of its officers shall be rendered to the United States. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1375.

² The enlistment of seamen or others for marine service on Mexican steamers in New York, they not being Mexicans transiently within the United States, is a clear violation of this section, and the persons enlisted, as well as the officers enlisting them, are liable to the penalties thereby incurred. IV Opin. Att. Gen., 336.

This section applies to foreign consuls raising troops in the United States for the military service of Great Britain. VII ibid., 367. It does not apply to those who go

^a See U. S. v. Landers, 2 Otto., 79; XIII Opin. Att. Gen., 199.

2080. Every person who, within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States, enlists or enters himself, or hires or retains another person to enlist or enter himself, or to go beyond the limits or jurisdiction of the United States with intent to be enlisted or entered in the service of any foreign prince, state, colony, district, or people, as a soldier, or as a marine or seaman, on board of any vessel of war, letter of marque, or privateer, shall be deemed guilty of high misdemeanor, and shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars, and imprisoned not more than three years.¹

Sec. 2, ibid., p.

2081. Every person who, within the limits of the United States, fits out and arms, or attempts to fit out and arm, or procures to be fitted out and armed, or knowingly is concerned in the furnishing, fitting out, or arming, of any vessel, with intent that such vessel shall be employed in the service of any foreign prince or state, or of any colony, district, or people, to cruise or commit hostilities against the subjects, citizens, or property of any foreign prince or state, or of any colony, district, or people, with whom the United States are at peace, or who issues or delivers a commission within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States, for any vessel, to the intent that she may be so employed, shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and shall be fined not more than ten thousand dollars and imprisoned not more than three years. And every such vessel, with her tackle, apparel, and furniture, together with all materials, arms, ammunition, and stores which may have been procured for the building and equipment thereof, shall be forfeited; one-half to the use of the informer and the other half to the use of the United States.²

abroad for foreign enlistment, or to those who transport such persons. U. S. v. Kazinski, 2 Sprague, 7. The enlistment must be made within the territory of the United States, and the section does not apply to one who goes abroad with intent there to enlist. Ibid. The words "soldier" and "enlist" as used in this section are to be understood in their technical sense. Ibid.; U. S. v. O'Brien, 75 Fed. Rep., 900.

² To constitute an offense under this section, the vessel must be fitted out and armed with the specific intent. U. S. v. Skinner, 1 Brun. Coll. Cases. It is not necessary that the vessel should be armed or manned for the purpose of committing hostilities, before she leaves the United States, if it is the intention that she shall be so fitted subsequently (The City of Mexico, 28 F. R., 148). or if the separate parts of the expedition are to be united on the high seas. U. S. v. The Mary N. Hogan, 18 Fed. Rep., 529, and 20 ibid., 50; The Carondelet, 37 Fed. Rep., 799; The Lancaster, 85 ibid., 760; U. S. v. Quincy, 6 Peters, 445.

The status of the insurgent party will be regarded by the courts as it is regarded by the political or executive departments of the United States at the time of the commission of the alleged offense. *Gelston v. Sec. 5284, R.S.

2082. Every citizen of the United States who, without the limits thereof, fits out and arms, or attempts to fit out and arm, or procures to be fitted out and armed, or knowingly aids or is concerned in furnishing, fitting out, or arming any private vessel of war, or privateer, with intent that such vessel shall be employed to cruise or commit hostilities upon the citizens of the United States or their property, or who takes the command of or enters on board of any such vessel for such intent, or who purchases any interest in any such vessel, with a view to share in the profits thereof, shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and fined not more than ten thousand dollars and imprisoned not more than ten years. And the trial for such offense, if committed without the limits of the United States, shall be in the district in which the offender shall be apprehended or first brought.

force of foreign

Sec. 5, ibid.

Sec. 5285, R.S.

2083. Every person who, within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States, increases or augments, or procures to be increased or augmented, or knowingly is 552; U. S. v. Trumbull, 48 F. R., 99, 104. The word "people," as used in this section, is "one of the denominations applied by the act of Congress to a foreign power." U. S. v. Quincy, 6 Pet., 445.

I know of no law or regulation which forbids any person, or government, whether the political designation be real or assumed, from purchasing arms from the citizens of the United States and shipping them at the risk of the purchaser. X Opin. Att. Gen., 452. The sending of munitions of war from a neutral country to a belligerent port for sale, as articles of commerce, is unlawful only as subjecting such property to capture. The Santissima Trinidad, 7 Wheat., 283; The City of Mexico, 24 F. R., 924. It is the right of a belligerent to purchase goods and instruments of war in a neutral nation, but it may be denied by a law passed for such purpose. X Opin. Att. Gen., 61.

The provisions of this section do not apply to a vessel which receives arms and munition of war in this country, as cargo merely, with intent to carry them to a party of insurgents in a foreign country, but not with the intent that they shall constitute any part of the fittings or furnishings of the vessel herself. U. S. v. The Itata, 56 F. R., 608; U. S. v. 2,000 Cases of Rifles, ibid. A vessel is not liable to forfeiture under this section, nor is she liable to condemnation as piratical, on the ground that she is in the employ of an insurgent party which has not been recognized by the United States as having belligerent rights. U. S. v. The Itata, 56 F. R., 608; U. S. v. Weed, 5 Wall., 62; The Watchful, 6 Wall., 91.

In the case of the Horsa, Wiborg v. U. S., 163 U. S. 632, decided on appeal in the Supreme Court of the United States on May 25, 1896, it was held "that any combination of men organized to go to Cuba to make war upon its government, provided with arms and ammunition, constitutes a military expedition. It is not necessary that the men shall be drilled, put in uniform, or prepared for efficient service, nor that they shall have been organized as or according to the tactics or rules which relate to what is known as infantry, cavalry, or artillery. It is sufficient that they shall have combined and organized here to go there and make war on a foreign government, and to have provided themselves with the means of doing so. Whether such provision, as by arming, etc., is necessary need not to be decided in this case. Nor is it important that they intended to make war as an independent body or in connection with others. Where men go without such combination and organization to enlist as individuals in a foreign army, they do not constitute such military expedition, and the fact that the vessel carrying them might carry arms as merchandise would not be important." See also The Estrella, 4 Wh., 298; The Gran Para, 7 Wh., 471; The Santa Maria, 7 Wh., 490; The Monte Allegre, 7 Wh., 520; U. S. v. Reyburn, 6 Pet., 352; U. S. v. Quincy, 6 Pet., 445; Wiborg v. U. S., 163, U. S. 632.

concerned in increasing or augmenting, the force of any ship of war, cruiser, or other armed vessel, which at the time of her arrival within the United States was a ship of war, or cruiser, or armed vessel, in the service of any foreign prince or state, or of any colony, district, or people, or belonging to the subjects or citizens of any such prince or state, colony, district, or people, the same being at war with any foreign prince or state, or of any colony, district, or people, with whom the United States are at peace, by adding to the number of the guns of such vessel, or by changing those on board of her for guns of a larger caliber, or by adding thereto any equipment solely applicable to war, shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars and be imprisoned not more than one year.¹

2084. Every person who, within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States, begins, or sets on foot, or provides or prepares the means for, any military expedition or enterprise, to be carried on from thence against the territory or dominions of any foreign prince or state, or of any colony, district, or people, with whom the United States are at peace, shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding three thousand dollars, and imprisoned not more than three years.²

Military expeditions against people at peace with the United States.
Sec. 6, ibid., p. 449.
Sec. 5286, U.S.

The taking on of a crew of American citizens, or of aliens domiciled in the United States would constitute a violation of this section. The Alerta, 9 Cranch, 359.

² When a party of insurgents, already organized and carrying on war against the government of a foreign country, send a vessel to procure arms and ammunition in the United States, the act of purchasing such arms and ammunition and placing them aboard the vessel is not within the scope of this section, which prescribes a penalty for every person who, within the limits of the United States, begins or sets on foot, or prepares or provides the means for any military expedition or enterprise "to be carried on from thence." Such expeditions and enterprises must originate within the jurisdiction of the United States, and the terms of the statute do not apply to an expedition originating within the territory of a foreign state. U. S. v. Trumbull, 48 Fed. Rep., 99. For liability of the officers of the ship, see U. S. v. Rand, 17 ibid., 142. See, also, Wiborg v. U. S., 163 U. S., 632; U. S. v. Ybanez, 53 Fed. Rep., 536; U. S. v. Pena, 69 ibid., 983; U. S. v. Hughes, 70 ibid., 972; U. S. v. Hart, 74 ibid., 724; U. S. v. Nuñez, 82 ibid., 599; U. S. v. Murphy, 84 ibid., 609.

The transportation of goods for commercial purposes only, and the carriage of persons separately, though their individual design may be to enlist in a foreign strife, are not prohibited by our law, if the transportation is without any features of a military character. Indications of a military operation or of a military expedition are concert and unity of action, organization of men to act together, the presence of weapons, and some form of command or leadership. When these exist and are known to the persons engaged in the transportation, all who knowingly aid in such transportation for military purposes are liable under section 5286 of the Revised Statutes. Claim of United States to islands.
 Aug. 18, 1856, c. 164, s. 1, v. 11, p. 119.

2094. Whenever any citizen of the United States discovers a deposit of guano on any island, rock, or key, not within the lawful jurisdiction of any other government, and not occupied by the citizens of any other government, and takes peaceable possession thereof, and occupies the same, such island, rock, or key may, at the discretion of the President, be considered as appertaining to the United States.

Notice of discovery and proofs to be furnished.
Ibid.
 Sec. 5571, R. S.

2095. The discoverer shall, as soon as practicable, give notice, verified by affidavit, to the Department of State, of such discovery, occupation, and possession, describing the island, rock, or key, and the latitude and longitude thereof, as near as may be, and showing that such possession was taken in the name of the United States; and shall furnish satisfactory evidence to the State Department that such island, rock, or key was not, at the time of the discovery thereof, or of the taking possession and occupation thereof by the claimants, in the possession or occupation of any other government or of the citizens of any other government, before the same shall be considered as appertaining to the United States.

Completion of proof in case of death of discoverer.
 Apr. 2, 1872, c. 81, s. 1, v. 17, p. 48.
 Sec. 5572, R. S.

2096. If the discoverer dies before perfecting proof of discovery or fully complying with the provisions of the preceding section, his widow, heir, executor, or administrator shall be entitled to the benefits of such discovery, upon complying with the provisions of this Title; but nothing herein contained shall be held to impair any rights of discovery or any assignment by a discoverer heretofore recognized by the United States.

Exclusive privileges of discoverer.
 Aug. 18, 1856, c. 164, s. 2, v. 11, p. 119.
 Sec. 5573, R. S.

2097. The discoverer, or his assigns, being citizens of the United States, may be allowed, at the pleasure of Congress, the exclusive right of occupying such island, rocks, or keys for the purpose of obtaining guano, * * * and may be allowed to charge and receive for every ton thereof delivered alongside a vessel, in proper tubs, within reach of ship's tackle, a sum not exceeding eight dollars per ton for the best quality, or four dollars for every ton taken while in its native place of deposit.

2098. No guano shall be taken from any such island, rock, or key, except for the use of the citizens of the United States or of persons resident therein. The discoverer, or his widow, heir, executor, administrator, or assigns, shall enter into bond, in such penalty and with such sureties as may be required by the President, to deliver the guano to citizens of the United States, for the purpose of being used therein, and to none others, and at the price prescribed, and to provide all necessary facilities for that purpose within a time to be fixed in the bond; * * * This section shall, however, be suspended in relation to all persons who have complied with the provisions of this Title, for five years from and after the fourteenth day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-two.¹

RESTRICTION UPON THE USE OF MILITARY FORCE.

2103. From and after the passage of this act it shall not be lawful to employ any part of the Army of the United States, as a posse comitatus, or otherwise, for the purpose of executing the laws, except in such cases and under such circumstances as such employment of said force may be expressly authorized by the Constitution or by act of Congress; and no money appropriated by this act shall be used to pay any of the expenses incurred in the employment of any troops in violation of this section.¹ Sec. 15, act of June 18, 1878 (20 Stat. L., 152).

Army not to be used as a posse comitatus.

Sec. 15, June 18, 1878, v. 20, p. 152.

That inasmuch as it was not expressly authorized by any act of Congress that United States marshals should be empowered to summon the military to serve on a posse comitatus (but this was authorized only indirectly and impliedly by the provision of the act of September 24, 1789, incorporated in section 787 of the Revised Statutes), (a) the Army could not, under the existing law, legally act on the posse comitatus of a marshal or deputy marshal of the United States. (b) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 162, par. 6. See also Ibid., ed. 1901, par. 487.

That in the absence of such an "unlawful combination" as is contemplated by section 5298, Revised Statutes, the President would not be authorized to employ a military force to assist inspectors of customs in seizing smuggled property or arresting persons concerned in violations of the revenue laws, such an employment not being expressly authorized by any statute.

That whenever a marshal or deputy marshal was prevented from making due service of judicial process, for the arrest of persons or otherwise, by the forcible resistance or opposition of an unlawful combination or assemblage of persons, the President was expressly authorized by section 5298, Revised Statutes, to employ such part of the Army as he might deem necessary to secure the due service of such process and execute the laws; first, however, in any such case (as in any case arising under sections 5297 and 5299) making proclamation as required by section 5300.

That, notwithstanding the legislation of June 18, 1878, the President was authorized to employ the military to arrest and prevent persons engaging in introducing liquor into the Indian country contrary to law, as also to arrest persons being otherwise in the Indian country in violation of law, (c) or to make the arrest therein of Indians charged with the commission of crime, such employment being expressly authorized by sections 2150 and 2152, Revised Statutes.

That the President was authorized by section 2150, Revised Statutes, to remove by military force, after a reasonable notice to quit certain persons commorant upon an Indian reservation contrary to the terms of a treaty between the United States and the tribe occupying the reservation, and who therefore were there "in violation of law" in the sense of that section. (d)

That the provision of June 18, 1878, was not to be construed as interfering with the authority and duty of the President to employ a necessary military force for the removal of trespassers from a military reservation, such employment not being, properly speaking, "for the purpose of executing the laws," but a mere protecting, by the executive department, of public property in its military charge. (e) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 162, par. 6.

In the absence of any express provision contained in the acts authorizing the President to make reservations of forest lands (acts of September 25 and October 1, 1890, and March 3, 1891, s. 24) by which he is expressly empowered to use the Army

ment of soverignty over Cuba

itary occupation.

¹ The law of war.—The law of war is, in brief, the law of military government and authority as exercised in time of war, foreign or civil. Its usual field is the territory of a conquered country in the occupation of a hostile army; it is sometimes extended, however, though generally in a milder form, to localities under "martial law." It is properly a part of the law of nations, though its application may be materially varied by the circumstances of the country or the people brought under its sway. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1567.

Rule of nonintercourse.—It is a fundamental principle of the law of war that during a state of war all commercial intercourse between the belligerents is interdicted and made illegal except when and where it may be expressly authorized by the Government. During the late civil war, which, as respects the application in general of the laws and usages of war, was assimilated to a foreign war, (a) all trade and intercourse with the enemy, except so far as permitted by the President under authority from Congress (or in rare cases by a commanding general in the field representing the President), was necessarily suspended. (b)

As to the principal forms of violation of the law of nonintercourse and other violations of the laws of war, made the subject of trial by military commission during the late war, see the title "Military Commissions" in the chapter entitled MILITARY TRIBUNALS.

Held (January, 1865) that a system of correspondence which had been concerted and maintained between Northern and Southern newspapers by means of an interchange of published communications entitled "Personals," was an evasion of the rule interdicting intercourse with the enemy in time of war, and, not being within the regulations established for correspondence by letter between the lines by flag of truce, should not, however innocent might be many or most of the communications, be sanctioned by the Government, but that the proprietors of the Northern newspapers concerned should be notified that unless this practice was discontinued they would be liable to be proceeded against for promoting correspondence with the enemy in violation of the laws of war or of the special act of February 25, 1863. (c) — (12 Stat. L., 696.) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1574.

Offenses against the law of nonintercourse between the belligerents in time of war are no less such when committed by foreigners than when committed by citizens. Thus where certain persons made their way early in the late war from Scotland to South Carolina, engaged for a considerable period in the manufacture of treasury notes for the Confederate authorities, and at the end of their employment came secretly and without authority into our lines with the design of returning to their homes, held that, though British subjects, they had identified themselves with the cause of the enemy, and were properly amenable to trial for the offense of penetrating our military lines in violation of the laws of war. (d) Ibid., par. 1570.

Newspapers.—There can be no doubt as to the authority of the commander of an

Besides the suspension incident to the state of war, a suspension of commercial intercourse with the enemy was specially directed by act of Congress of July 13, 1861, and proclaimed by the President on August 16, 1861. By authority conferred by the same statute general regulations, concerning commercial intercourse with and in the States declared in insurrection, were approved by the President, January 26, 1864, and published in G. O., 53, Department of the Gulf, of April 29, 1864.

Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1571.

Two soldiers of the United States Army having been seized and delivered across the lines to the enemy, by a party of civilians, in a portion of one of the insurrectionary States in the occupation of the Federal forces, an equal number of the citizens of the district were ordered by the commanding general to be arrested and held till the offenders, who meanwhile had taken refuge with the enemy, should be surrendered for trial. Held that such an act of retaliation was warranted by the laws and usages of war. United States will, so long as such occupation shall last, assume and discharge the obligations that may, under international law, result from the fact of its occupation for the army, in occupation and government of the enemy's country, to suppress a newspaper or other publication deemed by him to be injurious to the public interests in exciting opposition to the dominant authority or encouraging the support of the enemy's cause on the part of the inhabitants. A newspaper may be a powerful agent for such a purpose, and when it is so it may, under the laws of war, as legally be silenced as may a fort or battery of the enemy in the field. Ibid., par. 1573.

Contributions.—Contributions of money exacted from the enemy by competent military authority, being justified by the law of war and conquest, (a) held that a tax of five dollars per bale, levied (in 1864) by the military commander at New Orleans, General Canby, upon cotton brought into that city and applied to hospital, sanitary, and charitable purposes, was authorized under the discretionary power with which such a commander was properly invested in time of war. (b) Ibid., par. 1575.

Military occupation.—It is a principle of the law of war that the municipal laws of a conquered country continue in force during the military occupation by the conqueror, except in so far as the same may necessarily be suspended or their operation be affected by his acts. (c) So where a testator had executed in Vicksburg, Miss., after its capture and during its occupation by our forces, a will devising real estate, but such will, in not being attested by the required number of witnesses, was invalid under the State law held, that, as this law was in no respect modified upon the capture, the devisee under the will, however loyal, could not properly be invested by military authority with the legal title to such estate against the heirs at law. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1576.

Courts in occupied territory.—It is authorized by the laws of war for a military officer commanding in time of war in a region in military occupation, and where the ordinary courts are closed by the exigencies of the war, to appoint a special court or judge for the determination of cases not properly cognizable by the ordinary military tribunals. In the civil war such courts were not unfrequently constituted and were commonly designated provost courts. Such courts had no jurisdiction of purely military offenses (i. e., offenses which the Articles of War make cognizable by court-martial), and were therefore not properly authorized to impose forfeitures of pay or other strictly military punishments upon officers or soldiers of the Army. These courts were in general resorted to as substitutes for the ordinary police courts of cities, and their jurisdiction was in general confined to cases of breaches of the peace and of violation of such civil ordinances or military regulations as might be in force for the government of the locality. Some of these courts, however, took cognizance, in the course of their existence, of cases of very considerable importance, civil as well as criminal. (d) Ibid., par. 1577.

a Lewis v. McGuire, 3 Bush, 202; Clark v. Dick, 1 Dillon, 8. And see Major-General Scott's order (G. O., 395, Hdqrs. of Army, 1847) levying assessments upon Mexican communities for the support of the military government and occupation.

b See Hamilton v. Dillin, 21 Wallace, 73. The taking possession, by the order of the commander of the military department at New Orleans, for the use of the military service in the prosecution of the war, of moneys belonging to the enemies on deposit in the banks of that city, while occupied (in 1863) by our Army, held an act justified by the strict law of war. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1575. See New Orleans v. Steamboat Co., 20 Wallace, 394; Witherspoon v. Farmers' Bk., 2 Duvall, 497. But in Planters' Bk. v. Union Bk., 16 Wallace, 483, this particular order was held to have been an exceeding of authority, not because unauthorized by the law of war, but for the reason that a previous commander—General Butler—by his proclamation on first occupying the city, of May 1, 1862, had pledged the Government to the holding inviolate of all rights of property. And see The Venice, 2 Wallace, 258.

c "By the well-recognized principles of international law the mere military occupation of a country by a belligerent power or a conqueror does not ipso facto displace the municipal laws. Such conqueror or belligerent occupier may suspend or supersede them for the time being, but in the absence of orders to that effect they remain in force." Wingfield v. Crosby, 5 Cold., 246. "Supreme military authority in a city is not incompatible with the existence and authority of courts of civil jurisdiction and procedure." Pepin v. Lachenmeyer, 45 N. Y., 27. And see Kimball v. Taylor, 2 Woods, 37; Rutledge v. Fogg, 3 Cold., 554; Hefferman v. Porter, 6 ibid., 391; Murrell v. Jones, 40 Miss., 566; Dow v. Johnson, post. But where the courts of a hostile country are left open by the conqueror it is only the citizens of such country that are subject to their jurisdiction; the officers and soldiers of the occupying army are in no manner amenable to the same. This principle has recently been illustrated by the Supreme Court in the cases of Coleman v. Tennessee, 7 Otto, 509; Dow v. Johnson, 10 Otto, 158, 166.

d While the majority of these special tribunals were confined to the exercise of such functions as are commonly devolved upon police or justices' courts, their authority, when empowered for the purpose by a competent military commander, to take cognizance of important civil actions has been affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Mechs. and Traders' Bk. v. Union Bk., 22 Wallace, 276, in which a "provost court," established at New Orleans by an order of the department commander, of May 1, 1862, was held to be a lawful tribunal, and a judgment rendered by it in action for the recovery of $180,000, money borrowed by one bank from another, was recognized protection of life and property. Article I, Treaty with Spain of December 10, 1898 (30 Stat. L. 1754).

as legal. [See this case also in 25 La. An., 387.] [For orders establishing such tribunals, see Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1577, note 1.]

So, the authority of the "provisional court of Louisiana" (which succeeded the "provost court" last indicated and was established by the President in an Executive order of Oct. 20, 1862) to determine a cause in admiralty was affirmed by the United States Supreme Court in The Grapeshot, 9 Wallace, 129, and later its jurisdiction in a civil action on a mortgage debt was recognized by that tribunal in Burke v. Miltenberger, 19 Wallace, 519. [And see the same case, as Burke v. Tregree, in 22 La. An., 629.] The authority of the same court to take cognizance of a case of murder and one of arson (as also of civil controversies) was maintained in an elaborate opinion of its judge, Hon. C. A. Peabody (in 1865), in the cases of the United States v. Reiter & Louis, reported in 13 Am. Law Reg., 534.

The civil jurisdiction of a similar war court—the "commission" established by the department commander in Memphis, in 1863—was similarly recognized in Hefferman v. Porter, 6 Cold., 391. And as to the full authority of this tribunal as a substitute for the ordinary civil courts of the locality, see also State v. Stillman, 7 Cold., 341. [But see, contra, Walsh v. Porter, 12 Heisk., 401.]

In the cases thus sustaining the action of special tribunals during the late war the courts in general refer to the earlier and leading case of Leitensdorfer v. Webb, 20 Howard, 176, in which was affirmed the authority of the courts established in 1846 in New Mexico as a part of the system of civil government instituted by General Kearney, the military commandant. [With this case consult also United States v. Rice, 4 Wheaton, 254; Cross v. Harrison, 16 Howard, 164.]

The reasoning upon which the above-cited later rulings is based is: That the authority to create courts with a civil as well as a criminal jurisdiction in a conquered country in military occupation attaches to the dominant power by the law of war and of nations as an incident to the power to establish a military government; that it is not only the right, but the duty, of the conqueror to institute such courts "for the security of persons and property and for the administration of justice;" and that, when during the late war such courts were created by commanding generals—such as the commanders of separate departments or armies—the order of the commander was to be presumed to be the order and act of the President.

Corps, whether regularly mustered or not, disabled by reason of any wound or injury received, or disease contracted, while in the service of the United States and in the line of duty.

Master, etc., serving on gun-boat, etc.

Second. Any master serving on a gunboat, or any pilot, engineer, sailor, or other person not regularly mustered, serving upon any gunboat or war vessel of the United States, disabled by any wound or injury received, or otherwise incapacitated while in the line of duty, for procuring his subsistence by manual labor.

Volunteers, not enlisted, etc.

Third. Any person not an enlisted soldier in the Army, serving for the time being as a member of the militia of any State, under orders of an officer of the United States, or who volunteered for the time being to serve with any regularly organized military or naval force of the United States, or who otherwise volunteered and rendered service in any engagement with rebels or Indians, disabled in consequence of wounds or injury received in the line of duty in such temporary service. But no claim of a State militiaman, or nonenlisted person, on account of disability from wounds, or injury received in battle with rebels or Indians, while temporarily rendering service, shall be valid unless prosecuted to a successful issue prior to the fourth day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-four.

Acting assistant surgeon, etc.

Fourth. Any acting assistant or contract surgeon disabled by any wound or injury received or disease contracted in the line of duty while actually performing the duties of assistant surgeon or acting assistant surgeon with any military force in the field, or in transitu, or in hospital.

Provost-marshal, etc.

Fifth. Any provost-marshal, deputy provost-marshal, or enrolling officer disabled, by reason of any wound or injury received in the discharge of his duty, to procure a subsistence by manual labor.

Sec. 4694, R. S.

2118. No person shall be entitled to a pension by reason of wounds or injury received or disease contracted in the service of the United States subsequent to the twenty-seventh day of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, unless the person who was wounded, or injured, or contracted the disease was in the line of duty, and, if in the military service, was at the time actually in the field, or on the march, or at some post, fort, or garrison, or en route, by direction of competent authority, to some post, fort, or garrison; or, if in the naval service, was at the time borne on the books of some ship or other vessel of the United States, at sea or in harbor, actually in commission, or was at some naval station, or on his way, by direction of competent authority, to the United States or to some other vessel or naval station or hospital.

2120. Every commissioned officer of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps shall receive such and only such pension as is provided in the preceding section for the rank he held at the time he received the injury or contracted the disease which resulted in the disability, on account of which he may be entitled to a pension; and any commission or Presidential appointment, regularly issued to such person, shall be taken to determine his rank from and after the date, as

² Section 4717 of the Revised Statutes, which established a period of limitation in the prosecution of claims for pension, was expressly repealed by the act of January 25, 1889 (20 Stat. L., 265), paragraph 2202, post. There is now no limitation, in point of time, in the prosecution of pension claims.

Proof of death.
Mar. 13, 1896, v.
29, p. 57.

2195. In considering claims filed under the pension laws, the death of an enlisted man or officer shall be considered as sufficiently proved if satisfactory evidence is produced establishing the fact of the continued and unexplained absence of such enlisted man or officer from his home and family for a period of seven years, during which period no intelligence of his existence shall have been received. And any pension granted under this act shall cease upon proof that such officer or enlisted man is still living. Act of March 13, 1896 (29 Stat. L., 57).

2200. In the administration of the pension laws, children born before the marriage of their parents, if acknowledged by the father before or after the marriage, shall be deemed legitimate.

Certain soldiers and sailors not to be deemed deserters, etc.
July 19, 1867, c.
28, v. 15, p. 14.
Sec. 4749, R. S.

2201. No soldier or sailor shall be taken or held to be a deserter from the Army or Navy who faithfully served according to his enlistment until the nineteenth day of April, eighteen hundred and sixty-five, and who, without proper authority or leave first obtained, quit his command or refused to serve after that date; but nothing herein contained shall operate as a remission of any forfeiture incurred by any such soldier or sailor of his pension; but this section shall be construed solely as a removal of any disability such soldier or sailor may have incurred by the loss of his citizenship in consequence of his desertion.

REMOVAL OF LIMITATION.

2202. That section forty-seven hundred and seventeen of the Revised Statutes of the United States, which provides that "no claim for pension not prosecuted to a successful issue within five years from the date of filing the same shall be admitted without record evidence from the War or Navy Department of the injury or the disease which resulted in the disability or death of the person on whose account the claim is made: Provided, That in any case in which the limitation prescribed by this section bars the further prosecution of the claim, the claimant may present, through the Pension Office, to the Adjutant-General of the Army or the Surgeon-General of the Navy, evidence that the disease or injury which resulted in the disability or death of the person on whose account the claim is made originated in the service and in the line of duty, and if such evidence is deemed satisfactory by the officer to whom it may be submitted, he shall cause a record of the fact so proved to be made, and a copy of the same to be transmitted to the Commissioner of Pensions, and the bar to the prosecution of the claim shall thereby be removed," be, and the same is hereby, repealed.¹ Sec. 3, act of January 25, 1879 (20 Stat. L., 265).

executing a claim for pension or bounty land than such as the Commissioner of Pensions shall direct to be paid to him, not exceeding twenty-five dollars; nor shall such agent, attorney, or other person demand or receive such compensation, in whole or in part, until such pension or bounty-land claim shall be allowed: Provided, That in all claims allowed since June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-eight, where it shall appear to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Pensions that the fee of ten dollars, or any part thereof, has not been paid, he shall cause the same to be deducted from the pension, and the pension agent to pay the same to the recognized attorney.

2204. The agent or attorney of record in the prosecution of the case may cause to be filed with the Commissioner of Pensions, duplicate articles of agreement, without additional cost to the claimant, setting forth the fee agreed upon by the parties, which agreement shall be executed in the presence of and certified by some officer competent to administer oaths. In all cases where application is made for pension or bounty land, and no agreement is filed with the Commissioner as herein provided, the fee shall be ten dollars and no more. And such articles of agreement as may hereafter be filed with the Commissioner of Pensions are not authorized, nor will they be recognized except in claims for original pensions, claims for increase of pension on account of a new disability, in claims for restoration where a pensioner's name has been or may hereafter be dropped from the pension rolls on testimony taken by a special examiner, showing that the disability or cause of death, on account of which the pension was allowed, did not originate in the line of duty, and in cases of dependent relatives whose names have been or may hereafter be, dropped from the rolls on like testimony, upon the ground of nondependence, and in such other cases of difficulty and trouble as the Commissioner of Pensions may see fit to recognize them: Provided, That no greater fee than ten dollars shall be demanded, received, or allowed in any claim for pension or bounty land granted by special act of Congress, nor in any claim for increase of pension on account of the increase of the disability for which the pension had been allowed: And provided further, That no fee shall be demanded, received, or allowed in any claim for arrears of pension or arrears of increase of pension allowed by any act of Congress passed subsequent to the date of the allowance of the original claims in which such arrears of pension, or of increase of pension, may be allowed.¹ Sec. 4, act of July 4, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 99).

² The act of March 1, 1893 (27 Stat. L., 523), contained the requirement that "from and after July 1, 1893, no pension shall be paid to a nonresident, who is not a citizen of the United States, except for actual disabilities incurred in the service." This statute was expressly repealed by the act of March 2, 1895 (28 Stat. L., 703).

Indian pensioners; payments in standard silver.

2226. And pensions to Indian pensioners residing in the Indian Territory may be paid in person by the pension agent, upon a suitable voucher, at some convenient point in said Territory, which, together with the form and manner of identification of the pensioners, may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior; such payments to be made in standard silver, at least once in each current year. And payments in person shall be made to the pensioner, in cash, by the pension agent whenever in the discretion of the Commissioner of Pensions such personal payment shall be by him deemed necessary or proper to secure to the pensioner his rights; and the necessary and actual expenses of such pension agent in making such payments shall be paid by the Secretary of the Interior upon properly executed vouchers, out of the contingent fund appropriated for the use of the Pension Office. Ibid. * * *

Disloyalty a bar to pension. Sec. 4716, R.S.

2227. No money on account of pension shall be paid to any person, or to the widow, children, or heirs of any deceased person, who in any manner voluntarily engaged in or aided or abetted the late rebellion against the authority of the United States.¹

Disloyalty, as a bar, removed in certain cases. Mar. 3, 1877; Aug. 1, 1892, v. 27, p. 340.

2228. The law² prohibiting the payment of any money on account of pension to any person, or to the widow, children, or heirs of any deceased person, who in any manner engaged in or aided or abetted the late rebellion against the authority of the United States, shall not be construed to apply to such persons as afterwards voluntarily enlisted in either the Navy or Army of the United States, and who, while in such service, incurred disability from a wound or injury received or disease contracted in the line of duty.³ Act of August 1, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 340).

2229. That section forty-seven hundred and sixteen of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, repealed, so far as the same may be applicable to the claims to pension of dependent parents of soldiers, sailors, and marines who served in the Army or Navy of the United States during the war with Spain. Act of April 18, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 136).

Sec. 4, July 26,

2237. The Commissioner of Pensions is hereby authorized to appoint surgeons who, under his control and direction shall make such examination of pensioners and claimants for pension or increased pension as he shall require; and he shall organize boards of surgeons, to consist of three members each, at such points in each State as he shall deem necessary, and all examinations, so far as practicable, shall be made by the boards, and no examination shall be made by one surgeon excepting under such circumstances as make it impracticable for a claimant to present himself before a board: Provided, That the Commissioner may, when in his opinion the exigencies of the service require it, organize a board of three surgeons who, under his direction, shall review the work of any regularly appointed board or surgeon: Provided further, That all examinations shall be thorough and searching, and the certificate contain a full description of the physical condition of the claimant at the time, which shall include all the physical and rational signs and a statement of all structural changes. Sec. 4, act of July 25, 1882 (22 Stat. L., 175).

2239. The fee for each examination, and satisfactory certificate thereof, shall be two dollars to each member when made by a board, and two dollars when made by one surgeon: Provided, That when a claimant is so disabled as not to be able to present himself to a board of surgeons for examination, the Commissioner may order a surgeon to make the examination at the claimant's residence; and the fee for such examination shall be two dollars, in addition to the payment of the actual traveling expenses of the surgeon: Provided further, That no fee shall be allowed or paid to any member of such board of examining surgeons who does not actually participate in such examination and sign the certificate thereof.¹ Sec. 4, act of July 25, 1882 (22 Stat. L., 175). Fee for examination, etc. Provided.

2240. Each member of each examining board shall, as now authorized by law, receive the sum of two dollars for the examination of each applicant whenever five or a less number shall be examined on any one day, and one dollar for the examination of each additional applicant on such day: Provided, That if twenty or more applicants appear on one day, no fewer than twenty shall, if practicable, be examined on said day, and that if fewer examinations be then made, twenty or more having appeared, then there shall be paid for the first examinations made on the next examination day the fee of one dollar only until twenty examinations shall have been made: Provided further, That no fees shall be paid to any member of an examining board unless personally present and assisting in the examination of applicant.² Act of April 4, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 61). Examinations. Apr. 4, 1900, v. 31, p. 61. No fee unless service rendered.

¹This section replaces, in part, section 4775, Revised Statutes, which authorized the appointment of boards of examining surgeons and prescribed their fees.

2269-2274. Funds for support of Home.	2283-2286. Miscellaneous requirements.

BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS.

2263. The Board of Commissioners of the Soldiers' Home shall hereafter consist of the General in Chief commanding the Army, the Surgeon-General, the Commissary-General, the Adjutant-General, the Quartermaster-General, the Judge-Advocate-General and the Governor of the Home, and the General in Chief shall be President of the Board, and any four of them shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business; whose duty it shall be to examine and audit the accounts of the treasurer quarter-yearly, and to visit and inspect the Soldiers' Home at least once in every month. The majority shall also have power to establish, from time to time, regulations for the general and internal direction of the institution, to be submitted to the Secretary of War for approval; and may do any other acts necessary for the government and interests of the same, as authorized by this chapter.¹ Sec. 10, act of March 3, 1883, (22 Stat. L., 565).

DUTIES OF COMMISSIONERS.

Sites and buildings.

Sec. 8, ibid., p. 597.

Sec. 4817, R.S.

2264. The commissioners of the Soldiers' Home, by and with the approval of the President, shall procure for immediate use, at a suitable place or places, a site or sites for the Soldiers' Home, and if the necessary buildings can not be procured with the sites, to have the same erected, having due regard to the health of the locations, facility of access, and economy, and giving preference to such places as, with the most convenience and least cost, will accommodate the persons entitled to the benefits of the Soldiers' Home.

Board of commissioners to make annual report, etc.

Mar. 3, 1883, v. 22, p. 565.

2265. The board of commissioners of the Soldiers' Home shall every year report in writing to the Secretary of War, giving a full statement of all receipts and disbursements of money, of the manner in which the funds are invested of any changes in the investments and the reasons therefor, of all admissions and discharges, and generally of all facts that may be necessary to a full understanding of the condition and management of the Home. The Secretary of War shall have power to call for and require any omitted facts which in his judgment should be stated to be added.

Secretary of War to transmit report, etc., to Congress.

This annual report shall be, by the Secretary of War, together with the report of the inspecting officer hereinafter provided for, transmitted to Congress at the first session thereafter, and he shall also cause the same to be published in orders to the Army, a copy thereof to be deposited in each garrison and post library. Act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. L., 565).

court-martial, over and above any amount that may be due for the reimbursement of Government or of individuals; (d) all forfeitures on account of desertion; (e) all moneys, not exceeding two-thirds of the balance on hand of the hospital fund, and of the post fund of each military station, after deducting the necessary expenses of the year; (a) and (f) all moneys belonging to the estates of deceased soldiers, which now are or may hereafter be unclaimed for the period of three years subsequent to the death of said soldier or soldiers, to be repaid by the commissioners of the institution, upon the demand of the heirs or legal representatives of the deceased; (g) there shall also be "deducted from the pay of every noncommissioned officer, musician, artificer, and private of the Army of the United States the sum of 25 cents (b) per month, which sum so deducted shall, by the Pay Department of the Army, be passed to the credit of the commissioners of the asylum, who are hereby authorized to receive all donations of money or property made by any person or persons for the benefit of the institution, and hold the same for its sole and exclusive use." Sec. 7, act of March 3, 1851, 9 Stat. L., 596.

In passing upon recommendations made by the board of commissioners of the Soldiers' Home, under section 4815 of the Revised Statutes, the Secretary of War is invested with a discretionary power to approve or disapprove the same. XVII Opin. Att. Gen., 449.

^a This clause was repealed by section 2 of the act of July 5, 1862. (12 Stat. L., 508.)

^b The deduction from the monthly pay of enlisted men, fixed at 25 cents per month by section 7, act of March 3, 1851 (9 Stat. L., 596), was reduced to 12½ cents by section 7, act of March 3, 1859 (11 Stat. L., 424).

INSPECTIONS.

2266. The Inspector-General of the Army shall, in person, once in each year thoroughly inspect the Home, its records, accounts, management, discipline, and sanitary condition, and shall report thereon in writing, together with such suggestions as he desires to make. Sec. 2, act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. L., 564).

L., 564).*

Governor and officers selected by the President of the United States.
Treasurer to give bond.
Sec. 7, Mar. 3, 1883, v. 22, p. 564.

¹The commissioners of the Soldiers' Home may permit the governor, deputy governor, and treasurer of the Home, who are retired officers of the Army and who reside at the Home, to make use of ordinary supplies of fuel, light, forage, etc., produced at the Home or purchased for it, and they may pay the treasurer, out of the funds of the Home, a salary for his services. XX Opin. Att. Gen., 350.

The funds for the support of the Soldiers' Home are not of the class of public moneys annually appropriated for a specific object, as for the pay of the Army, but a special trust fund committed to and administered by the board of commissioners for the benefit of the institution. From an early period in the history of the Home it has been the usage for the commissioners to permit the officers of the Home (retired officers of the Army residing at the Home) gratuitously to receive and use a reasonable portion of the ordinary supplies of fuel, light, forage, milk, ice, and vegetables, either produced at the Home or obtained for its consumption. Held, that such allowance was not in contravention of law; that the articles thus issued are not of the class of military pay and emoluments, and therefore unauthorized because not allowed by law to retired officers, but are a reasonable share of the supplies for the use and benefit of the Home, the disposition of which is properly within the discretion of the commissioners as trustees of the funds of the Home and as charged by law with the "government and interests of the same." And similarly held in regard to the amount of $1,000, allowed annually out of such funds to the treasurer of the Home as a compensation for his special services and in consideration of his pecuniary responsibility as a bonded officer. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2331.

Held, that a medical officer of the Army, occupying quarters at the Soldiers' Home, was not thereby precluded from receiving commutation of quarters at New York on being ordered to duty there as a member of a medical examining board. The quarters occupied by him at the Home are not "public quarters" in the sense of par. 1480, A. R.; he does not occupy them at the expense of the United States, and by allowing him the commutation the Government is not put to a double expense for his quarters. Ibid., par. 2332.

²The board of commissioners of the Soldiers' Home can not delegate to the governor of the Home discretionary police authority for the preservation of good order within its limits. XX Opin. Att. Gen., 514. They can not empower him to arrest,

2269. For the support of the Soldiers' Home the following funds are set apart and are hereby appropriated: All stoppages or fines adjudged against soldiers by sentence of courts-martial over and above any amount that may be due for the reimbursement of Government or of individuals; all forfeitures on account of desertion; and all moneys belonging to the estates of deceased soldiers which are or may be unclaimed for the period of three years subsequent to the death of such soldiers, to be repaid by the commissioners of the institution upon the demand of the heirs or legal representatives of the deceased.¹

July 16, 1892, v. 27, p. 183.

2270. Hereafter the adjustment of the accounts of the Soldiers' Home under section 4818 of the Revised Statutes in the offices of the Second Comptroller and Second Auditor shall be limited to those originating subsequent to March 3, 1881. Act of July 16, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 183).

Mar. 3, 1859, c. 88, s. 7, v. 11, p. 434.

2271. There shall be deducted from the pay of every non-commissioned officer, musician, artificer, and private of the Army of the United States the sum of twelve and a half cents per month, which sum so deducted shall by the Pay Department of the Army be passed to the credit of the commissioners of the Soldiers' Home. The commissioners are also authorized to receive all donations of money or property made by any person for the benefit of the institution and hold the same for its sole and excludetain, or deliver over to the court authorities nonmilitary persons committing crimes less than capital, except in the cases where any person may make an arrest without warrant or precept. Ibid.

¹Section 4818, Revised Statutes, appropriates as one of the funds for the support of the Soldiers' Home "all forfeitures on account of desertion." Held, that this appropriation included the retained pay of soldiers as forfeited by desertion under the provisions of sections 1281 and 1282, Revised Statutes, and of the act of June 16, 1890, chapter 426, section 1. The retained pay is merely a fraction of the monthly pay of the soldier earned with the rest of his monthly pay as a part of the entire consideration for service rendered, but of which the payment—the right to receive—is deferred. The theory that it is not to be regarded as earned till the soldier's service is concluded and he receives an honorable discharge is rebutted by the statutory provisions above cited, and especially by the provision of the act of 1890, which treats the retained pay as pay constantly accruing and as a continuing deposit for the use of the soldier drawing interest from the end of each year in which it accrues. The ruling of the Supreme Court in United States v. Landers (92 U. S., 77) is not opposed to this view, but as construed by the same court in United States v. Kingsley (138 U. S., 87), shows that the "forfeiture" referred to in sections 1281 and 1282, Revised Statutes, was regarded by the court as meaning a loss of an acquired right, and the act of 1890, passed since this ruling, has confirmed this interpretation. Thus a soldier in deserting forfeits with the main portion of his pay the portion which has been retained, his right to this lesser portion being as much acquired and perfected as his right to the greater portion. Both forfeitures rest upon the same basis, and the aggregate forfeiture of both is appropriated by the statute to the support of the Soldiers' Home. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2333.

But the deduction of twelve and a half cents per month from the pay of noncommissioned officers, musicians, artificers, and privates of regiments of volunteers or other corps or regiments raised for a limited period or for a temporary purpose or purposes shall only be made with their consent.¹

2272. That all funds of the Home not needed for current use, and which are not now invested in United States registered bonds, shall, as soon as received, or as soon as present investments can be converted into money without loss, be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the Home as a permanent fund, and shall draw interest at the rate of three per centum per annum, which shall be paid quarterly to the treasurer of the Home; and the proceeds of such registered bonds, as they are paid, shall be deposited in like manner. No part of the principal sum so deposited shall be withdrawn for use except upon a resolution of the board of commissioners stating the necessity and approved by the Secretary of War. *Sec. 8, act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. 2275. All soldiers of the Army of the United States, and all soldiers who have been, or may hereafter be, of the Army of the United States, and who have contributed, or may hereafter contribute, according to section forty-eight hundred and nineteen, to the support of the Soldiers' Home hereby created, and the invalid and disabled soldiers, whether regulars or volunteers, of the war of eighteen hundred and twelve and of all subsequent wars, shall, under the restrictions and provisions which follow, be members of the Soldiers' Home, with all the rights annexed thereto.¹

2276. The following persons, members of the Soldiers' Home, according to section forty-eight hundred and fourteen, shall be entitled to the rights and benefits herein conferred, and no others:

First. Every soldier of the Army of the United States who has served, or may serve, honestly and faithfully twenty years in the same.

Second. Every soldier and every discharged soldier, whether regular or volunteer, who has suffered, or may suffer, by reason of disease or wounds incurred in the service and in the line of his duty, rendering him incapable of further military service, if such disability was not occasioned by his own misconduct.

Third. The invalid and disabled soldiers, whether regular or volunteers, of the wars of eighteen hundred and twelve and of all subsequent wars.²

Who are excluded.

Mar. 3, 1851, c. 25, s. 6, v. 9, p. 596; Sec. 4822, R.S.

2277. The benefits of the Soldiers' Home shall not be extended to any soldier in the regular or volunteer service convicted of felony or other disgraceful or infamous crimes of a civil nature after his admission into the service of the United States; nor shall any one who has been a deserter, mutineer, or habitual drunkard be received without such evidence of subsequent service, good conduct, and reformation of character as is satisfactory to the commissioners.

¹This section and 4815 recognize two classes of beneficiaries: 1. Soldiers who, while in the service, contributed voluntarily to the support of the Home. 2. Soldiers who did not contribute. Those who contributed have a right to membership without surrendering their pensions to the Home. Under section 4820 of the Revised Statutes, those who did not contribute may become members by making such surrender. Bowen v. U. S., 100 U. S., 508; ibid., 14 Ct. Cls., 162.

²*Held* that under section 4821, Revised Statutes, invalid and disabled soldiers of the war of the rebellion and of Indian wars were entitled to the benefits of the Soldiers' Home, although the disability may not have grown out of their military service, provided it be not the result of their own misconduct as indicated in section 4822, Revised Statutes. *Dig. ¹ An inmate is not required to remain at the Home if he wishes to leave it. The privileges of the institution may be renounced by any act showing an intention to renounce them—such as direct notice of such intention, or by an absenting with the evident purpose of not returning. In February, 1864, a certain inmate was transferred from the Home to the Government Insane Hospital, and was discharged thence as sane in June, 1864. He did not return to the Home and was not again heard of till March, 1886, when it was ascertained that he was at the State Insane Hospital of Pennsylvania. As he was sane when he left the Government Hospital and did not return to the Home within a reasonable time, but remained absent nearly twenty-two years, held that he must be deemed, in the absence of contrary evidence, to have intended to permanently separate himself from the institution, and that he therefore was not now an inmate or member of the same. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 2329.

² Section 4820, Revised Statutes, admits of no other reasonable construction than that only invalid pensioners who had not contributed to the funds of the Soldiers' Home were bound to surrender to it their pensions while receiving its benefits. *U. sioner to whom it would otherwise have been paid, and such part of it as shall not sooner have been paid to him shall be paid to him on his discharge from the institution. The board of commissioners may from time to time pay over to any inmate such part of his pension money as they think best for his interest and consistent with the discipline and good order of the Home, but such pensioner shall not be entitled to demand or have the same so long as he remains an inmate of the Home. In case of the death of any pensioner, any pension money due him remaining in the hands of the treasurer shall be paid to his legal heirs, if demand is made within three years; otherwise the same shall escheat to the Home. Sec. 4, act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. L., 564).

2282. If any such pensioner is or shall become an inmate of a National Soldiers' Home, one-half of the pension drawn in his behalf, or to which he may become entitled during his residence therein, shall be paid by the treasurer of that institution to such pensioner's wife, she being in necessitous circumstances and a woman of good moral character, or, if there be no wife, to the legal guardian of the minor child or children, or the permanently dependent and helpless child or children of such pensioner, on the order of the Commissioner of Pensions.¹ *Act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. ² Section 4824, Revised Statutes, subjecting the inmates of the Soldiers' Home to the Rules and Articles of War, is unconstitutional and a dead letter. These inmates are no part of the Army, nor are they supported by the United States. They are civilians occupying dwellings and sustained by funds held in trust for them. The territory of the Home being within the District of Columbia, and not having been exempted by Congress from the operation of the criminal laws of the District, the inmates are subject to those laws like any other residents. Section 11 of the act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. Organization of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers.

Mar. 21, 1866, c. 21, s. 1, v. 14, p. 10; Jan. 23, 1873, c. 51, s. 1, v. 17, p. 417; Mar. 3, 1875, c. 129, v. 18, p. 359; Feb. 26, 1875, J. R. No. 5, v. 18, p. 524. Sec. 4825, R. S.

2287. The President, Secretary of War, Chief Justice, and such other persons as have been or from time to time may be associated with them, shall constitute a board of managers of an establishment for the care and relief of the disabled volunteers of the United States Army, to be known by the name and style of "The National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers," and have perpetual succession, with powers to take, hold, and convey real and personal property, establish a common seal, and to sue and be sued in courts of law and equity; and to make by-laws, rules, and regulations, not inconsistent with law, for carrying on the business and government of the Home, and to affix penalties thereto.

Election of citizen managers.

Mar. 21, 1866, c. 21, s. 3, v. 14, p. 10; Mar. 12, 1867, c. 1, v. 15, p. 1; Jan. 23, 1873, c. 51, s. 1, v. 17, p. 417. Sec. 4826, R. S.

2288. Eleven managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteers shall be elected from time to time, as vacancies occur, by joint resolution of Congress. They shall all be citizens of the United States, and all residents of States which furnished organized bodies of soldiers to aid in suppressing the rebellion commenced in eighteen hundred and sixty-one; and no two of them shall be residents of the same State, and no person who gave aid or countenance to the rebellion shall ever be eligible. The term of office of these managers shall be for six years, and until a successor is elected.¹

2289. The fourteen managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers shall elect from their own number a president, who shall be the chief executive officer of the board, two vice-presidents, and a secretary. Seven of the board, of whom the president or one of the vice-presidents shall be one, shall form a quorum for the transaction of business at any meeting of the board.²

2290. Hereafter no member of the Board of Managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers shall receive any compensation or pay for any services or duties connected with the Home; but the traveling and other actual expenses of a member, incurred while upon the business of the Home, may be reimbursable to such member. Act of August 18, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 412).

2291. The president and secretary of the Board of Managers may receive a reasonable compensation for their services as such officers, not exceeding four thousand dollars and two thousand dollars, respectively, per annum. Ibid.

2292. The general treasurer³ shall give good and sufficient bond to the United States in a sum not less than one hundred thousand dollars, as the Secretary of War may direct, and to be approved by him, faithfully to account for all public moneys and property which he may receive.

2293. The assistant general treasurer and assistant inspector-general shall hereafter, in the necessary absence or inability of the general treasurer, from any cause whatever, perform his duties and give bond to the general treasurer for the faithful performance of such duties, but

² The following-named general officers were provided for in the act of appropriation of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 1178), at the rates of compensation set opposite their respective designations:

President of the Board of Managers.....	$4, 000
Secretary of Board of Managers	2, 000
General treasurer.....	4, 000
Inspector-general.....	2, 500
Assistant to general treasurer and assistant inspector-general...	2, 000
Assistant inspectors-general, each	2, 000

¹ACCOUNTS AND DISBURSEMENTS.

The accounts of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers in their audit, examination, and settlement are subject to the general laws governing the disbursement of public moneys. A class of accounts of the Homes involving receipts or sales of property, such as flowers, provisions to officers and others connected with the Homes, and transportation of members of the Homes, should, however, be exempt from the operation of these laws. These amounts may be charged, when properly taken up day by day, on the books of the treasurer and credited on his account current without vouchers. 3 Dig. 2nd Compt. Dec., par. 846.

It is not practicable, in all cases, to apply the same rules in the settlement of accounts for moneys received from "sales of certain things" at the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers as are applied in the settlement of accounts for expenditures, including the expenses of the Board of Managers. When it is impracticable to obtain vouchers, or a statement of items of receipts from sales, the certificate of the president of the board that the abstracts of receipts are correct may be accepted. Ibid., 848.

²Under this provision the expenses of inspecting goods purchased for the Home are properly chargeable as an incident of the cost of such goods, and payable out of the appropriation for their purchase, in the absence of a specific appropriation for inspection. 2 Compt. Dec., 522.

s. 1, v. 17, p. 417.

2319. The Board of Managers shall have authority to procure from time to time, at suitable places, sites for military homes for all persons serving in the Army of the United States at any time in the war of the rebellion, not otherwise provided for, who have been or may be disqualified for procuring their own support by reason of wounds received or sickness contracted while in the line of their duty during the rebellion; and to have the necessary buildings erected, having due regard to the health of location, facility of access, and capacity to accommodate the persons entitled to the benefits thereof.²

¹This enactment repeals and replaces so much of the acts of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. L., 359), March 3, 1891 (26 ibid., 984), and March 3, 1893 (27 ibid., 646), as requires the Board of Managers to render accounts of disbursements for the several Branches of the Home to the Secretary of War, and vests in the latter a supervision of the accounts connected therewith.

²Under authority conferred by separate statutes Branch Homes have been established at the following places:

- The Central Branch, at Dayton, Ohio.
- The Northwestern Branch, at Milwaukee, Wis.
- The Eastern Branch, at Togus, Me.
- The Southern Branch, at Hampton, Va.
- The Western Branch, at Leavenworth, Kans.
- The Pacific Branch, at Santa Monica, Cal.
- The Marion Branch, at Marion, Ind.
- The Danville Branch, at Danville, Ill.
- The Johnson City Branch, at Johnson City, Tenn.

STATE AND TERRITORIAL HOMES.

2321. That all States or Territories which have established, or which shall hereafter establish, State homes for disabled soldiers and sailors of the United States who served in the war of the rebellion, or in any previous war, who are disabled by age, disease, or otherwise, and by reason of such disability are incapable of earning a living, provided such disability was not incurred in service against the United States, shall be paid for every such disabled soldier or sailor who may be admitted and cared for in such home at the rate of one hundred dollars per annum. The number of such persons for whose care any State or Territory shall receive the said payment under this act shall be ascertained by the Board of Managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, under such regulations as it may prescribe, but the said State or Territorial homes shall be exclusively under the control of the respective State or Territorial authorities, and the Board of Managers shall not have nor assume any management or control of said State or Territorial homes. The Board of Managers of the National Home shall, however, have power to have the said State or Territorial homes inspected at such times as it may consider necessary, and shall report the result of such inspections to Congress in its annual report. Act of August 27, 1888 (25 Stat. L., 450).

Sec. 4832, R. S.

2325. Hereafter the following persons only shall be entitled to the benefits of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers and may be admitted thereto upon the order of a member of the Board of Managers, namely: All honorably discharged officers, soldiers, and sailors who served in the regular or volunteer forces of the United States in any war in which the country has been engaged, who are disabled by disease, wounds, or otherwise, and who have no adequate means of support, and by reason of such disability are incapable of earning their living.³ Act of May 26, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 217).

² Subsequent acts of appropriation contain the requirement "that one-half of any sum or sums retained by State homes on account of pensions received from inmates shall be deducted from the aid herein provided for."

³ This enactment replaces section 5 of the act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 121), section 2 of the act of March 2, 1887 (24 ibid., 444), and section 5 of the act of July 23, 1888 (25 ibid., 341).

The Government is under no legal obligation to provide burial places for destitute soldiers at a Volunteer Home. Section 4878, Revised Statutes, in providing that the soldiers, etc., there designated "may be buried in any national cemetery free of cost" does not require the establishment of a national cemetery specially for the purpose of interments at such a Home. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1770.

The act of January 28, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 745), contained the requirement that "all honorably discharged soldiers and sailors who served in the war of the rebellion and the Spanish-American war, and the provisional army and the volunteer soldiers and sailors of the war of eighteen hundred and twelve and of the Mexican war, who are disabled by age, disease, or otherwise, and by reason of such disability are incapable of earning a living, shall be admitted into the Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers."

TRANSFER OF INMATES.

2326. In the event that buildings at any Branch of the Home shall be destroyed by fire, or rendered unfit for habitation because of pestilence or by the elements, then and in that event the Board of Managers shall have authority to remove the members of said Branch so afflicted or destroyed to any other Branch not so affected; and to do this they may use any funds appropriated for the Home, notwithstanding they may have been specifically appropriated for other purposes, to the extent that such funds shall be necessary to effect such a transfer and the maintenance and support thereafter of said members so transferred, and shall report their doings therein to the Congress and their expenditures as in other cases of expenditures.

PENSIONS TO INMATES.

2328. All pensions payable or to be paid under this act, to pensioners who are inmates of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, shall be paid to the treasurer or treasurers of said Home, upon security given to the satisfaction of the managers, to be disbursed for the benefit of the pensioners without deduction for fines or penalties under regulations to be established by the managers of the Home; said payment to be made by the pension agent upon a certificate of the proper officer of the Home that the pensioner is an inmate thereof and is still living. Any balance of the pension which may remain at the date of the pensioner's discharge shall be paid over to him; and in case of his death at the Home, the same shall be paid to the widow or children, or in default of either to his legal representatives.¹ *Sec. 2, act of February 26, 1881 (21 Stat. Said payments shall be made by the pension agent upon a certificate of the proper officer of the Home that the pensioner is an inmate thereof on the day to which said pension is drawn. The treasurers of said Home, respectively, shall give security, to the satisfaction of the managers of said Home, for the payment and application by them of all arrears of pension and pension moneys they may receive under the aforesaid provision. And section two of the act entitled "An act making appropriations for the payment of invalid and other pensions of the United States for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and for deficiencies, and for other purposes," approved February twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and eighty-one, is hereby revived and continued in force.¹ Act of August 7, 1882 (22 Stat L., 322).

2349. In order to obtain practical benefits of great value to the country from the establishment of national military parks, said parks and their approaches are hereby declared to be national fields for military maneuvers for the Regular Army of the United States and the National Guard or Militia of the States: Provided, That the said parks shall be opened for such purposes only in the discretion of the Secretary of War, and under such regulations as he may prescribe.¹ Act of May 15, 1896 (29 Stat. L., 120).

¹ Section 35 of the act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 757), contained a provision that "the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to cause preliminary examinations and surveys to be made for the purpose of selecting four sites with a view to the establishment of permanent camp grounds for instruction of troops of the Regular Army and National Guard, with estimates of the cost of the sites and their equipment with all modern appliances, and for this purpose is authorized to detail such officers of the Army as may be necessary to carry on the preliminary work; and the sum of ten thousand dollars is hereby appropriated for the necessary expense of such work, to be disbursed under the direction of the Secretary of War: Provided, That the Secretary of War shall report to Congress the result of such examination and surveys; and no contract for said sites shall be made nor any obligations incurred until Congress shall approve such selections and appropriate the money therefor."

Secretary of War to designate forces to be instructed.
Sec. 2, ibid.

2350. The Secretary of War is hereby authorized, within the limits of appropriations which may from time to time be available for such purpose, to assemble, at his discretion, in camp at such season of the year and for such period as he may designate, at such field of military maneuvers, such portions of the military forces of the United States as he may think best, to receive military instruction there.
Sec. 2, ibid.

Secretary of War to make regulations.
Sec. 2, ibid.

2351. The Secretary of War is further authorized to make and publish regulations governing the assembling of the National Guard or Militia of the several States upon the maneuvering grounds, and he may detail instructors from the Regular Army for such forces during their exercises. Sec. 2, ibid.

PROTECTION OF MILITARY PARKS.

Injuries to monuments, trees, etc.
Mar. 3, 1897, v. 29, p. 621.

2352. Every person who willfully destroys, mutilates, defaces, injures, or removes any monument, statue, marker, guidepost, or other structure, or who willfully destroys, cuts, breaks, injures, or removes any tree, shrub, or plant within the limits of any National Parks, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each monument, statue, marker, guidepost, or other structure, tree, shrub, or plant destroyed, defaced, injured, cut, or removed, or by imprisonment for not less than fifteen days and not more than one year, or by both fine and imprisonment. Act of March 3, 1897 (29 Stat. L., 621.)

Trespassing, hunting, shooting, etc.
Sec. 2, ibid.

2353. Every person who shall trespass upon any National Parks for the purpose of hunting or shooting, or who shall hunt any kind of game thereon with gun or dog, or shall set trap or net or other device whatsoever thereon for the purpose of hunting or catching game of any kind, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for not less than five days or more than thirty days, or by both fine and imprisonment. Sec. 2, ibid.

Superintendents may make arrests.

2354. The superintendent or any guardian of such park is authorized to arrest forthwith any person engaged or who may have been engaged in committing any misdemeanor named in this act, and shall bring such person before any United States commissioner or judge of any district or circuit court of the United States within either of the districts within which the park is situated, and in the district within which the misdemeanor has been committed, for the purpose of holding him to answer for such misdemeanor, and then and there shall make complaint in due form.¹ Sec. 3, ibid.

2355. Any person to whom land lying within any National Parks may have been leased, who refuses to give up possession of the same to the United States after the termination of the said lease, and after possession has been demanded for the United States by any Park Commissioner or the Park Superintendent, or any person retaining possession of land lying within the boundary of said park which he or she may have sold to the United States for park purposes and have received payment therefor, after possession of the same has been demanded for the United States by any Park Commissioner or the Park Superintendent, shall be deemed guilty of trespass, and the United States may maintain an action for the recovery of the possession of the premises so withheld in the courts of the United States, according to the statutes or code of practice of the State in which the park may be situated.² Sec. 4, ibid.

the Attorney-General of the United States that the title to the lands thus ceded is perfect, the following described highways in those States are hereby declared to be approaches to and parts of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Military Park as established by the second section of this act, to wit: First. The Missionary Ridge Crest road from Sherman Heights at the north end of Missionary Ridge, in Tennessee, where the said road enters upon the ground occupied by the Army of the Tennessee under Major-General William T. Sherman, in the military operations of November twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth, eighteen hundred and sixty-three; thence along said road through the positions occupied by the army of General Braxton Bragg on November twenty-fifth, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, and which were assaulted by the Army of the Cumberland under Major-General George H. Thomas on that date, to where the said road crosses the southern boundary of the State of Tennessee, near Rossville Gap, Georgia, upon the ground occupied by the troops of Major-General Joseph Hooker, from the Army of the Potomac, and thence in the State of Georgia to the junction of said road with the Chattanooga and Lafayette or State road at Rossville Gap; second, the Lafayette or State road from Rossville, Georgia, to Lee and Gordon's Mills, Georgia; third, the road from Lee and Gordon's Mills, Georgia, to Crawfish Springs, Georgia; fourth, the road from Crawfish Springs, Georgia, to the crossing of the Chickamauga at Glass' Mills, Georgia; fifth, the Dry Valley road from Rossville, Georgia, to the southern limits of McFarland's Gap in Missionary Ridge; sixth, the Dry Valley and Crawfish Springs road from McFarland's Gap to the intersection of the road from Crawfish Springs to Lee and Gordon's Mills; seventh, the road from Ringold, Georgia, to Reed's Bridge on the Chickamauga River; eighth, the roads from the crossing of Lookout Creek across the northern slope of Lookout Mountain and thence to the old Summertown Road and to the valley on the east slope of the said mountain, and thence by the route of General Joseph Hooker's troops to Rossville, Georgia, and each and all of these herein described roads shall, after the passage of this act, remain open as free public highways, and all rights of way now existing through the grounds of the said park and its approaches shall be continued. Act of August 19, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 333).

park, which said address was in the following words, to wit:

Inscription.

“Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

“Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

“But, in a larger sense, we can not dedicate, we can not consecrate, we can not hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here; but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.”

And the sum of five thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to pay the cost of said tablet and medallion and pedestal. Sec. 8, act of February 11, 1895 (28 Stat. L., 651).

2410. The affairs of the Vicksburg national military park shall, subject to the supervision and direction of the Secretary of War, be in charge of three commissioners, to be appointed by the Secretary of War, each of whom shall have served at the time of the siege and defense in one of the armies engaged therein, two of whom shall have served in the army commanded by General Grant and one in the army commanded by General Pemberton. The commissioners shall elect one of their number chairman; they shall also elect, subject to the approval of the Secretary of War, a secretary, who shall also be historian, and who shall possess the requisite qualifications of a commissioner, and they and the secretary shall have an office in the city of Vicksburg, Mississippi, or on the grounds of the park, and be paid such compensation as the Secretary of War shall deem reasonable and just. Sec. 4, ibid.

2411. It shall be the duty of the commissioners named in the preceding section, under the direction of the Secretary of War, to restore the forts and the lines of fortification, the parallels and the approaches of the two armies, or so much thereof as may be necessary to the purposes of this park; to open and construct and to repair such roads as may be necessary to said purposes, and to ascertain and mark with historical tablets, or otherwise, as the Secretary of War may determine, the lines of battle of the troops engaged in the assaults, and the lines held by the troops during the siege and defense of Vicksburg, the headquarters of General Grant and of General Pemberton, and other historical points of interest pertaining to the siege and defense of Vicksburg within the park or its vicinity; and the said commissioners in establishing this military park shall also have authority under the direction of the Secretary of War to do all things necessary to the purposes of the park, and for its establishment under such regulations as he may consider best for the interest of the Government, and the Secretary of War shall make and enforce all needful regulations for the care of the park.¹

Duties.
Sec. 5, ibid.

2412. It shall be lawful for any State that had troops engaged in the siege and defense of Vicksburg to enter upon the lands of the Vicksburg National Military Park for the purpose of ascertaining and marking the lines of battle of its troops engaged therein: Provided, That before any such lines are permanently designated the position of the lines and the proposed methods of marking them by monuments, tablets, or otherwise shall be submitted to and approved by the Secretary of War, and all such lines, designs, and inscriptions for the same shall first receive the written approval of the Secretary of War, which approval shall be based upon formal written reports which must be made to him in each case by the commissioners of the park; and no monument, tablet, or other designating indication shall be erected or placed within said park or vicinity without State monuments, erection.

Sec. 6, ibid.

¹The employment of persons to aid the Vicksburg Military Park Commission in preparing abstracts of title to and conveyances of lands to be purchased for park purposes is not the employment of "attorneys or counsel," within the meaning of section 189, Revised Statutes, which provides that "no head of a department shall employ attorneys or counsel." The employment of such persons is authorized, and compensation for such services may be made from the appropriation made in section 8 of the act of February 21, 1899, 30 Stat. L., 841. 6 Comp. Dec., 133.

such written authority of the Secretary of War: Provided, That no discrimination shall be made against any State as to the manner of designating lines, but any grant made to any State by the Secretary of War may be used by any other State. The provisions of this section shall also apply to organizations and persons; and as the Vicksburg National Cemetery is on ground partly occupied by Federal lines during the siege of Vicksburg, the provisions of this section, as far as may be practicable, shall apply to monuments or tablets designating such lines within the limits of that cemetery. Sec. 6, ibid.

Injury to monuments, etc.
Sec. 7, ibid.

2413. If any person shall, except by permission of the Secretary of War, destroy, mutilate, deface, injure, or remove any monument, column, statue, memorial structure, tablet, or work of art that shall be erected or placed upon the grounds of the park by lawful authority, or shall destroy or remove any fence, railing, inclosure, or other work intended for the protection or ornamentation of said park, or any portion thereof, or shall destroy, cut, hack, bark, break down, or otherwise injure any tree, bush, or shrub that may be growing upon said park, or shall cut down or fell or remove any timber, battle relic, tree, or trees growing or being upon said park, or hunt within the limits of the park, or shall remove or destroy any breastworks, earthworks, walls, or other defenses or shelter on any part thereof constructed by the armies formerly engaged in the battles, on the lands or approaches to the park, any person so offending and found guilty thereof, before any United States commissioner or court, justice of the peace of the county in which the offense may be committed, or any court of competent jurisdiction, shall for each and every such offense forfeit and pay a fine in the discretion of the said commissioner or court of the United States or justice of the peace, according to the aggravation of the offense, of not less than five nor more than five hundred dollars, one-half for the use of the park and the other half to the informant, to be enforced and recovered before such United States commissioner or court or justice of the peace or other court in like manner as debts of like nature are now by law recoverable in the several counties where the offense may be committed. Sec. 7, ibid.

Construction of park.

2414. To enable the Secretary of War to begin to carry out the purpose of this act, including the condemnation or purchase of the necessary land, marking the boundaries of the park, opening or repairing necessary roads, restoring the field to its condition at the time of the battle, maps and surveys, material, labor, clerical and all other necessary assistants, and the pay and expenses of the commissioners and their secretary and assistants, the sum of sixty-five thousand dollars, or such portion thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, and disbursements under this act shall require the approval of the Secretary of War, and he shall make annual report of the same to Congress. Sec. 8, ibid.

JURISDICTION.

Sole jurisdiction of United States.
May 7, 1894, v.
28, p. 73.

2426. The Yellowstone National Park, as its boundaries now are defined, or as they may be hereafter defined or extended, shall be under the sole and exclusive jurisdiction of the United States; and that all the laws applicable to places under the sole and exclusive jurisdiction of the United States shall have force and effect in said park:¹ Provided, however, That nothing in this act shall be construed to forbid the service in the park of any civil or criminal process of any court having jurisdiction in the States of Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming. All fugitives from justice taking refuge in said park shall be subject to the same laws as refugees from justice found in the State of Wyoming. Sec. 1, act of May 7, 1894 (28 Stat L., 73).

State process.

2427. Said park, for all the purposes of this act, shall constitute a part of the United States judicial district of Wyoming, and the district and circuit courts of the United States in and for said district shall have jurisdiction of all offenses committed within said park. Sec. 2, ibid.

Jurisdiction of Wyoming judicial district.

2428. If any offense shall be committed in said Yellowstone National Park, which offense is not prohibited or the punishment is not specially provided for by any law of the United States or by any regulation of the Secretary of the Interior, the offender shall be subject to the same punishment as the laws of the State of Wyoming in force at the time of the commission of the offense may provide for a like offense in the said State; and no subsequent repeal of any such law of the State of Wyoming shall affect any prosecution for said offense committed within said park. Sec. 3, ibid.

Punishment of offenses under Wyoming laws.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONER.

2429. The United States circuit court in said district shall appoint a commissioner, who shall reside in the park, who shall have jurisdiction to hear and act upon all complaints made, of any and all violations of the law, or of the rules and regulations made by the Secretary of the Interior for the government of the park, and for the protection of the animals, birds, and fish and objects of interest

Commissioner,
May 7, 1895, s. 5,
v. 28, p. 73.

¹Section 2 of the act of July 10, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 222), by which the State of Wyoming was admitted to the Union, contained the following clause: "That nothing in this act contained shall repeal or affect any act of Congress relating to the Yellowstone National Park, or the reservation of the park as now defined, or as may be hereafter defined or extended, or the power of the United States over it; and nothing contained in this act shall interfere with the right and ownership of the United States in said park and reservation as it now is or may hereafter be defined or extended by law; but exclusive legislation, in all cases whatsoever, shall be exercised by the United States, which shall have exclusive control and jurisdiction over the same; but nothing in this proviso contained shall be construed to prevent the service within said park of civil and criminal process lawfully issued by the authority of said State; and the said State shall not be entitled to select indemnity school lands for the sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections that may be in said park reservation as the same is now defined or may be hereafter defined."

This statute operated to reserve to the United States exclusive jurisdiction and control over the park as then defined or as it might be thereafter defined or extended by enactment of Congress. By the act of May 7, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 73), paragraph 2427, post, Congress assumed the jurisdiction authorized by the act of July 10, 1890.

therein, and for other purposes authorized by this act. Such commissioner shall have power, upon sworn information, to issue process in the name of the United States for the arrest of any person charged with the commission of any misdemeanor, or charged with the violation of the rules and regulations, or with the violation of any provision of this act prescribed for the government of said park, and for the protection of the animals, birds, and fish in the said park, and to try the person so charged, and, if found guilty, to impose the punishment and adjudge the forfeiture prescribed. Section 5, act of May 7, 1894 (28 Stat. L., 73).

Trials.
Appeals.
Sec. 5, ibid.

2430. In all cases of conviction an appeal shall lie from the judgment of said commissioner to the United States district court for the district of Wyoming, said appeal to be governed by the laws of the State of Wyoming providing for appeals in cases of misdemeanor from justices of the peace to the district court of said State; but the United States circuit court in said district may prescribe rules of procedure and practice for said commissioner in the trial of cases and for appeal to said United States district court. Ibid.

Process in felony cases.
Ibid.

2431. Said commissioner shall also have power to issue process as hereinbefore provided for the arrest of any person charged with the commission of any felony within the park, and to summarily hear the evidence introduced, and, if he shall determine that probable cause is shown for holding the person so charged for trial, shall cause such person to be safely conveyed to a secure place for confinement, within the jurisdiction of the United States district court in said State of Wyoming, and shall certify a transcript of the record of his proceedings and the testimony in the case to the said court, which court shall have jurisdiction of the case: Provided, That the said commissioner shall grant bail in all cases bailable under the laws of the United States or of said State. All process issued by the commissioner shall be directed to the marshal of the United States for the district of Wyoming; but nothing herein contained shall be construed as preventing the arrest by any officer of the Government or employee of the United States in the park without process of any person taken in the act of violating the law or any regulation of the Secretary of the Interior: Provided, That the said commissioner shall only exercise such authority and powers as are conferred by this act. Ibid.

2432. That the commissioner provided for in this act shall, in addition to the fees allowed by law to commissioners of the circuit courts of the United States, be paid an annual salary of one thousand dollars,¹ payable quarterly, and the marshal of the United States and his deputies, and the attorney of the United States and his assistants in said district, shall be paid the same compensation and fees as are now provided by law for like services in said district. Sec. 7, ibid.

Fees, etc.
Sec. 7, ibid.

2433. The marshal of the United States for the district of Wyoming may appoint one or more deputy marshals for said park, who shall reside in said park, and the said United States district and circuit courts shall hold one session of said courts annually at the town of Sheridan, in the State of Wyoming, and may also hold other sessions at any other place in said State of Wyoming or in said national park at such dates as the said courts may order. Sec. 6, ibid.

Deputy marshals.

Terms of court.

2434. The Secretary of the Interior shall cause to be erected in the park a suitable building to be used as a jail, and also having in said building an office for the use of the commissioner, the cost of such building not to exceed five thousand dollars, to be paid out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated upon the certificate of the Secretary as a voucher therefor. Sec. 9, ibid.

Jail.

2435. All costs and expenses arising in cases under this act, and properly chargeable to the United States, shall be certified, approved, and paid as like costs and expenses in the courts of the United States are certified, approved, and paid under the laws of the United States. Sec. 8, ibid.

Costs, etc.

¹Section 2474, Revised Statutes, had contained the following requirement: "The Secretary may, in his discretion, grant leases for building purposes, for terms not exceeding ten years, of small parcels of ground, at such places in the park as may require the erection of buildings for the accommodation of visitors; all of the proceeds of such leases, and all other revenues that may be derived from any source connected with the park, to be expended under his direction in the management of the same, and the construction of roads and bridle paths therein." The act of March 3, 1883 (26 Stat. L., 620), had contained the following: "The Secretary of the Interior may lease small portions of ground in the park, not exceeding ten acres in extent for each tract, on which may be erected hotels and the necessary outbuildings, and for a period not exceeding ten years; but such lease shall not include any of the geysers or other objects of curiosity or interest in said park, or exclude the public from the free and convenient approach thereto; or include any ground within one quarter of a mile of any of the geysers or the Yellowstone Falls, nor shall there be leased more than ten acres to any one person or corporation; nor shall any hotel or other buildings be erected within the park, until such lease shall be executed by the Secretary of the Interior, and all contracts, agreements, or exclusive privileges heretofore made or given in regard to said park, or any part thereof, are hereby declared to be invalid; nor shall the Secretary of the Interior, in any lease which he may make and execute, grant any exclusive privileges within said park, except upon the ground leased."

therein granted. Every lease hereafter made for any property in said park shall require the lessee to observe and obey each and every provision in any act of Congress, and every rule, order, or regulation made, or which may hereafter be made, and published by the Secretary of the Interior concerning the use, care, management, or government of the park, or any object or property therein, under penalty of forfeiture of such lease, and every such lease shall be subject to the right of revocation and forfeiture, which shall therein be reserved by the Secretary of the Interior: And provided further, That persons or corporations now holding leases of ground in the park may, upon the surrender thereof, be granted new leases hereunder, and upon the terms and stipulations contained in their present leases, with such modifications, restrictions, and reservations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe.

This act, however, is not to be construed as mandatory upon the Secretary of the Interior, but the authority herein given is to be exercised in his sound discretion. Ibid.

July 14, 1876, v. 19, p. 99.

2448. The Secretary of War shall provide for the care and maintenance of the national military cemeteries, and for this purpose shall submit an estimate with his annual estimates to Congress, and section four thousand eight hundred and seventy-six of the Revised Statutes is hereby repealed. Act of July 24, 1876 (19 Stat. L., 99).

Acquisition of lands.

Sec. 4870, R. S.

2449. The Secretary of War shall purchase from the owners thereof, at such price as may be mutually agreed upon between the Secretary and such owners, such real estate as in his judgment is suitable and necessary for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions for national cemeteries, and obtain from such owners the title in fee simple for the same. And in case the Secretary of War is not able to agree with any owner upon the price to be paid for any real estate needed for such purpose, or to obtain from such owner title in fee simple for the same, the Secretary is hereby authorized to enter upon and appropriate any real estate which, in his judgment, is suitable and necessary for such purposes.

Appraisement.
Feb. 22, 1867, c. 61, §. 5, v. 14, p. 400.
Sec. 4871, R. S.

2450. The Secretary of War, or the owners of any real estate thus entered upon and appropriated, are authorized to make application for an appraisement of real estate thus entered upon and appropriated to any circuit or district court within any State or district where such real estate is situated; and such courts shall, upon such application, and in such mode and under such rules and regulations as it may adopt, make a just and equitable appraisement of the cash value of the several interests of each and every owner of such real estate and improvements thereon.

2451. When appraisement of the real estate thus entered upon and appropriated has been made under the order and direction of the court, the fee simple thereof shall, upon payment to the owner of the appraised value, or in case such owner refuses or neglects for thirty days after the appraisement of the cash value of the real estate or improvements as aforesaid to demand the same from the Secretary of War upon depositing the appraised value in the court making such appraisement to the credit of such owner, be vested in the United States, and its jurisdiction over such real estate shall be exclusive and the same as its jurisdiction over real estate purchased, ceded, or appropriated for the purposes of navy-yards, forts, and arsenals. The Secretary of War is authorized and required to pay to the several owner or owners, respectively, the appraised value of the several pieces or parcels of real estate, as specified in the appraisement of any of such courts, or to pay into any of such courts by deposit, as hereinbefore provided, the appraised value; and the sum necessary for such purpose may be taken from any moneys appropriated for the purposes of national cemeteries.¹

Payment.
Sec. 6, ibid.
Mar. 2, 1877, c.
83, v. 19, p. 269.

¹ To authorize payment for land appropriated for the purpose of a national cemetery under the act of February 22, 1867 (14 Stat. L., 400; sec. 4870, Rev. Stat.), the consent of the legislature of the State in which the land lies is not necessary; nor in such case is the opinion of the Attorney-General as to the validity of the title required; though as a prudential measure for the security of the Government it would seem to be highly expedient to obtain his opinion. XIII Opin. Att. Gen., 131; XIV; ibid., 271; ibid., 559.

The appraisement of land for a national cemetery, as duly made by a United States court under sections 4871 and 4872, Revised Statutes, is conclusive upon the Secretary of War, who must thereupon pay the appraised value as indicated in the latter section. If indeed there has been fraud in the valuation by which the court has been deceived in its decree, or its original appraisement is deemed excessive, it may properly be moved for a new appraisement on the part of the United States. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 1763. See XIII Opin. Att. Gen., 27.

To authorize the acquisition by the exercise of the right of eminent domain, of private land for a national cemetery under sections 4870 and 4871, Revised Statutes, there must be (1) an existing appropriation (in conformity with the rule of section 3736, Revised Statutes) authorizing the acquisition; and (2) the private owner must be unwilling to give title, or the Secretary of War be unable to agree with him as to price. Ibid., par. 1769.

Held that, notwithstanding the provision in section 4872, Revised Statutes, that the jurisdiction of the United States over land taken for a national cemetery by the right of eminent domain "shall be exclusive," such a jurisdiction, where the land is within a State, can not legally be vested in the United States except by the cession of the State legislature. In the absence of such cession on the part of the State sovereignty an act of Congress must be powerless to confer such an authority. (a) Ibid.

An appropriation for the inclosure and improvement of a cemetery must be regarded as a ratification of the taking and of the intent to occupy permanently. Johnson v. U. S., 31 Ct. Cls., 262.

Superintendents of national cemeteries are no part of the Army, but civilians, being required indeed by section 4874, Revised Statutes, to be selected from persons who have been honorably discharged from the military service. ¹HISTORICAL NOTE.

In the early periods of English history military law existed only in time of actual war. When war broke out troops were raised as occasion required, and ordinances for their government, or, as they were afterwards called, Articles of War, were issued by the Crown, with the advice of the constable or of the peers or other experienced persons, or were enacted by the commander in chief in pursuance of an authority for that purpose given in his commission from the Crown. (a)

These ordinances or articles, however, remained in force only during the service of the troops for whose government they were issued, and ceased to operate on the conclusion of peace. Military law in time of peace did not come into existence until the passing of the first mutiny act in 1689.

The system of governing troops in active service by articles of war, issued under the prerogative power of the Crown, whether issued by the King himself, or by the commanders in chief, or by other officers holding commissions from the Crown, continued from the time of the Conquest till long after the passing of the annual mutiny acts, (b) and did not actually cease till the prerogative power of issuing such articles was superseded in 1803 by a corresponding statutory power. (c)

The earlier articles were of excessive severity, inflicting death or loss of limb for almost every crime. Gradually, however, they assumed something of the shape which they bear in modern times, and the ordinances or articles of war issued by Charles I in 1672 formed the groundwork of the Articles of War of 1878, which were consolidated with the mutiny act in the army discipline and regulation act of 1879, which was replaced by the army act of 1881. The army act of 1881, which now constitutes the military code of the British army, has of itself no force, but requires to be brought into operation annually by another act of Parliament, thus securing the constitutional principle of the control of the Parliament over the discipline requisite for the government of the army. (a)

The Rules and Articles of War were derived originally from the English mutiny act and articles of war under the following circumstances: In May, 1775, the Continental Congress met in Philadelphia and at once proceeded to levy and organize an army. A system of rules for its government was, of course, indispensable. The members of this Congress were naturally familiar with the English military code. The local troops serving with the English forces sent to this country in 1754 had been brought under the mutiny act, while the armies of Gage and Burgoyne were governed by the English code at the time the first "Continental troops" were raised. It was but natural, therefore, that this body should turn to the mutiny act as a model, and on June 30, 1775, the Congress promulgated articles, 69 in number, for the government of the Continental troops. These articles were adopted from the English, in the same form as our present articles, modified, however, to meet the milder views which were entertained by a people who entertained an objection to a standing army. Additions were made in November of this year, but were repealed by the act of September 30, 1776, and new articles adopted. These articles, 102 in number, were modeled upon the British form and were arranged in 18 sections. With some modifications they remained in force until 1806.

In September, 1789, they were formally recognized and adapted to the new Constitution by the First Congress of the United States. In 1806 the articles, 101 in number, were rearranged and promulgated by Congress; (b) the divisions into sections were dropped and the old model substituted. These, with five or six modifications, remained in force for nearly seventy years, and were the governing code of the Army until the passage of the act of June 22, 1874 (c) (18 Stat. L., 113). These articles are embodied in the Revised Statutes as sections 1342 and 1343 of that work.

mentioned therein shall be understood to be convictions by court-martial.¹ Sec. 1342, R. S.

That whenever by any of the Articles of War for the government of the Army the punishment on conviction of any military offense is left to the discretion of the court-martial, the punishment therefor shall not, in time of peace, be in excess of a limit which the President may prescribe.² Act of September 27, 1890 (26 Stat. L., 491).

ART. 2. These rules and articles shall be read to every enlisted man at the time of or within six days after his enlistment, and he shall thereupon take an oath or affirmation in the following form: "I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the United States of America; that I will serve them honestly and faithfully against all their enemies whomsoever, and that I will obey the orders of the President of the United States and the orders of the officers appointed over me, according to the rules and articles of war." This oath may be taken before any commissioned officer of the Army.³

3 Art. War.

¹The Army and Navy of the United States are engaged in the performance of public, not private, duties. Service in the army or navy of one's country, according to the terms of the enlistment, never implies slavery or involuntary servitude, even where the soldier or sailor is required against his will to respect the terms upon which he voluntarily engaged to serve the public. Involuntary service rendered for the public, pursuant as well to the requirements of a statute as to a previous voluntary engagement, is not, in any legal sense, either slavery or involuntary servitude. (Robertson v. Baldwin, 165 U. S., 275, 299.) (Dissenting opinion of Justice Harlan.)

²Under the authority conferred by this statute two executive orders have been issued prescribing limits of punishment for offenses to which specific penalties are not attached in the Articles of War. See G. O. No. 21, A. G. O. of 1891, as modified by the executive order of March 20, 1895 (MANUAL FOR COURTS-MARTIAL, pp. 59-63).

³The taking of the oath prescribed by this article is not an essential to the validity of an enlistment. It is, however, an almost invariable part of a regular formal enlistment, and in the absence of any provision in our law defining in what an enlistment shall consist, it is important that it should not be omitted for the reason that the oath as taken and subscribed by the party constitutes the regular and in some cases the only legal written evidence that the personal act of enlisting has been completed by him. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1251. But see Grimley's case (137 U. S., 147), in which it was held that the oath of allegiance was the pivotal fact which changed the status from that of civilian to soldier. Section 11 of the act of August 3, 1861 (12 Stat. L., 289), conferred authority to administer the oath of allegiance upon any commissioned officer of the Army.

The statement in regard to age, incorporated in the printed blank which contains the form of oath prescribed by this article, is no part whatever of the legal oath. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 19.

By direction of the Secretary of War, such of the Articles of War as relate specially to the duties and rights of enlisted men and the penalties for military crimes will be plainly read, and so far as necessary, explained to each recruit just before administering to him the oath of enlistment. ART. 3. Every officer who knowingly enlists or musters into the military service any minor over the age of sixteen years without the written consent of his parents or guardians, or any minor under the age of sixteen years, or any insane or intoxicated persons, or any deserter from the military or naval service of the United States, or any person who has been convicted of any infamous criminal offense shall, upon conviction, be dismissed from the service or suffer such other punishment as a court-martial may direct.¹

Fraudulent enlistment.

July 27, 1892, s. 3, v. 27, p. 277.

Fraudulent enlistment, and the receipt of any pay or allowance thereunder, is hereby declared a military offense and made punishable, by a court-martial, under the sixty-second Article of War.² Sec. 3, act of July 27, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 277).

Discharges.

4 Art. War.

ART. 4. No enlisted man, duly sworn, shall be discharged from the service without a discharge in writing, signed by a field officer of the regiment to which he belongs, or by the commanding officer, when no field officer is present:

¹ Neither this article nor the directory provision in pari materia of sections 1117-1118, Revised Statutes, renders void enlistments of the classes of persons whose enlistment or muster-in is made punishable and interdicted. Except, of course, in the case of an enlistment of a person clearly non compos mentis, and whose contract is a nullity in law independently of any statute, these enlistments are voidable only; the United States may hold the party to service or may discharge him forthwith in the manner authorized by the fourth article. Ibid., 20, par. 1.

It is not essential to a conviction under this article that the officer shall be shown to have had positive and absolute knowledge that the person enlisted by him belonged to one of the classes of persons whose enlistment is made an offense. If he had such knowledge or information as to place the fact beyond a reasonable doubt he may properly be deemed to have acted "knowingly." Ibid., par. 2.

The enlistment of a party who was evidently so much under the influence of liquor as to make it doubtful whether he comprehended the legal effect of his acts, held an enlistment of an "intoxicated person" and an offense under this article. Ibid., par. 3.

² This offense (constituted and made punishable as a violation of article 62, by section 3 of the act of July 27, 1892, c. 272) is defined in Circular No. 13 (A. G. O.), 1892. The misrepresentation or concealment characterizing it must have induced the enlistment of the soldier, and must have related to a fact which, if known, would have caused his rejection. Where the offense consisted in his having concealed the fact that he had been discharged with a questionable character—viz, "very good except when intoxicated, then bad"—held that such offense was chargeable as "fraudulent enlistment," provided the knowledge of this fact on the part of the recruiting officer would have prevented the enlistment. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1412.

A fraudulently enlisting soldier may be disposed of in either of two ways, viz, he may be brought to trial for his offense under the statute or he may be discharged "without honor." If brought to trial and convicted, and his sentence does not include dishonorable discharge (as it need not do under the order prescribing a maximum punishment for this offense), held that the Government could not properly also summarily discharge him. While it might have resorted to either course, it would scarcely be just to subject the offender to both. Ibid., par. 1413.

A fraudulent contract of enlistment is not void, but voidable only at the option of the Government. The Government, on becoming cognizant of the fraud, may avoid the contract, or waive the objection and allow it to stand—in which latter case the accepted service is as legal as that of any other soldier. Where the fraudulent character of an enlistment contract did not become known until after a part of it had been executed, held that while the same as to its unexecuted portion might legally then be avoided and terminated, yet as to the part executed it was a valid contract, and the soldier could not lawfully be required to refund money paid for that part. Ibid., par. 1414.

and no discharge shall be given to an enlisted man before his term of service has expired, except by order of the President, the Secretary of War, the commanding officer of a department, or by sentence of a general court-martial.¹

¹ While no soldier can assume to discharge himself from the military service, he is yet, at the expiration of his contract of enlistment, entitled in general to be at once formally discharged by the proper authority. (a) In view, however, of the terms of the first clause of this article, held that a discharge of a soldier actually takes effect, like a deed, only upon the delivery, actual or constructive, of the written certificate of discharge. Thus, where a soldier's discharge was not received by him at his station—a hospital in the field—till at the end of three months after its date, held that it did not take effect till its receipt, and that the soldier was entitled to pay up to that time. Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., 20, par. 1.

A formal discharge, given to a soldier in accordance with this article, is legal evidence of the fact of discharge, as well as of the circumstances—when the same are stated—under which the soldier was separated from the service. (b) Ibid., 21, par. 2.

Where an honorable discharge has once duly taken effect by the delivery of the formal certificate (see art. 4, sec. 1), it is final and can not be revoked unless obtained by fraud. (c) But in such a case the revocation should be made within a reasonable time, otherwise the Government will be deemed to have waived the defect. A mere order for a discharge may, of course, be recalled or suspended at any time before it is executed by the delivery of the discharge ordered. Where an officer of volunteers had been duly mustered out of service—a form of honorable discharge—and was thus a civilian, held that a revocation in orders of his muster out, and a substitution therefor of a dishonorable discharge, would—in the absence of any fraud in the case—be wholly unauthorized and illegal. Ibid., 355, par. 1.

Where a soldier, by making an alteration in his "descriptive list," so as to cause it to appear that his term of enlistment, which was in fact five years, was three years only, induced the regimental commander to give him an honorable discharge at the end of three years' service, held, upon the fraud being presently discovered, that the discharge might legally be revoked and the soldier be brought to trial by court-martial under the ninety-ninth (now sixty-second) article of war. But where, by competent authority, according to the present fourth article, an honorable discharge was given to a soldier who was at the time in arrest under charges, held that such discharge—no fraud being imputable to the soldier—was final, and could not legally be revoked. Ibid., par. 1142.

The fact that a soldier has been a deserter does not affix an irreparable taint upon his status or service when returned from desertion, or preclude his receiving an honorable discharge, if either he be restored to duty without trial, or having been tried and sentenced, he yet, by reason of his imprisonment being fully executed or being remitted before the end of his term, is returned to duty and is in the performance of faithful service when his term is completed. A discharge in the usual form then given to him, is an authoritative declaration by it that he leaves the military service in a status of honor. Thus honorably discharged, he can not, by reason of his having formerly deserted, be deprived of any rights to pay, allowances, or bounty usually incident upon honorable discharge. (d) Ibid., 356, par. 4.

This article, in its second clause, specifies two kinds of discharge as authorized to be given to soldiers before their terms of enlistment have expired, and which are quite distinct in their nature. The one is given by Executive order and the other by sentence; the one is a rescinding of the contract of the soldier, authorized to be resorted to whenever deemed desirable, at the discretion of the Secretary of War, etc., and is, in law, an honorable discharge or a discharge without honor, as the case may be; the other is a punishment, and therefore a dishonorable discharge. One of the officials named can, of his own authority, no more order a soldier to be, in terms technically, dishonorably discharged than can a court-martial adjudge a soldier to be honorably discharged. A discharge can not legally be given a soldier before the expiration of his term of service except as authorized in this article; and no officer, other than the three designated, can exercise the authority, expressly devolved upon them, of discharging by order. (e) Ibid., 21, par. 3.

Mustering persons not soldiers.
5 Art. War.

ART. 5. Any officer who knowingly musters as a soldier a person who is not a soldier shall be deemed guilty of knowingly making a false muster, and punished accordingly.

Taking money on mustering.
6 Art. War.

ART. 6. Any officer who takes money, or other thing, by way of gratification, on mustering any regiment, troop, battery, or company, or on signing muster-rolls, shall be dismissed from the service, and shall thereby be disabled to hold any office or employment in the service of the United States.

Returns of regiments, etc.
7 Art. War.

ART. 7. Every officer commanding a regiment, an independent troop, battery, or company, or a garrison, shall, in the beginning of every month, transmit through the proper channels, to the Department of War, an exact return of the same, specifying the names of the officers then absent from their posts, with the reasons for and the time of their absence. And any officer who, through neglect or design, omits to send such returns, shall, on conviction thereof, be punished as a court-martial may direct.

False returns.
8 Art. War.

ART. 8. Every officer who knowingly makes a false return to the Department of War, or to any of his superior officers authorized to call for such returns, of the state of the regiment, troop, or company, or garrison under his command; or of the arms, ammunition, clothing, or other stores thereunto belonging, shall, on conviction thereof before a court-martial, be cashiered.¹

Captured stores secured for public service.
9 Art. War.

ART. 9. All public stores taken from the enemy shall be secured for the service of the United States; and for neglect thereof the commanding officer shall be answerable.²

¹This article refers only to returns made by certain commanders as such. It is only as commander of a regiment, company, or garrison that an officer can be made amenable to a charge under the article. An officer not exercising one of these commands is not within its terms. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. Gen., par. 1.

In 1872 an officer of the line of the Army, on duty as post quartermaster at Paducah, Ky., was tried for a violation of this article in making false returns of the property for which he was responsible, and was convicted. As the article applies exclusively to officers exercising the specific commands named in the statute, and as the officer in this exercised no one of the commands so specified, the findings under the eighth article were disapproved by the reviewing authority. Gen. Court-Martial Orders, No. 12, War Dept., 1872. See, also, G. C. M. O., No. 19, War Dept., 1872.

An officer "knowingly makes a false return" under this article who makes a return which he knows to be untrue in any material particular. Ibid, 22, par. 2.

The "returns" indicated in the article can scarcely be said to include returns of funds, what is contemplated being mainly returns of the personnel or materiel of the command. A false return of a company fund would more properly be charged under another article, as the sixty-first or sixty-second. Ibid, par. 2.

²The title to property captured from an enemy in war vests, at the instant of capture, in the captor's Government, which may make such disposition of it as it may deem expedient. The policy and practice of the United States, as to the property captured on land, has been to retain it for governmental uses or to sell it and convert

ART. 10. Every officer commanding a troop, battery, or company, is charged with the arms, accouterments, ammunition, clothing, or other military stores belonging to his command, and is accountable to his colonel in case of their being lost, spoiled, or damaged otherwise than by unavoidable accident, or on actual service.

for arms, etc.
10 Art. War.

ART. 11. Every officer commanding a regiment or an independent troop, battery, or company, not in the field, may, when actually quartered with such command, grant furloughs to the enlisted men, in such numbers and for such time as he shall deem consistent with the good of the service. Every officer commanding a regiment, or an independent troop, battery, or company, in the field, may grant furloughs not exceeding thirty days at one time, to five per centum of the enlisted men, for good conduct in the line of duty, but subject to the approval of the commander of the forces of which said enlisted men form a part. Every company officer of a regiment, commanding any troop, battery, or company not in the field, or commanding in any garrison, fort, post, or barrack, may, in the absence of his field officer, grant furloughs to the enlisted men, for a time not exceeding twenty days in six months, and not to more than two persons to be absent at the same time.

Furloughs.

the proceeds to its own use. See the "Captured and abandoned property act" (act of March 12, 1863), in the chapter entitled EMPLOYMENT OF MILITARY FORCE, ETC.

This provision is in accordance with the principle of the law of nations and of war, that enemy's property duly captured in war becomes the property of the government or power by whose forces it is taken, and not that of the individuals who take it. (a) "Private persons can not capture for their own benefit." (b) Military stores taken from the enemy, becoming upon capture the property of the United States, Congress, which by the Constitution (c) is exclusively vested with the power to dispose of the public property, as well as to make rules concerning captures on land and water, can alone authorize the sale or transfer of the same. An officer or soldier of the Army who assumes of his own authority to appropriate such articles renders himself chargeable with a military offense. (d) Ibid, par. 3.

17 Art. War.

ART. 17. Any soldier who sells or through neglect loses or spoils his horse, arms, clothing, or accouterments shall be punished as a court-martial may adjudge, subject to such limitations as may be prescribed by the President by virtue of the power vested in him.³

² For a case in which an officer was convicted of false muster (although the offense was erroneously charged under the sixty-first article) see G. O., 183, A. G. O., 1863.

The description, "his clothing," refers to articles which are regularly issued to the soldier for his use in the service and with the safe-keeping of which he is charged. His property in them is qualified by the trust that he can not dispose of them while he is in the military service, and can only use them for military purposes. Ibid., par 6.

Improper dispositions of property in the charge and use of soldiers, other than the dispositions indicated in this article, will in general properly be charged under article 62. Likewise the selling, through neglect losing, etc., by soldiers, of property issued to them, but not mentioned in article 17, should be charged under article 62. Thus held that a selling or losing of the following articles was not punishable under ^a See G. C. M. O., 28, War Department, 1872.

^b Where a trial is had, the proceedings of a board of survey, already ordered in the same case, will not be competent evidence to prove the fact of the loss, etc., charged. G. C. M. O., 45, Department of the Missouri, 1877; G. C. M. O., 15, Department of Texas, 1877.

ART. 18. Any officer commanding in any garrison, fort, or barracks of the United States who, for his private advantage, lays any duty or imposition upon, or is interested in, the sale of any victuals, liquors, or other necessities of life, brought into such garrison, fort, or barracks, for the use of the soldiers, shall be dismissed from the service.

Commanders not to be interested in sale of victuals, etc.
18 Art. War.

ART. 19. Any officer who uses contemptuous or disrespectful words against the President, the Vice-President, the Congress of the United States, or the chief magistrate or legislature of any of the United States in which he is quartered, shall be dismissed from the service, or otherwise punished, as a court-martial may direct. Any soldier who so offends shall be punished as a court-martial may direct.¹

article 17, but under article 62, viz, sheets, pillows, pillowcases, mattress covers, shelter tent, barrack bag, greatcoat strap, tin cup, spoon, knife, fork, meat-ration can, cartridges. Ibid., par. 8.

Only three offenses are made punishable by this article—selling, through neglect losing, and through neglect spoiling the property named therein. Any other form of wrongful disposition should be made the subject of a charge under article 60 or article 62. Ibid., par. 7.

“Unlawfully disposing of” (or “otherwise unlawfully disposing of”) clothing, arms, etc., is not a proper form for the charge under this article. A charge under this article should not be expressed in the alternative—as that the accused “sold” or “through neglect lost.” The selling, through neglect losing, and through neglect spoiling, are distinct offenses and are to be so charged. Ibid., par. 9, 10.

Clothing issued and charged to a soldier is not now (as it was formerly) regarded as remaining the property of the United States. It is now considered as becoming, upon issue, the property of the soldier, although his use of it is, for purposes of discipline, qualified and restricted. Thus, he commits a military offense by disposing of it as specified in this article, though the United States may suffer no loss. Ibid., par. 11.

The present seventeenth article (as amended by the act of July 27, 1892) does not authorize a stoppage or forfeiture of pay to reimburse the United States. The stoppage which was enjoined by the old form of the article is dropped entirely from the present statute. This provides for punishment only—does not provide any means of reimbursing the appropriation out of which the lost, etc., property was paid for, or of repairing the loss or damage as such. So held (April, 1893) that a sentence, upon a conviction under this article, which adjudged a stoppage of pay “to reimburse the United States for the value of the clothing alienated” was unauthorized and inoperative. Ibid., par. 12.

¹ When a trial of an officer or soldier has been resorted to under this article, it has usually been on account of the use of “contemptuous or disrespectful words against the President,” or the Government mainly as represented by the President. The deliberate employment of denunciatory or contumelious language in regard to the President, whether spoken in public, or published, or conveyed in a communication designed to be made public, has, in repeated cases, been made the subject of charges and trial under this article; (a) and, where taking the form of a hostile arraignment, by an officer, of the President or his Administration, for the measures adopted in carrying on the late war—a juncture when a peculiar obedience and deference were due, on the part of the subordinate, to the President as Executive and Commander in Chief—was in general punished by a sentence of dismissal. On the other hand, it was held that adverse criticisms of the acts of the President, occurring in political discussions, and which, though characterized by intemperate language, were not apparently intended to be disrespectful to the President personally or to his office, or to excite animosity against him, were not in general to be regarded as properly exposing officers or soldiers to trial under this article. To seek, indeed, for ground of offense in such discussions would ordinarily be inquisitorial and beneath the dignity of the Government. Dig. Opin., J. A. G., par. 13.

Disrespect toward commanding officer.
20 Art. War.

ART. 20. Any officer or soldier who behaves himself with disrespect toward his commanding officer shall be punished as a court-martial may direct.¹

Striking a superior officer.
21 Art. War.

ART. 21. Any officer or soldier who, on any pretense whatsoever, strikes his superior officer, or draws or lifts up any weapon, or offers any violence against him, being in the execution of his office, or disobeys any lawful command of his superior officer, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as a court-martial may direct.²

Held that disrespectful language used in regard to his captain by a soldier when detached from his company and serving at a hospital, to the surgeon in charge of which he has been ordered to report for duty, was an offense cognizable by court-martial not under this article, but under article 62. Ibid., par. 15.

² To justify a conviction of the capital offense of offering violence against a superior officer, it should be made to appear in evidence that the accused knew or believed that the person assaulted was in fact an officer in the Army and was his "superior" in rank. (d) Ibid., par. 17.

Under a charge of a violation of this article in offering violence to a superior officer, it should be alleged and proved that the officer assaulted was at the time "in the execution of his office." Ibid., par. 18.

In charging a striking or doing of violence to a superior officer under this article, in a case where the assault was fatal, it was allowable to add in the specification, "thereby causing his death," as indicating the measure of violence employed. Ibid., par. 19.

The "superior officer" in the sense of this article need not necessarily have been the commanding officer of the accused at the time of the offense. The article is thus broader than article 20, which relates only to an offense against a commanding officer. Ibid., par. 20.

"The first duty of a soldier is obedience, and without this there can be neither discipline nor efficiency in an army." McCall v. McDowell, 15 Fed. Cas., 1235.

"To insure efficiency an army must be, to a certain extent, a despotism. Each officer * * * is invested with an arbitrary power over those beneath him, and the soldier who enlists in the army waives, in some particulars, his rights as a civilian, surrenders his personal liberty during the term of his enlistment, and consents to come and go at the will of his superior officers. He agrees to become amenable to the military courts, to be disciplined for offenses unknown to the civil law, to relinquish his right of trial by jury, and to receive punishments which, to the civilian, seem out of all proportion to the magnitude of the offense." U. S. v. Clarke, 3 Fed. Rep., 713—Brown, J.

"An army is not a deliberative body. It is the executive arm. Its law is that of obedience. No question can be left open as to the right to command in the officer, or the duty of obedience in the soldier. Vigor and efficiency on the part of the officer and confidence among the soldiers in one another are impaired if any question be left open as to their attitude to each other." In re Grimley, 137 U. S., 153.

The offense of disobedience of orders contemplated by this article consists in a refusal or neglect to comply with a specific order to do or not to do a particular thing. A mere failure to perform a routine duty is properly charged under article 62. (a) Where an officer neglected fully to perform his duty under general instructions given him in regard to the conduct of an expedition against Indians, held that his offense was properly chargeable not under the twenty-first, but under the sixty-second article. Dig. Opin., J. A. G., par. 25.

The fact that any stated duty is enjoined in regulations or orders does not in itself render a nonperformance of such duty a disobedience of orders in violation of the twenty-first article; but to support this charge it is essential that there should be shown an intentional disregard of authority as is evinced by a willful refusal or omission to comply with the specific command of a superior officer. G. C. M. O. 26, War Dept., 1872.

A noncompliance by a soldier with an order emanating from a noncommissioned officer, or offering violence to the latter is not an offense under this article, but one to be charged, in general, under the sixty-second. (b) Dig. Opin., J. A. G. par. 21.

Under a charge of a disobedience of the order of a superior officer in violation of this article, it should be alleged, and should appear from the evidence introduced, that the order or "command" was "lawful." An officer or soldier is not punishable under this article for disobeying an unlawful order. But the order of a proper superior is to be presumed to be lawful, and should be obeyed, where it is not clearly and obviously in contravention of law. Unless the illegality is unquestionable, he should obey first and seek redress, if entitled to any, afterwards. A military inferior in refusing or failing to comply with the order of a superior on the ground that the same is, in his opinion, unlawful does so, of course, on his own personal responsibility and at his own risk. Ibid., par. 22.

To justify, from a military point of view, a military inferior in disobeying the order of a superior, the order must be one requiring something to be done which is palpably a breach of law and a crime or an injury to a third person, or is of a serious character (not involving unimportant consequences only) and if done would not be susceptible of being righted. An order requiring the performance of a military duty or act can not be disobeyed with impunity unless it has one of these characters. If not triable under the twenty-first article, such disobedience may be tried under the sixty-second. In the Cedarquist case it was held by the Judge-Advocate-General that "there could be no more dangerous principle in the government of the Army than that each soldier should determine for himself whether an order requiring a military duty to be performed is necessary or in accordance with orders, regulations, decision circulars, or custom, and may disobey the order if, in his judgment (taking, of course, all risks in case his judgment should be erroneous), it should not be necessary or should be at variance with orders, regulations, decision circulars, or custom. It is his duty to obey such order first, and if he should be aggrieved thereby, he can seek redress afterwards." Ibid., par. 23.

The civil responsibility is another matter. Civil courts have sometimes made allowance for the requirements of military discipline, but if they should not, the military obligation would remain unimpaired. The soldier, in entering the service, has voluntarily submitted himself to this double and possibly conflicting liability. The evil of an undisciplined soldiery would be far greater than the injustice (apparent, rather than actual) of this principle. Ibid., note 1.

An order given by a military officer to his private should be obeyed by the private, and will be his full protection in a criminal prosecution, unless the illegality of the order is so clearly shown on its face that a man of ordinary sense and understanding would know when he heard it read or given that the order was illegal. In re Fair et al., 100 Fed. Rep., 149; Riggs v. State, 3 Cold., 85; McCall v. McDowell, Fed. Cases, No. 8673; U. S. v. Clark, 31 Fed. Rep., 710; In re Grimley, 137 U. S., 147; In re Lewis, 83 Fed. Rep., 159; In re Waite, 81 Fed. Rep., 359.

Whatever may be the rule in time of war and in the presence of actual hostilities, military officers can no more protect themselves than civilians for actual wrongs, committed in time of peace, under orders emanating from a source which is itself without authority in the premises. Hence, a military officer seizing liquors supposed to be in Indian country, when they are not, is liable to an action as a trespasser. Bates v. Clark, 95 U. S., 204.

An officer or soldier on leave of absence can not in general be made liable to a Mutiny.

22 Art. War.

charge of disobedience of orders, except, indeed, where required by a positive order, issued on account of a public emergency, to return before his leave has expired, and failing to comply with such requirement. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 29, par. 10.

An illiterate soldier, unable to sign his name, was furnished with a written exhibit of it, and ordered by his commanding officer to continue to copy the same till he could properly sign his name to papers. He refused. Held that such order, while not in fact a legal one, was not one palpably illegal, and that the soldier should have obeyed it and complained afterwards. Disobedience of an order, however, where its illegality is merely doubtful, should be charged under the sixty-second rather than under this article. Ibid., par. 26.

Where an officer respectfully declined to comply with the direction of his superior to sign the certificate to a report of target firing, on the ground that the facts set forth in such certificate were not within his knowledge, he having been stationed at the butt, where he was not in a position to be informed as to such facts, held that he was not amenable to a charge of disobedience of orders under this article. Ibid., par. 29.

The term officer ("superior officer"), in this as in other articles of war, means commissioned officer. (Sec. 1342, Revised Statutes.) So held that the disobedience by a cadet private of the Military Academy of an order of a cadet lieutenant of his company was not chargeable under this article, but was an offense under article 62. Ibid., par. 30.

To charge as a capital offense under this article a mere act of insubordination or disorderly conduct on the part of an individual soldier or officer, unaccompanied by the intent above indicated, is irregular and improper. (c) Such an act should in general be charged under article 20, 21, or 62. Ibid., par. 31.

Soldiers can not properly be charged with the offense of joining in a mutiny under this article where their act consists in refusing, in combination, to comply with an unlawful order. Thus, where a detachment of volunteer soldiers who, under and by virtue of acts of Congress specially authorizing the enlistment of volunteers for the purpose of the suppression of the rebellion, and with the full understanding on their part and that of the officers by whom they were mustered into the service that they were to be employed solely for this purpose, entered into enlistments expressed in terms to be for the war, and after doing faithful service during the war, and just before the legal end of the war, but when it was practically terminated, and when the volunteer organizations were being mustered out as no longer required for the prosecution of the war, were ordered to march to the Plains, and to a region far distant from the theater of the late war, and engage in fighting Indians, wholly unconnected as allies or otherwise with the recent enemy, and thereupon refused together to comply with such orders, held that they were not chargeable with mutiny. While by the strict letter of their contracts they were subject to be employed upon any military service up to the last day of their terms of enlistment, the public acts and history of ART. 23. Any officer or soldier who, being present at any mutiny or sedition, does not use his utmost endeavor to suppress the same, or having knowledge of any intended mutiny or sedition, does not, without delay, give information thereof to his commanding officer, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as a court-martial may direct.

Falling to resist mutiny.
23 Art. War.

ART. 24. All officers, of what condition soever, have power to part and quell all quarrels, frays, and disorders, whether among persons belonging to his own or to another corps, regiment, troop, battery, or company, and to order officers into arrest, and noncommissioned officers and soldiers into confinement, who take part in the same, until their proper superior officer is acquainted therewith. And whosoever, being so ordered, refuses to obey such officer or noncommissioned officer, or draws a weapon upon him, shall be punished as a court-martial may direct.¹

the time made it perfectly clear that this enlistment was entered into for the particular purpose and in contemplation of the particular service above indicated, and to treat the parties as bound to another and distinct service, and liable to capital punishment if they refused to perform it, was technical, unjust, and in substance illegal. Ibid., par. 32.

In a case where a brief mutiny among certain soldiers of a colored regiment was clearly provoked by inexcusable violence on the part of their officer, the outbreak not having been premeditated, and the men having been prior thereto subordinate and well conducted, advised that a sentence of death imposed by a court-martial upon one of the alleged mutineers should be mitigated and the officer himself brought to trial. Similarly advised in the cases of sentences of long terms of imprisonment imposed on sundry colored soldiers who, without previous purpose of revolt, had been provoked into momentary mutinous conduct by the recklessness of their officer in firing upon them and wounding several, in order to suppress certain insubordination which might apparently have been quelled by ordinary methods. (a) Ibid., par. 33.

¹ It is a principle of the common law that any bystander may and should arrest an affrayer. 1 Hawkins, P. C., c. 63, s. 11; Timothy v. Simpson, 1 C. M. & R., 762, 765; Phillips v. Trull, 11 Johns, 487. And that an officer or soldier, by entering the military service, does not cease to be a citizen, and as a citizen is authorized and bound to put a stop to a breach of the peace committed in his presence, has been specifically held by the authorities. Burdett v. Abbott, 4 Taunt., 449; Bowyer, Com. on Const. L. of Eng., 499; Simmons, secs. 1096-1100. This article is thus an application of an established common-law doctrine to the relations of the military service. See its application illustrated in the following general orders: G. O. 4, War Department, 1843; G. O. 63, Department of the Tennessee, 1863; G. O. 104, Department of the Missouri, 1863; G. O. 52, Department of the South, 1871; G. O. 92, ibid., 1872. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., note 2, page 16.

Force used.—The force to be used in quelling an affray or maintaining the peace is that only which is necessary to secure or subdue the offenders. It does not consist of repeated blows, inflicted by way of punishment for past deeds, but must be such force as is preventive in character, and must not exceed the strict necessity of the case requiring such acts of prevention. No officer has authority to inflict punishment for past offenses of any kind. This authority is possessed by courts only. G. O., No. 4, A. G. O., 1843; see also, G. O., par. 7, of G. O. 53, A. G. O., of 1842.

In suppressing disorders, etc., means should be proportioned to ends to be gained; violent measures, clearly unnecessary, will not be justified. U. S. v. Carr, 1 Woods, 480.

For a case in which it became incumbent upon a junior officer to "part and quell" an affray, and, in the performance of his duty under this article, to give orders to a military superior, who was a participant in the disturbance, see General Court-Martial Orders, No. 20, War Department, of 1880.

Allowing persons to go out and fight; seconds and promoters.
27 Art. War.

ART. 27. Any officer or noncommissioned officer, commanding a guard, who, knowingly and willingly, suffers any person to go forth to fight a duel, shall be punished as a challenger; and all seconds or promoters of duels, and carriers of challenges to fight duels, shall be deemed principals, and punished accordingly. It shall be the duty of any officer commanding an army, regiment, troop, battery, company, post, or detachment, who knows or has reason to believe that a challenge has been given or accepted by any officer or enlisted man under his command, immediately to arrest the offender and bring him to trial.³

¹ This article confers no jurisdiction or power to punish on courts-martial, but merely authorizes the taking of certain measures of prevention and restraint by commanding officers—i. e., measures preventive of serious disorders such as are indicated in the two following articles relating to duels. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 34.

² To establish that a challenge was sent, there must appear to have been communicated by one party to the other a deliberate invitation in terms or in substance to engage in a personal combat with deadly weapons, with a view of obtaining satisfaction for wounded honor. (b) The expression merely of a willingness to fight, or the use simply of language of hostility or defiance, will not amount to a challenge. On the other hand, though the language employed be couched in ambiguous terms, with a view to the evasion of the legal consequences, yet if the intention to invite to a duel is reasonably to be implied—and ordinarily, notwithstanding the stilted and obscure verbiage employed, this intent is quite transparent—a challenge will be deemed to have been given. And the intention of the message, where doubtful upon its face, may be illustrated in evidence by proof of the circumstances under which it was sent, and especially of the previous relations of the parties, the contents of other communications between them on the same subject, etc. (c) And technical words in an alleged challenge may be explained by a reference to the so-called dueling code. (d) (Ibid., par. 35.)

It may be noted that our Articles of War, unlike the British, fail to make punishable, as a specific military offense, the engaging in a duel. Such an act, therefore, would, as such, be in general chargeable only under article 62. Ibid., note 4.

³ On the general subject of challenges, and the question what constitutes a challenge, see the principal cases of the sending of challenges in our service, as published in G. O. 64, A. G. Either party may appeal from such regimental court-martial to a general court-martial; but if, upon such second hearing, the appeal appears to be groundless and vexatious, the party appealing shall be punished at the discretion of said general court-martial.²

Wrongs to soldiers; redress of.
30 Art. War.

¹ This article is expressly confined to cases of alleged wrongs on the part of regimental commanders. It can not be extended to apply to a complaint of wrong done by a post commander who is not also the commanding officer of the regiment of the complainant. (Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 36.)

The right in charges and appeals is not to be exercised in any mode or style the subordinate pleases, but with some reasonable circumspection, and in good faith, and in subjection to the controlling law of discipline, which, to sustain military authority, requires obedience and forbids disobedience to commanding officers. These rights, and the mode of exercising them, have been well and carefully defined in the General Order from the War Department of No. 16 of 1851. Under color of charges or appeals, a subordinate has no right to avail himself of the opportunity to behave with contempt to his commanding officer. Where such a case is alleged in the specifications, a court-martial will entertain and try the charge. (G. O. No. 1, A. G. O., 1856.)

This article is not inconsistent with article 83, which prohibits regimental courts from trying commissioned officers. It does not contemplate or provide for a trial of an officer as an accused, but simply an investigation and adjustment of some matter in dispute—as, for example, a question of accountability for public property, of right to pay or to an allowance, of relief from a stoppage, etc. The regimental court does not really act as a court, but as a board, and the "appeal" authorized is practically from one board to another. But though the regimental court has no power to find "guilty" or "not guilty," or to sentence, it should come to some definite opinion or conclusion—one sufficiently specific to allow of its being intelligently reviewed by the general court, if desired. (Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 37; see also ibid., paragraphs 38–42.)

The "regimental court-martial" under the thirtieth article of war can not be used as a substitute for a general court-martial or court of inquiry, for it can not try an officer nor make an investigation for the purpose of determining whether he shall be brought to trial. When, if the soldier's complaint should be sustained, the only redress would be a reprimand to the officer, the matter would not be within the jurisdiction of this court. It can only investigate such matters as are susceptible of redress by the doing of justice to the complainant—that is, when in some way he can be set right by putting a stop to the wrongful condition which the officer has caused to exist. Erroneous stoppages of pay, irregularity of detail, the apparent requirement of more labor than from other soldiers and the like might in this way be investigated and the wrongful condition put an end to. The court will in such cases record the evidence and its conclusions of fact and recommend the action to be taken. The members of the court (and the judge-advocate) will be sworn faithfully to perform their duties as members (and judge-advocate) of the court, and the proceedings will be recorded as nearly as practicable in the same manner as the proceedings of ordinary courts-martial. Manual for Courts-Martial (1901), p. 99, note. (Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 42, note 1.)

In the case of Brevet-Major Henshaw, tried by court-martial in 1856 for disrespect to his commanding officer, Major Andrews, Seventh Infantry, the conduct of Major Andrews was thus remarked on by the Secretary of War: "An experienced officer who had served with him (Major A.) admits his treatment of his men to be harsh and violent and his conduct very reprehensible in this respect. This was the considerate testimony of a friendly witness, and is such evidence of the fact as calls for a decided expression of the opinion of the President. A commanding officer has no right to be insulting, harsh, or abusive to those in his command. Both officers and enlisted men are equally entitled to be protected from ill-treatment by him. An officer who commits such offenses is wanting in some of the essential qualifications for command, and it is to be regretted that a thorough investigation of this matter was not made by putting Major Andrews on trial. (G. O. No. 1, A. G. O., 1851.)"

¹An unauthorized absence from the quarters only, as from 11 p. m. inspection, held not properly chargeable under the 32d Article. This article contemplates an absence from the soldier's "troop, battery, company, or detachment"—an absence from the post or command. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 374.

Where an officer or soldier on his return from an unauthorized absence is, in consequence of his report of the facts and circumstances of such absence, not proceeded against by his proper commander for the military offense involved, but is by the latter placed upon full duty, such action, under the general custom of the service, may be pleaded as a good defence, if the officer or soldier be subsequently brought to trial for the unauthorized absence. Ibid., par. 377.

An enlisted man forfeits his pay and allowances during the period of an absence without leave, as provided in par. 144 A. R. During such absence he renders no service and therefore earns neither pay nor allowances. The forfeiture is thus by operation of law and accrues independently of the result of a trial for the military offence involved in the unauthorized absence. One of the purposes of the muster and pay rolls is to show what service the soldier renders, and if they show that he has rendered none during a particular period by reason of an absence without leave, he is not entitled to pay and allowances during such period. For an absence without leave of less than a day the soldier may of course be tried by court-martial and sentenced to suffer a forfeiture, but such absence should not be noted on the muster and pay rolls. Ibid., par. 378.

ART. 37. Every noncommissioned officer who connives at such hiring of duty shall be reduced. Every officer who knows and allows such practices shall be punished as a court-martial may direct. Conniving at hiring duty. 37 Art. War.

ART. 38. Any officer who is found drunk on his guard, party, or other duty, shall be dismissed from the service. Any soldier who so offends shall suffer such punishment as a court-martial may direct. No court-martial shall sentence any soldier to be branded, marked, or tattooed.¹ Drunk on duty. 38 Art. War. Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, v. 18, p. 318; Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, v. 19, p. 244.

A charge of drunkenness on duty (drill) held not sustained where the party was found drunk, not at or during the drill, but at the hour appointed for the drill, which however, by reason of his drunkenness, he did not enter upon or attend. The charge should properly have been laid under article 62. Ibid., par. 44.

An officer reporting in person drunk, upon his arrival at a post, to the commander of which he had been ordered to report, held chargeable under this article. And so held of an officer reporting, when drunk, to the post commander for orders as officer of the day, after having been duly detailed as such. Ibid., par. 45.

But where an officer, after being specially ordered to remain with his company, absented himself from it and from his duty, and while thus absent became and was found drunk, held that he was not strictly chargeable with drunkenness on duty under this article, but was properly chargeable with drunkenness in violation of the Sixty-second article, disobedience of orders, and unauthorized absence. Ibid., par. 46.

A post commander, while present and exercising command as such, is deemed to be at all times on duty in the sense of this article, and thus liable to a charge under the same if found drunk at the post. (a) Ibid., par. 47.

A medical officer of a post, where there are constantly sick persons under his charge who may at any moment require his attendance, may, generally speaking, be deemed to be "on duty," in the sense of the article, during the whole day, and not merely during the hours regularly occupied by sick call, visiting the sick, or attending hospital. If found drunk at any other hour he may, in general, be charged with an offense under this article. Ibid., par. 48.

The drunkenness need not be such as totally to incapacitate the party for the duty. It is sufficient if it be such as to materially impair the full and free use of his mental or physical abilities. (b) It is not a sufficient defense to a charge of drunkenness on duty to show that the accused, though under the influence of liquor, contrived to get through and somehow perform the duty. Ibid., par. 49. See also ibid., par. 50.

It is immaterial whether the drunkenness be voluntarily induced by spirituous liquor or by opium or other intoxicating drug. In either case the offense may be equally complete. (c) Ibid., par. 51.

Drunkenness not on duty, or when off duty, when amounting to a "disorder," should be charged under article 62, unless (in a case of an officer) committed under such circumstances as to constitute an offense under article 61. Ibid., par. 52.

No punishment except dismissal can legally be imposed upon an officer on a conviction of the offense made punishable by this article. A sentence imposing, with dismissal, any further punishment, as imprisonment or forfeiture of pay, is, as to such additional penalty, unauthorized and inoperative, and should so far be disapproved. Ibid., par. 53.

¹It is no defense to a charge of "sleeping on post" that the accused had been previously overtaken by excessive guard duty; (d) or that an imperfect discipline prevailed in the command and similar offenses had been allowed to pass without notice; (e) or that the accused was irregularly or informally posted as a sentinel. (f) Evidence of such circumstances, however, may in general be received in extenuation of the offense, or, after sentence, may form the basis for a mitigation or partial remission of the punishment. (g) An officer who places or continues a soldier on duty as a sentinel when, from excessive fatigue, infirmity, or other disability, he is incompetent to perform the important duties of such a position will ordinarily render himself liable to charges. (h) Ibid., par. 55.

a That the article is not limited in its application to mere duties of detail, but embraces all descriptions and occasions of duty, see the interpretation of the same as declared in G. O. 7, War Department, 1856, and affirmed in G. O. 5, ibid., 1857. The case in the latter order, indeed, was a case of drunkenness while on duty as a post commander. Relieving the enemy.
45 Art. War.

¹ Misbehavior before the enemy may be exhibited in the form of cowardice, or it may consist in a willful violation of orders, gross negligence, or inefficiency, an act of treason or treachery, etc. (a) It need not be committed in the actual sight of the enemy, but the enemy must be in the neighborhood, and the act of offense have relation to some movement or service directed against the enemy or growing out of a movement or operation on his part. It may be committed in an Indian war equally as in a foreign or civil war. (b) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 56.

The term "his arms or ammunition" does not refer to arms, etc., which are the personal property of the soldier, but means such as have been furnished to him by the proper officer for use in the service. (c) The term is to be construed in connection with the further similar expression "his post or colors." Ibid., par. 57.

² In view of the general term of description in this and the succeeding article, "whosoever," it was held, during the late war, by the Judge-Advocate-General and by the Secretary of War, (d) and has been held later by the Attorney-General, (e) that civilians, equally with military persons, were amenable to trial and punishment by court-martial under either article. (f) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 58. But the sounder construction would seem to be that as the Articles of War are a code enacted for the government of the military establishment, they relate only to persons belonging to that establishment unless a different intent should be expressed or

f Admitting this construction to be warranted so far as relates to acts committed on the theater of war or within a district under martial law, it is to be noted that it is the effect of the leading adjudged cases to preclude the exercise of the military jurisdiction over this class of offenses when committed by civilians in places not under military government or martial law. See, especially, Ex parte Milligan, 4 Wallace, 121-123; Jones v. Seward, Barb., 563.

ART. 46. Whosoever holds correspondence with, or gives intelligence to, the enemy, either directly or indirectly, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as a court-martial may direct.¹

Desertion.
47 Art. War.
May 29, 1830, c.
183, v. 4, p. 418.

ART. 47. Any officer or soldier who, having received pay, or having been duly enlisted in the service of the United States, deserts the same, shall, in time of war, suffer death, or such other punishment as a court-martial may direct; and in time of peace, any punishment, excepting death, which a court-martial may direct.²

otherwise made manifest. No such intent is so expressed or made manifest. Persons not belonging to the military establishment may be proceeded against for the acts mentioned in the article, but it is by virtue of the power of another jurisdiction, namely, martial law; and martial law does not owe its existence to legislation, but to necessity. The scope of these articles under the legislation of 1776, apparently extending their application to civilians, seems to have become modified on the adoption of the Constitution. Ibid., par. 58, note 5.

During the late war all inhabitants of insurrectionary States were prima facie enemies in the sense of this and the succeeding article. (a) A citizen of an insurgent State who entered the United States military service became of course no longer an enemy. So held of a lieutenant of the First East Tennessee Cavalry. Ibid., par. 59. For a case in which a citizen of Maryland was convicted of relieving the enemy in violation of this article, see G. O. 76, A. G. O., of 1863.

It is no less a relieving an enemy under this article that the money; etc., furnished is exchanged for some commodity, as cotton, valuable to the other party. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 60.

The act of "relieving the enemy" contemplated by this article is distinguished from that of trading with the enemy in violation of the laws of war, the former being restricted to certain particular forms of relief, while the latter includes every kind of commercial intercourse not expressly authorized by the Government. Ibid., par. 61.

¹ Held that the offense of holding correspondence with the enemy was completed by writing and putting in progress a letter to an inhabitant of an insurrectionary State during the late war, it not being deemed essential to this offense that the letter should reach its destination. (b) Ibid., par. 62.

It is essential, however, to the offense of giving intelligence to the enemy that material information should actually be communicated to him; the communication may be verbal, in writing, or by signals. Ibid., par. 63.

² Desertion is an unauthorized absenting of himself from the military service, by an officer or soldier, with the intention of not returning. In other words, it is the violation of military discipline familiarly known as absence without leave (whether consisting in an original absenting without authority, or in an overstaying of a defined leave of absence) accompanied by an animus manendi, or non revertendi; this animus constituting the gist of the offense. In order to establish the commission of the specific offense, both these elements—the fact of the unauthorized voluntary withdrawal, and the intent permanently to abandon the service—must be proved. The intent may be inferred, not indeed from the fact of absenting alone, but from the circumstances attending this fact, and here the duration of the absence is especially material. Thus the circumstance that the absence has been exceptionally protracted and quite unexplained will, in general, furnish a presumption of the existence of the necessary intent. An unauthorized absence, however, of a few hours, terminated by a forcible apprehension, may, under certain situations, be sufficient evidence of such intent and thus proof of a desertion; while an absence for a considerable interval, unattended by circumstances indicating a purpose to separate permanently from the service, or to dissolve the pending engagement of the soldier, may be proof simply of the minor included offense. In order to determine whether or not the officer or soldier absented himself with the intent not to return, i. e., whether his offense was desertion or absence without leave, all the circumstances connected with his leaving, absence, and return (whether compulsory or voluntary) must be considered together. Each case must be governed by its own peculiar facts, and no general rule on the subject can be laid down. Ibid., par. 1053.

^a See the opinion of the United States Supreme Court (frequently since reiterated in substance) as given by Grier, J., in the "Prize Cases," 2 Black, 666 (1862); and by Chase, C. J., in the cases of Mrs. Alexander's Cotton and The Venice, 2 Wallace, 274, 418 (1864). In the latter case the Chief Justice observes: "The rule which declares that war makes all the citizens or subjects of one belligerent enemies of the Government and of all the citizens or subjects of the other, applies equally to civil and to international wars." That an insurrectionary State was no less "enemy's country," though in the military occupation of the United States, with a military governor appointed by the President, see opinion by Field, J., in Coleman v. Tennessee, 7 Otto, 516, 517.

^b Compare Hensley's Case, 1 Burrow, 642; Stone's Case, 6 Term, 527; Samuel, 580.

That a soldier has been charged with a desertion is no evidence that he has committed the offense. Thus, held that the mere fact that a soldier, absent without authority, had been arrested and returned to his regiment as a deserter, was no proof whatever of the offense charged. So, held that a mere entry on a morning report book, descriptive roll, or other official statement or return that a soldier deserted on a certain day was not legal evidence of a desertion by him, but was evidence only that he had been charged with desertion. (a) So, a report from the Adjutant-General's Office containing extracts from the muster rolls of a regiment on which a soldier of the same was noted as having deserted on a certain date, held incompetent evidence of the fact of desertion upon the trial of the soldier for that offense. (b) Similarly held that the mere statement of a first sergeant, given as testimony on the trial of a soldier of his company charged with desertion, that the accused "deserted" at a certain time and place, was insufficient as proof of the offense charged, being, indeed, but an assertion of a conclusion of law. In such cases it is for the witness simply to state the facts and circumstances, so far as known to him, attending the act charged, it being the province of the court alone to arrive at the conclusion that the offense has been committed. To convict a deserter upon an accusation merely, however formally and officially the same may be made, would be as unwarranted in law as it would be unjust in fact. Ibid., par. 1056.

The nature of the offense of desertion is well illustrated in cases of escape. The mere fact that a soldier while awaiting trial or sentence, or while under sentence (and not discharged from the service), escapes from his confinement is not proof of a desertion on his part, since he may have had in view some minor object, such as the procuring of liquor, etc. (c) But an escape, followed by a considerable absence, especially if the soldier is obliged to be forcibly apprehended, is strong presumptive evidence of the existence of the intent necessary to constitute the crime. So, though the absence involved may be comparatively brief, the circumstances accompanying the escape or attending the apprehension may be such as to justify an equally strong presumption. An escape, with intent not only to evade confinement, but to quit the service, while the party is held awaiting proceedings for desertion, is of course a second or additional desertion.

As to the nature of the offense which may be involved, there is properly no substantial distinction between an escape while awaiting trial or sentence and an escape while in confinement under sentence. An escape, indeed, from an imprisonment imposed by sentence would probably be more likely to be characterized by an animus non revertendi than an escape from a merely preliminary confinement in arrest. So an escape from confinement while awaiting trial upon a grave charge, which must entail, upon conviction, a severe punishment, would naturally be more generally so characterized than an escape from an arrest upon a charge of inferior consequence.

Undoubtedly, in the great majority of cases, escape is desertion; the precedents, however, show that it is not necessarily so, and upon the mere fact alone that a soldier has liberated himself from military custody it is not just to convict him of having designed to dissolve his contract and permanently abandon the military service. Of course, an escape from legal military custody is always an offense, and the soldier who has escaped may (where his act does not amount to a desertion) be brought to trial for such offense as "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline."

It need hardly be added that an escape from imprisonment under sentence, effected by a party who has been dishonorably discharged under the same sentence, can not constitute a desertion or other offense, the party at the time of escape being no longer in the military service. Ibid., par. 1057.

Held to be no defense to a charge of desertion that the accused, at the time of the

^a Compare G. C. M. O., 33, Department of the Missouri, 1875.

^b Compare Hanson v. S. Scituate, 115 Mass., 336.

^c See a case of this nature (an escaping in order to obtain liquor) in G. O., 32, Department of the South, 1873; and compare the case in G. O., 87, Department of the South, 1872, in which a conviction of desertion is disapproved on the ground that the evidence showed "merely an escape from the guardhouse, without intention to leave the service or the vicinity of the post." And see in this connection Samuel, 324, where to be "discovered," after a short absence, "in the pursuit of some accidental temporary object, though perhaps otherwise illicit," is instanced as not indicating an intent, by the offender, "to sever himself from the service."

enlistment which he is charged with having abandoned, was an unapprehended deserter from the Army, an enlistment of a deserter being not void but voidable only. Ibid., par. 1058.

It is no defense to a charge of desertion that the soldier was induced to abandon the service by reason of ill treatment, want of proper food, etc.; such circumstances can only palliate, not excuse, the offense committed. So, in a case of a Swiss, who, having enlisted in our Army, deserted after two years of service, held that it was no defense (though, under the circumstances, matter of extenuation) that his act had been induced by an intense nostalgia or maladie du pays. So, held, in a case of a desertion by a German, that the fact that he had received a notification from the military authorities of the North German Empire to report at home for military duty under the penalty of being considered as a deserter from the German army constituted no defense to a desertion committed by him from our service. (a) Ibid., par. 1059.

It is, however, a complete answer to a charge of desertion before a court-martial that the accused has previously been "restored to duty without trial," as sanctioned by paragraph 143, Army Regulations of 1901, provided he has been so restored by competent authority, i. e., the commander who would have been authorized to convene a general court for his trial; otherwise, however, when so restored by a superior not duly authorized. Ibid., par. 1060.

REWARDS.

The reward of $30 made payable by paragraph 135, Army Regulations, is not due merely on the apprehension of a deserter; he must also be delivered "to the proper military authority at a military station, or at some convenient point as near thereto as can be agreed upon." (b) The fact of the offer of a reward for the arrest of a deserter does not authorize a breach of the peace or commission of an illegal act in making the arrest. (c) Ibid., par. 1071.

The amount of the reward—to cite from G. O., 325, of 1863—is in full "for all expenses incurred in apprehending, securing, and delivering a deserter." Disbursements made by a civilian, where no arrest is effected, are at his own risk, and can not legally be reimbursed by the military authorities. Ibid., par. 1072.

The legal liability imposed upon the soldier by paragraph 137, Army Regulations, to have the amount of the award stopped against his pay, is quite independent of the punishment which may be imposed upon him by sentence of court-martial on conviction of the desertion. Such stoppage is incident upon the conviction (d) and need not be directed in the sentence; courts-martial, indeed, have sometimes assumed to impose it, like an ordinary forfeiture of pay, but its insertion in the sentence adds nothing to its legal effect. Ibid., par. 1073.

Where a soldier, charged with desertion, is acquitted, or where, if convicted, his conviction is disapproved by the competent reviewing authority, he can not legally be made liable for the amount of a reward paid or payable for his arrest as a deserter, since in such cases he is not a deserter in law. Ibid., par. 1074.

Where a soldier for whose apprehension as a supposed deserter the legal reward has been paid is subsequently brought to trial upon a charge of desertion and is found guilty not of desertion, but only of the lesser and distinct offense of absence without leave, he clearly can not legally be held liable for the reward by a stoppage of the amount against his pay. In such a case the instrumentality resorted to by the United States for determining the nature of his offense—the court-martial—having pronounced that it was not desertion, the Government is bound by the result, and to visit upon him a penalty to which a deserter only can be subject would be grossly arbitrary and wholly unauthorized. Moreover, such action would be directly a As to the principle of the right of expatriation, as asserted in our public law, see section 1999, Revised Statutes.

b The actual payment of the compensation in such cases is authorized by the annual Army appropriation acts, which, in appropriating for the incidental expenses of the Quartermaster's Department, include as an item "for the apprehension, securing, and delivering of deserters, and the expenses incident to their pursuit."

c See, in this connection, Clay v. United States, Devereux, 25, in which an officer who, under the orders of a superior, had, without previously procuring proper authority to enter and search from a civil magistrate, broke into a dwelling house for the purpose of securing the arrest of certain deserters, was held to have committed an unjustifiable trespass, and his claim to be reimbursed by the United States for the amount of a judgment recovered against him on account of his illegal act was disallowed by the Court of Claims. Held by the Attorney-General October 12, 1894 (confirming the views of the Judge-Advocate-General), "that the right to forcibly enter into private houses, as asserted by Adjutant-General's circular No. 6, of 1885, does not exist." And see par. 2 of Circ. No. 12. H. Q. A., 1894, revoking Circ. No. 6, of 1885.

d See, to a similar effect, the recent opinion of the Attorney-General referred to in the next note.

at variance with the terms of paragraph 124 of the Army Regulations, which fixes such liability upon the soldier tried in the event only of his conviction of desertion, (a) unless, indeed, the sentence of the court expressly forfeits the amount. (b) Ibid., par. 1075.

Where a civil official, having made an arrest of a deserter, concealed him from the military authorities and afterwards permitted or connived at his escape, recommended that the Attorney-General be requested to instruct the proper United States district attorney to initiate proceedings under section 5455, Revised Statutes. Ibid., 1092.

To entitle a person (under paragraph 135, Army Regulations of 1901) to the reward for the arrest of a deserter (c) the party arrested must be still a soldier. Though at the time of the arrest the period of his term of enlistment may have expired, or he may be under sentence of dishonorable discharge, yet if he has not been discharged in fact, the official duly making the arrest, etc., on account of a desertion committed before the end of his term becomes entitled to the payment of the reward specified in the regulations. Similarly held, where the soldier, arrested when at large as a deserter, had been sentenced to confinement (without discharge) and had escaped therefrom. Ibid., par. 1076.

The soldier arrested must be a deserter and legally liable as such. If he has been judicially determined to be not a deserter, as where he has been convicted of absence without leave only, or if, in view of the limitation of the one hundred and third article, he has a legal defense to a prosecution for desertion, the reward is not payable for his apprehension. Ibid., par. 1077.

Where the soldier when arrested had been absent but three days, and was still in uniform, and had not been reported or dropped as a deserter, and his company commander had not the "conclusive evidence" of his "intention not to return," referred to in paragraph 132, Army Regulations of 1889 (p. 133 of 1895, 144 of 1901), held that there was not sufficient evidence that he was a deserter to justify the payment of the reward for his arrest and delivery. Ibid., par. 1078.

The arrest made must be a legal one. Thus held that the reward was not payable for an arrest made on the soil of Mexico, involving a violation of the territorial rights of that sovereignty. An act done in violation of law can not be the basis of a legal claim. Ibid., par. 1080.

Where the deserter was not arrested by, but surrendered himself to, the civil official, who in good faith took him into custody and securely held and duly delivered him, advised that there had been a substantial apprehension (for the purpose of reward) and that the reward was properly payable. Ibid., par. 1081.

The delivery should be personal and manual on the part of the civil official. Where a soldier who had deserted was sentenced to a penitentiary as a horse thief, and at the end of his term of imprisonment a United States marshal caused information that he was a deserter to be conveyed to the commander of a neighboring military post, who thereupon had him arrested and brought to the post, held that the marshal was not entitled to claim the reward. Ibid., par. 1082.

So, where a civil official merely informed a captain of artillery that two soldiers serving in his battery were deserters from the battalion of engineers, held that, though such information was correct, the official was not entitled to the reward; and that the amount of the same, which had been erroneously paid him on the certificate of the captain, should be charged against the latter under paragraph 736, Army Regulations of 1901. Ibid., par. 1083.

The reward should be withheld where there is evidence of collusion between the alleged deserter and the civil official. Advised that a suspicion of such collusion was properly entertained in a case where the soldier, after an absence of but a few days, voluntarily surrendered himself, at or near the post of delivery, to a policeman, who turned him over, without expense or difficulty, to the military authorities, who did not treat him as a deserter, but caused him to be charged, tried, and convicted as an absentee without leave only. Ibid., par. 1086.

An officer of the customs, empowered by law to make arrests of persons violating the revenue laws, but having no such general authority as is ordinarily possessed by peace officers "to arrest offenders" (according to the terms of the act of October 1, 1890, authorizing certain civil officials to arrest deserters), held not entitled to be paid the regulation reward for the apprehension, etc., of a deserter from the Army. Ibid., par. 1087.

Held that a justice of the peace of Idaho was not, by the laws of that State, a peace

b See G. O., 38, of 1890.

c The Army Regulations, so far as it fixes the amount of the "reward," has been superseded by the provision of the recent Army appropriation acts of August 6, 1894, and February 12, 1895, to the effect that the sum paid shall not be "greater than ten dollars."

Deserter shall serve full term.

48 Art. War.

ART. 48. Every soldier who deserts the service of the United States shall be liable to serve for such period as shall, with the time he may have served previous to his desertion, amount to the full term of his enlistment; and officer or authorized to arrest offenders, and was therefore not within the terms of the act of October 1, 1890, or legally entitled to be paid the reward for the arrest, etc., of a deserter. Such justice may by his warrant authorize and thus cause arrests, but actual arrests pertains, under the laws of the State, to another class—sheriffs, constables, city marshals, and policemen. Similarly held in regard to an Indian who brought in a deserter to a military post in North Dakota, he having no authority under the laws of that State to make arrests. But held that a member of the Indian police, established under the regulations of the Indian Office, was a civil officer having authority to arrest offenders, and was entitled to the reward for the arrest of a deserter. [See Circular No. 12 (H. A.), 1894.] Ibid., par. 1088.

Circular No. 11 (H. A.), 1883, declares that the reward shall not be paid where the deserter, at the time of arrest, "is serving in some other branch of the Army," etc. Thus held that the reward was not payable for the arrest of a deserter from the cavalry who, subsequently to his desertion, had enlisted in an infantry regiment, in which he was serving at the date of the arrest. Ibid., par. 1091.

A deserter is not chargeable, under paragraph 137, Army Regulations of 1901, with the expenses of transportation therein specified, if his conviction has been duly disapproved, such disapproval being tantamount to an acquittal. Ibid., par. 1065.

The expense of the transportation of a convicted deserter, incurred in the course of the execution of his sentence, is not chargeable against the deserter under paragraph 137, Army Regulations of 1901, but must be borne by the United States. Ibid., par. 1068.

Every desertion includes an absence without leave. Upon a trial for desertion the accused is tried also for the absence without leave involved in the offense charged. (a) If acquitted, without reservation, of the desertion, he is acquitted also of the lesser offense. If convicted, as he may be (see FINDING, section 8), of the lesser offense only, under a charge of the greater, he is acquitted in law of the latter. Ibid., par. 1093.

The right of the United States to arrest and bring to trial a deserter is paramount to any right of control over him by a parent on the ground of his minority. (b) Ibid., par. 1094.

Enlisting in the enemy's army by prisoner of war is desertion, unless submitted to as a last resort to save life or escape extreme suffering, or to obtain freedom. Thus, held in a case of a United States soldier who entered the service of the enemy from Andersonville, Ga., in the late war, that the burden of proof was on him to establish that he resorted to such enlistment with design of effecting his escape and rejoining his own army; and that his abandoning such enlistment and coming within our lines at the first opportunity was material evidence of such a design. Ibid., par. 1095.

A soldier who had been extradited from Mexico solely on a charge of theft, held not liable to trial as a deserter; the principle that a person extradited on account of a certain alleged offense is exempt from trial on any other criminal offense (c) being deemed applicable where the other offense is a military one. A deserter from our Army can not, in the absence of any international convention allowing it, legally be arrested as such in Mexico and brought thence into Texas. Ibid., par. 1096.

The amenability to trial of a deserter from an enlistment in the Army is not affected by the fact that when he enlisted he was a deserter from the Marine Corps. Ibid., par. 1097.

Held that a deserter from a volunteer regiment was, after the disbandment of the Volunteer Army, no longer amenable to the military jurisdiction, having become thereupon a civilian. Ibid., par. 1098.

A civil employee of the Quartermaster Department does not become liable as a deserter by abandoning his employment. Ibid., par. 1099.

The fact that a soldier has been dropped from the rolls as a deserter is not legal evidence to prove the fact of desertion on a trial for that offense. Ibid., par. 1056.

50 Art. War.

¹The liability to make good to the United States the time lost by desertion, enjoined by the first clause of this article, is independent of any punishment which may be imposed by a court-martial, on conviction of the offense, it need not, therefore, be adjudged or mentioned in terms in a sentence. (a) If the conviction is disapproved, the legal status of the accused is the same as if he had been acquitted, and the obligation of additional service is of course not incurred. Ibid., par. 64.

Where a deserter was sentenced to imprisonment for the "balance of his term," held that he was not absolved from the obligation to make good time lost; these works referring to the balance of the term of his original enlistment. Ibid., par. 65.

The time passed by a deserter in confinement under sentence can not be computed as a part of the period required by the article to be made good to the United States, such time not being a time of military service, but of punishment. Nor can the period of confinement be credited where the sentence is remitted before it is fully executed. So time passed by the deserter in arrest or confinement (or in hospital), while waiting trial or action upon his sentence, can not be computed. Ibid., par. 66.

The enforcement of the liability, where enforced at all, is generally postponed till after the execution of the punishment (if any) imposed upon the deserter by his sentence. A deserter may still be required to make good the time included in his unauthorized absence from the service, although his term of enlistment has expired pending a term of confinement adjudged him by court-martial on conviction of his offense, provided he has not been discharged. Ibid., par. 67.

The United States may waive the liability imposed by the first clause of the article. It is, in fact, waived where the deserter, without being required to perform the service, is discharged by one of the officials authorized by article 4 to discharge soldiers. So it is waived where the soldier is adjudged to be dishonorably discharged by sentence of court-martial and this punishment is duly approved and thereupon executed. Ibid., par. 68.

The liability to trial and punishment imposed by the second clause of the article is subject to the limitation of prosecutions prescribed by article 103. Ibid., par. 69.

The contract of enlistment is for military service for a term of years, and when interrupted by the soldier's desertion remains incomplete and subject to specific performance. While some authorities hold that the obligation to make good time lost by desertion attaches only upon conviction, the weight of authority and the practice are to the effect that the punishment for desertion and the obligation to complete the contract of enlistment are separate and distinct, and that the restoration of a deserter to duty without trial does not relieve him from the obligation to complete his contract. This obligation continues, though the statute of limitation has taken effect in his case or has been successfully pleaded in bar on a trial by court-martial. Ibid., par. 70.

²This article, in its first clause, does not create a specific offense, or particular kind of desertion, or an offense distinct from the desertion made punishable in the forty-seventh article, but declares in effect that a soldier who abandons his regiment shall be deemed none the less a deserter although he may forthwith reenlist in a new regi-

ART. 51. Misconduct at divine service.
52 Art. War.

ART. 52. It is earnestly recommended to all officers and soldiers diligently to attend divine service. Any officer who behaves indecently or irreverently at any place of divine worship shall be brought before a general court-martial, there to be publicly and severely reprimanded by the president thereof. Any soldier who so offends shall, for his first offense, forfeit one-sixth of a dollar; for each further offense he shall forfeit a like sum, and shall be confined twenty-four hours. The money so forfeited shall be deducted from his next pay, and shall be applied, by the ment. It does not render the act of reenlistment a desertion, but simply makes the reenlistment, under the circumstances indicated, prima facie evidence of a desertion from the previous enlistment from which the soldier has not been discharged, or, more accurately, evidence of an intent not to return to the same. (a) The object of the provision, as it originally appears in the British code, apparently was to preclude the notion, that might otherwise have been entertained, that a soldier would be excused from repudiating or departing from his original contract of enlistment provided he presently renewed his obligation in a different portion of the military force. (b) Ibid., par. 73.

Held, that an enlisted marine, who abandoned the Marine Corps without a discharge and enlisted in the Army, could not be "reputed a deserter" according to the terms of this article; but advised that he be turned over to the commandant of that corps for the proper disposition and action. Ibid., par. 74.

Where a soldier enlisted in a certain regiment, after being officially notified that he was duly discharged from a previous enlistment, but without having received the written certificate and evidence of his discharge, which, by mistake or accident, had not been delivered to him as required by article 4, held, that he could not properly be "reputed" or charged as a deserter. Ibid., par. 75.

An enlistment in violation of this article is not void but voidable at the option of the United States only. Until so avoided service under it is valid service. On a trial for an offense committed during such enlistment, a plea by the accused, in bar of trial, that this enlistment, being fraudulent on his part, is void, should not be sustained. Ibid., par. 76.

¹ A declaration, made by one soldier to another, of a willingness to desert with him in case he should decide to desert, held not properly an advising to desert, in the sense of this article. To constitute the offense of advising to desert, it is not essential that there should have been an actual desertion by the party advised. But held otherwise as to the offense of persuading to desert; to complete this offense the persuasion should have induced the act. (c) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 77.

54 Art. War.

¹ While this article would certainly appear to contemplate the making of reparation for injuries done to the persons of citizens rather than for injuries done to their property, yet advised, in view of the precedents, that it might properly be regarded as within the equity of the article to indemnify a citizen for wanton injury done to his property by a soldier or soldiers, by means of a stoppage against his or their pay, summarily ordered upon investigation by the commanding officer. (a) In a few cases a stoppage of the pay of an entire regiment, for damage to private property committed by its members, has been sanctioned as authorized under the general remedial provisions of this article. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 78.

The stoppage contemplated is quite distinct from a punishment by fine, and it can not affect the question of the summary reparation authorized by the article, that the offender or offenders may have already been tried for the offense and sentenced to forfeiture of pay. In such a case, indeed, the forfeiture, as to its execution, would properly take precedence of the stoppage. On the other hand, where the stoppage is first duly ordered under the article, it has precedence over a forfeiture subsequently adjudged for the offense. Ibid., par. 79.

It does not affect the question of reparation under the article that the offender or offenders may be criminally liable for the injury committed or may have been punished therefor by the civil authorities. Ibid., 47, par. 80.

Held that the remedial provision of this article could not be enforced in favor of military persons, or in favor of the United States, or to indemnify parties for property stolen or embezzled. Ibid., par. 81.

The pay of the offender or offenders can be resorted to only for the purpose of the "reparation." A military commander can have no authority to add a further amount of stoppage by way of punishment. Ibid., par. 82.

Held that, as an agency for assessing the amount of the damage, a court-martial could not properly be substituted for the board directed by General Orders 35, Headquarters of the Army, 1868, to be convened for such purpose. Ibid., par. 83.

The procedure under this article, and pursuant to General Orders 35 of 1868, is as follows: The citizen aggrieved tenders a "complaint" under oath charging the injury against a particular soldier or soldiers, described by name (if known), regiment, etc., and accompanied by evidence of the injury, and of the instrumentality of the person or persons accused. If such evidence be satisfactory, the commanding officer has the damages assessed by a board, and makes orders for such stoppage of pay as will be sufficient for the "reparation" enjoined by the article. The commander must have a proper case presented to him; he can not legally proceed sua sponte. Ibid., par. 84.

^a See G. O. 35, Headquarters of Army, 1868, construing this article, and prescribing the proceeding under it, reparation for injury to property as well as person being authorized. The article, however, is antiquated in form and indefinite and incomplete in its provisions, and calls for repeal or amendment. ART. 58. In time of war, insurrection, or rebellion, larceny, robbery, burglary, arson, mayhem, manslaughter, murder, assault and battery with an intent to kill, wounding, by shooting or stabbing, with an intent to commit murder, rape, or assault and battery with an intent to commit rape, shall be punishable by the sentence of a general court-martial, when committed by persons in the military service of the United States, and the punishment in any such case shall not be less than the punishment provided, for the like offense, by the laws of the State,

Where proof was duly made under this article of injury done by some persons of a command, but the active perpetrators could not upon investigation be determined, and it appeared that the entire command was present and implicated, held that the stoppage might legally be made against all the individuals present. Ibid., par. 85.

It would not be a sound construction of the article to extend the specified measure of redress to other than the specified cases. Its strict construction would indeed limit the specific redress to acts of violence against the person, but the weight of American authority extends it to acts of violence against property also. Further than this the authorities do not go, holding, for example, that it is not applicable to cases of larceny and embezzlement. Therefore held that to make a stoppage of pay against enlisted men to reimburse the keeper of a restaurant for food ordered by them and not paid for would be wholly unauthorized by the terms, scope, or intent of the article. Ibid., par. 86.

Territory, or district in which such offense may have been committed.¹

ART. 59. When any officer or soldier is accused of a capital crime, or of any offense against the person or property of any citizen of any of the United States, which is punishable by the laws of the land, the commanding officer, and the officers of the regiment, troop, battery, company, or detachment, to which the person so accused belongs, are required, except in time of war, upon application duly made by or in behalf of the party injured, to use their utmost endeavors to deliver him over to the civil magistrate, and to aid the officers of justice in apprehending and securing him, in order to bring him to trial. If, upon such application, any officer refuses or willfully neglects, except in time of war, to deliver over such accused person to the civil magistrates, or to aid the officers of justice in apprehending him, he shall be dismissed from the service.²

Delivery of offenders in military service to civil magistrate.
59 Art. of War.

¹ The jurisdiction conferred by this article upon military courts has been held by the highest judicial authority to be not exclusive, but concurrent merely with that of the civil tribunals. (a) The word "shall" in the term "shall be punishable" is construed as equivalent to "may." (b) (Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 87.)

In framing a charge under this article it will not in general be essential to allege in connection with the date of the offense or to show by evidence that the act was committed at a time of war, etc., this being a fact of which a court will ordinarily properly take judicial notice. (c) Ibid., par. 88.

Held (November, 1865) that military courts were still empowered to exercise the jurisdiction conferred by this article, the status belli not having yet been declared to be terminated, either by the Executive or Congress. A court-martial, of course, could have no authority whatever to decide whether the war was ended. (Ibid., par. 89.)

When a sentence adjudged by a court convened by the authority of this article imposed a punishment of less severity than that provided for the same offense by the law of the State in which the offense was committed (as imprisonment where the law of the State required the death penalty), held that such a sentence was unauthorized and inoperative. But though the punishment must not be "less," it may legally be of greater severity than that provided by the local statute. Held that the court, in imposing punishment, should be governed by the local law (so far as required by the article), although the offense was committed in a State whose ordinary relations to the General Government had been suspended by a state of war or insurrection. (d) Ibid., par. 90. See also paragraphs 91-93, ibid.

² This article is a recognition of the general principle of the subordination of the military to the civil power, (e) and its main purpose evidently is to facilitate, in cases of offenders against the local civil statutes who happen to be connected with the Army, the execution of those statutes, where, as citizens, such persons remain legally amenable to arrest and trial thereunder. Protection of military persons from civil arrest is not the object of this article. (Ibid., par. 94.)

The commanding officer, before surrendering the party, is entitled to require that the "application" shall be so specific as to identify the accused and to show that he is charged with a particular crime or offense which is within the class described in the article. Where it is doubtful whether the application is made in good faith and the greater sum, held that he was chargeable with the offense defined in the seventh paragraph of this article. Ibid. 56, par. 5.

Where an officer, by collusion with a contractor, who had contracted for the delivery of military supplies, received for a pecuniary consideration from the latter a less amount of supplies than the United States was entitled to under the contract, while at the same time giving him a voucher certifying on its face the delivery of the whole amount, held that such officer was chargeable with an offense of the class defined in the eighth paragraph of this article. Ibid., par. 110.

The offense of stealing, indicated in the 9th paragraph of this article, consists in a larceny of "property of the United States furnished or intended for the military service." Except in time of war larceny of other property can be charged as a military offense only when cognizable under Article 62, as prejudicing good order and military discipline. Ibid., par. 113.

Section 5494, Revised Statutes, provides that the refusal of any person charged with the disbursement of public moneys promptly to transfer or disburse the funds in his hands "upon the legal requirement of an authorized officer, shall be deemed, upon the trial of any indictment against such person for embezzlement, as prima facie evidence of such embezzlement." Applying this rule to a military case, it is clear that, in the event of such a refusal by a disbursing officer of the Army, the burden of proof would be upon him to show that his proceeding was justified, and that it would not be for the prosecution to show what had become of the funds. So, where an acting commissary of subsistence on being relieved failed to turn over the public moneys in his hands to his successor or to his post commander when ordered to do so, or to produce such moneys, exhibit vouchers for the same, or otherwise account for their use, when so required by his department commander; held that he was properly charged with and convicted of an intent to defraud the United States. It is the act of the misappropriation described itself which constitutes the offense, irrespective of the purpose or motive of such act. Ibid., par. 114.

Where an officer of the quartermaster department used teams, tools, and other public property, in his possession as such officer, in erecting buildings, etc., for the benefit of an association, composed mainly of civilians, of which he was a member; held that he was properly chargeable with a misappropriation of property of the United States. And similarly held of a loaning by such an officer of public property (corn) to a contractor, for the purpose of enabling him to fill a contract made with the United States through another officer. (a) The fact that a practice exists in a post or other command of making a use (not authorized by regulation or order) of government property for private purposes, or of loaning it in the prospect of a prompt return, can constitute no defense to a charge for such act as an offense under this article. Such practice, however, if sanctioned, though improperly, by superior authority, may be shown in evidence in mitigation of sentence. Ibid., par. 112.

A charge of embezzlement under this article would not lie where the money or property embezzled was not public money, but belonged to the post, company, or exchange funds; such money not being public money within the scope of article 60. G. C. M. O. 27, War Dept., 1872; see, also, G. C. M. O. 4, ibid., 1873.

Under the grant of jurisdiction to a court-martial conferred by the 60th Article of War, providing that any person in the military service who misappropriates any money of the United States, "furnished or intended for the military service thereof," shall be punished, etc., such a court has no power to convict an officer of the Army for misappropriating money appropriated by Congress for the improvement of rivers and harbors. In re Carter, 97 Fed. Rep., 496. Such a conviction, however, may be had where the misappropriation of such funds is charged as a violation of article 62. Ibid.

The misappropriation specified in the article need not be an appropriation for the personal profit of the accused. The words "to his own use or benefit" qualify only the term "applies." Ibid., par. 116.

In charging a stealing, embezzlement, misappropriation, etc., under this article, it is not necessary to allege that the funds or property were "furnished or intended for the military service;" it is sufficient if this fact appears from the evidence, and in most cases it will be inferable from the very nature of the property itself—as where, for example, the same consists of "quartermaster stores," "subsistence stores," "ordnance stores," etc. (a) Ibid., par. 119.

In charging embezzlement under this article, it is not necessary, if the fact sufficiently appears from other allegations, to aver in terms in the specification that the money or property was "furnished or intended for the military service of the United States." Ibid., 58 par. 14.

Repeated false statements of the accused relative to the public moneys for which he was accountable are competent evidence going to sustain a charge of embezzlement under this article. Ibid., par. 120.

The application or operation of this article is in no manner affected by the enactment of March 3, 1875, chapter 144, constituting embezzlement of public property a felony and making it triable by a United States court, such act being a purely civil statute. Ibid., par. 121.

Where an officer, for the purpose of obtaining the allowance of a fraudulent claim against the United States, willfully induced another to make to the United States a lease of premises for public use, containing a false and fraudulent statement, held that he was chargeable with an offense of the class specified in the fourth paragraph of this article. Ibid., par. 122.

a Whether this provision in subjecting officers and soldiers discharged, mustered out, etc., and become civilians, to trial by court-martial in the same manner as if they were a part of the Army is constitutional is a question which is believed not to have been judicially passed upon. Probably originally inserted in the act of March 2, 1863 (from which the article is repeated) as in the nature of a war measure, it was in fact relied upon as giving jurisdiction in but a small number of cases even during the war, and since that period no case is known in which the exceptional jurisdiction conferred has been taken advantage of.

Conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman.
61 Art. of War.

ART. 61. Any officer who is convicted of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman shall be dismissed from the service.¹

¹ To constitute an offense under this article the conduct need not be "scandalous and infamous." These words, contained in the original article of 1775, were dropped in the form adopted in 1806. Nor is it essential that the act should compromise the honor of the officer. (a) It is only necessary that the conduct should be such as is at once disgraceful or disreputable and manifestly unbecoming both an officer of the Army and a gentleman. (b) An act, however, which is only slightly discreditable is not, in practice, made the subject of a charge under this article. The article, in making the punishment of dismissal imperative in all cases, evidently contemplates that the conduct, while unfitting the party for the society of men of a scrupulous sense of decency and honor, shall exhibit him as unworthy to hold a commission in the Army. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 123.

Knowingly making to a superior a false official report held chargeable under this article. So of a deliberately false official certificate as to the truth or correctness of an official voucher, roll, return, etc. So of any deliberately false official statement, written or verbal, of a material character. So where an officer caused the sergeant of the guard to enter in the guard book a false official report that he (the officer) had duly visited the guard at certain hours as officer of the day, when he had in fact been guilty of a neglect of duty in this particular, and thereupon himself signed such report and submitted it to his post commander, held that his conduct was chargeable as an offense under this article. Ibid., par. 124.

The following acts, committed in a particular case, held to be offenses within this article: Preferring false accusations against an officer; attempting to induce an officer to join in a fraud upon the United States; attempt at subornation of perjury. Ibid., par. 125. For other acts chargeable under this article see paragraphs 126-131, Ibid.

To justify a charge under this article it is not necessary that the act or conduct of the officer should be immediately connected with or should directly affect the military service. It is sufficient that it is morally wrong and of such a nature that, while dishonoring or disgracing him as a gentleman, it compromises his character and position as an officer of the Army. Ibid., par. 132.

Thus, though a mere neglect on the part of an officer to satisfy his private pecuniary obligations will not ordinarily furnish sufficient grounds for charges against him, yet where the debt has been dishonorably incurred—as where money has been borrowed under false promises or representations as to payment or security, or where the nonpayment has been accompanied by such circumstances of fraud, deceit, evasion, denial of indebtedness, etc., as to amount to dishonorable conduct—the continued nonpayment, in connection with the facts or circumstances rendering it dishonorable, may properly be deemed to constitute an offense chargeable under this article. (a) Ibid., par. 133.

Where an officer, in payment of a debt, gave his check upon a bank, representing at the same time that he had funds there, when in fact, as he was well aware, he had none, held that he was amenable to a charge under this article. Ibid., par. 134.

Neglect or refusal to pay honest debts may constitute an offense under this article where so repeated or persistent as to furnish reasonable ground for inferring that the officer designs or desires to avoid or indefinitely defer a settlement. This especially where the debts are due to soldiers for money borrowed from or held in trust for them. Ibid., par. 135. See also par. 138, ibid.

An indifference on the part of an officer to his pecuniary obligations, of so marked and inexcusable a character as to induce repeated just complaints to his military commander or the Secretary of War by his creditors, and to bring discredit and scandal upon the military service, held to constitute an offense within the purview of this article. (b) Ibid., par. 136.

Where certain officers of a colored regiment made a practice of loaning to men of the regiment small amounts of money, for which they charged and received in payment at the rate of two dollars for one at the next pay day, held that they were properly convicted of a violation of this article. Ibid., par. 137.

Where an officer stationed in Utah was married there by a Mormon official to a female, with whom he lived as his wife, although having at the same time a legal wife residing in the States, held that he might properly be brought to trial by general court-martial for a violation of this article. So held of an officer who committed bigamy by publicly contracting marriage in the United States while having a legal wife living in Scotland whom he had abandoned. Ibid., par. 139.

Abusing and assaulting his wife by an officer at a military post, held chargeable as an offense under this article. Ibid., par. 140.

The institution by an officer of fraudulent proceedings against his wife for divorce, and the manufacture of false testimony to be used against her in the suit, in connection with an abandonment of her and neglect to provide for her support, held to constitute "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman" in the sense of this article. Ibid., par. 141.

According to the accepted principle of interpretation, by which articles of war enjoining a specific punishment or punishments are held to be in this particular both mandatory and exclusive, no sentence other than one of simple dismissal can legally be adjudged upon a conviction under this article. A sentence which adds to dismissal any other penalty or penalties, as disqualification for office, forfeiture of pay, imprisonment, etc., is valid and operative only as to the dismissal, and as to the rest should be formally disapproved as being unauthorized and of no effect. Ibid., par. 142.

The use of abusive language toward a commanding officer may constitute an offense under this article. But, both as a matter of correct pleading and because the twentieth article authorizes a punishment less than dismissal, the language should be so particularized as to show that it constituted an offense more grave than the mere disrespect which is the subject of the latter article. A specification not thus setting forth and characterizing the epithets or words employed will be subject to a motion to make definite or strike out. Ibid., par. 143.

The mere acceptance by an officer of compensation from private parties (civilians) whom, by permission of his superior, he assists in a private undertaking, though it may be an indelicate act, is not an offense under this article. Of the propriety of such conduct an officer must judge for himself. Ibid., par. 144.

See, as to the duplication of pay accounts, ibid., pars. 145, 146.

Held that a continued neglect, without adequate excuse, to satisfy a pecuniary obligation long overdue, after specific assurance given of speedy payment, was a dishonorable act, constituting an offense under this article. Ibid., par. 138.

^a Cases of officers made amenable to trial by court-martial, under this article, for the nonfulfillment of pecuniary obligations to other officers, enlisted men, post traders, and civilians, are found in the following general orders of the War Department and Headquarters of the Army: No. 87, of 1866; Nos. 3, 55, 64, of 1869; No. 15, of 1870; No. 17, of 1871; Nos. 22, 46, of 1872; No. 10, of 1873; Nos. 25, 50, 68, 82, of 1874; No. 25, of 1875; No. 100, of 1876; No. 46, of 1877.

^b See, on the subject of these complaints, the circular issued originally from the War Department (A. G. O.) on February 8, 1872, in which the Secretary of War "declares his intention to bring to trial by court-martial," under the sixty-first article of war, "any officer who, after due notice, shall fail to quiet such claims against him."

Crimes and disorders to prejudice of military discipline.

62 Art. War.

ART. 62. All crimes not capital, and all disorders and neglects, which officers and soldiers may be guilty of, to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, though not mentioned in the foregoing articles of war, are to be taken cognizance of by a general, or a regimental, garrison, or field officers' court-martial, according to the nature and degree of the offense, and punishable at the discretion of such court.¹

¹The word "crimes" in this article, distinguished as it is from "neglects" and "disorders," means military offenses of a more serious character than these, including such as are also civil crimes, as homicide, robbery, arson, larceny, etc. "Capital" crimes (i. e., crimes capitally punishable), including murder, or any grade of murder made capital by statute, can not be taken cognizance of by courts-martial under this article. (As to the jurisdiction of courts-martial in cases of murder, etc., in time of war, see art. 58, supra, note.) A crime which is in fact murder, and capital by statute of the United States or of the State in which committed, can not be brought within the jurisdiction of a court-martial under this article by charging it as "manslaughter, to the prejudice," etc., or simply as "conduct to the prejudice," etc. If the specification or the proof shows that the crime was murder and a capital offense, the court should refuse to take jurisdiction, or to find or sentence. If it assume to do so, the proceedings should be disapproved as unauthorized and void. Ibid., par. 148.

The term "to the prejudice of good order and military discipline" qualifies, according to the accepted interpretation, the word "crimes" as well as the words "disorders and neglects." Thus, the crime of larceny (sometimes charged as "theft" or "stealing") is held chargeable under this article when it clearly affects the order and discipline of the military service. Stealing, for example, from a fellow-soldier or from an officer (or stealing of public money or other public property where the offense is not more properly a violation of article 60), is generally so chargeable. And so of any other crime (not capital) the commission of which has prejudiced military discipline, as, for example, manslaughter (or homicide not amounting to murder) of a soldier; assault with intent to kill a fellow-soldier; forgery of the name of a disbursing or other military officer to a Government check or draft, or forgery of an officer's name to a check on a bank (and this whether or not anything was in fact lost by the Government or the bank or officer); forgery in signing the name of a fellow-soldier to a certificate of indebtedness to a sutler, or to an order on a paymaster; embezzlement or misappropriation of the property of an officer or soldier. Ibid., par. 149.

Where an offense is specifically provided for in any of the Articles of War prior to the sixty-second, the grant of jurisdiction to a court-martial to try and punish such offense is conferred by the particular article which mentions it, and not by the general language of the sixty-second article, providing for the trial and punishment of offenses not capital, and all disorders, etc., though not mentioned in the preceding articles. In re Carter, 97 Fed. Rep., 496.

A crime, disorder, or neglect, cognizable under this article, may be charged either by its name simply, as "larceny," "drunkenness," "neglect of duty," etc.; or by its name with the addition of the words, "to the prejudice of good order and military discipline;" or simply as "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline;" or as "violation of the sixty-second article of war." It is immaterial in which form the charge is expressed, provided the specification sets forth facts constituting an act prejudicial to good order and military discipline. Whenever the charge and specification taken together make out a statement of an act clearly thus prejudicial, etc., the pleading will be regarded as substantially sufficient under this general article. Ibid., par. 151.

A charge of "conduct to the prejudice," etc., with a specification setting forth merely trials and convictions of the accused for previous offenses, is not a pleading of an offense under this article, or of any military offense. So of a charge of "habitual drunkenness, to the prejudice," etc., with a specification setting forth instances in which the accused has been sentenced for acts of drunkenness. Such charges, indeed, are in contravention of the principle that a party shall not be twice tried for the same offense. So, a specification under the charge of "conduct to the prejudice," etc., which sets forth not a distinct offense, but simply the result of an aggregation of similar offenses, is insufficient in law. Where the specifications to such a charge, in a case of an officer, set forth that the accused was "frequently" drunk, "frequently" absented himself without authority from his command, etc., held that these specifications were properly struck out by the court on the motion of the accused. In such a case the only correct pleading is a general charge under this article, with specifications setting forth—each separately—some particular and specific instance of offense. Ibid., par. 152.

Whether acts committed against civilians are offenses within this article is a question to be determined by the circumstances of each case, and in regard to which no general rule can be laid down. If the offense be committed on a military reservation, or other premises occupied by the Army, or in its neighborhood, so as to be—so to speak—in the constructive presence of the Army; or if committed by an officer or soldier while on duty, particularly if the injury is done to a member of the community whom the offender is specially required to protect; or if committed in the presence of other soldiers, or while the offender is in uniform; or if the offender use his military position or that of another for the purpose of intimidation or other unlawful influence or object—the offense will, in general, properly be regarded as an act prejudicial to good order and military discipline, and cognizable by a court-martial under this article. The judgment on the subject of a court of military officers, experts as to such cases, confirmed by the proper reviewing commander, should be reluctantly disturbed. As to a charge of embezzlement of public funds charged under this article, see Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 154, with notes thereon. See also G. C. M. O. 34, H. Q. Army, 1866; Carter v. McLaughry, 105 Fed. Rep., 614; S. O. 172, A. G. O., 1899; In re Carter, 97 Fed. Rep., 496.

¹To determine when an army is "in the field" is to decide the question raised. These words imply military operations with a view to an enemy. Hostilities with Indians seem to be as much within their meaning as any other kind of warfare. To enable the officers of an army to preserve good order and discipline is the object of this article, and these may be as necessary in the face of hostile savages as in the front of any other enemy. When an army is engaged in offensive or defensive operations, I think it is safe to say that it is an army "in the field."

To decide exactly where the boundary line runs between civil and military jurisdiction, as to the civilians attached to an army, is difficult; but it is quite evident that they are within military jurisdiction, as provided for in said article, when their treachery, defection, or insubordination might endanger or embarrass the army to which they belong in its operations against what is known in military phrase as "an enemy." Possibly the fact that troops found in a region of country chiefly inhabited by Indians, and remote from the exercise of civil authority, may enter into the description of "an army in the field." Persons who attach themselves to an expedition against hostile Indians may be understood as agreeing that they will submit themselves, for the time being, to military control. XIV Opin. Att. Gen. 22, G. O. 17, A. G. O., 1872.

The accepted interpretation of this article is that it subjects (in time of war) the classes of persons specified not only to military discipline and government in general, but also to the jurisdiction of courts-martial (upon the theory, probably, that they are thus made, for the time being, a part of the Army). Individuals, however, of the class termed "retainers to the camp," or officers' servants and the like, as well as camp followers generally, have rarely been subjected to trial in our service. For breaches of discipline committed by them the punishment has generally been expulsion from the limits of the camp and dismissal from employment. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 161.

The discipline authorized by the article has mainly been applied to the description of "persons serving with the armies of the United States in the field"—that is to say, civilians serving in a quasi-military capacity in connection with troops, in time of war and on its theater. Thus, during the late war, civilians of the following classes were, in repeated cases, held amenable, under this article, to the military jurisdiction, and subjected to trial and punishment by courts-martial: Teamsters employed with wagon trains, watchmen, laborers, and other employees of the quartermaster, subsistence, engineer, ordnance, provost-marshal, etc., departments; ambulance drivers; telegraph operators; interpreters; guides; paymasters' clerks; veterinary surgeons; "contract" surgeons, nurses, and hospital attendants; conductors and engineers of railroad trains operated upon the theater of war for military purposes; officers and men employed on Government transports, etc. But the mere fact of employment by the Government pending a general war does not render the civil employee so amenable. The employment must be in connection with the army in the field and on the theater of hostilities. Ibid., par. 162.

Held (June, 1863) that the force employed in the "ram fleet" on Western waters was properly a contingent of the Army rather than of the Navy, and accordingly that civilian commanders, pilots, and engineers employed upon such fleet during the war and before the enemy were persons serving with the armies in the field in the sense of this article, and therefore amenable to trial by court-martial. Ibid., par. 163.

Civil employees of the United States serving with the army in the field during active warfare with hostile Indian tribes held amenable to trial by court-martial under this article. A civilian who acted as guide to a command operating in a hostile movement during an Indian war held so triable. Ibid., par. 164.

The jurisdiction authorized by this article can not be extended to civilians employed in connection with the Army in time of peace, nor to civilians employed in such connection during the period of an Indian war but not on the theater of such war. In view of the limited theater of Indian wars, this exceptional jurisdiction is to be extended to civilians, on account of offenses committed during such wars, with even greater caution than in a general war. Ibid., par. 165.

Civilians can not legally be subjected to military jurisdiction by the authority of this article after the war (whether general or against Indians), pending which their offenses were committed, has terminated. The jurisdiction, to be lawfully exercised, must be exercised during the status belli. Ibid., par. 166.

A civil employee of the United States in time of peace is most clearly not made amenable to the military jurisdiction and trial by court-martial by the fact that he is employed in an office connected with the administration of the military branch of the Government. Such employment does not make him a part of the military establishment, nor is his offense, however nearly it may affect the military service, "a case arising in the land forces" in the sense of article 5 of the amendments to the Constitution. So held (June, 1877) that a civilian clerk employed in time of peace in the office of the chief quartermaster at San Francisco was manifestly not amenable, under this article or otherwise, to trial by court-martial for the embezzlement or misapplication of Government funds appropriated for the Quartermaster Department. (a) And remarked that if this official could be made liable to such jurisdiction, all the male and female clerks employed in the War Department might upon the same principle be held thus amenable for offenses against the Government committed in connection with their duties. And so held in the case of a civilian clerk employed at Camp Robinson, Nebraska, charged with conspiring with contractors to defraud the United States, the post not being within the theater of any Indian war or hostilities pending at the period of the offense. (b) Ibid., par. 167.

Held (April, 1877) that superintendents of national cemeteries, being no part of the Army, but civilians (see section 4874, Revised Statutes), were clearly not amenable to military jurisdiction or trial under this article or otherwise. (c) Ibid., par. 168.

¹ It is a general principle, confirmed by this article, that military offenses are not territorial (see Manual for Courts-Martial, p. 14). So held that an officer who exhibited himself in an intoxicated condition at a public ball in Mexico, though not present in any military capacity, was amenable for his offense to the jurisdiction of a court-martial in Texas. Ibid., par. 169; Houston v. Moore, 5 Wh., 20.

Receiving prisoners.
67 Art. War.

Simply disobeying an order to proceed and report in arrest to a certain commander held not an offense chargeable under this article. Ibid., par. 171.

² Where an officer in close arrest was permitted by his commanding officer to leave temporarily his confinement, held that his delaying his return for a brief period beyond the time fixed therefor did not properly constitute an offense under this article. Ibid., par. 172.

Though any unauthorized leaving of his confinement by an officer in close arrest is, strictly, a violation of the article, it would seem in view of the severe mandatory punishment prescribed that an officer should not in general be brought to trial under the same unless his act was of a reckless or deliberately insubordinate character. Ibid., par. 173.

It is no defense to a charge of breach of arrest in violation of this article that the accused is innocent of the offense for which he was arrested. (b) It is a defense, however, that subsequently to the original confinement the accused has been put on duty or allowed to go on duty, provided that before the breach assigned he has not been duly rearrested and reconfined. (c) Ibid., 78, par. 5.

The requirement of this article that an offender "shall be dismissed" is held to be exclusive of any other punishment. A sentence of dismissal with forfeiture of pay is unauthorized and inoperative as to the forfeiture, and as to this should be disapproved. Ibid., par. 174. See 61st article. See also the title "Arrest and confinement" in the chapter entitled MILITARY TRIBUNALS. For a case arising under this article in which breach of arrest was charged see G. O., No. 198, A. G. O. of 1863.

³ Soldiers held in military arrest, while they may be subjected to such restraint as may be necessary to prevent their escaping or committing violence, can not legally be subjected to any punishment. The imposition of punishment upon soldiers while thus detained has been on several occasions emphatically denounced by department commanders. (d) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 175.

The word "crimes" as used in this article is construed to mean serious military offenses. So that a soldier will not properly be "confined" where not charged with one of the more serious of the military offenses—in other words, where charged only with an offense of a minor character. Ibid., par. 176. See the title "Arrest and confinement" in the chapter entitled MILITARY TRIBUNALS.

at the same time, deliver an account in writing, signed by himself, of the crime charged against the prisoner.¹

Report of prisoners.
68 Art. War.

ART. 68. Every officer to whose charge a prisoner is committed shall, within twenty-four hours after such commitment, or as soon as he is relieved from his guard, report in writing, to the commanding officer, the name of such prisoner, the crime charged against him, and the name of the officer committing him; and if he fails to make such report, he shall be punished as a court-martial may direct.

Releasing prisoner without authority; escapes.
69 Art. War.

ART. 69. Any officer who presumes, without proper authority, to release any prisoner committed to his charge, or suffers any prisoner so committed to escape, shall be punished as a court-martial may direct.²

July 17, 1862, c. 200, s. 11, v. 12, p. 595.
71 Art. War.

ART. 71. When an officer is put in arrest for the purpose of trial, except at remote military posts or stations, the officer by whose order he is arrested shall see that a copy of the charges on which he is to be tried is served upon him within eight days after his arrest, and that he is brought to trial within ten days thereafter, unless the necessities of the service prevent such trial; and then he shall be brought to trial within thirty days after the expiration of said ten days. If a copy of the charges be not served, or the arrested officer be not brought to trial, as herein required, the arrest shall cease. But officers released from arrest, under the provisions of this article, may be tried,

¹ In the English case of Wolton v. Gavin (16 Ad. and El., 70) it was decided that "a commanding officer receiving a soldier charged with desertion by a noncommissioned officer, who delivered a written signed charge of the same, is justified under this article in detaining such soldier. He is bound to receive the prisoner under the article of war and he is not liable to an action for so doing. It makes no difference whether the crime be civil or military. The fact that a man is prima facie a soldier, and enlisted, is sufficient to bring him under the article of war. The duty of receiving arises eo instanti—as soon as he is presented.

If such imprisonment proves illegal, the committing officer becomes responsible, the duty of the officer commanding the guard being ministerial merely. See, in this connection, the case of McCall v. McDowell, 1 Abbott, 212.

³ Detaining soldiers in arrest for long and unreasonable periods, when it is practicable to bring them to trial, is arbitrary and oppressive, and in contravention both of the letter and spirit of this article. Whether the delay in any case is to be regarded as so far unreasonable as properly to subject the commander responsible therefor to military charges or a civil action must depend upon the circumstances of the situation and the exigencies of the service at the time. (a) Ibid., par. 177. See the title "Arrest and confinement," in the chapter entitled MILITARY TRIBUNALS.

whenever the exigencies of the service shall permit, within twelve months after such release from arrest.¹

ART. 72. Any general officer commanding an army, a territorial division, or a department, or colonel commanding a separate department, may appoint general courts-martial whenever necessary. But when any such commander is the accuser or prosecutor of any officer under his command, the court shall be appointed by the President, and its proceedings and sentence shall be sent directly to the Secretary of War, by whom they shall be laid before the President for his approval or orders in the case.² Act of July 5, 1884 (23 Stat. L., 121).

May 29, 1830, v. 4, p. 417; July 5, 1884, v. 23, p. 121.
72 Art. War.

¹ Though an officer, in whose case the provisions of this article in regard to service of charges and trial have not been complied with, is entitled to be released from arrest, he is not authorized to release himself therefrom. If he be not released in accordance with the article, he should apply for his discharge from arrest, through the proper channels to the authority by whose order the arrest was imposed, or other proper superior. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 178.

The term "within ten days thereafter" held to mean after his arrest. Ibid., par. 179.

The fact that cases of officers put in arrest "at remote military posts or stations" are excepted from the application of the article does not authorize an abuse of the power of arrest in these cases. And where, in such a case, an arrest, considering the facilities of communication with the department headquarters and other circumstances, was in fact unreasonably protracted without trial, held that the officer was entitled to be released from arrest upon a proper application submitted for the purpose. Ibid., par. 181.

² See the title "Constitution and composition of general courts-martial," in the chapter entitled MILITARY TRIBUNALS. See also Mullan v. U. S., 23 Ct. Cls., 34.

Prior to the amendment of this article by the act of July 5, 1884, a colonel commanding a department was not authorized, as such, to convene a general court; otherwise, however, of a colonel assigned by the President to the command of a department according to his brevet rank of brigadier or major-general. Dig. Opin. J. A. G. 82, par. 4.

The objection that the convening commander was the "accuser" or "prosecutor" of the accused, being one going to the legal constitution of the court, may be raised before the court at any stage of its proceedings. (Or it may be taken to the reviewing officer with a view to his disapproving the proceedings, or may be made to the President, after the approval and execution of the sentence, with a view to having the same declared invalid, or to the obtaining of other appropriate relief.) Regularly, however, the objection, if known or believed to exist, should be taken at or before the arraignment. If the objection is not admitted by the prosecution to exist, the accused is entitled to prove it like any other issue. Ibid. 84, par. 8.

The provision of this article (and of article 73) that when the convening commander is "accuser or prosecutor" the court shall be convened by the President or "next higher commander," being expressly restricted to general courts, has, of course, no application to regimental or garrison courts. (But see Summary court.) The same principle, however, will properly be applied to proceedings before these courts if it can be done without serious embarrassment to the service. Ibid., par. 189.

A general court-martial, convened by the division commander (a major-general) duly acting as department commander in the absence of the regular department commander, is legally convened by a general officer commanding a department in the sense of this article. Ibid., par. 190.

The mere fact that a general court-martial is convened by a department commander does not make such commander an "accuser or prosecutor" in the sense of this article. (a) A department commander is not an "accuser or prosecutor" when, upon information of misconduct duly laid before him, he orders the acting judge-advocate of the department or the colonel commanding the regiment to proceed to bring the offender to trial, this being a part of his due and regular supervision and command. ³ Where, in the course of a trial, the number of the members of a general court-martial is reduced by reason of absence, challenge, or the relieving of members, the court may legally proceed with its business so long as five members, the minimum quorum, remain; otherwise where the number is thus reduced below five. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 201.

While a number of members less than five can not be organized as a court or proceed with a trial, they may perform such acts as are preliminary to the organization and action of the court. Less than five members may adjourn from day to day, and where five are present and one of them is challenged the remaining four may determine upon the sufficiency of the objection. Ibid., par. 202.

A court reduced to four members, and thereupon adjourning for an indefinite period, does not dissolve itself. In adjourning it should report the facts to the convening authority and await his orders. He may at any time complete it by the addition of a new member or members and order it to reassemble for business. Ibid., par 203.

Where a court, though reduced by the absence of members, operation of challenges, etc., to below five members, yet proceeds with and concludes the trial, its further proceedings, including its finding and sentence (if any), are unauthorized and inoperative. Ibid., par. 204. See also paragraphs 205-207, ibid.

² Whether the trial of an officer by officers of an inferior rank can be avoided or not is a question not for the accused or the court, but for the officer convening the court; and his decision (as indicated by the detail itself as made in the convening order) upon this point, as upon that of the number of members to be detailed, is conclusive. An officer, therefore, can not successfully challenge a member because merely of being of a rank inferior to his own. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 210.

The statement sometimes added in orders convening courts-martials to the effect that "no officers other than those named can be detailed without injury to the service" is as superfluous and unnecessary for the purpose of excusing the detailing of officers junior to the accused as it is for accounting for the fact that less than the maximum number have been selected for the court. Ibid., 89, par. 2.

At the opening of a trial by court-martial it was objected by the accused that nine of the thirteen members as detailed were his inferiors in rank, and that the detailing of such inferiors could have been "avoided" without prejudice to the service. Held, that the objection was properly overruled by the court. Whether such a detail "can be avoided" is a question to be determined by the convening authority alone, and one upon which his determination is conclusive (a). Ibid., par. 211.

war in like cases; and you do further swear that you will not divulge¹ the sentence of the court until it shall be published by the proper authority, except to the judge-advocate; neither will you disclose or discover the vote or opinion of any particular member of the court-martial, unless required to give evidence thereof, as a witness, by a court of justice,² in a due course of law. So help you God." Act of July 27, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 278).

¹The only case which has been met with in which the members of a court-martial have been required to disclose their votes by the process of a civil court is that of In re Mackenzie, 1 Pa. Law J. R., 356, in which the members of a naval court-martial were compelled, against their objections, to state their votes as given upon the findings at a particular trial.

³This article makes the administering to the court of the form of oath thereby prescribed an essential preliminary to its entering upon a trial (a). Until the oath is taken as specified, the court is not qualified "to try and determine." The arraignment of a prisoner and reception of his plea—which is the commencement of the trial—before the court is sworn is without legal effect. The article requires that the oath shall be taken not by the court as a whole, but by "each member." Where, therefore, all the members are sworn at the same time, the judge-advocate will preferably address each member by name, thus: "You, A B, C D, E F, etc., do swear," etc. A member added to the court, after the members originally detailed have been duly sworn, should be separately sworn by the judge-advocate in the full form prescribed by the article; otherwise he is not qualified to act as a member of the court. A member who prefers it may be affirmed instead of sworn. See section 1, Revised Statutes. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 225.

The members are sworn to try and determine the matter before them at the time of the administering of the oath. In a case, therefore, where, after the court had been sworn and the accused had been arraigned and had pleaded, an additional charge, setting forth a new and distinct offense, was introduced into the case, and the accused was tried and convicted upon the same, held that as to this charge the proceedings were fatally defective, the court not having been sworn to try and determine such charge (b). Ibid., par. 226.

It is a departure from the engagement expressed in the body of the oath—to try and determine according to evidence, and administer justice according to the Articles of War, etc.—for a court-martial to determine a case either upon personal knowledge of the facts possessed by the members and not put in evidence, or according to the private views of justice of the members independently of the provisions of the code (c). Ibid., 97, par. 3.

Where the vote of each member of the court upon one of several specifications upon which the accused was tried was stated in the record of trial, held that such statement was a clear violation of the oath of the court, though it did not affect the validity of the proceedings or sentence. A statement in the record of trial to the effect that all the members concurred in the finding or in the sentence, while it does not vitiate the proceedings or sentence, is a direct violation of the oath prescribed by this article. See sixty-second article. Ibid., par. 227.

The disclosing of the finding and sentence to a clerk by permitting him to remain with the court at the final deliberation and enter the judgment in the record is a violation of the oath and a grave irregularity, though one which does not affect the validity of the proceedings or sentence. Ibid., par. 229.

The words "a court of justice" are deemed to mean a civil or criminal court of the United States, or of a State, etc., and not to include a court-martial. A case can hardly be supposed in which it would become proper or desirable for a court-martial to inquire into the votes or opinions given in closed court by the members of another similar tribunal. Ibid., 98, par. 6.

^aSee, in this connection, G. O. 15, H. A., 1880, which, in directing that judge-advocates shall be detailed for regimental and garrison, as well as general, courts-martial, rescinds G. O. 49 of 1871, prescribing a special form of oath for the former courts, and thus provides for their taking the due and regular oath recited in article 84.

Challenges by

88 Art. War.

¹Contempts, broadly considered, are of two kinds—direct and constructive. Contempts committed in the presence of the court, sitting judicially, or so near as to interfere with the orderly course of procedure, are direct contempts. Contempts committed, not in presence of the court, but which tend, by their operation, to interrupt, obstruct, embarrass, or prevent the due and orderly administration of justice, are constructive contempts. Indianapolis Water Co. v. The American Strawboard Co., 75 Fed. Rep., 972. Over the former, direct contempts courts-martial are endowed with jurisdiction by the terms of the eighty-sixth Article of War; in respect to the latter, constructive contempts, when committed by persons not subject to military jurisdiction, courts-martial are without jurisdiction.

The power of a court-martial to punish, under this article, being confined practically to acts done in its immediate presence, (a) such a court can have no authority to punish as for a contempt a neglect by an officer or soldier to attend as a witness in compliance with a summons. (b) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 230.

A court-martial has none of the common-law power to punish for contempt vested in the ordinary courts of justice, but only such authority as is given it by this article. Thus, held that a court-martial would not be authorized to punish as for a contempt, under this article (or otherwise), a civilian witness duly summoned and appearing before it, but, when put on the stand, declining (without disorder) to testify. Ibid., par. 231. See also XVIII Opin. Atty. Gen., 278.

Where a contempt within the description of this article has been committed, and the court deems it proper that the offender shall be punished, the proper course is to suspend the regular business, and, after giving the party an opportunity to be heard, explain, etc., (c) to proceed, if the explanation is insufficient, to impose a punishment, resuming thereupon the original proceedings. The action taken is properly summary, a formal trial not being called for. Close confinement in quarters or in the guardhouse during the trial of the pending case, or forfeiture of a reasonable amount of pay, has been the more usual punishment. Instead of proceeding against a military person for a contempt in the mode contemplated by this article, the alternative course may be pursued of bringing him to trial before a new court on a charge for a disorder under article 62. (d) Ibid., par. 233.

^aIt was held by the Secretary of War in the case of Lieutenant-Colonel Backenstos (G. O. 14, War Department, 1850) that a court-martial had, under this article, no power to punish its own members.

^bAs to the power of courts of inquiry to punish for contempt, see one hundred and fifteenth article and note.

and shall not receive a challenge to more than one member at a time.¹

¹ This article authorizes the exercise of the right of challenge before all courts except field officers' courts and summary courts. These courts are not subject to be challenged, because, being composed of but one member, there is no authority provided which is competent to pass upon the validity of the challenge. Ibid., par. 234.

It is ordinarily a sufficient ground of challenge to a member that he is the author of the charges and is a material witness in the case. The mere fact that he is to be a witness is not, in general, to be held sufficient. Ibid., par. 235.

The mere fact that a member signed or formally preferred the charges is not sufficient ground of objection, since he may have done so ministerially or by the order of a superior. But where a member, upon investigation or otherwise, has initiated or preferred the charges as accuser, or as prosecutor has caused them to be brought to trial, he is properly subject to challenge. Thus, that a member had originated and preferred the charge for a disobedience of his own order was held good cause of challenge. So in a case of a trial for an assault upon an officer, the fact that the officer upon whom the assault was committed, and who was the prosecuting witness, was a member of the court was held to constitute complete cause of challenge to him as member. Ibid., par. 236.

That a member is the regimental or company commander of the accused does not per se constitute sufficient ground of challenge. But such ground may exist where the commander has preferred the charges or where the relations between him and the accused have been such as to give rise to a presumption of prejudice. Ibid., par. 237.

Where a member, before the trial, has expressed an opinion, based upon a knowledge of the facts, that the accused would be convicted whichever way he might plead, held that he had clearly prejudged the case and that the court should have sustained an objection taken to him by the accused, although upon being challenged he declared that he was without prejudice. (a) Ibid., par. 238. In re Bird, 2 Sawyer, 33.

A member, on being challenged for prejudice, declared that he did not consider the accused (an officer) a gentleman, and would not associate with him, and that he had stated so; but he added at the same time that he was not prejudiced for or against him. Held, especially as one of the charges was "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman," that the challenge was improperly overruled by the court. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 239.

It is not good ground of challenge to a member that he is junior in rank to the accused, nor is it sufficient ground that the member will gain a step or "file" in the line of promotion if the accused is dismissed. It is, however, a sufficient cause of challenge to a member that if the accused (an officer) be convicted and sentenced to be dismissed, the member will be forthwith entitled to promotion. Ibid., par. 240.

Held sufficient ground of challenge to a member of a court-martial that he had previously taken part in an investigation of the same case before a court of inquiry, though such court did not express a formal opinion. Ibid., par. 241.

Held good ground of challenge to a member of a court-martial in a case of alleged theft by a soldier that such member had been a member of a previous court of inquiry which had investigated the case and fixed the misappropriation of the property upon the accused. Ibid., par. 242.

Held that the members of a court-martial who had composed a previous court by which the same accused had been tried for the same act, though under a different charge, were all subject to be set aside on challenge. Ibid., par. 243.

It is not necessary (though usual and proper) for a member to withdraw from the court room on being challenged and pending the deliberation on the objection. Ibid., par. 244.

Courts should be liberal in passing upon challenges, but should not entertain an objection which is not specific, or allow one upon its mere assertion by the accused, without proof and in the absence of any admission on the part of the member. (b) A positive declaration by the challenged member to the effect that he has no preju-

^a See this opinion as adopted by the President in G. C. M. O. 66, Headquarters of Army, 1879.

^b See G. C. M. O. 66, War Department, 1875. The challenge, the allowance of which by the court in General Twigg's case was disapproved in G. O. 4, War Department, 1858, was simply a general objection to the member by the accused on account of "some unpleasant circumstances growing out of their official relations," no specific allegation of bias being made and the member himself expressly disclaiming any feeling of prejudice.

dice or interest in the case will, in general, in the absence of material evidence in support of the objection, justify the court in overruling it. Ibid., par. 245.

Where, before arraignment, the accused (an officer), without having personal knowledge of the existence of ground of challenge to a member, had credible hearsay information of its existence, held that he should properly have raised the objection before the members were sworn, and that the court was not in error in refusing to allow him to take it at a subsequent stage of the trial. Ibid., par. 246.

The fact that a sufficient cause of challenge exists against a member, but through ignorance of his rights, is not taken advantage of by the accused, or if asserted is improperly overruled by the court, can affect in no manner the validity in law of the proceedings or sentence, though it may sometimes properly furnish occasion for a disapproval of the proceedings, etc., or a remission in whole or in part of the sentence. (a) Ibid., par. 247.

At the trial of an officer in 1853, the accused challenged a member of the court "for bias, prejudice, and malice." The challenged member thereupon stated "that he had no prejudice or bias against the accused which could in the remotest degree interfere with his doing justice in the case," but, "being challenged, he requested to be relieved from sitting on the court," which the court refused, and overruled the challenge. The accused then requested that the member might be put on his voir dire in order that he might examine him as to the extent of any prejudice he might entertain, which application the court also refused. This refusal of the right of an accused person to place a challenged member on his voir dire, in order to ascertain whether the grounds of challenge advanced by him were or were not sufficient, was disapproved by the Secretary of War upon the ground that "an accused is now allowed in all cases, for the better security of an impartial trial, to show the mind of the juror by examining him before the court, and the only exception is where the cause of the challenge goes to the disgrace or discredit of the juror." G. O. No. 21, War Dept., of 1853.

The article imposes no limitation upon the exercise of the right of challenge other than that "more than one member shall not be challenged at a time." Thus while the panel, or the court as a whole, is not subject to challenge, yet all the members may be challenged provided they are challenged separately. The article contains no authority for challenging the judge-advocate. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 248.

In the case of an enlisted man tried in 1875, the judge-advocate of the court was the principal witness against the prisoner and was directly interested in his conviction. In this case it was remarked by the reviewing officer (the Secretary of War) that "it was not contemplated that a prisoner would be brought to trial before this court on charges which raised the question whether its judge-advocate had not himself been guilty of official misconduct. But such was the fact in this case. The judge-advocate had a personal interest in the conviction of the prisoner and was also the principal witness against him." Under such circumstances the officer should have applied to the proper authority to be relieved from duty as judge-advocate. The proceedings were disapproved. G. C. M. O. No. 41, War Dept., 1875; see also G. C. M. O. 66, 1875.

The court of itself can not excuse a member in the absence of a challenge. A member not challenged but considering himself disqualified can be relieved only by application to the convening authority. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 249.

An accused challenged the entire court on the ground that the convening officer was "accuser." Held properly overruled; the array can not be challenged at military law. The article declares that "the court * * * shall not receive a challenge to more than one member at a time." Ibid., par. 250.

A court-martial can not relieve or "excuse" a member except upon a challenge duly interposed and sustained under this article. The fact that a member has been absent from the court for several days and has not heard the testimony meanwhile taken constitutes no legal ground for excusing him by the court. Ibid., par. 251.

An accused objected to a member on the ground that some time before he had had a disagreement with the member and thought that he "might be prejudiced." The member declared that he was conscious of no prejudice whatever, but that, on the ^aSee opinion of the Attorney-General of January 19, 1878 (XV Opins., 432), in which the opinion, expressed by the Judge-Advocate-General in the most recent of the cases upon which this paragraph is based—that the fact that one of the charges upon which the accused was convicted was preferred by a member of the court who also testified as a witness on the trial (but who, though clearly subject to objection, was not challenged by the accused) could not affect the validity of the sentence of dismissal after the same had been duly confirmed—is concurred in by the Attorney-General. And to a similar effect see Keyes v. U. S., 15 Ct. Cls., 532.

In G. C. M. O. 88, Department of Dakota, 1878, the point is noticed that where a challenge interposed by the accused has been improperly disallowed a subsequent plea of guilty is not to be treated as a waiver of the advantage to which he may be entitled by reason of the improper ruling.

Prisoner standing mute.
89 Art. War.

ART. 89. When a prisoner, arraigned before a general court-martial, from obstinacy and deliberate design, stands mute, or answers foreign to the purpose, the court may proceed to trial and judgment as if the prisoner had pleaded not guilty.

Judge-advocate prosecutor and counsel for prisoner.
90 Art. War.

ART. 90. The judge-advocate, or some person deputed by him, or by the general or officer commanding the Army, detachment, or garrison, shall prosecute in the name of the United States, but when the prisoner has made his plea, he shall so far consider himself counsel for the prisoner as to object to any leading question to any of the witnesses, and to any question to the prisoner the answer to which might tend to criminate himself.

Judge-advocate to withdraw from closed sessions.

Sec. 2, July 27,
1892, v. 27, p. 278.

Whenever a court-martial shall sit in closed session the judge-advocate shall withdraw, and when his legal advice or his assistance in referring to recorded evidence is required it shall be obtained in open court. Section 2, act of July 27, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 278).

Administration of oaths.
Sec. 4, July 27,
1892, v. 27, p. 278.

That judge-advocates of departments and of courts-martial, and the trial officers of summary courts, are hereby authorized to administer oaths for the purposes of the administration of military justice, and for other purposes of military administration. Section 4, act of July 27, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 278).

Depositions.

contrary, his feelings toward the accused were friendly. Held that the court erred in sustaining the challenge. Ibid., par. 252.

The accused were Indian scouts, charged with mutiny. Some of the members of the court, though disclaiming any prejudice against the accused personally, were aware that they were present at the outbreak, and were fully apprised, from their own personal presence or knowledge of the circumstances, that the mutiny, which had involved homicide, constituted a most aggravated offense of the class. Held that as these members could scarcely avoid applying their impressions to the accused when shown to be connected with the disorder, they would fairly have been subject to objection as triers. Ibid., par. 253.

A mere general opinion in regard to the impropriety of acts such as those charged against the accused, unaccompanied by any opinion as to his guilt or innocence on the charges, is not a sufficient ground of objection under this article. Ibid., par. 254.

In a case tried in 1875 the court refused to allow the accused time to confer with his counsel for the purpose of preparing cross-interrogatories to be propounded to witnesses whose depositions were to be taken at the instance of the prosecution. As the defense was not prejudiced by the error of the court, the findings were approved. The most ample opportunity should always be afforded the party on trial for such purpose. G. C. M. O. No. 26, War Dept., 1875.

ART. 92. All persons who give evidence before a court-martial shall be examined on oath, or affirmation, in the following form: "You swear (or affirm) that the evidence you shall give, in the case now in hearing, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you God."¹

Oath of witness.
92 Art. War.

ART. 93. A court-martial shall, for reasonable cause, grant a continuance to either party, for such time, and as often, as may appear to be just: Provided, That if the prisoner be in close confinement, the trial shall not be delayed for a period longer than sixty days.²

Sentence of death.
96 Art. War.

¹ This article prescribes a single specific form of oath to be taken by all witnesses. The Constitution, however (article 1 of amendment), has provided that Congress shall make no law prohibiting the free exercise of religion. Where, therefore, the prescribed form is not in accordance with the religious tenets of a witness, he should be permitted to be sworn according to the ceremonies of his own faith or as he may deem binding on his conscience. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 274, note 2.

The article does not prescribe by whom the oath shall be administered. By the custom of the service it is administered by the judge-advocate. (And see now the provision of the act of July 27, 1892, sec. 4.) When the judge-advocate himself takes the witness stand, he is properly sworn by the president of the court. Ibid., par. 274.

A witness who has once been sworn and has testified is not required to be resworn on being subsequently recalled to the stand by either party. The reswearing, however, of such a witness will not affect the legal validity of the proceedings or sentence. Ibid., par. 274, note 2.

² In making an application for a continuance or postponement under this article, on account of the absence of a witness, the form of affidavit prescribed in paragraph 887 of the Army Regulations should in general be substantially observed. But while the court may refuse the application if this regulation be not followed, it may, in its discretion, refrain from insisting that the same be strictly complied with, and accept a modified form. (b) It should, however, in all cases require that the desired evidence appear or be shown to be material, and not merely cumulative, (c) and that to await its production will not delay the trial for an unreasonable period. It should also, in general, before granting the continuance, be assured that the absence of the witness is not owing to any neglect on the part of the applicant. This feature, however, will not be so much insisted upon in military as in civil cases. (d) Ibid., 108, par. 1. See, also, the title "Continuances" in the chapter entitled MILITARY TRIBUNALS.

Article 94 was repealed by the act of March 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 951).

³ Though it has sometimes been viewed otherwise, it is deemed quite clear upon the terms of the present article that it is not necessary to the legality of a death sentence that two-thirds of the court should have concurred in the finding as well as the sentence. (e) Further, in the absence of any requirement to that effect in the

^a See 1 Greenl. Ev., sec. 371; O'Brien, 260.

^b It is not the practice of courts-martial to admit counter affidavits from the opposite party as to what the absent witness would testify. And as to the civil practice, see Williams v. State, 6 Nebraska, 334.

^c Compare People v. Thompson, 4 Cal., 238; Parker v. State, 55 Miss., 414.

^d A military accused can not be charged with laches in not procuring the attendance at his trial of a witness who is prevented from being present by superior military authority. Thus in a case in G. O. 63, Department of Dakota, 1872, an accused soldier was held entitled to a continuance till the return of material witnesses then absent on an Indian expedition.

Penitentiaries.
July 16, 1862, c.
190, ss. 1, 4, v. 12,
p. 589.

97 Art. War.

ART. 97. No person in the military service shall, under the sentence of a court-martial, be punished by confinement in a penitentiary, unless the offense of which he may be convicted would, by some statute of the United States, or by some statute of the State, Territory, or District in which such offense may be committed, or by the common law, as the same exists in such State, Territory, or District, subject such convict to such punishment.¹ article, it is not deemed essential to the validity of the sentence that the record should state the fact that two-thirds of the court concurred therein. The practice, however, has been to add such a statement. (a) Ibid., 112, par. 1.

A sentence of death imposed by a court-martial, upon a conviction of several distinct offenses, will be authorized and legal if any one of such offenses is made capitally punishable by the Articles of War, although the other offenses may not be so punishable. Ibid., par. 285.

A court-martial, in imposing a death sentence, should not designate a time or place for its execution, such a designation not being within its province, but pertaining to that of the reviewing authority. If it does so designate, this part of the sentence may be disregarded and a different time or place fixed by the commanding general. Ibid., par. 286.

Where a death sentence imposed by a court-martial has been directed by the proper authority to be executed on a particular day, and this day, owing to some exigency of the service, has gone by without the sentence being executed, it is competent for the same authority, or his proper superior, to name another day for the purpose, the time of its execution being an immaterial element of this punishment. (b) Ibid., par. 288.

¹ This article, by necessary implication, prohibits the imposition of confinement in a penitentiary as a punishment for offenses of a purely or exclusively military character—such as desertion, for example. (c) Ibid., par. 288.

A sentence of penitentiary confinement in a case of a purely military offense is wholly unauthorized and should be disapproved. Effect can not be given to such a sentence by commuting it to confinement in a military prison or to some other punishment which would be legal for such offense. Nor in a case of such an offense can a severer penalty, as death, be commuted to confinement in a penitentiary. Ibid., par. 289.

Nor can penitentiary confinement be legalized as a punishment for purely military offenses by designating a penitentiary as a "military prison" and ordering the confinement there of soldiers sentenced to imprisonment on conviction of such offenses. Ibid., par. 290.

An offense charged as "conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline," which, however, is in fact a larceny, (d) embezzlement, violent crime, or other offense made punishable with penitentiary confinement by the law of the State, etc., may legally be visited with this punishment. Ibid., par. 291.

The term "penitentiary" as employed in this article has reference to civil prisons only, as the penitentiary of the United States or District of Columbia at Washington, a In the case of an enlisted man, tried by a general court-martial for a violation of the twenty-first Article of War, the record failed to show affirmatively that two-thirds of the members concurred in the imposition of the death sentence; the sentence was therefore disapproved by the President. G. O. 172, A. G. O., 1862. See, also, G. O. 18, A. G. O., 1863.

b It was held by the Supreme Court in Coleman v. Tennessee (7 Otto, 519, 520) that a soldier who had been convicted of murder and sentenced to death by a general court-martial in May, 1865, but the execution of whose sentence had been meanwhile deferred, by reason of his escape and the pendency of civil proceedings in his case, might at the date of the ruling (October term, 1878) "be delivered up to the military authorities of the United States, to be dealt with as required by law."

More recently (May, 1879; XVI Opins., 349) it has been held in this case by the Attorney-General that the death sentence might legally be executed notwithstanding the fact that the soldier had meanwhile been discharged from the service, such discharge, while formally separating the party from the Army, being viewed as not affecting his legal status as a military convict. But, in view of all the circumstances of the case, it was recommended that the sentence be commuted to imprisonment for life or a term of years.

c See G. O. 4, War Department, 1867; also the action taken in cases in the following general orders: G. O. 21, Department of the Platte, 1866; G. O. 21, ibid., 1871; G. O. 44, Eighth Army Corps, 1862; G. C. M. O. 34, 35, 43, 46, 72, 73, Department of the Missouri, 1870.

d In a case of larceny the court should inform itself as to whether the value of the property stolen be not too small to permit a penitentiary confinement for the offense under the local law. See G. O. 44, Eighth Army Corps, 1862; G. C. M. O. 63, Department of the Platte, 1872.

the public prisons or penitentiaries of the different States, and the "penitentiaries erected by the United States" (see section 1892, Revised Statutes) in most of the Territories. The military prison at Leavenworth is not a penitentiary in the sense of the article. The term "State (or State's) prison" in a sentence is equivalent to penitentiary. Ibid., par. 292.

A military prisoner duly sentenced or committed to a penitentiary becomes subject to the government and rules of the institution. Ibid., par. 293.

Where a soldier is sentenced to be confined in a penitentiary, the proper reviewing authority may legally designate for the execution of the punishment any State or Territorial penitentiary within his command. Where there is no such penitentiary available for the purpose, or desirable to be resorted to, he will properly submit the case to the Secretary of War for the designation of a proper penitentiary. Ibid., 114, par. 7.

A court-martial, in imposing by its sentence the punishment of confinement in a penitentiary, is not required to follow the statute of the United States or of the State, etc., as to the term of the confinement. It may adjudge, at its discretion, a less or a greater term than that affixed by such statute to the particular offense. At the same time the court will often do well to consult the statute, as indicating a reasonable measure of punishment for the offense. Ibid., par. 294.

Where a court-martial specifically sentences an accused to confinement in a "military prison," he can not legally be committed to a penitentiary, although such form of imprisonment would be authorized by the character of his offense. But where a sentence of confinement is expressed in general terms, as where it directs that the accused shall be confined "in such place or prison as the proper authority may order," or in terms to such effect, held that the same may, under this article, legally be executed by the commitment of the party to a penitentiary, to be designated by the reviewing officer or Secretary of War, provided, of course, the offense is of such a nature as to warrant this form of punishment. Ibid., par. 295.

Held that penitentiary confinement could not legally be adjudged upon a conviction of a violation of the twenty-first article, alleged in the specification to have consisted in the lifting up of a weapon (a pistol) against a commanding officer and discharging it at him with intent to kill. By charging the offense under this article the Government elected to treat it as a purely military offense, subject only to a military punishment. So, upon a conviction of joining in a mutiny, in violation of article 22, held that a sentence of confinement in a penitentiary would not be legal although the mutiny involved a homicide, set forth in the specification as an incidental aggravating circumstance. To have warranted such a punishment in either of these cases the Government should have treated the act as a "crime," and charged and brought it to trial as such under article 62. Ibid., par. 296.

Where the act is charged as a crime under article 62, and charge and specification taken together show an offense punishable with confinement in a penitentiary by the law of the locus of the crime, the sentence may legally adjudge such a punishment. So held in a case where charge and specification together made out an allegation of perjury under section 5392, Revised Statutes. Ibid., par. 297.

"Obtaining money under false pretenses" is punishable by confinement in a penitentiary by the laws of Arizona. A sentence of court-martial imposing this punishment, on conviction of an offense of this description committed in this Territory, charged as a crime under article 62, held authorized by article 97. Ibid., par. 298.

A conviction of a larceny of property of such slight value as not to authorize this punishment under the local law would not warrant a sentence of confinement in a penitentiary. In a case of larceny the court should inform itself as to whether the value of the property stolen be not too small to permit of penitentiary confinement for the offense under the law of the State, etc. (a) Ibid., 115, par. 13.

A punishment of confinement in a penitentiary, where legal, may be mitigated to confinement in a military prison or at a military post. Ibid., par. 299.

A discharged soldier, serving a sentence of confinement in a State or Territorial penitentiary, still remains under military control, at least so far as that his sentence may, by competent military authority, or by the President, be remitted, or may be mitigated—as, for example, to confinement in a military prison or at a military post. Ibid., par. 300.

Discharge and dismissal of officers.

99 Art. War.
July 13, 1866, c.
176, s. 5, v. 14, p.
92.

ART. 99. No officer shall be discharged or dismissed from the service, except by order of the President, or by sentence of a general court-martial; and in time of peace no officer shall be dismissed, except in pursuance of the sentence of a court-martial, or in mitigation thereof.¹

¹ Dismissal by Executive order is quite distinct from dismissal by sentence. The latter is a punishment; the former is removal from office. (a) The power to dismiss, which, as being an incident to the power to appoint public officers, had been regarded since 1789 as vested in the President by the Constitution, (b) was for the first time in 1866 (by the act of July 13 of that year, reenacted in the second clause of the present ninety-ninth article of war and in section 1229, Revised Statutes), expressly divested by Congress in so far as respects its exercise in time of peace. (c) By the statute law it is now authorized only in time of war. During the late war it was exercised in a great number of cases, sometimes for the purpose of summarily ridding the service of unworthy officers, sometimes in the form of a discharge or muster-out of officers whose services were no longer required. The distinction between this species of dismissal and dismissal by sentence is illustrated by the fact that the former has, with the sanction of legal authority, been repeatedly ordered in cases where a court-martial has previously acquitted the officer of the very offenses on account of which the summary action has been resorted to. (d) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1203.

The Executive, in summarily dismissing an officer, can not at the same time deprive him of pay due. Nor can the right of an officer to his pay, for any period prior to a summary dismissal ordered in his case, be divested by dating back of the order of dismissal. Such an order can not be made to relate back so as to affect the status or rights of the officer as they existed before the date of the taking effect of the dismissal. Ibid., par. 1213.

A summary dismissal "by order of the Secretary of War" is in law the act of the President. (e) Ibid., par. 1205.

A department or army commander can have, of course, no authority to summarily dismiss or discharge an officer from the military service. But where, in a case of a regular officer, this authority was in fact exercised, and the President, treating his office as vacant, proceeded to fill the vacancy by a new appointment, held that he had made the dismissal his own act and legalized the same. (f) So where (in 1863) an officer of volunteers was dismissed by the order of an army commander, which was never ratified in terms by the President, but a successor, appointed to the vacancy by the governor of the State, was accepted and mustered in by the United States, held (in 1880) that the dismissal was to be regarded as having been substantially ratified and legalized. So an unauthorized dismissal, by order of a regular officer, may be in effect made operative by a subsequent appointment and confirmation of a successor, as in Blake's case. Ibid., par. 1206.

A summary dismissal of an officer does not properly take effect until the order of dismissal or an official copy of the same is delivered to him, or he is otherwise officially notified of the fact of the dismissal. Ibid., par. 1204.

Held that it could not affect the operation of an order summarily dismissing an officer as "second lieutenant" that, before its being communicated to him by being promulgated to the regiment, he had become by promotion a first lieutenant. Ibid., par. 1211.

A dismissal of an officer by Executive order does not operate to disqualify him for reappointment to military office, or for appointment to civil office under the United States. Ibid., par. 1212.

There can be no revocation of a duly executed order of dismissal, however unmerited or injudicious the original act may be deemed to have been. For, distinct as dismissal by order is, in its nature, from dismissal by sentence (see section 1, ante), the effect of the proceeding in divesting the office is the same in each case. An officer dismissed by an order, though his dismissal may have involved no disgrace, is assimilated to an officer dismissed by sentence in so far that he is completely relegated

ART. 100. When an officer is dismissed from the service for cowardice or fraud the sentence shall further direct that the crime, punishment, name, and place of abode of the delinquent shall be published in the newspapers in and about the camp, and in the State from which the offender came or where he usually resides; and after such publication it shall be scandalous for an officer to associate with him.¹

to a civil status, having in law no nearer or other relation to the military service than has any civilian who has never been in the Army. Thus an order assuming to revoke a legal order of dismissal is as unauthorized as it is ineffectual. The original dismissal is an act done which can not be undone, and the order, which is the evidence of it, is therefore incapable of revocation or recall. (a) Nor can that be effected indirectly which can not legally be done directly. An officer dismissed by Executive order can not be relieved by being allowed to resign or be retired, or by being granted an honorable discharge. For, in order to be discharged, etc., from the Army, he must first be in the Army, and there is but one mode by which an officer once legally separated from the Army can be put into it, viz, by a new appointment according to the Constitution. (b) Ibid., par. 1214.

That a summary dismissal is not revocable by an Executive order is established law. Where an officer duly summarily dismissed in July, 1863, and subsequently restored by an order assuming to revoke the order of dismissal, procured to be passed by Congress in 1890 an act recognizing his restoration as legal, which, however, was vetoed by the President, held that his status was that of a person who had been illegally in the military service since the date of the order of so-called revocation. Ibid., par. 1215.

Where, by the direction of the President, an order was issued canceling the muster-in of a volunteer officer on account of facts indicating that he was not a fit person to hold a commission, held that this was a legal exercise of the authority of summary dismissal for cause vested in the President by the act of July 17, 1862. Ibid., par. 1210.

The President had not the same power of dismissal in the case of a volunteer officer as he has in that of a regular officer. This for the reason that the tenure of office of the former is for a fixed term and for a limited time only; the power to dismiss is thus, in his case, not an incident of the appointing power. (c) But the President was invested with a special power of dismissal of volunteer officers by the act of Congress of July 17, 1862. Ibid., par. 1210.

Held that the ruling in Blake's case (103 U. S. 231) was applicable, and that the office of an army officer might legally be vacated by the appointment and commission of a successor, although between the office of the original officer and that of the successor there may have intervened a tenure by a third officer. Ibid., par. 1207.

Thus (1) Captain A was dismissed from his office without legal authority; (2) Captain B, an unassigned officer, was assigned to the captaincy of A, and held it till his own resignation, one year and three months later; (3) Lieutenant C was then promoted and appointed to the office and his appointment was confirmed. Held that Lieutenant C was the legal incumbent of the office. Ibid., par. 1207.

Held that the ruling of the Supreme Court in the case of Blake was not applicable to volunteer officers of State organizations, and that a governor of a State, who had duly appointed a certain volunteer officer in a regiment, was not empowered to dismiss him by simply appointing to the same office, commissioning, and causing to be mustered into the United States service another person. Ibid., par. 1208.

Held that it was quite evidently the intention of Congress in the act of July 15, 1870, section 12, that the commission held by the officers who remained unassigned on January 1, 1871, should cease on that day. No action on the part of a mustering officer was required to carry the law into effect, as is shown by G. O. 1, of January 2, 1871, in which the separation from the service on January 1 of the unassigned officers was formerly announced. Ibid., par. 1217.

Suspension of
officer's pay.

101 Art. War.

ART. 101. When a court-martial suspends an officer from command,¹ it may also suspend his pay and emoluments for the same time, according to the nature of his offense.²

as referring mainly to the offenses made punishable by articles 42 and 60. With these, however, may be regarded as included all offenses in which fraud or cowardice is necessarily involved, though the same be not expressed in terms in the charge or specifications. Ibid., par. 301. See also In re Carter, 97 Fed. Rep., 496.

Though the injunction of the article as to the direction to be added in the sentence should of course regularly be complied with, a failure so to comply will not affect the validity of the punishment of dismissal adjudged by the sentence. (a) The declaration of the article that after the publication "it shall be scandalous for an officer to associate with" the dismissed officer, though it has in a few cases (b) been incorporated in the sentence, is not intended to be, and should not be, so expressed by the court. Ibid., par. 302.

A suspension from rank does not affect the right of the officer to his office. He retains the same as before, and, as an officer, remains subject as before to military control as well as to the jurisdiction of a court-martial for any military offense committed pending the term of suspension. (c) Ibid., par. 2409.

The effect of a suspension from rank (besides detaching the officer from the performance of the duties incident to his rank) is to deprive him of any right of promotion to a vacancy in a higher grade, occurring pending the term of suspension, and which he would have been entitled to receive by virtue of seniority had he not been suspended, such right accruing to the officer next in rank. But no such loss of promotion is incident to a mere suspension from command. Ibid., par. 2410.

Suspension from rank does not, however, deprive the officer of the right to rise in files in his grade—upon the promotion, for example, of the senior officer of such grade. The number of an officer in the list of his grade is not an incident of his rank, but of his appointment to office as conferred and dated, and, as we have seen, suspension does not affect the office. Moreover, loss of files is a continuing punishment, and if held to be involved in suspension from rank, the result would be that, for an indefinite period after the term of suspension had expired, the officer would remain under punishment, the sentence imposed by the court being thus added to in execution, contrary to a well-known principle of military law. Ibid., par. 2411.

It is further the effect of a suspension from rank that the officer loses for the time the minor rights and privileges of priority and precedence annexed to rank or command. Among these is the right to select quarters relatively to other officers. And where quarters are to be selected by several officers, one of whom is under sentence of suspension from rank, the suspended officer necessarily has the last choice. Or rather he has no choice, but quarters are assigned him by the commander; for, being still an officer of the Army, though without rank, he is entitled to some quarters. But advised that an officer sentenced to be suspended from rank could not, because of such suspension alone, be deprived of quarters previously duly selected, and occupied at the time of the suspension, such a sentence not affecting a right previously accrued and vested. Ibid., par. 2412.

Suspension from rank does not involve a status of confinement or arrest. In sentencing an officer to be suspended from rank, it is, indeed, not unusual for the court to require that he be confined during the term of suspension to his proper station, or that of his regiment, etc., i. e., that the sentence be executed there. Where this is not done, while the suspended officer is not entitled to a leave of absence, it can not affect the execution of his sentence to grant him one, and leaves of absence are not infrequently granted under such circumstances. Ibid., par. 2414.

Suspension from rank or command does not involve a loss or authorize a stoppage of pay for the period of suspension. (d) Pay can not be forfeited by implication. Unless, therefore, the sentence imposes a suspension from rank (or command) "and pay," or in terms to that effect, the suspended officer remains as much entitled to his pay as if he had not been suspended at all, and to require him to forfeit any pay would be adding to the punishment and illegal. Ibid., par. 2415.

² Where, however, the suspension is in terms extended by the sentence to pay, the pay is forfeited absolutely, not merely withheld. And all the pay is forfeited, unless otherwise expressly indicated in the sentence. The forfeiture imposed by a sentence of suspension from rank (or command) and pay for a designated term is a forfeiture of the pay of that specific term, the suspension of the rank and that of the pay being coincident. Under such a sentence the officer can not legally be deprived of pay due for a period prior to the suspension. Where an officer was sentenced to suspension from rank and pay for six months, held that his entire pay for those months was absolutely forfeited, notwithstanding that the pay of officers of his grade was increased by statute pending the term. Ibid., par. 2417.

A sentence of suspension from rank and pay does not affect the right of the officer to the allowances which are no part of his pay, (a) as the allowance for rent of quarters, as also the allowance for fuel, or rather right to purchase fuel at reduced rate. Ibid., par. 2418.

The status of an officer under suspension is the same whether such suspension has been imposed directly by sentence or by way of commutation for a more severe punishment. Thus, where a sentence of dismissal was commuted to suspension from rank or half pay for one year, held that the officer, while forfeiting the rights and privileges of rank and command during such term, was yet amenable to trial by court-martial for a military offense committed pending the same. Ibid., par. 2419.

Where an officer, when under a sentence of suspension, is ordered by the commander who approved the sentence, or some higher competent authority, to resume his command or the performance of his regular military duty, such order will, in general, operate as a constructive remission of the punishment and thus terminate the suspension. (b) Ibid., par. 2420.

A sentence, "to be suspended from the Military Academy," in a case of a cadet, practically severs him from the military service as a cadet during the term of the suspension. It is usually added in such a sentence that at the end of such term the party is to join the next lower class. Ibid., par. 2416.

Like dismissal, suspension takes effect upon and from notice of the approval of the sentence officially communicated to the officer, either by the promulgation of the same at his station, or, where he is absent therefrom by authority, by the delivery to him of a copy of the order of approval or other form of official personal notification of the fact of the approval. Ibid., par. 2423.

Suspension, as a punishment for a noncommissioned officer, is not authorized in terms in article 101, nor is it contemplated in the Army Regulations. It has been adjudged in but rare cases, (c) and can not be regarded as sanctioned by principle or usage. Ibid., 733, par 15.

Suspension not divesting the officer of his office or commission, but simply holding in abeyance the rights and functions attached to his rank or command, he properly reverts, when the term of the punishment is completed, to his former rank and the command attached thereto, and continues to hold and exercise the same as before his arrest of trial. Ibid., 733, par 16.

Under existing usage (1892) an officer suspended by sentence from rank and command is deemed entitled to retain his quarters. But such rule may, in some cases, work a considerable inconvenience as well as prejudice to discipline, as where, for example, the suspended officer is a post commander, and continues, pending the term of his suspension, and while another officer has succeeded him as commander, to occupy the proper commanding officer's quarters. An army regulation prescribing that an officer in such a status shall not be entitled to retain or to select quarters by virtue of rank, but shall have assigned him any quarters that are available at his late station or elsewhere, advised as desirable to be adopted. Ibid., par 2413.

Under the ruling of the Secretary of War, as published in circular No. 3 (A. G. O.), 1888, an officer under suspension, but not required by his sentence to be "confined to the limits of his post," is not entitled to forage for his horse or horses during the term of his suspension. Ibid., par. 2424.

¹ The Constitution (Article V of the amendments) declares that "no person shall be subjected, for the same offense, to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb." The United States courts, in treating the term "put in jeopardy" as meaning practically tried, hold that the "jeopardy" indicated "can be interpreted to mean nothing short of the acquittal or conviction of the prisoner and the judgment of the court thereon." (d) So, held that the term "tried," employed in this article, meant duly time of prosecution.

103 Art. War.

ART. 103. No person shall be liable to be tried and punished by a general court-martial for any offense which appears to have been committed more than two years before the issuing of the order for such trial, unless, by prosecuted, before a court-martial, to a final conviction or acquittal; and, therefore, that an officer or soldier, after having been duly convicted or acquitted by such a court, could not be subjected to a second military trial for the same offense except by and upon his own waiver and consent. For, that the accused may waive objection to a second trial was held by Attorney-General Wirt in 1818, (a) and has since been regarded as settled law. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 303.

Where an officer or soldier has been duly acquitted or convicted of a specific offense he can not, against his consent, be brought to trial for a minor offense included therein, and an acquittal or conviction of which was necessarily involved in the finding upon the original charge. Thus, a party convicted or acquitted of a desertion can not afterwards be brought to trial for an absence without leave committed in and by the same act. Ibid., par. 304.

Held that there was no "second" trial, in the sense of the article, in the following cases, viz: Where the party, after being arraigned or tried before a court which was illegally constituted or composed, or was without jurisdiction, was again brought to trial before a competent tribunal; where the accused, having been arraigned upon and having pleaded to certain charges, was rearraigned upon a new set of charges substituted for the others, which were withdrawn; where one of several distinct charges upon which the accused had been arraigned was withdrawn pending the trial, and the accused, after a trial and finding by the court upon the other charges, was brought to trial anew upon the charge thus withdrawn; where, after proceedings commenced, but discontinued without a finding, the accused was brought to trial anew upon the same charge; where, after having been acquitted or convicted upon a certain charge which did not in fact state the real offense committed, the accused was brought to trial for the same act, but upon a charge setting forth the true offense; where the accused was brought to trial after having had his case fully investigated by a different court, which, however, failed to agree in a finding and was consequently dissolved; (b) where the first court was dissolved because reduced below five members by the casualties of the service pending the trial; where, for any cause, there was a "mistrial," or the trial first entered upon was terminated, or the court dissolved, at any stage of the proceedings before a final acquittal or conviction. Ibid., par. 305.

Where an officer or soldier, having been acquitted or convicted of a criminal offense by a civil court, is brought to trial by a court-martial for a military offense involved in his criminal act, he can not plead "a former trial," in the sense of this article. So, where the trial for the military offense has preceded, he can not plead autrefois acquit or convict to an indictment for the civil crime committed in and by the same act. (c) Ibid., par. 306.

Where the accused has been once duly convicted or acquitted, he has been "tried" in the sense of the article, and can not be tried again against his will, though no action whatever be taken upon the proceedings by the reviewing authority, or though the proceedings, findings (and sentence, if any), be wholly disapproved by him. (d) It is immaterial whether the former conviction or acquittal is approved or disapproved. Ibid., par. 307.

That an accused has been, in the opinion of the reviewing authority, inadequately sentenced, either by a general or an inferior court, can not except his case from the application of this article; though insufficiently punished, he can not be tried again for the same offense. Ibid., par. 308.

Where an officer, who had killed a superior officer in an altercation at a military post, was brought to trial before a civil court on a charge of murder and acquitted, and was subsequently arraigned before a court-martial for the offense against military discipline involved in his criminal act, held that a plea of former trial interposed by him was properly overruled by the court. Ibid., par. 309.

A soldier was convicted of "manslaughter," but the findings and sentence were disapproved. He was then brought to trial on a charge of mutiny, as committed on the occasion of the homicide, the latter being alluded to in the specification as an incidental circumstance of aggravation, and was found guilty and sentenced. Held that the accused was not, in the sense of this article, "tried a second time for the reason of having absented himself, or of some other manifest impediment, he shall not have been amenable to justice within that period.¹

No person shall be tried or punished by a court-martial ^{Limitation in} for desertion in time of peace and not in the face of an _{desertion, etc.}

same offense," the mutiny not consisting in the act of homicide, but constituting a distinct offense. Ibid., par. 310.

There can not, in view of this article, be a second trial where the offense is really the same, though it may be charged under a different description and under a different article of war. Thus, where the Government elects to try a soldier under the thirty-second article for "absence without leave," or under the forty-second for "lying out of quarters," and the testimony introduced develops the fact that the offense was desertion, the accused, after an acquittal or conviction, can not legally be brought a second time to trial for the same absence charged as a desertion. Ibid., par., 311.

¹The prohibition of the article relates only to prosecutions before general courts-martial; it does not apply to trials before inferior courts. So courts of inquiry may be convened without regard to the period which has elapsed since the dates of the act or acts to be investigated. Nor does the limitation apply to the hearing of complaints by regimental courts under article 30. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 318; VI Opin. Att. Gen., 239.

In view of this article, it is the duty of the Government to prosecute an offender within a reasonable time after the commission of the offense. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 319.

It has been held, under the original article, that an officer or soldier could not be legally arrested, with a view to trial, where more than two years (in which he was amenable to justice) had elapsed since his offense. Ibid., 123, par. 7.

The limitation is properly matter of defense to be specially pleaded and proved. (a) By pleading guilty the accused is assumed to waive the right to plead the limitation by a special plea in bar. But, under a plea of not guilty, the limitation may be taken advantage of by evidence showing that it has taken effect. Ibid., par. 320.

By the absence referred to in the original article, in the term "unless by reason of having absented himself," is believed to be intended, not necessarily an absence from the United States, but an absence by reason of a "fleeing from justice," analogous to that specified in section 1045, Revised Statutes, which has been held to mean leaving one's home, residence, or known abode within the district, or concealing one's self therein, with intent to avoid detection or punishment for the offense against the United States. (b) Thus held that, in a case other than desertion, it was not essential or the prosecution to be prepared to prove that the accused had been beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the United States in order to save the case from the operation of the limitation. Ibid., par. 321.

A court-martial, in a case of an offense other than desertion, sustained a plea of the statute of limitations in bar of trial for the reason that the judge-advocate could produce no evidence to show that the accused was not within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States during his absence. Held that such showing was not necessary, and that it was sufficient that the absence should be any unauthorized absence from the military service whereby the absentee evades and for the time escapes trial. This construction of the term "absented himself" in the article corresponds to that placed on the words "fleeing from justice," as used in the statutes of the United States to designate those whom the statutes of limitation for the prosecution of crimes do not protect. Ibid., par. 322.

In the case of an enlisted man charged with desertion, the act of desertion having been committed more than ten years prior to the reference of the charges for trial, the accused pleaded the statute of limitations in bar of trial. The court declined to entertain the plea, and, regarding the statement of the accused as an instance of answering "foreign to the purpose," proceeded with the trial as if a plea of not guilty had been entered. As no action was taken by the court upon the plea of the accused, and no testimony taken at the trial with a view to establish his identity, the proceedings, finding, and sentence were disapproved by the Secretary of War. ¹ See the title "The Reviewing Authority" in the chapter entitled MILITARY TRIBUNALS.

² The One hundred and tenth Article of War, originally enacted as section 7 of the act of July 27, 1862 (12 Stat. L., 598), and as amended by the act of July 27, 1892 (27 Stat. L., 278), was repealed by the act of June 18, 1898, which substituted the new summary court for the old summary court, having jurisdiction for the trial of enlisted men for minor offenses committed in time of peace, and for the field officers' court, having similar jurisdiction in time of war.

Where the reviewing officer deems that the proceedings of the court are in any material particular erroneous or ill advised, his proper course in general will be to reconvene the court for the purpose of having the defect corrected, at the same time furnishing it with the grounds of his opinion. Thus, if he regards the sentence inadequate, he should, in reassembling the court for a revision of the same, state the reasons why he considers it to be disproportionate to the amount of criminality involved in the offense. But although he can not compel the court to adopt his views in regard to the supposed defect, he may, in a proper case, express his formal disapprobation of their neglect to do so. Thus where a court-martial, on being reconvened, with a view of giving it an opportunity to modify a sentence manifestly too lenient for the offense found, decided to adhere to the sentence as adjudged, and, on being again reassembled to consider further grounds presented by the reviewing commander for the infliction of a severer penalty, again declined to increase the punishment, held that it was within the authority of the reviewing officer, and would be no more than proper and dignified for him, in taking final action upon the case, to reflect upon the refusal of the court as ill judged and as having the effect to impair the discipline and prejudice the interest of the military service. Ibid., par. 2231.

³ An officer suspending the execution of a sentence for the action of the President under this article should first formally approve the same. Simply to forward the proceedings, stating that the sentence has been suspended, is incomplete and irregular. If the commander disapproves the sentence, he should not, of course, suspend and transmit under this article, since there remains nothing for the President to act upon. Ibid., par. 339.

Where a case is submitted to the President for his action under this article, he may approve or disapprove the sentence in whole or in part, and, if approving, may exercise the power of remission or mitigation. Ibid., par. 340.

SEC. 1343. All persons who, in time of war, or of rebellion against the supreme authority of the United States, shall be found lurking or acting as spies, in or about any of the fortifications, posts, quarters, or encampments of any of the armies of the United States, or elsewhere, shall be triable by a general court-martial, or by a military commission, and shall, on conviction thereof, suffer death.

² This article, in connection with the two preceding articles, provides for the securing of the effects of deceased officers and soldiers, making inventory of the same, and accounting for them to the proper legal representative, etc. These articles have special reference to cases of deaths of military persons while in active service in the field or at remote military posts, and their provisions apply only to such effects as are left by the deceased "in camp or quarters." See articles 125 and 126. An attempt by the commander, etc., to secure effects left elsewhere would not be within the authority here given and might subject the officer to the liability of an administrator; such a proceeding would not therefore be advisable. (a) Upon accounting to the duly qualified legal representative, as directed in the article, the responsibility of the officer is discharged, and it remains for the representative to dispose of the property according to the law applicable to the case. Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 373.

A military employee of the United States service having died in the service, his remains at the request of his relatives, were sent to them on a Mississippi steamboat. Wages being due to the employee at the time of his death, the disbursing officer paid out of these the charges of the transportation and turned over the balance to the man's heirs. Held, in view of the tenor and effect of this article, that the disposition of the funds in this case was erroneous, and that the full wages due (without deduction) should have been accounted for to the "legal representatives" of the deceased. AMELIORATION OF THE CONDITION OF THE WOUNDED IN TIME OF WAR.

*Convention between the United States, Baden, Switzerland, Aug. 22, 1864.
Belgium, Denmark, Spain, France, Hesse, Italy, Netherlands, Portugal, Prussia, Württemberg, Sweden, Greece, Great Britain, Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Turkey, Bavaria, Austria, Russia, Persia, Roumania, Salvador, Montenegro, Servia, Bolivia, Chili, Argentine Republic, Japan and Peru; with additional articles: For the amelioration of the wounded in armies in the field; concluded August 22, 1864; acceded to by the President March 1, 1882; accession concurred in by the Senate March 16, 1882; proclaimed as to the original convention, but with reserve as to the additional articles, July 26, 1882.¹*

¹The President's ratification of the act of accession, as transmitted to Berne and exchanged for the ratifications of the other signatory and adhesory powers, embraces the French text of the convention of August 22, 1864, and the additional articles of October 20, 1868. The French text is therefore, for all international purposes, the standard one.

The several contracting parties to the said convention exchanged the ratifications thereof at Geneva, on the 22d day of June, 1865.

The several states hereinafter named have signified their adherence to the above convention, in virtue of Article IX, on the dates as noted in the following list:

Sweden	December 13, 1864.
Greece	January 5-17, 1865.
Great Britain	February 18, 1865.

Hospitals and ambulances with sick or wounded protected and held inviolate, etc.

ARTICLE I. Ambulances and military hospitals shall be acknowledged to be neutral, and, as such, shall be protected and respected by belligerents so long as any sick or wounded may be therein.

Exception.

Such neutrality shall cease if the ambulances or hospitals should be held by a military force.

Employees, etc., respected as neutrals.

ART. II. Persons employed in hospitals and ambulances, comprising the staff for superintendence, medical service, administration, transport of wounded, as well as chaplains, shall participate in the benefit of neutrality, whilst so employed, and so long as there remain any wounded to bring in or to succor.

Employees, etc., protected by occupying forces.

ART. III. The persons designated in the preceding article may, even after occupation by the enemy, continue to fulfill their duties in the hospital or ambulance which they serve, or may withdraw in order to rejoin the corps to which they belong.

Under such circumstances, when these persons shall cease from their functions, they shall be delivered by the occupying army to the outposts of the enemy.

Employees in hospitals to take away private property only.

ART. IV. As the equipment of military hospitals remains subject to the laws of war, persons attached to such hospitals can not, in withdrawing, carry away any ARTICLE I. Les ambulances et les hôpitaux militaires seront reconnus neutres, et, comme tels, protégés et respectés par les belligérants aussi longtemps qu'il s'y trouvera des malades ou des blessés.

La neutralité cesserait, si ces ambulances ou ces hôpitaux étaient gardés par une force militaire.

ART. II. Le personnel des hôpitaux et des ambulances, comprenant l'intendance, les services de santé, d'administration, de transport des blessés, ainsi que les aumôniers, participera au bénéfice de la neutralité lorsqu'il fonctionnera, et tant qu'il restera des blessés à relever ou à secourir.

ART. III. Les personnes désignées dans l'article précédent pourront, même après l'occupation par l'ennemi, continuer à remplir leurs fonctions dans l'hôpital ou l'ambulance qu'elles desservent, ou se retirer pour rejoindre le corps auquel elles appartiennent.

Dans ces circonstances, lorsque ces personnes cesseront leurs fonctions, elles seront remises aux avant-postes ennemis, par les soins de l'armée occupante.

ART. IV. Le matériel des hôpitaux militaires demeurant soumis aux lois de la guerre, les personnes attachés à ces hôpitaux en pourront, en se retirant, em-

Under the same circumstances an ambulance shall, on the contrary, retain its equipment.

ART. V. Inhabitants of the country who may bring help to the wounded shall be respected, and shall remain free. The generals of the belligerent Powers shall make it their care to inform the inhabitants of the appeal addressed to their humanity, and of the neutrality which will be the consequence of it.

Any wounded man entertained and taken care of in a house shall be considered as a protection thereto. Any inhabitant who shall have entertained wounded men in his house shall be exempted from the quartering of troops, as well as from a part of the contributions of war which may be imposed.

ART. VI. Wounded or sick soldiers shall be entertained and taken care of, to whatever nation they may belong.

Commanders-in-chief shall have the power to deliver immediately to the outposts of the enemy soldiers who have been wounded in an engagement, when circumstances permit this to be done, and with the consent of both parties.

Those who are recognized, after their wounds are porter que les objets qui sont leur propriété particulière.

Dans les mêmes circonstances, au contraire, l'ambulance conservera son matériel.

ART. V. Les habitants du pays qui porteront secours aux blessés seront respectés, et demeureront libres. Les généraux des Puissances belligérantes auront pour mission de prévenir les habitants de l'appel fait à leur humanité, et de la neutralité qui en sera la conséquence.

Persons serving the wounded to remain free.

Tout blessé recueilli et soigné dans une maison y servira de sauvegarde.

Houses where the wounded are cared for to be protected.

L'habitant qui aura recueilli chez lui des blessés sera dispensé du logement des troupes, ainsi que d'une partie des contributions de guerre qui seraient imposées.

Exemptions for care of wounded.

ART. VI. Les militaires blessés ou malades seront recueillis et soignés, à quelque nation qu'ils appartiendront.

Soldiers sick or wounded of any nation to be relieved and cared for.

Les Commandants-en-chef auront la faculté de remettre immédiatement aux avant-postes ennemis, les militaires blessés pendant le combat, lorsque les circonstances le permettront et du consentement des deux partis.

Delivery of wounded, etc.

Seront renvoyés dans leurs pays ceux qui, après guéri-healed, as incapable of serving, shall be sent back to their country.

Conditions of return.

The others may also be sent back, on condition of not again bearing arms during the continuance of the war.

Evacuations, etc., to have absolute neutrality.

Evacuations, together with the persons under whose directions they take place, shall be protected by an absolute neutrality.

Hospital, ambulance, and evacuation flag, etc.

ART. VII. A distinctive and uniform flag shall be adopted for hospitals, ambulances and evacuations. It must, on every occasion, be accompanied by the national flag. An arm-badge (bras-sard) shall also be allowed for individuals neutralized, but the delivery thereof shall be left to military authority.

Arm-badge.

Flag and arm-badge to bear red cross, etc.

The flag and the arm-badge shall bear a red cross on a white ground.

Execution of details of convention.

ART. VIII. The details of execution of the present convention shall be regulated by the commanders-in-chief of belligerent armies, according to the instructions of their respective governments, and in conformity with the general principles laid down in this convention.¹

son, seront reconnus incapables de servir.

Les autres pourront être également renvoyés, à la condition de ne pas reprendre les armes pendant la durée de la guerre.

Les évacuations, avec le personnel qui les dirige, seront couvertes par une neutralité absolue.

ART. VII. Un drapeau distinctif et uniforme sera adopté pour les hôpitaux, les ambulances et les évacuations. Il devra être, en toute circonstance, accompagné du drapeau national. Un brassard sera également admis pour le personnel neutralisé, mais la délivrance en sera laissée à l'autorité militaire.

Le drapeau et le brassard porteront croix rouge sur fond blanc.

ART. VIII. Les détails d'exécution de la présente convention seront réglés par les Commandants en chef des armées belligérantes, d'après les instructions de leurs Gouvernements respectifs, et conformément aux principes généraux énoncés dans cette convention.

¹REGULATIONS.

1. All persons connected with the Medical Department of the Army in the field, or referred to in Article II of the treaty, shall wear habitually during the war, on the left sleeve of the coat, midway between the shoulder and elbow, a brassard or arm badge, consisting of a red cross on a white ground.

2. All hospitals, ambulances, and field stations of the Medical Department will habitually display the Red Cross flag accompanied by the national flag.

3. Permits, in duplicate, for civilians to be present with the Army in the service of the Medical Department may be given by authority of a division commander; one

ART. IX. The high contracting Powers have agreed to communicate the present convention to those Governments which have not found it convenient to send plenipotentiaries to the International Conference at Geneva, with an invitation to accede thereto; the protocol is for that purpose left open.

ART. X. The present convention shall be ratified, and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Berne, in four months, or sooner, if possible.

Proposed extension of provisions of convention to armies on the sea.

The governments of North Germany, Austria, Baden, Bavaria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Great Britain, Italy, the Netherlands, Sweden and Norway, Switzerland, Turkey, and Würtemberg, desiring to extend to armies on the sea the advantages of the Convention concluded at Geneva the 22d of August, 1864, for the amelioration of the condition of wounded soldiers in armies in the field, and to further particularize some of the stipulations of the said Convention, have named for their commissioners:

Rights of employees, etc., in hospitals or ambulances; their release and departure.

ARTICLE I. The persons designated in Article II. of the Convention shall, after the occupation by the enemy, continue to fulfil their duties, according to their wants, to the sick and wounded in the ambulance or the hospital which they serve. When they request to withdraw, the commander of the occupying troops shall fix the time of departure, which he shall only Les Gouvernements de l'Allemagne du Nord, de l'Autriche, Bade, la Bavière, la Belgique, le Danemark, la France, la Grande Bretagne, l'Italie, les Pays-Bas, Suède et Norvège, la Suisse, la Turquie, le Wurtemberg, désirant étendre aux armées de mer les avantages de la Convention conclue à Genève, le 22 août 1864, pour l'amélioration du sort des militaires blessés dans les armées en campagne, et préciser davantage quelques-unes des stipulations de la dite Convention, ont nommé pour leurs Commissaires:

ARTICLE I. Le personnel désigné dans l'article deux de la Convention continuera, après l'occupation par l'ennemi, à donner dans la mesure des besoins, ses soins aux malades et aux blessés de l'ambulance ou de l'hôpital qu'il dessert. Lorsqu'il demandera à se retirer, le commandant des troupes occupantes fixera le moment de ce départ, qu'il ne pourra toutefois be allowed to delay for a short time in case of military necessity.

ART. II. Arrangements will have to be made by the belligerent powers to ensure to the neutralized person, fallen into the hands of the army of the enemy, the entire enjoyment of his salary.

ART. III. Under the conditions provided for in Articles I. and IV. of the Convention, the name "ambulance"¹ applies to field hospitals and other temporary establishments, which follow the troops on the field of battle to receive the sick and wounded.

ART. IV. In conformity with the spirit of Article V. of the Convention, and to the reservations contained in the protocol of 1864, it is explained that for the appointment of the charges relative to the quartering of troops, and of the contributions of war, account only shall be taken in an equitable manner of the charitable zeal displayed by the inhabitants.

ART. V. In addition to Article VI. of the Convention, it is stipulated that, with the reservation of officers whose detention might be important to the fate of arms and within the limits fixed by the second paragraph of that article, the wounded fallen into the hands of the enemy shall be sent back to their country, after they are cured, or sooner if possible, on condition, nevertheless, of not again bearing arms during the continuance of the war.

ART. II. Des dispositions de-^{Salary of neutrals etc., when in enemy's hands.} vront être prises par les Puissances belligérantes pour assurer au personnel neutralisé, tombé entre les mains de l'armée ennemie, la jouissance intégrale de son traitement.

ART. III. Dans les conditions^{Definition of the term "ambulance."} prévues par les articles un et quatre de la Convention, la dénomination d'ambulance s'applique aux hôpitaux de campagne et autres établissements temporaires qui suivent les troupes sur les champs de bataille pour y recevoir des malades et des blessés.

ART. IV. Conformément à l'es-^{Charges for quartering of troops, and contributions, etc.} prit de l'article cinq de la Convention et aux réserves mentionnées au Protocole de 1864, il est expliqué que pour la répartition des charges relatives au logement de troupes et aux contributions de guerre, il ne sera tenu compte que dans la mesure de l'équité du zèle charitable déployé par les habitants.

ART. V. Par extension de l'arti-^{Wounded to be returned to their country on condition of not again bearing arms in the war.} cle six de la Convention, il est stipulé que sous la réserve des officiers dont la possession importerait au sort des armes, et dans les limites fixées par le deuxième paragraphe de cet article, les blessés tombés entre les mains de l'ennemi, lors même qu'ils ne seraient pas reconnus incapables de servir, devront être renvoyés dans leur pays après leur guérison, ou plus tôt si faire se peut, à la condition toutefois de ne pas reprendre les armes pendant la durée de la guerre.

ART. VI. Les embarcations qui, à leurs risques et périls, pendant et après le combat, recueillent ou^{Boats picking up the shipwrecked or wounded, etc.} qui, ayant recueilli des naufragés ou des blessés, les portent à bord convey them on board a neutral or hospital ship, shall enjoy, until the accomplishment of their mission, the character of neutrality, so far as the circumstances of the engagement and the position of the ships engaged will permit.

The appreciation of these circumstances is entrusted to the humanity of all the combatants. The wrecked and wounded thus picked and saved must not serve again during the continuance of the war.

Religious, medical, and hospital staff of a captured vessel declared neutral.

ART. VII. The religious, medical, and hospital staff of any captured vessel are declared neutral, and, on leaving the ship, may remove the articles and surgical instruments which are their private property.

Duties of staff officers, etc.

ART. VIII. The staff designated in the preceding article must continue to fulfil their functions in the captured ship, assisting in the removal of the wounded made by the victorious party; they will then be at liberty to return to their country, in conformity with the second paragraph of the first additional article.

Pay and allowance of staff.

The stipulations of the second additional article are applicable to the pay and allowance of the staff.

Captured hospital ships to remain under martial law, etc.; not to be used for other purposes.

ART. IX. The military hospital ships remain under martial law in all that concerns their stores; they become the property of the captor, but the latter must not divert them from their special appropriation during the continuance of the war.¹

d'un navire soit neutre, soit hospitalier, jouiront jusqu'à l'accomplissement de leur mission de la part de neutralité que les circonstances du combat et la situation des navires en conflit permettront de leur appliquer.

L'appréciation de ces circonstances est confiée à l'humanité de tous les combattants. Les naufragés et les blessés ainsi recueillis et sauvés ne pourront servir pendant la durée de la guerre.

ART. VII. Le personnel religieux, médical et hospitalier de tout bâtiment capturé, est déclaré neutre. Il emporte, en quittant le navire, les objets et les instruments de chirurgie qui sont sa propriété particulière.

ART. VIII. Le personnel désigné dans l'article précédent doit continuer à remplir ses fonctions sur la bâtiment capturé, concourir aux évacuations de blessés faites par le vainqueur, puis il doit être libre de rejoindre son pays, conformément au second paragraphe du premier article additionnel ci-dessus.

Les stipulations du deuxième article additionnel ci-dessus sont applicables au traitement de ce personnel.

ART. IX. Les bâtiments hospitaliers militaires restent soumis aux lois de la guerre, en ce qui concerne leur matériel; ils deviennent la propriété du capteur, mais celui-ci ne pourra les détourner de leur affection spéciale pendant la durée de la guerre.

¹ In the published English text, from which this version of the Additional Articles is taken, the following paragraph (marked in brackets) appears in continuation of Article IX. It is not, however, found in the original French text adopted by the Geneva conference October 20, 1868:

[The vessels not equipped for fighting, which, during peace, the Government shall have officially declared to be intended to serve as floating hospital ships, shall, however, enjoy during the war complete neutrality, both as regards stores, and also as regards their staff, provided their equipment is exclusively appropriated to the special service on which they are employed.]

By an instruction sent to the United States minister at Berne, January 20, 1883, the right is reserved to omit this paragraph from the English text, and to make any other necessary corrections, if at any time hereafter the Additional Articles shall be completed by the exchange of the ratifications hereof between the several signatory and adhering powers.

ART. X. Any merchantman, to whatever nation she may belong, charged exclusively with removal of sick and wounded, is protected by neutrality, but the mere fact, noted on the ship's books, of the vessel having been visited by an enemy's cruiser, renders the sick and wounded incapable of serving during the continuance of the war. The cruiser shall even have the right of putting on board an officer in order to accompany the convoy, and thus verify the good faith of the operation.

If the merchant ship also carries a cargo, her neutrality will still protect it, provided that such cargo is not of a nature to be confiscated by the belligerents.

The belligerents retain the right to interdict neutralized vessels from all communication, and from any course which they may deem prejudicial to the secrecy of their operations. In urgent cases special conventions may be entered into between commanders-in-chief, in order to neutralize temporarily and in a special manner the vessel intended for the removal of the sick and wounded.

ART. XI. Wounded or sick sailors and soldiers, when embarked, to whatever nation they may belong, shall be protected and taken care of by their captors.

Their return to their own country is subject to the provisions of Article VI. of the Convention, and of the additional Article V.

ART. XII. The distinctive flag to be used with the national flag, in order to indicate any vessel or boat which may claim the benefits of neutrality, in virtue of the principles of this Convention, is a white flag with a red cross. The belligerents may exercise in this respect any mode of verification which they may deem necessary.

ART. X. Tout bâtiment de commerce à quelque nation qu'il appartienne, chargé exclusivement de blessés et de malades dont il opère l'évacuation, est couvert par la neutralité; mais le fait seul de la visite, notifié sur le journal du bord, par un croiseur ennemi, rend les blessés et les malades incapable de servir pendant la durée de la guerre. Le croiseur aura même le droit de mettre à bord un commissaire pour accompagner le convoi et vérifier ainsi la bonne foi de l'opération.

Si le bâtiment de commerce contenait en outre un chargement, la neutralité le couvrirait encore pourvu que ce chargement ne fût pas de nature à être confisqué par le belligérant.

Les belligérants conservent le droit d'interdire aux bâtiments neutralisés toute communication et toute direction qu'ils jugeraient nuisibles au secret de leurs opérations. Dans les cas urgents, des conventions particulières pourront être faites entre les commandants-en-chef pour neutraliser momentanément d'une manière spéciale les navires destinés à l'évacuation des blessés et des malades.

ART. XI. Les marins et les militaires embarqués, blessés ou malades, à quelque nation qu'ils appartiennent, seront protégés et soignés par les capteurs.

Leur rapatriement est soumis aux prescriptions de l'article six de la Convention et de l'article cinq additionnel.

ART. XII. Le drapeau distinctif à joindre au pavillon national pour indiquer un navire ou une embarcation quelconque qui réclame le bénéfice de la neutralité, en vertu des principes de cette Convention, est le pavillon blanc à croix rouge. Les belligérants exercent à cet égard toute vérification qu'ils jugent nécessaire.

Merchant vessels performing hospital duty to be treated as neutral; visited by enemy's cruiser rendering sick and wounded incapable of further war service.

Cargo of merchant ship protected; when: proviso.

Right of belligerents.

Wounded or sick sailors and soldiers, when embarked, etc.

Return to native country.

White flag with red cross, etc., used by vessels claiming neutrality.

Military hospitals painted white, etc.

Military hospital ships shall be distinguished by being painted white outside, with green strake.

Les bâtiments hôpitaux militaires seront distingués par une peinture extérieure blanche avec batterie verte.

Hospital ships, etc., and staff to be treated as neutral.

ART. XIII. The hospital ships which are equipped at the expense of the aid societies, recognized by the governments signing this Convention, and which are furnished with a commission emanating from the sovereign, who shall have given express authority for their being fitted out, and with a certificate from the proper naval authority that they have been placed under his control during their fitting out and on their final departure, and that they were then appropriated solely to the purpose of their mission, shall be considered neutral, as well as the whole of their staff. They shall be recognized and protected by the belligerents.

ART. XIII. Les navires hospitaliers, équipés aux frais des sociétés de secours reconnues par les Gouvernements signataires de cette Convention, pourvus de commission émanée du Souverain qui aura donné l'autorisation expresse de leur armement, et d'un document de l'autorité maritime compétente, stipulant qu'ils ont été soumis à son contrôle pendant leur armement et à leur départ final, et qu'ils étaient alors uniquement appropriés au but de leur mission, seront considérés comme neutres ainsi que tout leur personnel. Ils seront respectés et protégés par les belligérants.

Flag sign, etc., of neutrality.

They shall make themselves known by hoisting, together with their national flag, the white flag with a red cross. The distinctive mark of their staff, while performing their duties, shall be an armlet of the same colors. The outer painting of these hospital ships shall be white, with red strake.

Ils se feront reconnaître en hissant avec leur pavillon national, le pavillon blanc à croix rouge. La marque distinctive de leur personnel dans l'exercice de ses fonctions sera un brassard aux mêmes couleurs; leur peinture extérieure sera blanche avec batterie rouge.

Aid and assistance to wounded and wrecked belligerents, without distinction of nationality.

These ships shall bear aid and assistance to the wounded and wrecked belligerents, without distinction of nationality.

Ces navires porteront secours et assistance aux blessés et aux naufragés des belligérants sans distinction de nationalité.

They must take care not to interfere in any way with the movements of the combatants. During and after the battle they must do their duty at their own risk and peril.

Ils ne devront gêner en aucune manière les mouvements des combattants. Pendant et après le combat, ils agiront à leurs risques et périls.

Rights of belligerents to control and visit vessels, etc.

The belligerents shall have the right of controlling and visiting them; they will be at liberty to refuse their assistance, to order them to depart, and to detain them if the exigencies of the case require such a step.

Les belligérants auront sur eux le droit de contrôle et de visite; ils pourront refuser leur concours, leur enjoindre de s'éloigner et les détenir si la gravité des circonstances l'exigeait.

Wounded and wrecked picked up, etc., can not be reclaimed.

The wounded and wrecked picked up by these ships cannot be reclaimed by either of the com-

Les blessés et les naufragés recueillis par ces navires ne pourront être réclamés par aucun des batants, and they will be required not to serve during the continuance of the war.

ART. XIV. In naval wars any strong presumption that either belligerent takes advantage of the benefits of neutrality, with any other view than the interest of the sick and wounded, gives to the other belligerent, until proof to the contrary, the right of suspending the Convention, as regards such belligerent.

Should this presumption become a certainty, notice may be given to such belligerent that the Convention is suspended with regard to him during the whole continuance of the war.

ART. XV. The present act shall be drawn up in a single original copy, which shall be deposited in the Archives of the Swiss Confederation.

An authentic copy of this Act shall be delivered, with an invitation to adhere to it, to each of the signatory Powers of the Convention of the 22d of August, 1864, as well as to those that have successively acceded to it.

In faith whereof, the undersigned commissaries have drawn up the present project of additional articles and have apposed thereunto the seals of their arms.

combattants, et il leur sera imposé de ne pas servir pendant la durée de la guerre.

ART. XIV. Dans les guerres maritimes, toute forte présomption que l'un des belligérants profite du bénéfice de la neutralité dans un autre intérêt que celui des blessés et des malades, permet à l'autre belligérant, jusqu'à preuve du contraire, de suspendre la Convention à son égard.

Si cette présomption devient une certitude, la Convention peut même lui être dénoncée pour toute la durée de la guerre.

ART. XV. Le présent acte sera dressé en un seul exemplaire original qui sera déposé aux archives de la Confédération suisse.

AGREEMENT FOR THE ADAPTATION OF MAR-ITIME WARFARE TO THE RULES OF THE GENEVA CONVENTION OF AUGUST 22, 1864.

ART. I. Military hospital ships—that is, ships constructed or fitted out by States especially and solely with a view to give assistance to the sick, wounded, and shipwrecked, the names of which shall have been communicated to the belligerent powers at the opening or during the continuance of hostilities, and in every case before being placed in service, are to be respected and may not be captured during the continuance of hostilities. These vessels are not assimilated to ships of war in matters pertaining to their sojourn in neutral ports.

ART. II. Hospital ships equipped wholly or in part at the expense of private individuals, or aid societies which have been officially recognized, are equally to be respected and exempted from capture, if the belligerent power to which they are attached has given them an official commission, and has notified their names to the adverse power at the opening of hostilities, or during their progress, but in every case before being placed in service. These ships shall carry a document from competent authority declaring that they have been subjected to its inspection during their equipment and at their final departure.

ART. III. Hospital ships equipped wholly or in part at the expense of private individuals, or societies officially recognized by neutral states, are to be respected and exempted from capture, if the neutral power to which they are subject issues commissions to them, and notifies their names to the belligerent powers at the outbreak of hostilities or during their continuance, but in all cases before being placed in service.

ART. IV. Ships mentioned in Articles I, II, and III shall carry aid and assistance to the sick, wounded, and shipwrecked individuals of the belligerent armies without distinction of nationality. The governments agree not to use these ships for any warlike purpose. These ships shall not embarrass in any manner the movements of the combatants. During and after the combat they shall act at their own risk and hazard. Belligerents shall have the right to visit and inspect them; they may refuse assistance to them, or require them to remove to a distance, or impose upon them a fixed sailing course, and may place a commissioner on board; they may even detain them if circumstances demand it. As far as possible orders given by belligerents to hospital ships shall be entered in their log books.

ART. V. Military hospital ships shall be distinguished by an exterior coloring of white with a green horizontal band of about one meter and a half in width. Ships mentioned in Articles II and III shall be distinguished by an exterior coloring of white with a red horizontal band of about one meter and a half in width. The small boats of the ships just mentioned, as well as the small boats which may be employed in hospital service, shall be distinguished by similar painting. All hospital ships shall be recognized by hoisting with their national flags the red cross emblazoned upon the white flag, as prescribed by the Geneva Convention.

ART. VI. Commercial vessels, yachts, or neutral small boats conveying or receiving sick, wounded, or shipwrecked persons are not liable to capture for engaging in such transport; but they remain liable to capture for any violations of neutrality which they may have committed.

ART. VII. The personnel of the medical and hospital service, including chaplains, of every captured vessel, is inviolable and can not be made prisoners of war. They carry away with them, on quitting the ship, the surgical instruments and appliances which are their personal property. These persons shall continue to perform their functions so long as may be necessary, and they may be withdrawn when the commander in chief deems such withdrawal possible. Belligerents are to secure to such persons who may fall into their hands the full enjoyment of their salaries.

ART. VIII. Persons in the military or naval service, to whatever nation they may belong, who are sick, wounded, or shipwrecked, shall be protected and cared for by their captors.

ART. IX. Sick, wounded, and shipwrecked persons in the service of a belligerent who fall into the hands of the enemy become prisoners of war. It is for the enemy to decide, according to the circumstances of the case, whether it is expedient to hold them, to send them to a port of their own nation, or to a neutral port, or even to a port of the enemy. In the last case the prisoners so returned to their country can not serve during the continuance of the war.

ART. X. Sick, wounded, or shipwrecked persons who are sent to a neutral port, with the consent of the local authority, shall, unless a contrary arrangement be entered into between the neutral state and the belligerents, be subjected to such restraint by the neutral state that it will be impossible for them to again take part in the operations of the war. The expenses of hospital treatment and internment of the sick, wounded, and shipwrecked shall be borne by the state to which they belong.

ART. XI. The rules contained in the foregoing article are obligatory only upon the contracting powers in the event of war between two or more of them. The said rules shall cease to be obligatory from the instant when, in a war between contracting powers, a noncontracting power joins one of the belligerents.

ART. XII. The present Convention shall be ratified with the briefest possible delay. The ratifications shall be deposited at The Hague; a minute shall be prepared, on the deposit of each ratification, of which a properly authenticated copy shall be transmitted, through diplomatic channels, to each of the contracting powers.

ART. XIII. Nonsignatory powers who have accepted the Geneva Convention of August 22, 1864, are permitted to adhere to this Convention. To that end they shall make known their adhesion to the contracting powers by a notification in writing, addressed to the Government of the Netherlands, and, communicated by it to all of the other contracting powers.

ART. XIV. If it should happen that one of the high contracting parties should disavow the present Convention, such disavowal shall not become operative until one year after it shall have been notified, in writing, to the Government of the Netherlands and immediately communicated by the latter to all of the other high contracting powers. This disavowal shall be operative only in respect to the power which shall have given notice of it.

Done at The Hague this 29th day of July, 1899.

THE AMERICAN NATIONAL RED CROSS.

Whereas on the twenty-second of August, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, at Geneva, Switzerland, plenipotentiaries respectively representing Italy, Baden, Belgium, Denmark, Spain, Portugal, France, Prussia, Saxony, and Wurtemberg, and the Federal Council of Switzerland agreed upon ten articles of a treaty or convention for the purpose of mitigating the evils inseparable from war; of suppressing the needless severity and ameliorating the condition of soldiers wounded on the field of battle; and particularly providing, among other things, in effect, that persons employed in hospitals, and in affording relief to the sick and wounded, and supplies for this purpose, shall be deemed neutral and entitled to protection; and that a distinctive and uniform flag shall be adopted for hospitals and ambulances, and convoys of sick and wounded, and an arm badge for individuals neutralized; and

Whereas said treaty has been ratified by all of said nations, and by others subsequently, to the number of forty-three or more, including the United States of America; and

Whereas a permanent organization is an agency needed in every nation to carry out the purposes of said treaty, and especially to secure supplies and to execute the humane objects contemplated by said treaty, with the power to adopt and use the distinctive flag and arm badge specified by said treaty in article seven, on which shall be the sign of the Red Cross, for the purpose of cooperating with the "Comité International de Secours aux Militaires Blessés" (International Committee of Relief for the Wounded in War); and

Whereas, in accordance with the requirements of customs of said international body, such an association, adopting and using said insignia, was formed in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, in July, eighteen hundred and eighty-one, known as "The American National Association of the Red Cross," and reincorporated April seventeenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-three, under the laws of the District of Columbia; and

Whereas it is believed that the importance of the work demands a reincorporation by the Congress of the United States: Now, therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
That Clara Barton, George Kennan, Julian B. Hubbell, of the District of Columbia; Stephen E. Barton, of New York; William R. Day, of Ohio; Brainard H. Warner, Ellen Spencer Mussey, Alvey A. Adey, of the District of Columbia; Joseph Sheldon, of Connecticut; Charles F. Fairchild, William Letchwerth, of New York City; Hilary A. Herbert, of Alabama; Joseph Gardner, Enola Lee Gardner, of Bedford, Indiana; John W. Noble, of Saint Louis, Missouri; Richard Olney, of Boston, Massachusetts; Alexander W. Terrell, of Austin, Texas; Leslie M. Shaw, Benjamin Tillinghast, of Iowa; Abraham C. Kaufman, of Charleston, South Carolina; J. B. Vinet, of New Orleans, Louisiana; George Gray, of Delaware; Redfield Proctor, of Vermont; George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts; Charles A. Russell, of Connecticut; Robert W. Miers, of Indiana; George C. Boldt, William T. Wardwell, of New York; Daniel Hastings, J. Wilkes O'Neill, of Pennsylvania; Thomas F. Walsh, of Colorado; John G. Lemmon, of California; Charles C. Glover, Walter S. Woodward, Elizabeth Kibbey, Mabel T. Boardman, Walter Wyman, Sumner I. Kimball, of the District of Columbia; Edward Lowe, of Michigan; Harriette L. Reed, of Boston, Massachusetts; William H. Sears, of Lawrence, Kansas; John K. Elwell, of Vinland, Kansas; E. R. Ridgely, of Pittsburg, Kansas; James Tanner, John Hitz, S. W. Briggs, Corry Curry, Lizzie W. Calver, Mary A. Logan, Mary L. Barton, S. B. Hege, and Helena H. Mitchell, of Washington, District of Columbia; Emma L. Nichols, of Chillicothe, Ohio; Lenora Halsted, of Saint Louis, Missouri; P. V. DeGraw, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Walter V. Phillips, of Bridgeport, Connecticut, and their associates and successors, are hereby created a body corporate and politic in the District of Columbia.

SEC. 2. That the name of this corporation shall be "The American National Red Cross," and by that name it shall have perpetual succession, with the power to sue and be sued in courts of law and equity within the jurisdiction of the United States; to have and to hold such real and personal estate as shall be convenient and necessary to carry out the purposes of this corporation hereinafter set forth, such real estate to be limited to such quantity as may be necessary for official use or office buildings; to adopt a seal and the same to alter and destroy at pleasure; and to have the right to have and to use, in carrying out its purposes hereinafter designated, as an emblem and badge, a Greek red cross on a white ground, as the same has been described in the treaty of Geneva, August twenty-second, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and adopted by the several nations acceding thereto; to ordain and establish by-laws and regulations not inconsistent with the laws of the United States of America or any State thereof, and generally to do all such acts and things as may be necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this Act and promote the purposes of said organization; and the corporation hereby created is designated as the organization which is authorized to act in matters of relief under said treaty. In accordance with article seven, of the treaty, the delivery of the brassard allowed for individuals neutralized in time of war shall be left to military authority.

SEC. 3. That the purposes of this corporation are and shall be—

First. To furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of armies in time of war, in accordance with the spirit and conditions of the conference of Geneva of October, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, and also of the treaty of the Red Cross, or the treaty of Geneva of August twenty-second, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, to which the United States of America gave its adhesion on March first, eighteen hundred and eighty-two.

Second. And for said purposes to perform all the duties devolved upon a national society by each nation which has acceded to said treaty.

Third. To succeed to all the rights and property which have been hitherto held and to all the duties which have heretofore been performed by the American National Red Cross as a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the United States relating to the District of Columbia, which organization is hereby dissolved.

Fourth. To act in matters of voluntary relief and in accordance with the military and naval authorities as a medium of communication between the people of the United States of America and their armies, and to act in such matters between similar national societies of other governments through the "Comité International de Secours" and the Government and the people and the armies of the United States of America.

Fifth. And to continue and carry on a system of national and international relief in time of peace and apply the same in mitigating the sufferings caused by pestilence, famine, fire, floods, and other great national calamities.

Sixth. And to devise and carry on measures for preventing the same, and generally to promote measures of humanity and the welfare of mankind.

SEC. 4. That from and after the passage of this Act it shall be unlawful for any person within the jurisdiction of the United States to falsely and fraudulently hold himself out as, or represent or pretend himself to be a member of or an agent for the American National Red Cross for the purpose of soliciting, collecting, or receiving money or material; or for any person to wear or display the sign of the red cross, or any insignia colored in imitation thereof, for the fraudulent purpose of inducing the belief that he is a member of or an agent for the American National Red Cross. If any person violates the provisions of this section he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable to a fine of not less than one nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, or both, for each and every offense. The fine so collected shall be paid to the American National Red Cross. The appointment of the chief medical officer shall not be made without the approval in writing of the Secretary of War.

SEC. 5. That the said American National Red Cross shall, on the first day of January of each year, make and transmit to Congress a full, complete, and itemized report of all receipts and expenditures of whatever kind, and of its proceedings during the preceding year, and shall also give such information concerning its transactions and affairs as the Secretary of State may from time to time require, and, in respect of all business and proceedings in which it may be concerned in connection with the War and Navy Departments of the Government, shall make reports to the Secretary of War and to the Secretary of the Navy, respectively.

SEC. 6. That Congress shall have the right to repeal, alter, or amend this Act at any time. Act of June 6, 1900 (31 Stat. L., 277).

THE ARMY REORGANIZATION ACT OF FEBRUARY 2, 1901.

THE ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES, COMPOSITION.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after the approval of this Act the Army of the United States, including the existing organizations, shall consist of fifteen regiments of cavalry, a corps of artillery, thirty regiments of infantry, one Lieutenant-General, six major-generals, fifteen brigadier-generals, an Adjutant-General's Department, an Inspector-General's Department, a Judge-Advocate-General's Department, a Quartermaster's Department, a Subsistence Department, a Medical Department, a Pay Department, a Corps of Engineers, an Ordnance Department, a Signal Corps, the officers of the Record and Pension Office, the chaplains, the officers and enlisted men of the Army on the retired list, the professors, corps of cadets, the army detachments and band at the United States Military Academy, Indian scouts as now authorized by law, and such other officers and enlisted men as may hereinafter be provided for: Provided, That when a vacancy shall occur through death, retirement, or other separation from active service in the office of storekeeper, now provided for by law in the Quartermaster's Department and Ordnance Department, respectively, said office shall cease to exist. Act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 748).

CAVALRY.

That each regiment of cavalry shall consist of one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, three majors, fifteen captains, fifteen first lieutenants, and fifteen second lieutenants; two veterinarians, one sergeant-major, one quartermaster-sergeant, one commissary-sergeant, three squadron sergeants-major, two color-sergeants with rank, pay, and allowances of squadron sergeant-major, one band, and twelve troops organized into three squadrons of four troops each. Of the officers herein provided, the captains and lieutenants not required for duty with the troops shall be available for detail as regimental and squadron staff officers and such other details as may be authorized by law or regulations. Squadron adjutants shall receive one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum and the allowances of first lieutenants; squadron quartermasters and commissaries shall receive one thousand six hundred dollars per annum and the allowances of second lieutenants. Each cavalry band shall be organized as now provided by law. Each troop of cavalry shall consist of one captain, one first lieutenant, one second lieutenant, one first sergeant, one quartermaster-sergeant, six sergeants, six corporals, two cooks, two farriers and blacksmiths, one saddler, one wagoner, two trumpeters, and forty-three privates; the commissioned officers to be assigned from among those hereinbefore authorized: Provided, That the President, in his discretion, may increase the number of corporals in any troop of cavalry to eight, and the number of privates to seventy-six, but the total number of enlisted men authorized for the whole Army shall not at any time be exceeded. Sec. 2, ibid.

THE ARTILLERY CORPS.

That the regimental organization of the artillery arm of the United States Army is hereby discontinued, and that arm is constituted and designated as the Artillery Corps. It shall be organized as hereinafter specified and shall belong to the line of the Army. Sec. 3, ibid.

That the Artillery Corps shall comprise two branches—the coast artillery and the field artillery. The coast artillery is defined as that portion charged with the care and use of the fixed and movable elements of land and coast fortifications, including the submarine mine and torpedo defenses; and the field artillery as that portion accompanying an army in the field, and including field and light artillery proper, horse artillery, siege artillery, mountain artillery, and also machine-gun batteries: Provided, That this shall not be construed to limit the authority of the Secretary of War to order coast artillery to any duty which the public service demands or to prevent the use of machine or other field guns by any other arm of the service under the direction of the Secretary of War. Sec. 4, ibid.

That all officers of artillery shall be placed on one list, in respect to promotion, according to seniority in their several grades, and shall be assigned to coast or to field artillery according to their special aptitude for the respective services. Sec. 5, ibid.

That the Artillery Corps shall consist of a Chief of Artillery, who shall be selected and detailed by the President from the colonels of artillery, to serve on the staff of the general officer commanding the Army, and whose duties shall be prescribed by the Secretary of War; fourteen colonels, one of whom shall be the Chief of Artillery; thirteen lieutenant-colonels, thirty-nine majors, one hundred and ninety-five captains, one hundred and ninety-five first lieutenants, one hundred and ninety-five second lieutenants; and the captains and lieutenants provided for in this section not required for duty with batteries or companies shall be available for duty as staff officers of the various artillery garrisons and such other details as may be authorized by law and regulations; twenty-one sergeants-major, with the rank, pay, and allowances of regimental sergeants-major of infantry; twenty-seven sergeants-major, with the rank, pay, and allowances of battalion sergeants-major of infantry; one electrician sergeant to each coast artillery post having electrical appliances; thirty batteries of field artillery, one hundred and twenty-six batteries of coast artillery, and ten bands organized as now authorized by law for artillery regiments: Provided, That the aggregate number of enlisted men for the artillery, as provided under this Act, shall not exceed eighteen thousand nine hundred and twenty, exclusive of electrician sergeants. Sec. 6, ibid.

Twelve of the veterinarians herein provided for may be assigned to the artillery. Act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 901).

That each company of coast artillery shall be organized as is now prescribed by law for a battery of artillery: Provided, That the enlisted strength of any company may be fixed, under the direction of the Secretary of War, according to the requirements of the service to which it may be assigned: And provided, That first-class gunners shall receive two dollars a month, and second-class gunners one dollar per month in addition to their pay. Sec. 7, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 749).

That each battery of field artillery shall be organized as is now prescribed by law, and the enlisted strength thereof shall be fixed under the direction of the Secretary of War. Sec. 8, ibid.

That the increase herein provided for the artillery shall be made as follows: Not less than twenty per centum before

July first, nineteen hundred and one, and not less than twenty per centum each succeeding twelve months until the total number provided for shall have been attained. All vacancies created or caused by this Act shall be filled by promotion according to seniority in the artillery arm. Second lieutenants of infantry or cavalry may, in the discretion of the President, be transferred to the artillery arm, taking rank therein according to date of commission, and such transfers shall be subject to approval by a board of artillery officers appointed to pass upon the capacity of such officers for artillery service: Provided, That the increase of officers of artillery shall be only in proportion to the increase of men. Sec. 9, ibid.

INFANTRY.

That each regiment of infantry shall consist of one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, three majors, fifteen captains, fifteen first lieutenants, and fifteen second lieutenants; one sergeant-major, one quartermaster-sergeant, one commissary-sergeant, three battalion sergeants-major, two color sergeants, with rank, pay, and allowances of battalion sergeants-major, one band, and twelve companies, organized into three battalions of four companies each. Of the officers herein provided, the captains and lieutenants not required for duty with the companies shall be available for detail as regimental and battalion staff officers and such other details as may be authorized by law or regulations. Battalion adjutants shall receive one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum and the allowances of first lieutenants, mounted; battalion quartermasters and commissaries shall receive one thousand six hundred dollars per annum and the allowances of second lieutenants, mounted. Each infantry band shall be organized as now provided by law. Each infantry company shall consist of one captain, one first lieutenant, one second lieutenant, one first sergeant, one quartermaster-sergeant, four sergeants, six corporals, two cooks, two musicians, one artificer, and forty-eight privates, the commissioned officers to be assigned from those hereinbefore authorized: Provided, That the President, in his discretion, may increase the number of sergeants in any company of infantry to six, the number of corporals to ten, and the number of privates to one hundred and twenty-seven, but the total number of enlisted men authorized for the whole Army shall not, at any time, be exceeded. Sec. 10, ibid.

ENGINEER TROOPS.

That the enlisted force of the Corps of Engineers shall consist of one band and three battalions of engineers. The engineers' band shall be organized as now provided by law for bands of infantry regiments. Each battalion of engineers shall consist of one sergeant-major, one quartermaster-sergeant, and four companies. Each company of engineers shall consist of one first sergeant, one quartermaster-sergeant, with the rank, pay, and allowances of sergeant, eight sergeants, ten corporals, two musicians, two cooks, thirty-eight first-class and thirty-eight second-class privates: Provided, That the President may, in his discretion, increase the number of sergeants in any company of engineers to twelve, the number of corporals to eighteen, the number of first-class privates to sixty-four, and the number of second-class privates to sixty-four, but the total number of enlisted men authorized for the whole Army shall not, at any time, be exceeded: And provided, That officers detailed from the Corps of Engineers to serve as battalion adjutants and battalion quartermasters and commissaries shall, while so serving, receive the pay and allowances herein authorized for battalion staff officers of infantry regiments. Sec. 11, ibid.

CHAPLAINS.

That the President is authorized to appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, chaplains in the Army, at the rate of one for each regiment of cavalry and infantry in the United States service and twelve for the corps of artillery, with the rank, pay, and allowances of captains of infantry: Provided, That no person shall be appointed a chaplain in the Regular Army who shall have passed the age of forty years, nor until he shall have established his fitness as required by existing law: And provided, That the office of post chaplain is abolished, and the officers now holding commissions as chaplains, or who may hereafter be appointed chaplains, shall be assigned to regiments or to corps of artillery. Chaplains may be assigned to such stations as the Secretary of War shall direct, and they may be transferred, as chaplains, from one branch of the service or from one regiment to another by the Secretary of War, without further commission. When serving in the field, chaplains shall be furnished with necessary means of transportation by the Quartermaster's Department. Sec. 12, ibid.

THE ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

That the Adjutant-General's Department shall consist of one Adjutant-General with the rank of major-general, and when a vacancy shall occur in the office of Adjutant-General on the expiration of the service of the present incumbent, by retirement or otherwise, the Adjutant-General shall thereafter have the rank and pay of a brigadier-general, five assistant adjutants-general with the rank of colonel, seven assistant adjutants-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and fifteen assistant adjutants-general with the rank of major: Provided, That all vacancies created or caused by this section shall, as far as possible, be filled by promotion according to seniority of officers of the Adjutant-General's Department. Sec. 13, ibid.

THE INSPECTOR-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

That the Inspector-General's Department shall consist of one Inspector-General with the rank of brigadier-general, four inspectors-general with the rank of colonel, four inspectors-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and eight inspectors-general with the rank of major: Provided, That all vacancies created or caused by this section shall be filled, as far as possible, by promotion according to seniority of officers of the Inspector-General's Department. Sec. 14, ibid.

Upon the occurrence of a vacancy in the grade of colonel in the Inspector-General's Department after the present lieutenant-colonels therein shall have been promoted or retired, such vacancy shall not be filled, and thereafter the number of officers authorized for that department shall be as follows: One inspector-general with the rank of brigadier-general; three inspectors-general with the rank of colonel; four inspectors-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and nine inspectors-general with the rank of major. Act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 899).

THE JUDGE-ADVOCATE-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT.

That the Judge-Advocate-General's Department shall consist of one Judge-Advocate-General with the rank of brigadier-general, two judge-advocates with the rank of colonel, three judge-advocates with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, six judge-advocates with the rank of major, and for each geographical department or tactical division of troops not provided with a judge-advocate from the list of officers holding permanent commissions in the Judge-Advocate-General's Department one acting judge-advocate with the rank, pay, and allowances of captain, mounted. Promotions to vacancies above the grade of major, created or caused by this Act, shall be made, according to seniority, from officers now holding commission in the Judge-Advocate-General's Department. Vacancies created or caused by this Act in the grade of major may be filled by appointment of officers holding commissions as judge-advocate of volunteers since April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight. Vacancies which may occur thereafter in the grade of major in the Judge-Advocate-General's Department shall be filled by the appointment of officers of the line, or of persons who have satisfactorily served as judge-advocates of volunteers since April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, or of persons from civil life who at date of appointment are not over thirty-five years of age and who shall pass a satisfactory examination to be prescribed by the Secretary of War.

Acting judge-advocates provided for herein shall be detailed from officers of the grades of captain or first lieutenant of the line of the Army who while so serving shall continue to hold their commissions in the arm of the service to which they permanently belong. Upon completion of a tour of duty not exceeding four years they shall be returned to the arm in which commissioned, and shall not be again detailed until they shall have completed two years' duty with the arm of the service in which commissioned. Sec. 15, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 751).

THE QUARTERMASTER'S DEPARTMENT.

That the Quartermaster's Department shall consist of one Quartermaster-General with the rank of brigadier-general, six assistant quartermasters-general with the rank of colonel, nine deputy quartermasters-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, twenty quartermasters with the rank of major, sixty quartermasters with the rank of captain, mounted; the military storekeeper now provided for by law, and one hundred and fifty post quartermaster-sergeants: Provided, That all vacancies in the grade of colonel, lieutenant-colonel, and major created or caused by this section shall be filled by promotion according to seniority, as now prescribed by law. That to fill original vacancies in the grade of captain created by this Act in the Quartermaster's Department the President is authorized to appoint officers of volunteers commissioned in the Quartermaster's Department since April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight: Provided further, That the President is authorized to continue in service, during the present emergency, for duty in the Philippine Islands and on transports, twenty-four captains and assistant quartermasters of volunteers. This authority shall extend only for the period when their services shall be absolutely necessary. Sec. 16, ibid.

THE SUBSISTENCE DEPARTMENT.

That the Subsistence Department shall consist of one Commissary-General with the rank of brigadier-general, three assistant commissaries-general with the rank of colonel, four deputy commissaries-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, nine commissaries with the rank of major, twenty-seven commissaries with the rank of captain, mounted, and the number of commissary-sergeants now authorized by law, who shall hereafter be known as post commissary-sergeants: Provided, That all vacancies in the grades of colonel, lieutenant-colonel, and major, created or caused by this section, shall be filled by promotion, according to seniority, as now prescribed by law. That to fill original vacancies in the grade of captain, created by this Act, in the Subsistence Department, the President is authorized to appoint officers of volunteers commissioned in the Subsistence Department since April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight. Sec. 17, ibid.

THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

That the Medical Department shall consist of one Surgeon-General with the rank of brigadier-general, eight assistant surgeons-general with the rank of colonel, twelve deputy surgeons-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, sixty surgeons with the rank of major, two hundred and forty assistant surgeons with the rank of captain or first lieutenant. the Hospital Corps, as now authorized by law, and the Nurse Corps: Provided, That all vacancies in the grades of colonel, lieutenant-colonel, and major created or caused by this section shall be filled by promotion according to seniority, subject to the examination now prescribed by law: And provided, That the period during which any assistant surgeon shall have served as a surgeon or assistant surgeon in the Volunteer Army during the war with Spain or since shall be counted as a portion of the five years' service required to entitle him to rank of captain: And provided also, That nothing in this section shall affect the relative rank for promotion of any assistant surgeon now in the service, or who may be hereafter appointed therein, as determined by the date of his appointment or commission and as fixed in accordance with existing law and regulations: Provided further, That in emergencies the Surgeon-General of the Army, with the approval of the Secretary of War, may appoint as many contract surgeons as may be necessary, at a compensation not to exceed one hundred and fifty dollars per month. That on or after the passage of this Act the President may appoint for duty in the Philippine Islands, fifty surgeons of volunteers with the rank and pay of major, and one hundred and fifty assistant surgeons of volunteers with the rank and pay of captain, mounted, for a period of two years: Provided, That so many of these volunteer medical officers as are not required shall be honorably discharged the service whenever in the opinion of the Secretary of War their services are no longer necessary: Provided further, That assistant surgeons in the Volunteer Army of the United States commissioned by the President as captains, in accordance with the provisions of an Act for increasing the efficiency of the Army of the United States, and for other purposes, approved March second, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, shall be entitled to the pay of a captain, mounted, from the date of their acceptance of such commission, as prescribed by law: Provided, That the Surgeon-General of the Army, with the approval of the Secretary of War, be, and he is hereby, authorized to employ dental surgeons to serve the officers and enlisted men of the Regular and Volunteer Army, in the proportion of not to exceed one for every one thousand of said Army, and not exceeding thirty in all. Said dental surgeons shall be employed as contract dental surgeons under the terms and conditions applicable to army contract surgeons, and shall be graduates of standard medical or dental colleges, trained in the several branches of dentistry, of good moral and professional character, and shall pass a satisfactory professional examination:

Provided, That three of the number of dental surgeons to be employed shall be first appointed by the Surgeon-General, with the approval of the Secretary of War, with reference to their fitness for assignment, under the direction of the Surgeon-General, to the special service of conducting the examinations and supervising the operations of the others; and for such special service an extra compensation of sixty dollars a month will be allowed: Provided further, That dental college graduates now employed in the Hospital Corps who have been detailed for a period of not less than twelve months to render dental service to the Army and who are shown by the reports of their superior officers to have rendered such service satisfactorily may be appointed contract dental surgeons without examination: Provided, That the Secretary of War be authorized to appoint in the Hospital Corps, in addition to the two hundred hospital stewards now allowed by law, one hundred hospital stewards: Provided, That men who have served as hospital stewards of volunteer regiments or acted in that capacity during and since the Spanish-American war for more than six months may be appointed hospital stewards in the Regular Army: And provided further, That all men so appointed shall be of good moral character and shall have passed a satisfactory mental and physical examination. Sec. 18, ibid.

THE NURSE CORPS (FEMALE).

That the Nurse Corps (female) shall consist of one Superintendent, to be appointed by the Secretary of War, who shall be a graduate of a hospital training school having a course of instruction of not less than two years, whose term of office may be terminated at his discretion, whose compensation shall be one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum, and of as many chief nurses, nurses, and reserve nurses as may be needed. Reserve nurses may be assigned to active duty when the emergency of the service demands, but shall receive no compensation except when on such duty: Provided, That all nurses in the Nurse Corps shall be appointed or removed by the Surgeon-General, with the approval of the Secretary of War; that they shall be graduates of hospital training schools, and shall have passed a satisfactory professional, moral, mental, and physical examination: And provided, That the Superintendent and nurses shall receive transportation and necessary expenses when traveling under orders; that the pay and allowances of nurses, and of reserve nurses, when on active service, shall be forty dollars per month when on duty in the United States and fifty dollars per month when without the limits of the United States. They shall be entitled to quarters, subsistence, and medical attendance during illness, and they may be granted leaves of absence for thirty days, with pay, for each calendar year; and, when serving as chief nurses, their pay may be increased by authority of the Secretary of War, such increase not to exceed twenty-five dollars per month. Payments to the Nurse Corps shall be made by the Pay Department. Sec. 19, ibid.

That the grade of veterinarian of the second class in cavalry regiments, United States Army, is hereby abolished, and hereafter the two veterinarians authorized for each cavalry regiment and the one veterinarian authorized for each artillery regiment¹ shall receive the pay and allowances of second lieutenants, mounted. Such number of veterinarians as the Secretary of War may authorize shall be employed to attend animals pertaining to the quartermaster's or other departments not directly connected with the cavalry and artillery regiments, at a compensation not exceeding one hundred dollars per month. Sec. 20, ibid.

THE PAY DEPARTMENT.

That the Pay Department shall consist of one Paymaster-General with the rank of brigadier-general, three assistant paymasters-general with the rank of colonel, four deputy paymasters-general with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, twenty paymasters with the rank of major, and twenty-five paymasters with the rank of captain, mounted: Provided, That all vacancies in the grade of colonel and lieutenant-colonel created or caused by this section shall be filled by promotion according to seniority, as now prescribed by law, and no more appointments to the grade of major and paymaster shall be made until the number of majors and paymasters is reduced below twenty: And provided, That persons who have served in the Volunteer Army since April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, as additional paymasters may be appointed to positions in the grade of captain, created by this section.

¹ Replaced by a provision of the act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 901), which authorizes twelve veterinarians for the Artillery Corps.

So long as there remain surplus majors an equal number of vacancies shall be held in the grade of captain, so that the total number of paymasters authorized by this section shall not be exceeded at any time. Sec. 21, ibid.

THE CORPS OF ENGINEERS.

That the Corps of Engineers shall consist of one Chief of Engineers with the rank of brigadier-general, seven colonels, fourteen lieutenant-colonels, twenty-eight majors, forty captains, forty first lieutenants, and thirty second lieutenants. The enlisted force provided in section eleven of this Act and the officers serving therewith shall constitute a part of the line of the Army: Provided, That the Chief of Engineers shall be selected as now provided by law, and hereafter vacancies in the Corps of Engineers in all other grades above that of second lieutenant shall be filled, as far as possible, by promotion according to seniority from the Corps of Engineers: And provided also, That vacancies remaining in the grades of first and second lieutenant may be filled by transfer of officers of the Regular Army, subject to such professional examination as may be approved by the Secretary of War. Vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant not filled by transfer shall be left for future promotions from the corps of cadets at the United States Military Academy. Sec. 22, ibid.

THE ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT.

That the Ordnance Department shall consist of one Chief of Ordnance with the rank of brigadier-general, four colonels, six lieutenant-colonels, twelve majors, twenty-four captains, and twenty-four first lieutenants, the ordnance storekeeper, and the enlisted men, including ordnance sergeants, as now authorized by law. All vacancies created or caused by this section shall, as far as possible, be filled by promotion according to seniority as now prescribed by law. Sec. 23, ibid.

THE SIGNAL CORPS.

That the Signal Corps shall consist of one Chief Signal Officer with the rank of brigadier-general, one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, four majors, fourteen captains, fourteen first lieutenants, eighty first-class sergeants, one hundred and twenty sergeants, one hundred and fifty corporals, two hundred and fifty first-class privates, one hundred and fifty second-class privates, and ten cooks: Provided, That vacancies created or caused by this section shall be filled by promotion of officers of the Signal Corps according to seniority, as now provided by law. Vacancies remaining after such promotions may be filled by appointment of persons who have served in the Volunteer Signal Corps since April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight: Provided, That the President is authorized to continue in service during the present emergency, for duty in the Philippine Islands, five volunteer signal officers with the rank of first lieutenant and five volunteer signal officers with the rank of second lieutenant. This authority shall extend only for the period when their services may be absolutely necessary. Sec. 24, ibid.

THE RECORD AND PENSION OFFICE.

That the officers of the Record and Pension Office of the War Department shall be a chief of said office with the rank of brigadier-general and an assistant chief of said office with the rank of major: Provided, That any person appointed to be Chief of the Record and Pension Office after the passage of this Act shall have the rank of colonel. Sec. 25, ibid.

PROMOTIONS AND DETAILS.

That so long as there remain any officers holding permanent appointments in the Adjutant-General's Department, the Inspector-General's Department, the Quartermaster's Department, the Subsistence Department, the Pay Department, the Ordnance Department, and the Signal Corps, including those appointed to original vacancies in the grades of captain and first lieutenant under the provisions of sections sixteen, seventeen, twenty-one, and twenty-four of this Act, they shall be promoted according to seniority in the several grades, as now provided by law, and nothing herein contained shall be deemed to apply to vacancies which can be filled by such promotions or to the periods for which the officers so promoted shall hold their appointments, and when any vacancy, except that of the chief of the department or corps, shall occur, which can not be filled by promotion as provided in this section, it shall be filled by detail from the line of the Army, and no more permanent appointments shall be made in those departments or corps after the original vacancies created

Department, and in the grade of captain in the Quartermaster's Department, Subsistence Department, and Pay Department may be made from officers of volunteers commissioned since April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, and the age limit prescribed as to chaplains shall not apply to persons who served as chaplains of volunteers after said date who were under forty-two years of age when originally appointed. Act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 900).

That vacancies in the grade of field officers and captain, created by this Act, in the cavalry, artillery, and infantry shall be filled by promotion according to seniority in each branch, respectively. Vacancies existing after the promotions have been made shall be provided for as follows: A sufficient number shall be reserved in the grade of second lieutenant for the next graduating class at the United States Military Academy.

Persons not over forty years of age who shall have at any time served as volunteers subsequent to April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, may be ordered before boards of officers for such examination as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War, and those who establish their fitness before these examining boards may be appointed to the grades of first or second lieutenant in the Regular Army, taking rank in the respective grades according to seniority as determined by length of prior commissioned service; but no person appointed under the provisions of this section shall be placed above another in the same grade with longer commissioned service, and nothing herein contained shall change the relative rank of officers heretofore commissioned in the Regular Army.

Enlisted men of the Regular Army or volunteers may be appointed second lieutenants in the Regular Army to vacancies created by this act, provided that they shall have served one year, under the same conditions now authorized by law for enlisted men of the Regular Army. Sec. 28, act of February 2, 1901 (31 Stat. L., 755).

ENLISTMENTS.

That to fill vacancies occurring from time to time in the several organizations serving without the limits of the United States with trained men, the President is authorized to enlist recruits in numbers equal to four per centum in excess of the total strength authorized for such organizations. Sec. 29, ibid.

That the President is authorized to maintain the enlisted force of the several organizations of the Army at their maximum strength as fixed by this act during the present exigencies of the service, or until such time as Congress may hereafter otherwise direct: Provided, That in the event of the enlistment of a soldier in the Army for the period required by law, and after the expiration of one year of service, should either of his parents die, leaving the other solely dependent upon the soldier for support, such soldier may, upon his own application, be honorably discharged from the service of the United States upon due proof being made of such condition to the Secretary of War. Sec. 30, ibid.

That the Secretary of War is authorized to detach from the Army at large such number of enlisted men as may be necessary to perform duty at the various recruiting stations, and while performing such duty one member of each party shall have the rank, pay, and allowances of sergeant, and one the rank, pay, and allowances of corporal of the arm of the service to which they respectively belong. Sec. 31, ibid.

That when the exigencies of the service of any officer who would be entitled to promotion upon examination require him to remain absent from any place where an examining board could be convened, the President is hereby authorized to promote such officer, subject to examination, and the examination shall take place as soon thereafter as practicable. If upon examination the officer be found disqualified for promotion, he shall, upon the approval of the proceedings by the Secretary of War, be treated in the same manner as if he had been examined prior to promotion. Sec. 32, ibid.

The President of the United States is hereby authorized to select from the brigadier-generals of volunteers two volunteer officers, without regard to age, and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint them brigadier-generals, United States Army, for the purpose of placing them on the retired list.

And the President is also hereby authorized to select from the retired list of the Army an officer not above the rank of brigadier-general who may have distinguished himself during the war with Spain, in command of a separate army, and to appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, the officer so selected to be major-general, United States Army, with the pay and allowances established by law for officers of that grade on the retired list. Sec. 33, ibid.

That all officers who have served during the war with Spain, or since, as officers of the Regular or Volunteer Army of the United States, and have been honorably discharged from the service by resignation or otherwise, shall be entitled to bear the official title, and, upon occasions of ceremony, to wear the uniform of the highest grade they have held by brevet or other commission in the regular or volunteer service. Sec. 34, ibid.

That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to cause preliminary examinations and surveys to be made for the purpose of selecting four sites with a view to the establishment of permanent camp grounds for instruction of troops of the Regular Army and National Guard, with estimates of the cost of the sites and their equipment with all modern appliances, and for this purpose is authorized to detail such officers of the Army as may be necessary to carry on the preliminary work; and the sum of ten thousand dollars is hereby appropriated for the necessary expense of such work, to be disbursed under the direction of the Secretary of War: Provided, That the Secretary of War shall report to Congress the result of such examination and surveys, and no contract for said sites shall be made nor any obligation incurred until Congress shall approve such selections and appropriate the money therefor. Sec. 35, ibid.

That when in his opinion the conditions in the Philippine Islands justify such action the President is authorized to enlist natives of those islands for service in the Army, to be organized as scouts, with such officers as he shall deem necessary for their proper control, or as troops or companies, as authorized by this act, for the Regular Army. The President is further authorized, in his discretion, to form companies, organized as are companies of the Regular Army, in squadrons or battalions, with officers and noncommissioned officers corresponding to similar organizations in the cavalry and infantry arms. The total number of enlisted men in said native organizations shall not exceed twelve thousand, and the total enlisted force of the line of the Army, together with such native force, shall not exceed at any one time one hundred thousand.

The majors to command the squadrons and battalions shall be selected by the President from captains of the line of the Regular Army, and while so serving they shall have the rank, pay, and allowances of the grade of major. The captains of the troops or companies shall be selected by the President from first lieutenants of the line of the Regular Army, and while so serving they shall have the rank, pay, and allowances of captain of the arm to which assigned. The squadron and battalion staff officers, and first and second lieutenants of companies, may be selected from the noncommissioned officers or enlisted men of the Regular Army of not less than two years' service, or from officers or noncommissioned officers or enlisted men serving, or who have served, in the volunteers subsequent to April twenty-first, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, and officers of those grades shall be given provisional appointments for periods of four years each, and no such appointments shall be continued for a second or subsequent term unless the officer's conduct shall have been satisfactory in every respect. The pay and allowances of provisional officers of native organizations shall be those authorized for officers of like grades in the Regular Army. The pay, rations, and clothing allowances to be authorized for the enlisted men shall be fixed by the Secretary of War, and shall not exceed those authorized for the Regular Army.

When, in the opinion of the President, natives of the Philippine Islands shall, by their services and character, show fitness for command, the President is authorized to make provisional appointments to the grades of second and first lieutenants from such natives, who, when so appointed, shall have the pay and allowances to be fixed by the Secretary of War, not exceeding those of corresponding grades of the Regular Army. Sec. 36, ibid.

That the President is authorized to organize and maintain one provisional regiment of not exceeding three battalions of infantry, for service in Porto Rico, the enlisted strength thereof to be composed of natives of that island as far as practicable. The regiment shall be organized as to numbers as authorized for infantry regiments of the Regular Army. The pay, rations, and clothing allowances to be authorized for the enlisted men shall be fixed by the Secretary of War, and shall not exceed those authorized for the Regular Army. The field officers shall be selected from officers of the next lower grades in the Regular Army and shall, while so serving in the higher grade, have the rank, pay, and allowances thereof. The company and regimental and battalion staff officers shall be appointed by the President. The President may, in his discretion, continue with their own consent the volunteer officers and enlisted men of the Porto Rico regiment, whose terms of service expire by law July first, nineteen hundred and one. Enlistments for the Porto Rico regiment shall be made for periods of three years, unless sooner discharged. The regiment shall be continued in service until further directed by Congress. Sec. 37, ibid.

The sale of or dealing in beer, wine or any intoxicating liquors by any person in any post exchange or canteen or army transport or upon any premises used for military purposes by the United States, is hereby prohibited. The Secretary of War is hereby directed to carry the provisions of this section into full force and effect. Sec. 38, ibid.

That nothing in this Act shall be held or construed so as to discharge any officer from the Regular Army or to deprive him of the commission which he now holds therein. Sec. 39, ibid.

That the President be, and he is hereby, authorized to prescribe the kinds and quantities of the component articles of the army ration, and to direct the issue of substitutive equivalent articles in place of any such components whenever, in his opinion, economy and a due regard to the health and comfort of the troops may so require. Sec. 40, ibid.

That the distinctive badges adopted by military societies of men "who served in the armies and navies of the United States during the Spanish-American war and the incident insurrection in the Philippines" may be worn upon all occasions of ceremony by officers and men of the Army and Navy of the United States who are members of said organizations in their own right. Sec. 41, ibid.

That all laws and parts of laws inconsistent with the provisions of this act be, and the same are hereby, repealed. Sec. 42, ibid.

MAXIMUM PUNISHMENT CODE.

GENERAL ORDERS, } HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY,
No. 42. } ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, March 26, 1901.

By direction of the Secretary of War, the following Executive order is published for the information and guidance of all concerned:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, March 12, 1901.

The Executive order, dated March 30, 1898, establishing limits of punishment for enlisted men of the Army, under an act of Congress approved September 27, 1890, and which was published in General Orders, No. 16, 1898, Headquarters of the Army, is amended so as to prescribe as follows:

ARTICLE I.

In all cases of desertion the sentence may include dishonorable discharge¹ and forfeiture of pay and allowances.

Subject to the modifications authorized in section 3 of this article, the limit of the term of confinement (at hard labor) for desertion shall be as follows:

SECTION 1. In case of surrender—

(a) When the deserter surrenders himself after an absence of not more than thirty days, one year.

(b) When the surrender is made after an absence of more than thirty days, eighteen months.

¹In a case where, because of previous convictions, the punishment may, under General Orders, No. 42, of 1901, be dishonorable discharge, the department commander may properly require the charges to be brought to trial before a general court-martial, notwithstanding that, if the alternative punishment of dishonorable discharge be not resorted to, the punishment would be within the power of an inferior court. Dig. Opin., J. A. G., par. 1647.

An offense covered by General Orders, No. 42, of 1901, is cognizable by inferior court-martial whenever the limit prescribed in the order may, by substitution of punishment under the provisions of the order, be brought within the punishing power of inferior courts as defined by the eighty-third Article of War. Ibid., par. 1648.

The term "day" or "days," when used in General Orders, No. 42, of 1901, has reference to a day of twenty-four hours. Ibid., par. 1649.

A sentence of a summary court forfeited one month's pay in a case where, under General Orders, No. 42, of 1901, the maximum legal forfeiture was ten dollars. Held, that the sentence was void as to the forfeiture in excess of the limit, and advised that the amount collected in excess of such limit be refunded to the soldier. Ibid., par. 1650.

It is now held by the War Department that when a sentence of confinement or forfeiture exceeds the prescribed limit, the part within the limit is legal and may be approved and carried into execution. (a) Ibid., par. 1651.

^aSee paragraph 2, Circ. 12, A. G. O., 1892.

SEC. 2. In case of apprehension—

(a) When at the time of desertion the deserter shall not have been more than six months in the service, eighteen months.

(b) When he shall have been more than six months in the service, two and one-half years.

SEC. 3. The foregoing limitations are subject to modifications under the following conditions:

(a) The punishment of a deserter may be increased by one year of confinement at hard labor in consideration of each previous conviction of desertion.

(b) The punishment for desertion when joined in by two or more soldiers in the execution of a conspiracy, or for desertion in the presence of an outbreak of Indians or of any unlawful assemblage which the troops may be opposing, shall not exceed dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances, and confinement at hard labor for five years.

Breach of arrest in quarters.

a In specifications to charges of larceny or embezzlement the value of the property shall be stated.

ARTICLE III.

The introduction and use of evidence of previous convictions is subject to the following regulations:

1. Such evidence shall be limited to previous convictions by courts-martial of an offense or offenses within one year preceding the arraignment and during the current enlistment. These convictions must be proved by the records of previous trials and convictions, or by duly authenticated copies of such records, or by duly authenticated copies of the orders promulgating such trials and convictions. Charges forwarded to the authority competent to order a general court-martial, or submitted to a summary, garrison, or regimental court-martial, must be accompanied by the proper evidence of previous convictions.

2. Whenever a soldier is convicted of an offense for which a discretionary punishment is authorized, the court will receive evidence of previous convictions, if there be any. General, regimental, and garrison courts-martial will, after a finding of guilty, be opened for the purpose of ascertaining whether there is such evidence and, if so, of receiving it.

3. Previous convictions in connection with inferior court offenses.—When a soldier is convicted of an offense the punishment for which under Article II of this order or the custom of the service does not exceed one month's confinement at hard labor and forfeiture of one month's pay, the punishment so authorized may, upon proof of four or less previous convictions within the prescribed period, be increased one-half for each of such previous convictions; provided that upon proof of five or more such previous convictions, the limit of punishment shall be dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances, and confinement at hard labor for three months.

4. Previous convictions in connection with general court-martial offenses.—When the conviction is for an offense punishable under Article II of this order or the custom of the service with a greater punishment than one month's confinement at hard labor and forfeiture of one month's pay, such punishment, if it includes dishonorable discharge, shall not be increased by reason of previous convictions, but evidence thereof, whatever their number within the prescribed period, will be submitted to the court to aid it in determining upon the proper measure of punishment, subject to the limit already authorized.

If the authorized punishment under Article II of this order or the custom of the service exceeds one month's confinement at hard labor and forfeiture of one month's pay and does not include dishonorable discharge such punishment shall not be increased on account of previous convictions if less than five are considered, but if there be five or more, the court may adjudge dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of all pay and allowances with the authorized confinement, and when this confinement is less than three months it may be increased to three months.¹

5. On a conviction of desertion evidence of convictions of previous desertions may also be introduced, irrespective of the period which may have elapsed since such conviction or convictions.

6. When a noncommissioned officer is convicted of an offense not punishable with reduction, he may, upon proof of one previous conviction within the prescribed period, be sentenced to reduction in addition to the punishment already authorized.

7. First-class privates may be reduced to second-class privates in all cases where for like offenses on the part of noncommissioned officers their reduction in grade is now authorized.

ARTICLE IV.

When a soldier shall, on one arraignment, be convicted of two or more offenses, none of which is punishable under Article II of this order or the custom of the service with dishonorable discharge, but the aggregate term of confinement for which may exceed six months, dishonorable discharge with forfeiture of pay and allowances may be awarded in addition to the authorized confinement.²

ARTICLE V.

If, in any case where the limit of punishment is dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances, and confinement at hard labor for a stated number of months, dishonorable discharge be not adjudged, the limit of forfeiture shall be all pay due and to become due during the prescribed limit of confinement.

¹ By the third subdivision of Article III of the Executive Order of March 30, 1898 (G. O. 16, A. G. O., 1898), it is provided that in consideration of previous convictions the limit of punishment shall be "dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances, and confinement at hard labor for three months." Such a sentence means, so far as the forfeiture is concerned, forfeiture of pay and allowances due at the date of the discharge. A court-martial when it has the power to award this sentence may award a lesser one, but in doing so can not award confinement and forfeiture greater in amount than confinement for three months and forfeiture of pay and allowances due, or its equivalent under the rule of substitution authorized in the order. (a) Dig. Opin. J. A. G., par. 1653.

² The term "authorized confinement" as used in Article IV of General Order No. 16 of 1895 (now Article IV, General Order No. 16 of 1898), is not limited to the maximum authorized. Confinement for a period less than the maximum is also authorized confinement. The article means that when the maximum term may be more than six months, dishonorable discharge with forfeiture of pay and allowances may be awarded with whatever confinement, within the prescribed limit, the court may adjudge. Held also that such "authorized confinement" is limited to the specific confinement authorized by Article II, or if not provided for therein, by the custom of the service; that is to say, such confinement may not be increased by substitution of confinement for forfeiture, or on account of previous convictions, the same not being provided for by the terms of Article IV. Ibid., par. 1652.

(a) But see Article V, post.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF ARMIES OF THE UNITED STATES IN THE FIELD.

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 100.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, April 24, 1863.

The following "Instructions for the government of armies of the United States in the field," prepared by Francis Lieber, LL. D., and revised by a board of officers, of which Maj. Gen. E. A. Hitchcock is president, having been approved by the President of the United States, he commands that they be published for the information of all concerned.

By order of the Secretary of War:

E. D. TOWNSEND,
Assistant Adjutant-General.

SECTION I.

MARTIAL LAW—MILITARY JURISDICTION—MILITARY NECESSITY— RETALIATION.

1. A place, district, or country occupied by an enemy stands, in consequence of the occupation, under the martial law of the invading or occupying army, whether any proclamation declaring martial law or any public warning to the inhabitants has been issued or not. Martial law is the immediate and direct effect and consequence of occupation or conquest.

The presence of a hostile army proclaims its martial law.

2. Martial law does not cease during the hostile occupation, except by special proclamation ordered by the commander-in-chief, or by special mention in the treaty of peace concluding the war, when the occupation of a place or territory continues beyond the conclusion of peace as one of the conditions of the same.

3. Martial law in a hostile country consists in the suspension, by the occupying military authority, of the criminal and civil law, and of the domestic administration and government in the occupied place or territory, and in the substitution of military rule and force for the same, as well as in the dictation of general laws, as far as military necessity requires this suspension, substitution, or dictation.

The commander of the forces may proclaim that the administration of all civil and penal law shall continue either wholly or in part, as in times of peace, unless otherwise ordered by the military authority.

4. Martial law is simple military authority exercised in accordance with the laws and usages of war. Military oppression is not martial law; it is the abuse of the power which the law confers. As martial law is executed by military force, it is incumbent upon those who administer it to be strictly guided by the principles of justice, honor, and humanity—virtues adorning a soldier even more than other men, for the very reason that he possesses the power of his arms against the unarmed.

5. Martial law should be less stringent in places and countries fully occupied and fairly conquered. Much greater severity may be exercised in places or regions where actual hostilities exist, or are expected and must be prepared for. Its most complete sway is allowed—even in the commander's own country—when face to face with the enemy, because of the absolute necessities of the case, and of the paramount duty to defend the country against invasion.

To save the country is paramount to all other considerations.

6. All civil and penal law shall continue to take its usual course in the enemy's places and territories under martial law, unless interrupted or stopped by order of the occupying military power; but all the functions of the hostile government—legislative, executive, or administrative—whether of a general, provincial, or local character, cease under martial law, or continue only with the sanction, or, if deemed necessary, the participation of the occupier or invader.

7. Martial law extends to property and to persons, whether they are subjects of the enemy or aliens to that government.

8. Consuls, among Americans and European nations, are not diplomatic agents. Nevertheless, their offices and persons will be subjected to martial law in cases of urgent necessity only; their property and business are not exempted. Any delinquency they commit against the established military rule may be punished as in the case of any other inhabitant, and such punishment furnishes no reasonable ground for international complaint.

9. The functions of ambassadors, ministers, or other diplomatic agents accredited by neutral powers to the hostile government cease, so far as regards the displaced government; but the conquering or occupying power usually recognizes them as temporarily accredited to itself.

10. Martial law affects chiefly the police and collection of public revenue and taxes, whether imposed by the expelled government or by the invader, and refers mainly to the support and efficiency of the army, its safety, and the safety of its operations.

11. The law of war does not only disclaim all cruelty and bad faith concerning engagements concluded with the enemy during the war, but also the breaking of stipulations solemnly contracted by the belligerents in time of peace, and avowedly intended to remain in force in the case of war between the contracting powers.

It disclaims all extortions and other transactions for individual gain; all acts of private revenge, or connivance at such acts.

Offenses to the contrary shall be severely punished, and especially so if committed by officers.

12. Whenever feasible, martial law is carried out in cases of individual offenders by military courts; but sentences of death shall be executed only with the approval of the Chief Executive, provided the urgency of the case does not require a speedier execution, and then only with the approval of the chief commander.

13. Military jurisdiction is of two kinds: First, that which is conferred and defined by statute; second, that which is derived from the common law of war. Military offenses under the statute law must be tried in the manner therein directed; but military offenses which do not come within the statute must be tried and punished under the common law of war. The character of the courts which exercise these jurisdictions depends upon the local laws of each particular country.

In the armies of the United States the first is exercised by courts-martial, while cases which do not come within the Rules and Articles of War, or the jurisdiction conferred by statute or courts-martial, are tried by military commissions.

14. Military necessity, as understood by modern civilized nations, consists in the necessity of those measures which are indispensable for securing the ends of the war, and which are lawful according to the modern law and usages of war.

15. Military necessity admits of all direct destruction of life or limb of armed enemies, and of other persons whose destruction is incidentally unavoidable in the armed contests of the war; it allows of the capturing of every armed enemy and every enemy of importance to the hostile government or of peculiar danger to the captor; it allows of all destruction of property and obstruction of the ways and channels of traffic, travel, or communication, and of all withholding of sustenance or means of life from the enemy; of the appropriation of whatever an enemy's country affords necessary for the subsistence and safety of the army, and of such deception as does not involve the breaking of good faith, either positively pledged, regarding agreements entered into during the war, or supposed by the modern law of war to exist. Men who take up arms against one another in public war do not cease on this account to be moral beings, responsible to one another and to God.

16. Military necessity does not admit of cruelty—that is, the infliction of suffering for the sake of suffering or for revenge, nor of maiming or wounding except in fight, nor of torture to extort confessions. It does not admit of the use of poison in any way, nor of the wanton devastation of a district. It admits of deception, but disclaims acts of perfidy; and, in general, military necessity does not include any act of hostility which makes the return to peace unnecessarily difficult.

17. War is not carried on by arms alone. It is lawful to starve the hostile belligerent, armed or unarmed, so that it leads to the speedier subjection of the enemy.

18. When a commander of a besieged place expels the noncombatants, in order to lessen the number of those who consume his stock of provisions, it is lawful, though an extreme measure, to drive them back, so as to hasten on the surrender.

19. Commanders, whenever admissible, inform the enemy of their intention to bombard a place, so that the noncombatants, and especially the women and children, may be removed before the bombardment commences. But it is no infraction of the common law of war to omit thus to inform the enemy. Surprise may be a necessity.

20. Public war is a state of armed hostility between sovereign nations or governments. It is a law and requisite of civilized existence that men live in political, continuous societies, forming organized units, called states or nations, whose constituents bear, enjoy, and suffer, advance and retrograde together in peace and in war.

21. The citizen or native of a hostile country is thus an enemy, as one of the constituents of the hostile state or nation, and as such is subjected to the hardships of the war.

22. Nevertheless, as civilization has advanced during the last centuries, so has likewise steadily advanced, especially in war on land, the distinction between the private individual belonging to a hostile country and the hostile country itself, with its men in arms. The principle has been more and more acknowledged that the unarmed citizen is to be spared in person, property, and honor as much as the exigencies of war will admit.

23. Private citizens are no longer murdered, enslaved, or carried off to distant parts, and the inoffensive individual is as little disturbed in his private relations as the commander of the hostile troops can afford to grant in the overruling demands of a vigorous war.

24. The almost universal rule in remote times was, and continues to be with barbarous armies, that the private individual of the hostile country is destined to suffer every privation of liberty and protection and every disruption of family ties. Protection was, and still is with uncivilized people, the exception.

25. In modern regular wars of the Europeans, and their descendants in other portions of the globe, protection of the inoffensive citizen of the hostile country is the rule: privation and disturbance of private relations are the exceptions.

26. Commanding generals may cause the magistrate and civil officers of the hostile country to take the oath of temporary allegiance or an oath of fidelity to their own victorious government or rulers, and they may expel every one who declines to do so. But whether they do so or not, the people and their civil officers owe strict obedience to them as long as they hold sway over the district or country, at the peril of their lives.

27. The law of war can no more wholly dispense with retaliation than can the law of nations, of which it is a branch. Yet civilized nations acknowledge retaliation as the sternest feature of war. A reckless enemy often leaves to his opponent no other means of securing himself against the repetition of barbarous outrage.

28. Retaliation will, therefore, never be resorted to as a measure of mere revenge, but only as a means of protective retribution, and, moreover, cautiously and unavoidably; that is to say, retaliation shall only be resorted to after careful inquiry into the real occurrence and the character of the misdeeds that may demand retribution.

Unjust or inconsiderate retaliation removes the belligerents further and further from the mitigating rules of regular war, and by rapid steps leads them nearer to the internecine wars of savages.

29. Modern times are distinguished from earlier ages by the existence, at one and the same time, of many nations and great governments related to one another in close intercourse.

Peace is their normal condition; war is the exception. The ultimate object of all modern war is a renewed state of peace.

The more vigorously wars are pursued, the better it is for humanity. Sharp wars are brief.

30. Ever since the formation and coexistence of modern nations, and ever since wars have become great national wars, war has come to be acknowledged not to be its own end, but the means to obtain great ends of state, or to consist in defense against wrong; and no conventional restrictions of the modes adopted to injure the enemy is any longer admitted; but the law of war imposes many limitations and restrictions on principles of justice, faith, and honor.

SECTION II.

PUBLIC AND PRIVATE PROPERTY OF THE ENEMY—PROTECTION OF PERSONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WOMEN; OF RELIGION, THE ARTS, AND SCIENCES—PUNISHMENT OF CRIME AGAINST THE INHABITANTS OF HOSTILE COUNTRIES.

31. A victorious army appropriates all public money, seizes all public movable property until further direction by its government, and sequesters for its own benefit or that of its government all the revenues of real property belonging to the hostile government or nation. The title to such real property remains in abeyance during military occupation and until the conquest is made complete.

32. A victorious army, by the martial power inherent in the same, may suspend, change, or abolish, as far as the marshal power extends, the relations which arise from the services due, according to the existing laws of the invaded country, from one citizen, subject, or native of the same to another.

The commander of the army must leave it to the ultimate treaty of peace to settle the permanency of this change.

33. It is no longer considered lawful—on the contrary, it is held to be a serious breach of the law of war—to force the subjects of the enemy into the service of the victorious government, except the latter should proclaim, after a fair and complete conquest of the hostile country or district, that it is resolved to keep the country, district, or place permanently as its own and make it a portion of its own country.

34. As a general rule the property belonging to churches, to hospitals, or other establishments of an exclusively charitable character, to establishments of education, or foundations for the promotion of knowledge, whether public schools, universities, academies of learning, or observatories, museums of the fine arts, or of a scientific character—such property is not to be considered public property in the sense of paragraph 31, but it may be taxed or used when the public service may require it.

35. Classical works of art, libraries, scientific collections, or precious instruments, such as astronomical telescopes, as well as hospitals, must be secured against all avoidable injury, even when they are contained in fortified places whilst besieged or bombarded.

36. If such works of art, libraries, collections, or instruments belonging to a hostile nation or government can be removed without injury, the ruler of the conquering state or nation may order them to be seized and removed for the benefit of the said nation. The ultimate ownership is to be settled by the ensuing treaty of peace.

In no case shall they be sold or given away if captured by the armies of the United States, nor shall they ever be privately appropriated or wantonly destroyed or injured.

37. The United States acknowledge and protect, in hostile countries occupied by them, religion and morality, strictly private property, the persons of the inhabitants, especially those of women, and the sacredness of domestic relations. Offenses to the contrary shall be rigorously punished.

This rule does not interfere with the right of the victorious invader to tax the people or their property, to levy forced loans, to billet soldiers, or to appropriate property, especially houses, lands, boats or ships, and churches, for temporary and military uses.

38. Private property, unless forfeited by crimes or by offenses of the owner, can be seized only by way of military necessity for the support or other benefit of the Army or of the United States.

If the owner has not fled, the commanding officer will cause receipts to be given, which may serve the spoliated owner to obtain indemnity.

39. The salaries of civil officers of the hostile government who remain in the invaded territory, and continue the work of their office, and can continue it according to the circumstances arising out of the war—such as judges, administrative or police officers, officers of city or communal governments—are paid from the public revenue of the invaded territory until the military government has reason wholly or partially to discontinue it. Salaries or incomes connected with purely honorary titles are always stopped.

40. There exists no law or body of authoritative rules of action between hostile armies, except that branch of the law of nature and nations which is called the law and usages of war on land.

41. All municipal law of the ground on which the armies stand, or of the countries to which they belong, is silent and of no effect between armies in the field.

42. Slavery, complicating and confounding the ideas of property (that is, of a thing) and of personality (that is, of humanity), exists according to municipal or local law only. The law of nature and nations has never acknowledged it. The digest of the Roman law enacts the early dictum of a pagan jurist, that, “so far as the law of nature is concerned, all men are equal.” Fugitives escaping from a country in which they were slaves, villains, or serfs, into another country, have, for centuries past, been held free and acknowledged free by judicial decisions of European countries, even though the municipal law of the country in which the slave had taken refuge acknowledged slavery within its own dominions.

43. Therefore, in a war between the United States and a belligerent which admits of slavery, if a person held in bondage by that belligerent be captured by or come as a fugitive under the protection of the military forces of the United States, such person is immediately entitled to the rights and privileges of a freeman. To return such person into slavery would amount to enslaving a free person, and neither the United States nor any officer under their authority can enslave any human being. Moreover, a person so made free by the law of war is under the shield of the law of nations, and the former owner or State can have, by the law of postliminy, no belligerent lien or claim of service.

44. All wanton violence committed against persons in the invaded country, all destruction of property not commanded by the authorized officer, all robbery or pillage or sacking, even after taking a place by main force, all rape, wounding, maiming, or killing of such inhabitants, are prohibited under the penalty of death, or such other severe punishment as may seem adequate for the gravity of the offense.

A soldier, officer or private, in the act of committing such violence, and disobeying a superior ordering him to abstain from it, may be lawfully killed on the spot by such superior.

45. All captures and booty belong, according to the modern law of war, primarily to the government of the captor.

Prize money, whether on sea or land, can now only be claimed under local law.

46. Neither officers nor soldiers are allowed to make use of their position or power in the hostile country for private gain, not even for commercial transactions otherwise legitimate. Offenses to the contrary committed by commissioned officers will be punished with cashiering or such other punishment as the nature of the offense may require; if by soldiers, they shall be punished according to the nature of the offense.

47. Crimes punishable by all penal codes, such as arson, murder, maiming, assaults, highway robbery, theft, burglary, fraud, forgery, and rape, if committed by an American soldier in a hostile country against its inhabitants, are not only punishable as at home, but in all cases in which death is not inflicted the severer punishment shall be preferred.

SECTION III.

DESERTERS—PRISONERS OF WAR—HOSTAGES—BOOTY ON THE BATTLE-FIELD.

48. Deserters from the American Army, having entered the service of the enemy, suffer death if they fall again into the hands of the United States, whether by capture or being delivered up to the American Army; and if a deserter from the enemy, having taken service in the Army of the United States, is captured by the enemy, and punished by them with death or otherwise, it is not a breach against the law and usages of war requiring redress or retaliation.

49. A prisoner of war is a public enemy armed or attached to the hostile army for active aid, who has fallen into the hands of the captor, either fighting or wounded, on the field or in the hospital, by individual surrender or by capitulation.

All soldiers, of whatever species of arms; all men who belong to the rising en masse of the hostile country; all those who are attached to the army for its efficiency and promote directly the object of the war, except such as are hereinafter provided for; all disabled men or officers on the field or elsewhere, if captured; all enemies who have thrown away their arms and ask for quarter, are prisoners of war, and as such exposed to the inconveniences as well as entitled to the privileges of a prisoner of war.

50. Moreover, citizens who accompany an army for whatever purpose, such as sutlers, editors, or reporters of journals, or contractors, if captured, may be made prisoners of war, and be detained as such.

The monarch and members of the hostile reigning family, male or female, the chief, and chief officers of the hostile government, its diplomatic agents, and all persons who are of particular and singular use and benefit to the hostile army or its government, are, if captured on belligerent ground, and if unprovided with a safe conduct granted by the captor's government, prisoners of war.

51. If the people of that portion of an invaded country which is not yet occupied by the enemy, or of the whole country, at the approach of a hostile army, rise, under a duly authorized levy, en masse to resist the invader, they are now treated as public enemies, and, if captured, are prisoners of war.

52. No belligerent has the right to declare that he will treat every captured man in arms of a levy en masse as a brigand or bandit.

If, however, the people of a country, or any portion of the same, already occupied by an army rise against it, they are violators of the laws of war, and are not entitled to their protection.

53. The enemy's chaplains, officers of the medical staff, apothecaries, hospital nurses, and servants, if they fall into the hands of the American Army, are not prisoners of war unless the commander has reasons to retain them. In this latter case, or if, at their own desire, they are allowed to remain with their captured companions, they are treated as prisoners of war, and may be exchanged if the commander sees fit.

54. A hostage is a person accepted as a pledge for the fulfillment of an agreement concluded between belligerents during the war, or in consequence of a war. Hostages are rare in the present age.

55. If a hostage is accepted, he is treated like a prisoner of war, according to rank and condition, as circumstances may admit.

56. A prisoner of war is subject to no punishment for being a public enemy, nor is any revenge wreaked upon him by the intentional infliction of any suffering, or disgrace, by cruel imprisonment, want of food, by mutilation, death, or any other barbarity.

57. So soon as a man is armed by a sovereign government and takes the soldier's oath of fidelity he is a belligerent; his killing, wounding, or other warlike acts are no individual crimes or offenses. No belligerent has a right to declare that enemies of a certain class, color, or condition, when properly organized as soldiers, will not be treated by him as public enemies.

58. The law of nations knows of no distinction of color, and if an enemy of the United States should enslave and sell any captured persons of their Army, it would be a case for the severest retaliation, if not redressed upon complaint.

The United States can not retaliate by enslavement; therefore death must be the retaliation for this crime against the law of nations.

59. A prisoner of war remains answerable for his crimes committed against the captor's army or people, committed before he was captured, and for which he has not been punished by his own authorities.

All prisoners of war are liable to the infliction of retaliatory measures.

60. It is against the usage of modern war to resolve, in hatred and revenge, to give no quarter. No body of troops has the right to declare that it will not give, and therefore will not expect, quarter; but a commander is permitted to direct his troops to give no quarter, in great straits, when his own salvation makes it impossible to cumber himself with prisoners.

61. Troops that give no quarter have no right to kill enemies already disabled on the ground or prisoners captured by other troops.

62. All troops of the enemy known or discovered to give no quarter in general, or to any portion of the army, receive none.

63. Troops who fight in the uniform of their enemies, without any plain, striking, and uniform mark of distinction of their own, can expect no quarter.

64. If American troops capture a train containing uniforms of the enemy, and the commander considers it advisable to distribute them for use among his men, some striking mark or sign must be adopted to distinguish the American soldier from the enemy.

65. The use of the enemy's national standard, flag, or other emblem of nationality for the purpose of deceiving the enemy in battle is an act of perfidy by which they lose all claim to the protection of the laws of war.

66. Quarter having been given to an enemy by American troops under a misapprehension of his true character, he may, nevertheless, be ordered to suffer death if within three days after the battle it be discovered that he belongs to a corps which gives no quarter.

67. The law of nations allows every sovereign government to make war upon another sovereign state, and therefore admits of no rules or laws different from those of regular warfare regarding the treatment of prisoners of war, although they may belong to the army of a government which the captor may consider as a wanton and unjust assailant.

68. Modern wars are not internecine wars, in which the killing of the enemy is the object. The destruction of the enemy in modern war, and, indeed, modern war itself, are means to obtain that object of the belligerent which lies beyond the war.

Unnecessary or revengeful destruction of life is not lawful.

69. Outposts, sentinels, or pickets are not to be fired upon, except to drive them in or when a positive order, special or general, has been issued to that effect.

70. The use of poison in any manner, be it to poison wells or food or arms, is wholly excluded from modern warfare. He that uses it puts himself out of the pale of the law and usages of war.

71. Whoever intentionally inflicts additional wounds on an enemy already wholly disabled or kills such an enemy, or who orders or encourages soldiers to do so, shall suffer death, if duly convicted, whether he belongs to the Army of the United States or is an enemy captured after having committed his misdeed.

72. Money and other valuables on the person of a prisoner, such as watches or jewelry, as well as extra clothing, are regarded by the American Army as the private property of the prisoner, and the appropriation of such valuables or money is considered dishonorable, and is prohibited.

Nevertheless, if large sums are found upon the persons of prisoners or in their possession they shall be taken from them, and the surplus, after providing for their own support, appropriated for the use of the Army, under the direction of the commander, unless otherwise ordered by the Government. Nor can prisoners claim as private property large sums found and captured in their train, although they have been placed in the private luggage of the prisoners.

73. All officers, when captured, must surrender their side arms to the captor. They may be restored to the prisoner in marked cases, by the commander, to signalize admiration of his distinguished bravery or approbation of his humane treatment of prisoners before his capture. The captured officer to whom they may be restored can not wear them during captivity.

74. A prisoner of war, being a public enemy, is the prisoner of the government and not of the captor. No ransom can be paid by a prisoner of war to his individual captor or to any officer in command. The government alone releases captives, according to rules prescribed by itself.

75. Prisoners of war are subject to confinement or imprisonment, such as may be deemed necessary on account of safety, but they are to be subjected to no other intentional suffering or indignity. The confinement and mode of treating a prisoner may be varied during his captivity according to the demands of safety.

76. Prisoners of war shall be fed upon plain and wholesome food, whenever practicable, and treated with humanity.

They may be required to work for the benefit of the captor's government, according to their rank and condition.

77. A prisoner of war who escapes may be shot or otherwise killed in his flight, but neither death nor any other punishment shall be inflicted upon him simply for his attempt to escape, which the law of war does not consider a crime. Stricter means of security shall be used after an unsuccessful attempt at escape.

If, however, a conspiracy is discovered, the purpose of which is a united or general escape, the conspirators may be rigorously punished, even with death; and capital punishment may also be inflicted upon prisoners of war discovered to have plotted rebellion against the authorities of the captors, whether in union with fellow-prisoners or other persons.

78. If prisoners of war, having given no pledge nor made any promise on their honor, forcibly or otherwise escape, and are captured again in battle, after having rejoined their own army, they shall not be punished for their escape, but shall be treated simply as prisoners of war, although they will be subjected to stricter confinement.

79. Every captured wounded enemy shall be medically treated, according to the ability of the medical staff.

80. Honorable men, when captured, will abstain from giving to the enemy information concerning their own army, and the modern law of war permits no longer the use of any violence against prisoners in order to extort the desired information, or to punish them for having given false information.

SECTION IV.

PARTISANS—ARMED ENEMIES NOT BELONGING TO THE HOSTILE ARMY—SCOUTS—ARMED PROWLERS—WAR REBELS.

81. Partisans are soldiers armed and wearing the uniform of their army, but belonging to a corps which acts detached from the main body for the purpose of making inroads into the territory occupied by the enemy. If captured, they are entitled to all the privileges of the prisoner of war.

82. Men, or squads of men, who commit hostilities, whether by fighting or inroads for destruction or plunder, or by raids of any kind, without commission, without being part and portion of the organized hostile army, and without sharing continuously in the war, but who do so with intermitting returns to their homes and avocations, or with the occasional assumption of the semblance of peaceful pursuits, divesting themselves of the character or appearance of soldiers—such men, or squads of men, are not public enemies, and therefore, if captured, are not entitled to the privileges of prisoners of war, but shall be treated summarily as highway robbers or pirates.

83. Scouts or single soldiers, if disguised in the dress of the country, or in the uniform of the army hostile to their own, employed in obtaining information, if found within or lurking about the lines of the captor, are treated as spies, and suffer death.

84. Armed prowlers, by whatever names they may be called, or persons of the enemy's territory, who steal within the lines of the hostile army for the purpose of robbing, killing, or of destroying bridges, roads, or canals, or of robbing or destroying the mail, or of cutting the telegraph wires, are not entitled to the privileges of the prisoner of war.

85. War rebels are persons within an occupied territory who rise in arms against the occupying or conquering army, or against the authorities established by the same. If captured, they may suffer death, whether they rise singly, in small or large bands, and whether called upon to do so by their own, but expelled, government or not. They are not prisoners of war; nor are they, if discovered and secured before their conspiracy has matured to an actual rising, or to armed violence.

SECTION V.

SAFE CONDUCT—SPIES—WAR TRAITORS—CAPTURED MESSENGERS—ABUSE OF THE FLAG OF TRUCE.

86. All intercourse between the territories occupied by belligerent armies, whether by traffic, by letter, by travel, or in any other way, ceases. This is the general rule, to be observed without special proclamation.

Exceptions to this rule, whether by safe conduct, or permission to trade on a small or large scale, or by exchanging mails, or by travel from one territory into the other, can take place only according to agreement approved by the government or by the highest military authority.

Contraventions of this rule are highly punishable.

87. Ambassadors, and all other diplomatic agents of neutral powers, accredited to the enemy, may receive safe conducts through the territories occupied by the belligerents, unless there are military reasons to the contrary, and unless they may reach the place of their destination conveniently by another route. It implies no international affront if the safe conduct is declined. Such passes are usually given by the supreme authority of the State, and not by subordinate officers.

88. A spy is a person who secretly, in disguise or under false pretense, seeks information with the intention of communicating it to the enemy.

The spy is punishable with death by hanging by the neck, whether or not he succeed in obtaining the information or in conveying it to the enemy.

89. If a citizen of the United States obtains information in a legitimate manner, and betrays it to the enemy, be he a military or civil officer or a private citizen, he shall suffer death.

90. A traitor under the law of war, or a war traitor, is a person in a place or district under martial law who, unauthorized by the military commander, gives information of any kind to the enemy or holds intercourse with him.

91. The war traitor is always severely punished. If his offense consists in betraying to the enemy anything concerning the condition, safety, operations, or plans of the troops holding or occupying the place or district, his punishment is death.

92. If the citizen or subject of a country or place invaded or conquered gives information to his own government, from which he is separated by the hostile army, or to the army of his government, he is a war traitor, and death is the penalty of his offense.

93. All armies in the field stand in need of guides, and impress them if they can not obtain them otherwise.

94. No person having been forced by the enemy to serve as guide is punishable for having done so.

95. If a citizen of a hostile and invaded district voluntarily serves as a guide to the enemy, or offers to do so, he is deemed a war traitor, and shall suffer death.

96. A citizen serving voluntarily as a guide against his own country commits treason, and will be dealt with according to the law of his country.

97. Guides, when it is clearly proved that they have misled intentionally, may be put to death.

98. All unauthorized or secret communication with the enemy is considered treasonable by the law of war.

Foreign residents in an invaded or occupied territory, or foreign visitors in the same, can claim no immunity from this law. They may communicate with foreign parts, or with the inhabitants of the hostile country, so far as the military authorities permit, but no further. Instant expulsion from the occupied territory would be the very least punishment for the infraction of this rule.

99. A messenger carrying written dispatches or verbal messages from one portion of the army, or from a besieged place, to another portion of the same army or its government, if armed and in the uniform of his army, and if captured while doing so in the territory occupied by the enemy, is treated by the captor as a prisoner of war. If not in uniform, nor a soldier, the circumstances connected with his capture must determine the disposition that shall be made of him.

100. A messenger or agent who attempts to steal through the territory occupied by the enemy to further, in any manner, the interests of the enemy, if captured is not entitled to the privileges of the prisoner of war, and may be dealt with according to the circumstances of the case.

101. While deception in war is admitted as a just and necessary means of hostility, and is consistent with honorable warfare, the common law of war allows even capital punishment for clandestine or treacherous attempts to injure an enemy, because they are so dangerous and it is so difficult to guard against them.

102. The law of war, like the criminal law regarding other offenses, makes no difference on account of the difference of sex, concerning the spy, the war traitor, or the war rebel.

103. Spies, war traitors, and war rebels are not exchanged according to the common law of war. The exchange of such persons would require a special cartel, authorized by the government, or, at a great distance from it, by the chief commander of the army in the field.

104. A successful spy or war traitor, safely returned to his own army, and afterwards captured as an enemy, is not subject to punishment for his acts as a spy or war traitor, but he may be held in closer custody as a person individually dangerous.

SECTION VI.

EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS—FLAGS OF TRUCE¹—FLAGS OF PROTECTION.

105. Exchanges of prisoners take place, number for number, rank for rank, wounded for wounded, with added condition for added condition, such, for instance, as not to serve for a certain period.

1. Dispatch of flag.—Communication by flag of truce, being an exception to the fundamental rule of nonintercourse between belligerents, is not to be resorted to except by the authority of the President or the commanding general of the army or forces operating against the enemy in the field. No inferior commander is empowered to resort to the use of a flag of truce except by the direction of such authorized superior.

2. The party sent out with a flag of truce should be commanded by a commissioned officer designated for the purpose. His command should consist of such number of noncommissioned officers and soldiers as may be requisite for the purposes of the mission, and no more; the party should be reduced to the least number that may be adequate and reasonable. No military person not a constituent of the party, and no civilian, should be allowed to accompany the flag, except by the express authority of the commander dispatching the same.

3. The officer commanding the party, or bearer proper, should be furnished with specific instructions, in writing if practicable, informing and directing him precisely as to his function and duties. Communications committed to him to be conveyed to the enemy should, if practicable, be in writing.

4. The officer in charge should comply literally and exactly with his instructions, not exceeding them. On approaching the enemy's lines he should exhibit the flag, or white signal employed as such, in time and in such a manner as to prevent his party being fired upon. He should deliver his dispatches, if any, to an officer duly authorized to receive them, should receive and carefully retain such dispatches as may be delivered to him, and, his mission being completed, should return as promptly as possible within his own lines. During his absence he should require his escort to confine themselves to their strict duties, and prohibit their holding any communication, except such as may be absolutely necessary, with the military persons or civilians within the enemy's lines.

5. The officer in charge, on his return, is to make at once to the commander by whose order he was dispatched a full report of the performance of his mission, including his precise communications to the enemy and the precise acts and communications of the enemy in reply thereto. He should furnish also a list of all persons, if any, accompanying the flag or returning with it, such as exchanged prisoners, persons authorized to pass the lines, etc., with the fact of their examination and all obtainable particulars of their character and purposes.

6. Reception of flag.—By the law of nations, the bearer in good faith of a flag of truce is, with his escort, inviolable. The flag is not to be fired upon, nor the bearer, or persons properly accompanying him, to be made prisoners. They are to be received with respect and treated with courtesy, and at the end of their mission to be allowed to return without impediment. Where unavoidably detained, they will, if necessary, properly be sheltered and subsisted and their animals foraged.

7. But as a flag of truce may be employed as a cover for illegal designs, the party should not be allowed to enter within the outer line of guards or pickets in the absence of express authority from the commander of the forces, and such precautions should be taken as to prevent their making observations or obtaining information.

8. The flag should either be met by another flag on the neutral ground or territory

106. In exchanging prisoners of war, such numbers of persons of inferior rank may be substituted as an equivalent for one of superior rank as may be agreed upon by cartel, which requires the sanction of the Government or of the commander of the army in the field.

107. A prisoner of war is in honor bound truly to state to the captor his rank, and he is not to assume a lower rank than belongs to him, in order to cause a more advantageous exchange, nor a higher rank, for the purpose of obtaining better treatment.

intervening between the hostile lines, or, on its arrival near the outer line, should be halted by the nearest sentinel or vedette and ordered to face in the direction from which it came. The sentinel or vedette will then, through his corporal, communicate the arrival of the flag to the officer in command of the nearest picket post or guard, who will himself proceed, or will send a commissioned or noncommissioned officer, with a small detachment, to meet the flag and ascertain its object, of which he will at once cause information to be transmitted to the chief commander. The commander, if he desires to receive the flag, which, in discretion, he may refuse to do, will thereupon dispatch a commissioned officer, with suitable escort and proper instructions, to formally receive the flag and respond officially to its communications, or to take charge of such dispatches as the bearer may desire to have forwarded to commander, returning later with the response, if any.

9. Should the officer in charge of the flag insist, in obedience to his instructions, upon a personal interview with the chief commander, the latter may, in his discretion, refuse such interview, or he may proceed to meet the flag in person, or he may cause the bearer to be conducted to his headquarters, or other place appointed, his eyes being bandaged if deemed expedient. But no member of his escort should, except by express authority, be admitted with him within the lines.

10. Where, indeed, the flag is employed as a means of safe conduct for exchanged prisoners, hostages, refugees, or other civilians permitted by proper authority to pass the lines, these may be admitted by the authority of the chief commander, after having been carefully examined to ascertain if they have in their possession supplies or merchandise. They should be allowed to bring in with them only necessary personal effects.

11. Until the purpose of a flag of truce is accomplished and the party returns, the bearer and those accompanying him (except so far as admitted by authority within the lines) will remain halted in the same or other appointed place, in the presence of an adequate guard, or, if unusual delay be involved, may be allowed to make camp, under proper observation. During their stay no conversation should be held with them on any subject directly or indirectly relating to military or public affairs, and the guard attending them should be accompanied by a commissioned or noncommissioned officer to insure the observance of this precaution.

12. Should the officer in charge of the flag, or any of his escort, be detected in an attempt to obtain illicit information, or in any other form of abuse of the privilege of the flag, or should there arise a reasonable ground of suspicion that the flag has not been dispatched, or is not being employed, in good faith, the bearer and those implicated may be detained for investigation and punishment according to the laws of war. (G. O., No. 43, Headquarters of the Army, May 20, 1893.)

The use of flags of truce by the enemy during the late war was recognized as a belligerent right.^(a) But the admission by flag of truce within the lines of the United States Army in time of war of persons coming from the lines of an enemy, can not entitle such persons to immunity from subsequent inquiry into their character and business, or from restraint and detention upon reasonable grounds of suspicion appearing against them. Moreover, a flag of truce does not operate as a safe-conduct, allowing the party admitted under it a free passage through the territory or a dispensation from the legal effects of war, but affords him a merely temporary protection not to be continued after the immediate mission of the flag has been accomplished. So held that a person who, during the war, availed himself of a flag of truce to enter our lines for an illegal purpose, was in no degree protected by the flag from liability to arrest, upon his purpose becoming apparent, or from amenability to trial and punishment for any overt act in violation of the laws of war. (Dig. Opin. J. A. G., 1374.)

^a Williams v. Bruffy, 6 Otto, 187.

Offenses to the contrary have been justly punished by the commanders of released prisoners, and may be good cause for refusing to release such prisoners.

108. The surplus number of prisoners of war remaining after an exchange has taken place is sometimes released either for the payment of a stipulated sum of money, or, in urgent cases, of provision, clothing, or other necessities.

Such arrangement, however, requires the sanction of the highest authority.

109. The exchange of prisoners of war is an act of convenience to both belligerents. If no general cartel has been concluded it can not be demanded by either of them. No belligerent is obliged to exchange prisoners of war.

A cartel is voidable as soon as either party has violated it.

110. No exchange of prisoners shall be made except after complete capture, and after an accurate account of them, and a list of the captured officers has been taken.

111. The bearer of a flag of truce can not insist upon being admitted. He must always be admitted with great caution. Unnecessary frequency is carefully to be avoided.

112. If the bearer of a flag of truce offer himself during an engagement, he can be admitted as a very rare exception only. It is no breach of good faith to retain such flag of truce, if admitted during the engagement. Firing is not required to cease on the appearance of a flag of truce in battle.

113. If the bearer of a flag of truce, presenting himself during an engagement, is killed or wounded it furnishes no ground of complaint whatever.

114. If it be discovered, and fairly proved, that a flag of truce has been abused for surreptitiously obtaining military knowledge, the bearer of the flag thus abusing his sacred character is deemed a spy.

So sacred is the character of a flag of truce, and so necessary is its sacredness, that while its abuse is an especially heinous offense, great caution is requisite, on the other hand, in convicting the bearer of a flag of truce as a spy.

114. It is customary to designate by certain flags (usually yellow) the hospitals in places which are shelled, so that the besieging enemy may avoid firing on them. The same has been done in battles when hospitals are situated within the field of the engagement.

116. Honorable belligerents often request that the hospitals within the territory of the enemy may be designated, so that they may be spared.

An honorable belligerent allows himself to be guided by flags or signals of protection as much as the contingencies and the necessities of the fight will permit.

117. It is justly considered an act of bad faith, of infamy or fiendishness, to deceive the enemy by flags of protection. Such act of bad faith may be good cause for refusing to respect such flags.

118. The besieging belligerent has sometimes requested the besieged to designate the buildings containing collections of works of art, scientific museums, astronomical observatories, or precious libraries, so that their destruction may be avoided as much as possible.

SECTION VII.

THE PAROLE.

119. Prisoners of war may be released from captivity by exchange, and, under certain circumstances, also by parole.

120. The term parole designates the pledge of individual good faith and honor to do, or to omit doing, certain acts after he who gives his parole shall have been dismissed, wholly or partially, from the power of the captor.

121. The pledge of the parole is always an individual, but not a private act.

122. The parole applies chiefly to prisoners of war whom the captor allows to return to their country or to live in greater freedom within the captor's country or territory on conditions stated in the parole.

123. Release of prisoners of war by exchange is the general rule; release by parole is the exception.

124. Breaking the parole is punished with death when the person breaking the parole is captured again.

Accurate lists, therefore, of the paroled persons must be kept by the belligerents.

125. When paroles are given and received there must be an exchange of two written documents, in which the name and rank of the paroled individuals are accurately and truthfully stated.

126. Commissioned officers only are allowed to give their parole, and they can give it only with the permission of their superior, as long as a superior in rank is within reach.

127. No noncommissioned officer or private can give his parole except through an officer. Individual paroles not given through an officer are not only void, but subject the individuals giving them to the punishment of death as deserters. The only admissible exception is where individuals, properly separated from their commands, have suffered long confinement without the possibility of being paroled through an officer.

128. No paroling on the battlefield, no paroling of entire bodies of troops after a battle, and no dismissal of large numbers of prisoners, with a general declaration that they are paroled, is permitted or of any value.

129. In capitulations for the surrender of strong places or fortified camps the commanding officer, in cases of urgent necessity, may agree that the troops under his command shall not fight again during the war unless exchanged.

130. The usual pledge given in the parole is not to serve during the existing war unless exchanged.

This pledge refers only to the active service in the field, against the paroling belligerent or his allies actively engaged in the same war. These cases of breaking the parole are patent acts, and can be visited with the punishment of death; but the pledge does not refer to internal service, such as recruiting or drilling the recruits, fortifying places not besieged, quelling civil commotions, fighting against belligerents unconnected with the paroling belligerents, or to civil or diplomatic service for which the paroled officer may be employed.

131. If the government does not approve of the parole, the paroled officer must return into captivity, and should the enemy refuse to receive him, he is free of his parole.

132. A belligerent government may declare, by a general order, whether it will allow paroling, and on what conditions it will allow it. Such order is communicated to the enemy.

133. No prisoner of war can be forced by the hostile government to parole himself, and no government is obliged to parole prisoners of war or to parole all captured officers if it paroles any. As the pledging of the parole is an individual act, so is paroling, on the other hand, an act of choice on the part of the belligerent.

134. The commander of an occupying army may require of the civil officers of the enemy, and of its citizens, any pledge he may consider necessary for the safety or security of his army, and upon their failure to give it he may arrest, confine, or detain them.

SECTION VIII.

ARMISTICE—CAPITULATION.

135. An armistice is the cessation of active hostilities for a period agreed between belligerents. It must be agreed upon in writing, and duly ratified by the highest authorities of the contending parties.

136. If an armistice be declared, without conditions, it extends no further than to require a total cessation of hostilities along the front of both belligerents.

If conditions be agreed upon, they should be clearly expressed, and must be rigidly adhered to by both parties. If either party violates any express condition, the armistice may be declared null and void by the other.

137. An armistice may be general, and valid for all points and lines of the belligerents, or special; that is, referring to certain troops or certain localities only.

An armistice may be concluded for a definite time or for an indefinite time, during which either belligerent may resume hostilities on giving the notice agreed upon to the other.

138. The motives which induce the one or the other belligerent to conclude an armistice, whether it be expected to be preliminary to a treaty of peace or to prepare during the armistice for a more vigorous prosecution of the war, does in no way affect the character of the armistice itself.

139. An armistice is binding upon the belligerents from the day of the agreed commencement; but the officers of the armies are responsible from the day only when they receive official information of its existence.

140. Commanding officers have the right to conclude armistices binding on the district over which their command extends, but such armistice is subject to the ratification of the superior authority, and ceases so soon as it is made known to the enemy that the armistice is not ratified, even if a certain time for the elapsing between giving notice of cessation and the resumption of hostilities should have been stipulated for.

141. It is incumbent upon the contracting parties of an armistice to stipulate what intercourse of persons or traffic between the inhabitants of the territories occupied by the hostile armies shall be allowed, if any. If nothing is stipulated, the intercourse remains suspended, as during actual hostilities.

142. An armistice is not a partial or a temporary peace; it is only the suspension of military operations to the extent agreed upon by the parties.

143. When an armistice is concluded between a fortified place and the army besieging it, it is agreed by all the authorities on this subject that the besieger must cease all extension, perfection, or advance of his attacking works as much so as from attacks by main force.

But as there is a difference of opinion among martial jurists whether the besieged have the right to repair breaches or to erect new works of defense within the place during an armistice, this point should be determined by express agreement between the parties.

144. So soon as a capitulation is signed, the capitulator has no right to demolish, destroy, or injure the works, arms, stores, or ammunition in his possession during the time which elapses between the signing and the execution of the capitulation, unless otherwise stipulated in the same.

145. When an armistice is clearly broken by one of the parties, the other party is released from all obligation to observe it.

146. Prisoners taken in the act of breaking an armistice must be treated as prisoners of war, the officer alone being responsible who gives the order for such a violation of an armistice. The highest authority of the belligerent aggrieved may demand redress for the infraction of an armistice.

147. Belligerents sometimes conclude an armistice while their plenipotentiaries are met to discuss the conditions of a treaty of peace; but plenipotentiaries may meet without a preliminary armistice; in the latter case the war is carried on without any abatement.

SECTION IX.

ASSASSINATION.

148. The law of war does not allow proclaiming either an individual belonging to the hostile army or a citizen or a subject of the hostile government an outlaw who may be slain without trial by any captor, any more than the modern law of peace allows such intentional outlawry; on the contrary, it abhors such outrage. The sternest retaliation should follow the murder committed in consequence of such proclamation, made by whatever authority. Civilized nations look with horror upon offers of rewards for the assassination of enemies as relapses into barbarism.

SECTION X.

INSURRECTION—CIVIL WAR—REBELLION.

149. Insurrection is the rising of people in arms against their government or a portion of it, or against one or more of its laws, or against an officer or officers of the government. It may be confined to mere armed resistance, or it may have greater ends in view.

150. Civil war is war between two or more portions of a country or state, each contending for the mastery of the whole, and each claiming to be the legitimate government. The term is also sometimes applied to war of rebellion, when the rebellious provinces or portions of the state are contiguous to those containing the seat of government.

151. The term rebellion is applied to an insurrection of large extent, and is usually a war between the legitimate government of a country and portions of provinces of the same who seek to throw off their allegiance to it and set up a government of their own.

152. When humanity induces the adoption of the rules of regular war toward rebels, whether the adoption is partial or entire, it does in no way whatever imply a partial or complete acknowledgment of their government, if they have set up one, or of them as an independent or sovereign power. Neutrals have no right to make the adoption of the rules of war by the assailed government toward rebels the ground of their own acknowledgment of the revolted people as an independent power.

153. Treating captured rebels as prisoners of war, exchanging them, concluding of cartels, capitulations, or other warlike agreements with them, addressing officers of a rebel army by the rank they may have in the same, accepting flags of truce, or, on the other hand, proclaiming martial law in their territory, or levying war taxes or forced loans, or doing any other act sanctioned or demanded by the law and usages of public war between sovereign belligerents, neither proves nor establishes an acknowledgment of the rebellious people, or of the government which they may have erected, as a public or sovereign power. Nor does the adoption of the rules of war toward rebels imply an engagement with them extending beyond the limits of these rules. It is victory in the field that ends the strife and settles the future relations between the contending parties.

154. Treating, in the field, the rebellious enemy according to the law and usages of war has never prevented the legitimate government from trying the leaders of the rebellion or chief rebels for high treason, and from treating them accordingly, unless they are included in a general amnesty.

155. All enemies in regular war are divided into two general classes—that is to say, into combatants and noncombatants, or unarmed citizens of the hostile government.

The military commander of the legitimate government, in a war of rebellion, distinguishes between the loyal citizen in the revolted portion of the country and the disloyal citizen. The disloyal citizen may further be classified into those citizens known to sympathize with the rebellion without positively aiding it, and those who, without taking up arms, give positive aid and comfort to the rebellious enemy without being bodily forced thereto.

156. Common justice and plain expediency require that the military commander protect the manifestly loyal citizens in revolted territories against the hardships of the war as much as the common misfortune of all war admits.

The commander will throw the burden of the war, as much as lies within his power, on the disloyal citizens of the revolted portion or province, subjecting them to a stricter police than the noncombatant enemies have to suffer in regular war; and if he deems it appropriate, or if his government demands of him that every citizen shall, by an oath of allegiance or by some other manifest act, declare his fidelity to the legitimate government, he may expel, transfer, imprison, or fine the revolted citizens who refuse to pledge themselves anew as citizens obedient to the law and loyal to the government.

Whether it is expedient to do so, and whether reliance can be placed upon such oaths, the commander or his government have the right to decide.

157. Armed or unarmed resistance by citizens of the United States against the lawful movements of their troops is levying war against the United States, and is therefore treason.

CIVIL SERVICE RULES.¹

[Amendments to July 3, 1901.]

RULE IX. Reinstatements.

RULE X. Transfers.

RULE XI. Promotions.

RULE XII. List of all positions and employments and reports of changes in service to be furnished to commission.

In the exercise of power vested in him by the Constitution, and of authority given to him by the seventeen hundred and fifty-third section of the Revised Statutes, and by an act to regulate and improve the civil service of the United States, approved January 16, 1883, the President hereby makes and promulgates the following rules, and revokes all others: ^{Promulgating order.}

RULE I.

1. The United States Civil Service Commission shall have authority to prescribe regulations in pursuance of, and for the execution of, the provisions of these rules and of the civil-service act. ^{Commission to prescribe regulations. Definitions of terms.}

2. The several terms hereinafter mentioned, wherever used in these rules or the regulations of the commission, shall be construed as follows:

(a) The term "civil-service act" refers to "An act to regulate and improve the civil service of the United States," approved January 16, 1883.

(b) The term "classified service" refers to all that part of the executive civil service of the United States included within the provisions of the civil-service act and these rules.

(c) The term "grade," in connection with employees or positions, refers to a group of employees or positions in the classified service arranged upon the basis of duties performed without regard to salaries received.

(d) The term "class," in connection with employees or positions, refers to a group of employees or positions in any grade arranged upon the basis of salaries received, in pursuance of the provisions of section 163 of the Revised Statutes and of section 6 of the civil-service act.

(e) The term "excepted position" refers to any position within the provisions of the civil-service act, but excepted from the requirement of competitive examination or registration for appointment thereto.

RULE II.

1. Any person in the executive civil service of the United States who shall willfully violate any of the pro- ^{Dismissal for violation of act or rules.}

visions of the civil-service act or of these rules shall be dismissed from office.

No interference with elections.

2. No person in the executive civil service shall use his official authority or official influence for the purpose of interfering with an election or controlling the result thereof.

No dismissal or change of rank for political or religious opinions.

3. No person in the executive civil service shall dismiss, or cause to be dismissed, or make any attempt to procure the dismissal of, or in any manner change the official rank or compensation of any other person therein because of his political or religious opinions or affiliations.

No disclosures of political or religious opinions of applicants, etc.

4. No question in any examination, or form of application, shall be so framed as to elicit information concerning, nor shall any inquiry be made concerning, nor any other attempt be made to ascertain, the political or religious opinions or affiliations of any applicant, competitor, or eligible; and all disclosures thereof shall be discountenanced. And no discrimination shall be exercised, threatened, or promised, against or in favor of any applicant, competitor, or eligible because of his political or religious opinions or affiliations.

Recommendations that cannot be received, filed, or considered.

5. No recommendation of an applicant, competitor, or eligible, involving any disclosure of his political or religious opinions or affiliations, shall be received, filed, or considered by the commission, by any board of examiners, or by any nominating or appointing officer.

Penalties like in character.

6. In making removals or reductions, or in imposing punishment, for delinquency or misconduct, penalties like in character shall be imposed for like offenses, and action thereupon shall be taken irrespective of the political or religious opinions or affiliations of the offenders.

Status of employees after classification.

7. A person holding a position on the date said position is classified under the civil-service act shall be entitled to all the rights and benefits possessed by persons of the same class or grade appointed upon examination under the provisions of said act.

Procedure in removals.

8. No removal shall be made from the competitive classified service except for just cause and for reasons given in writing; and the person sought to be removed shall have notice and be furnished a copy of such reasons, and be allowed a reasonable time for personally answering the same in writing. Copy of such reasons, notice, and answer, and of the order of removal shall be made a part of the records of the proper department or office; and the reasons for any change in rank or compensation within the competitive classified service shall also be made a part of the records of the proper department or office.¹

RULE III.

1. All that part of the executive civil service of the United States which has been or may hereafter be classified under the civil-service act shall be arranged in branches as follows: The departmental service, * * *

2. The departmental service shall include * * *

(a) All officers and employees of whatever designation, except persons merely employed as laborers or workmen and persons whose appointments are subject to confirmation by the Senate, however or for whatever purpose employed, whether compensated by a fixed salary or otherwise, who are serving in or on detail from—

The several Executive Departments, the commissions, and offices in the District of Columbia.

* * * * *

The force employed under custodians of public buildings.

* * * * *

The Engineer Department at large.

The Ordnance Department at large.

(b) All executive officers and employees outside of the District of Columbia not covered in (a), of whatever designation, except persons merely employed as laborers or workmen and persons whose appointments are subject to confirmation by the Senate, whether compensated by a fixed salary or otherwise—

Who are serving in a clerical capacity or whose duties are in whole or in part of a clerical nature.

Who are serving in the capacity of watchman or messenger.

Who are serving in the capacity of physician, hospital steward, nurse, or whose duties are of a medical nature.

Who are serving in the capacity of draftsman, civil engineer, steam engineer, electrical engineer, computer, or fireman.

¹ Amended July 27, 1897, and May 29, 1899.

The order of the President of July 27, 1897, prohibiting removals from positions subject to competitive examination except upon written charges and notice, is an administrative order regulating the conduct of the President's subordinates; but it has not the force of law, and confers upon an incumbent no right to hold office indefinitely, and no right of which a court of equity can take cognizance. Carr v. Gordon, 82 Fed. Rep., 373.

Employees already classified covered by rules.

7. All officers and employees who have heretofore been classified under the civil-service act shall be considered as still classified and subject to the provisions of these rules.

Employees and positions not covered by rules.

8. The following-mentioned positions or employees shall not be subject to any of the provisions of these rules, except sections 1, 2, and 3 of Rule II:¹

(a) Any position filled by a person whose place of private business is conveniently located for his performance of the duties of said position, or any position filled by a person remunerated in one sum both for services rendered therein, and for necessary rent, fuel, and lights furnished for the performance of the duties thereof: Provided, That in either case the performance of the duties of said position requires only a portion of the time and attention of the occupant, paying him a compensation not exceeding, for his personal salary only, three hundred dollars per annum, and permitting of his pursuing other regular business or occupation.

(b) Any person in the military or naval service of the United States who is detailed for the performance of civil duties.

(c) Any person employed in a foreign country, under the State Department, or who is temporarily employed in a confidential capacity in a foreign country under any executive department or other office.¹

(d) Any position the duties of which are of quasi-military or quasi-naval character and for the performance of which duties a person is enlisted for a term of years.

* * * * *

(g) Any person in the Quartermaster's Department at large of the United States Army employed as train master, chief packer, foreman packer, pack master, master baler, foreman of laborers, superintendent of stables, or forage master. Appointments to these positions shall be made hereafter on registration tests of fitness prescribed in regulations to be issued by the Secretary of War and approved by the President.¹

(h) Any person in the Medical Department at large of the United States Army employed as chief packer, packer, or assistant packer. Appointments to these positions shall be made hereafter on registration tests of fitness prescribed in regulations to be issued by the Secretary of War and approved by the President.¹

(i) Any person in the Ordnance Department at large of the United States Army employed as foreman, assistant foreman, forage master, weigher, skilled laborer, guard, or on piecework. Appointments to these positions shall be made hereafter on registration tests of fitness prescribed in regulations to be issued by the Secretary of War and approved by the President.¹

(j) Any person in the Engineer Department at large of the United States Army employed as subinspector, overseer, suboverseer, superintendent, master lock manager, deputy lock manager, assistant superintendent of canal, chief deputy inspector, deputy inspector, rodman, stadiaman, chainman, foreman, timekeeper, lock master, assistant lock master, custodian, storekeeper, fort keeper, torpedo keeper, assistant torpedo keeper, light keeper, board master, subforeman, master laborer, gauge reader, steward, dam tender, assistant dam tender, helper, carpenter's helper, machinist's helper, quarry master, blacksmith's helper, climber, barge master, recorder of vessels, track man, gardener, assistant gardener, or weigher. Appointments to these positions shall be made hereafter on registration tests of fitness prescribed in regulations to be issued by the Secretary of War and approved by the President.¹

(k) Any person in the national military parks at Gettysburg, Shiloh, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Vicksburg, and Antietam employed as commissioner, assistant in historical work, agent for purchases of land, historian, secretary, rodman, chainman, assistant superintendent, chief guardian, guardian, guard, inspector, carpenter, steam engineer, or painter. Appointments to these positions shall be made hereafter on registration tests of fitness prescribed in regulations to be issued by the Secretary of War and approved by the President.¹

RULE IV.

1. In pursuance of the provisions of section 2 of the civil-service act, there shall be provided, to test fitness for admission to positions which have been, or may hereafter be, classified under the civil-service act, examinations of a practical and suitable character involving such subjects and tests as the commission may direct. Examinations authorized.

2. No person shall be appointed to, or be employed in, any position which has been, or may hereafter be, classified under the civil-service act, until he shall have passed Examinations required.

the examination provided therefor, or unless he is specially exempt from examination by the provisions of said act or the rules made in pursuance thereof.¹

When noncompetitive examinations may be held.

3. In pursuance of the provisions of section 2 of the civil-service act, wherever competent persons can be found who are willing to compete, no noncompetitive examination shall be given except as follows:

(a) To test fitness for transfer or for promotion in a part of the service to which promotion regulations have not been applied.

* * * * *

When examination may be waived.

(c) To test the fitness of a person whom the head of an Executive Department or the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution shall nominate for appointment to a position in the classified service. The appointing officer in making such nomination shall certify that, in his opinion, the position to be filled requires such peculiar qualifications in respect to knowledge and ability, or such scientific or special attainments wholly or in part professional or technical as are not ordinarily acquired in the executive service of the United States, and for the reasons set forth the best interests of the public service require that an examination should be waived in whole or in part. If the President of the United States shall approve such nomination, the Civil Service Commission shall thereupon grant a certificate of qualification, upon such evidence as may be satisfactory to it, that the person so nominated is eligible for and may be appointed to such position by reason of his ascertained qualifications, and by reason of his age, health, and moral character: Provided, That a person so nomi-

¹ No person is eligible to an examination—

(a) Who is not a citizen of the United States (see sec. 35, Regulation V);
(b) Who is not within the age limitations prescribed for the examination for which he applies (see secs. 14–18);

(c) Who is physically disqualified for the service which he seeks;
(d) Who is addicted to the habitual use of intoxicating beverages to excess;
(e) Who is barred by Application Regulations IX and X (see sec. 35);
(f) Who is enlisted in the United States Army or Navy and has not secured permission for his examination from the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy, respectively.

(g) Who has been dismissed from the public service for delinquency or misconduct within one year preceding the date of his application;

(h) Who has failed after probation to receive absolute appointment to the position for which he again applies within one year from the date of the expiration of his probationary service;

(i) Who within one year has taken the same kind of examination for which he wishes to again apply: Provided, That persons who pass or fail in an examination may, upon filing a new application, be reexamined at the next annual examinations, though a full year has not quite elapsed since the former examination (see sec. 180);

(j) Who has made a false statement in his application or has been guilty of fraud or deceit in any manner connected with his application or examination, or who has been guilty of crime or infamous or notoriously disgraceful conduct. Section 12, MANUAL OF EXAMINATION.

nated and appointed shall not be transferred to any other position in the classified service except to one that may be filled under the provisions of this clause, and shall not be assigned to any other duties than those pertaining to the particular position to which thus appointed.¹

4. In pursuance of the provisions of section 3 of the civil-service act, examinations shall be provided at such places and upon such dates as the commission shall deem most practicable to subserve the convenience of applicants and the needs of the service. Dates and places of examinations.

5. In pursuance of the provisions of section 3 of the civil-service act, the commission shall appoint, from persons in the Government service, such boards of examiners as it may deem necessary. The members of said boards shall perform such duties as the commission may direct in connection with examinations, appointments, and promotions in any part of the service which has been or may hereafter be classified. The members of any board of examiners in the performance of their duties as such shall be under the direct and sole control and authority of the commission. The duties performed by the members of any board of examiners in their capacity as such shall be considered part of the duties of the office in which they are serving, and time shall be allowed for the performance of said duties during the office hours of said office. The members of any board of examiners shall not all be adherents of one political party when persons of other political parties are available and competent to serve upon said board. Appointment and duties of boards of examiners.

6. In pursuance of the provisions of section 3 of the civil-service act, all executive officers of the United States shall facilitate civil-service examinations, and postmasters, customs officers, internal-revenue officers, and custodians of public buildings at places where such examinations are to be held shall, for the purpose of such examinations, permit and arrange for the use of suitable rooms under their charge and for heating, lighting, and furnishing the same. Executive officers to facilitate examinations.

RULE V.

1. Every applicant for examination must be a citizen of the United States, must be of proper age, and must make an application under oath, upon a form prescribed by the commission, and accompanied by such certificates as may be prescribed. Qualifications of applicants.

Applications from enlisted men.

2. No application for examination shall be accepted from any person serving in the Army, the Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States, unless the written consent of the head of the Department under which said person is enlisted is filed with his application.

Disqualifications of applicants and eligibles.

3. The commission may, in its discretion, refuse to examine an applicant, or to certify an eligible, who is physically so disabled as to be rendered unfit for the performance of the duties of the position to which he seeks appointment; or who has been guilty of a crime or of infamous or notoriously disgraceful conduct; or who has been dismissed from the service for delinquency or misconduct within one year next preceding the date of his application; or who has intentionally made a false statement in any material fact, or practiced or attempted to practice any deception or fraud in securing his registration or appointment. Any of the foregoing disqualifications shall be good cause for the removal of an eligible from the service after his appointment.

Age limitation for applicants. No age limitations for preference claimants.

4. No application for examination shall be accepted unless the applicant is within the age limitations fixed herein for entrance to the position to which he seeks to be appointed: Provided, That subject to the other conditions of these rules the application of any person whose claim of preference under the provisions of section 1754 of the Revised Statutes has been allowed by the commission may be accepted without regard to his age: And provided further, That in case of positions for which no maximum age limitations are fixed herein the commission, upon consultation with and approval of the proper head of Department or office, may, by regulation, determine maximum age limitations and confine competition in examinations for such positions to persons within such limitations. The age limitations for entrance to positions in the different branches of the service shall be as follows:

	Minimum.	Maximum.
DEPARTMENTAL SERVICE:
Page, messenger boy, apprentice (other than apprentice in mints and assay offices), or student.....	14	20
* * * * *
All other positions	20	No limit.
* * * * *

Applications for trade positions.

5. No application shall be accepted for examination for a position which belongs to one of the recognized mechanical trades unless it shall be shown that the applicant has served as apprentice or as journeyman or as apprentice and journeyman at said trade for such periods as the commission may prescribe.

RULE VI.

The following-named employees or positions which have been classified under the civil-service act shall be excepted from the requirement of examination or registration, unless as otherwise herein specifically stated. Exceptions from examination or registration.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE.

1. Not exceeding two private secretaries or confidential clerks to the President.

ALL EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS.

2. Not exceeding two private secretaries or confidential clerks to the head of each of the eight Executive Departments.¹

3. Not exceeding one private secretary or confidential clerk to each of the assistant heads of the eight Executive Departments.¹

4. Not exceeding one private secretary or confidential clerk to each of the following heads of bureaus appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate in the eight Executive Departments: * * * in the War Department, the Major-General Commanding the Army, the Adjutant-General, the Inspector-General, the Judge-Advocate-General, the Quartermaster-General, the Commissary-General of Subsistence, the Surgeon-General, the Paymaster-General, the Chief of Engineers, the Chief of Ordnance, the Chief Signal Officer, the Chief of the Record and Pension Office, and the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds.¹ * * *

5. Not exceeding one private secretary or confidential clerk to each of the heads of bureaus appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate in the eight Executive Departments not enumerated in paragraph four of this rule, if authorized by law.¹

RULE VII.

Rating examination papers.

1. Examination papers shall be rated on a scale of 100, and the subjects therein shall be given such relative weights as the commission may prescribe. After a competitor's papers have been rated, he shall be duly notified of the result thereof.

Eligible average.

2. Every competitor who attains an average percentage of 70 or over shall be eligible for appointment to the position for which he was examined; and the names of eligibles shall be entered, in the order of their average percentages, on the proper register of eligibles: Provided, That the names of all competitors whose claims to preference under the provisions of section 1754 of the Revised Statutes have been allowed by the commission, and who attain an average percentage of 65 or over, shall be placed, in the order of their average percentages, at the head of the proper register of eligibles.

3. For filling vacancies in positions for which competitive tests are not practicable, the registration of applicants shall be in the order in which they fulfill the requirements prescribed therefor by regulation of the commission: Provided, That persons who served in the military or naval service of the United States in the late war of the rebellion or the Spanish-American war and were honorably discharged therefrom, and persons who have been separated from such position above mentioned through no delinquency or misconduct, shall be placed at the head of the proper register in the order of their fulfillment of said requirements.¹

bility.
Amended May
29, 1899.

4. The term of eligibility shall be one year from the date on which the name of the eligible is entered on the register: Provided, That this term may be extended, in the discretion of the commission, for a further period of one year from the date of the expiration of the first year's eligibility, upon such conditions as the commission may prescribe: And provided further, That in case a person whose name is upon any register shall be mustered into the military or naval service of the United States at a time when the United States may be engaged in war, the period of eligibility of such person shall, under such conditions as the Civil Service Commission may prescribe, be considered as suspended during the time such eligible may be serving in the Army or Navy of the United States.¹

eligibility upon

RULE VIII.

In pursuance of the provisions of section 2 of the civil-service act, whenever a vacancy occurs in any position which has been, or may hereafter be, classified under the civil-service act, and which is not an excepted position, the filling of said vacancy, unless filled through noncompetitive examination or by reinstatement, transfer, promotion, or reduction, shall be governed as follows: Method of filling vacancies.

1. The appointing or nominating officer shall request certification to him of the names of eligibles for the position vacant, and the commission shall certify to said officer from the proper register the three names at the head thereof which have not been three times certified to the department or office in which the vacancy exists: Provided, That certification for temporary appointment shall not be counted as one of the three certifications to which an eligible is entitled: And provided further, That whenever the sex of those whose names are to be certified is fixed by any law, rule, or regulation, or is specified in the request for certification, the names of those of the sex so fixed or specified shall be certified; but in other cases certification shall be made without regard to sex. Three names to be certified. Certification for temporary appointment. Certification by sexes.

2. Of the three names certified the nominating or appointing officer shall select one, and if at the time of selection there are more vacancies than one he may select more than one name, unless otherwise directed by the commission. Selections from certifications.

3. A person selected for appointment shall be notified of his selection by the appointing or nominating officer, and upon his acceptance shall receive from the appointing officer a certificate of appointment for a probationary period of six months, at the end of which period, if the conduct and capacity of the probationer are satisfactory to the appointing officer, his retention in the service shall be equivalent to his absolute appointment; but if his conduct or capacity be not satisfactory, he shall be notified by the appointing officer that he will not receive absolute appointment because of such unsatisfactory conduct or want of capacity; and such notification shall discharge him from the service: Provided, That the probation of an employee in the Indian school service shall terminate at the end of the school year in which he is appointed: And provided further, That the time which an employee has actually served as substitute in parts of the service where Probationary period authorized. substitutes are authorized shall be counted as part of the probationary period of his regular appointment, but that time served under a temporary appointment shall not be so counted.

4. If the appointing or nominating officer shall object to an eligible named in the certificate, stating that, because of some physical defect, mental unsoundness, or moral disqualification, particularly specified, said eligible would be incompetent or unfit for the performance of the duties of the vacant position, and if said officer shall sustain such objection with evidence satisfactory to the commission, the commission may certify the eligible on the register who is in average percentage next below those already certified in place of the one to whom objection is made and sustained.

5. Certifications for appointment of persons for service in, or for direct detail from, any Department or office in Washington, D. C., shall be so made as to maintain, as nearly as the conditions of good administration will warrant, the apportionment of such appointments among the several States and Territories and the District of Columbia upon the basis of population: Provided, That appointments to the following-named positions shall not be so apportioned, viz: * * * those in the post quartermaster's office, * * * those of page, messenger boy, apprentice, and student, * * * And provided further, That a person who has been or may be separated from a classified position by reason of a necessary reduction of force, or by reason of an appointment to a position not in the classified service, may be reinstated under the provisions of Rule IX without filing new evidence of citizenship, and said appointment shall be charged to the apportionment of the State in which citizenship was claimed before said separation, unless a new citizenship is claimed, in which case the citizenship shall be proved in the manner required for original appointment.¹

7. Within any part of the service to which promotion regulations have been, or may hereafter be, applied, certification of those eligible to original appointment shall not be made for filling a vacancy in a position above the lowest class in any grade, whenever there is any person eligible and willing to be promoted to said vacancy: Provided, That a vacancy in any position requiring the exercise of technical or professional knowledge may be filled by original appointment.

8. When two or more eligibles on a register have the same average percentage, preference in certification shall be determined by the order in which their applications were filed. Eligibles with same average percentage.

9. For filling vacancies in positions outside of the District of Columbia and * * * the depot quartermaster's office, * * * the territory of the United States shall be arranged in such sections or districts as the commission may determine; and an eligible shall be certified, in his order, to vacancies in the section or district in which he resides, and upon his written request to vacancies in any one or more of the other sections or districts: * * * Vacancies to be filled by districts.

10. In any part of the service in which the employment of substitutes is not prohibited by law there may be certified and appointed, in the manner provided for in this rule, only such number of substitutes as are actually needed for the performance of substitute duty. Employment of substitutes.

11. In any part of the service in which substitutes are employed certifications of those eligible to original appointment shall be made for filling vacancies in substitute positions only, and vacancies in regular positions shall be filled by the appointment or promotion thereto of substitutes in the order of their original appointment as substitutes whenever there are substitutes of the required sex who are eligible and willing to be so appointed or promoted. Substitutes so appointed or promoted shall, however, be subject to the provisions of these rules relating to probation and permanent appointment. Appointment and promotion of substitutes.

13. Whenever there are no names of eligibles upon a register for any grade in which a vacancy exists and the public interest requires that it must be filled before eligibles can be provided by the commission, such vacancy may, subject to the approval of the commission, be filled by appointment without examination and certification for such part of three months as will enable the commission to provide eligibles. Such temporary appointment shall expire by limitation as soon as an eligible shall be provided, and no person shall serve longer than three months in any one year under such temporary appointment or appointments unless by special authority of the commission previously obtained. Said year limitation shall commence from the Temporary appointment for emergency.

Restrictions upon temporary appointments.

date of such first appointment: Provided, That whenever an emergency shall arise requiring that a vacancy shall be filled before a certification can be issued and an appointment made thereto in the manner provided in these rules, such vacancy may be filled without regard to the provisions of these rules for such part of thirty days as may be required for the issuance of a certificate and the execution of the necessary details of an appointment thereto in accordance with said provisions. Such appointment shall in no case continue longer than thirty days.

When temporary appointment must cease.

14. Whenever a temporary appointment shall be made through certification from the eligible registers of the commission in the manner provided in these rules, such temporary appointment shall in no case continue longer than six months and shall expire by limitation at the end of that period.

When temporary appointment may be made permanent.

Promulgated May 29, 1899.

15. All persons serving under temporary appointments at the date of the approval of this section may be permanently appointed, in the discretion of the proper appointing officer, and the special rule approved January 20, 1899, relative to temporary appointments in the Navy Department, is hereby rescinded.¹

RULE IX.

Reinstatement within one year.

A vacancy in any position which has been, or may hereafter be, classified under the civil-service act, may, upon requisition of the proper officer and the certificate of the commission, be filled by the reinstatement, without examination, of any person who, within one year next preceding the date of said requisition, has, through no delinquency or misconduct, been separated from a position included within the classified service at the date of said requisition and in that department or office and that branch of the service in which said vacancy exists: Provided, That for original entrance to the position proposed to be filled by reinstatement there is not required by these rules, in the opinion of the commission, an examination involving essential tests different from or higher than those involved in the examination for original entrance to the position formerly held by the person proposed to be reinstated:

war of the rebellion or in the Spanish-American war and was honorably discharged therefrom, or the widow of any such person, or an army nurse of either of said wars, and any person who has been separated from the service by reason of the discontinuance of the free-delivery service at any post-office, or a reduction of force specifically required by law, may be reinstated without regard to the length of time he or she has been separated from the service:

Amended Jan. 15, 1900.

And provided further, That any person dismissed from the service upon charges of delinquency or misconduct may be reinstated, subject to the other conditions of these rules, without regard to the one-year time limit of this rule, upon the certificate of the proper appointing officer that he has thoroughly investigated the case and that the charges upon which the dismissal was based were not true.¹

Reinstatement where dismissal was made upon charges.

RULE X.

Within that part of the civil service of the United States which has been, or may hereafter be, classified under the civil-service act, transfers shall be governed as follows:

Transfers.

1. A person in any Department or office may be transferred within the same Department or office and the same branch of the service upon any test of fitness, not disapproved by the commission, which may be determined upon by the appointing officer, subject to the limitations of the provisos of section 2 of this rule.

Transfers in same Department, office, or branch of service.

2. A person who has received absolute appointment may be transferred, without examination, from any Department, office, or branch of the service, upon requisition and consent of the proper officers, and the certificate of the commission: Provided, That no transfer shall be made of a person to a position within the same Department or office and the same branch of the service, or to a position in another Department, office, or branch of the service, if from original entrance to such position said person is barred by the age limitations prescribed therefor, or by the provisions regulating apportionment, but the provisions in relation to apportionment shall be waived upon the certificate of the appointing officer that the transfer is required in the interests of good administration: And provided further, That transfers shall not be made without examination, provided by the commission, to a position for original entrance to which, in the judgment of the commission, there is required by these rules an examination involving essential tests different from or higher than those involved in the examination required for original entrance to the position from which transfer is proposed; but a person employed in any grade shall not because of such employment be barred from the open competitive examination provided for original entrance to any other grade.¹

Employees not barred from open competitive examinations.

Transfer from the office of the President.

3. Upon requisition of the proper officer and the certificate of the commission, transfer may be made without examination from the office of the President of the United States, after continuous service therein for the two years next preceding the date of said requisition, to any position classified under the civil-service act, if in said position there is required, in the judgment of the commission, the performance of the same class of work that is required to be performed in the position from which transfer is proposed.

Transfers not to be made, exception.

4. Transfer shall not be made from an excepted position to a position not excepted: Provided, That a person holding a position which is excepted, but which he was holding at the time of its classification, or which he entered or held in accordance with the provisions of these rules at a time when said position was subject to competitive examination, and has since served continuously therein, or a person holding a position which is excepted, but which he entered prior to the President's order of November 2, 1894, and has since served continuously therein, may, subject to the other conditions and provisions of this rule, be transferred to a position not excepted.

No transfer from unclassified position, with exception.

5. Transfer shall not be made from a position not classified under the civil-service act to a classified position: Provided, That a person who, by promotion or transfer from a classified position, has entered an unclassified position in any part of the executive civil service other than a position of mere laborer or workman, or to serve under the authority of the General Government as a civilian in the insular possessions under the control of the United States, and has served continuously therein from the date of said promotion or transfer, may be transferred from said unclassified position to the position from which he was so transferred or to any position to which transfer could be made therefrom.¹

6. Transfer shall not be made from a position outside the District of Columbia to a position within the District of Columbia except upon the certificate of the Commission, subject to the other conditions and provisions of this rule. Transfer from position outside to position within the District of Columbia.

7. Any person who has been transferred from a classified position to another classified position may be retransferred to the position in which he was formerly employed, or to any position to which transfer could be made therefrom, without regard to the limitations of this rule. Transfer from one classified position to another classified position.

8. All transfers herein authorized shall be made only after the issuance by the commission of the certificates therefor, except those which may be specifically exempted from such condition by regulation of the commission. Certificates for transfers.

9. Whenever a person is proposed for transfer from one branch of the service to another branch of the service, and from a part of the service not within the provisions regulating apportionment to a part of the service within said provisions, and the transfer is one which, under the provisions of this rule, may be allowed without examination, such person shall be required, precedent to his transfer, to file a statement under oath setting forth the same facts accompanied by the same certificates or vouchers relating to residence as may be required in an application for examination. Facts to be set forth in application for transfer.

RULE XI.

1. In pursuance of the requirements of section 7 of the civil-service act, competitive tests or examinations shall, as far as practicable and useful, be established to test fitness for promotion in any part of the civil service of the United States which has been, or may hereafter be, classified under the civil-service act. Promotions.

2. Regulations to govern promotions shall be formulated by the commission after consultation with the heads of the several departments, bureaus, or offices. It shall be the duty of the head of each department, bureau, or office, when such regulations have been formulated, to promulgate the same, and any amendments or revocations thereof shall be approved by the commission before going into effect. Commission to formulate details regulating promotions.

Commission to designate boards of promotion.

3. The commission shall, upon the nomination of the head of each department, bureau, or office, designate and select a suitable number of persons, not less than three, in said department, bureau, or office, to be members of a board of promotion. In the departments, bureaus, or offices in Washington, and in all other offices, the members of any board of promotion shall not all be adherents of one political party when persons of other political parties are available and competent to serve upon said board.

Promotions before adoption of regulations.

4. Until the regulations here authorized have been approved for any department, bureau, or office in which promotion regulations approved by the commission are not in force, promotions therein may be made from one class to another class which is in the same grade, and from one grade to another grade, upon any test of fitness not disapproved by the commission, which may be determined upon by the promoting officer: Provided, That no promotion of a person shall be made, except upon examination provided by the commission, from one class to another class, or from one grade to another grade, if for original entrance to said class or grade to which promotion is proposed there is required by these rules an examination involving essential tests different from or higher than those involved in the examination required for original entrance to the class or grade from which promotion is proposed:

Employees not barred from open competitive examinations.

And provided further, That no promotion of a person shall be made, except upon examination provided by the commission, to a position in which, in the judgment of the commission, there is not required the performance of the same class of work or the practice of the same mechanical trade which is required to be performed or practiced in the position from which promotion is proposed; but a person employed in any grade shall not, because of such employment, be barred from the open competitive examination provided for original entrance to any other grade:

Age limitations.

and who was honorably discharged therefrom, who has been reinstated in the service in a grade or position below that from which he was separated to a grade or position no higher than that from which he was separated.¹

RULE XII.

1. In pursuance of the provisions of section 2 of the civil-service act, every nominating or appointing officer in the executive civil service of the United States shall furnish to the commission a list of all the positions and employments under his control and authority, together with the names, designations, compensations, and dates of appointment or employment, of all persons serving in said positions or employments; said list to be arranged as follows: (a) Classified positions not excepted from examination; (b) classified positions excepted from examination; (c) unclassified positions.

List of all positions and employments to be furnished to commission.

2. Every nominating or appointing officer in the executive civil service shall report in detail to the commission, in form and manner to be prescribed by the commission, all changes, as soon as made, and the dates thereof, in the service under his control and authority, setting forth among other things the following: The position to which an appointment or reinstatement is made; the position from which a separation is made, whether the same was caused by dismissal, resignation, or death; and the position from which and the position to which a transfer or promotion is made; the compensation of every position from which or to which a change is made; the name of every person appointed, reinstated, promoted, transferred, or separated from the service; and every failure to accept an appointment and the reasons therefor.

Reports of changes in service to be made to commission.

RULE XIII.

The officers and employees in all branches of the classified service of the United States, for the purposes of these rules, shall be arranged in the following classes unless otherwise provided by law:

Classification of employees.

Class A. All persons receiving an annual salary of less than $720, or a compensation at the rate of less than $720 per annum.

Class B. All persons receiving an annual salary of $720 or more, or a compensation at the rate of $720 or more, but less than $840 per annum.

Class C. All persons receiving an annual salary of $840 or more, or a compensation at the rate of $840 or more, but less than $900 per annum.

Class D. All persons receiving an annual salary of $900 or more, or a compensation at the rate of $900 or more, but less than $1,000 per annum.

Class E. All persons receiving an annual salary of $1,000 or more, or a compensation at the rate of $1,000 or more, but less than $1,200 per annum.

Class 1. All persons receiving an annual salary of $1,200 or more, or a compensation at the rate of $1,200 or more, but less than $1,400 per annum.

Class 2. All persons receiving an annual salary of $1,400 or more, or a compensation at the rate of $1,400 or more, but less than $1,600 per annum.

Class 3. All persons receiving an annual salary of $1,600 or more, or a compensation at the rate of $1,600 or more, but less than $1,800 per annum.

Class 4. All persons receiving an annual salary of $1,800 or more, or a compensation at the rate of $1,800 or more, but less than $2,000 per annum.

Class 5. All persons receiving an annual salary of $2,000 or more, or a compensation at the rate of $2,000 or more, but less than $2,500 per annum.

Class 6. All persons receiving an annual salary of $2,500 or more, or a compensation at the rate of $2,500 or more per annum.

Provided, That this classification shall not include persons appointed to an office by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, nor persons employed as mere laborers or workmen; but all positions whose occupants are designated as laborers or workmen and who were, prior to May 6, 1896, and on June 10, 1896, regularly assigned to work of the same grade as that performed by classified employees shall be included within this classification. Hereafter no person who is appointed as a laborer or workman without examination under the civil service rules shall be assigned to work of the same grade as that performed by classified employees.¹

¹This rule appeared originally as a War Department classification. It was extended to the civil service generally by order of the President dated May 29, 1899.
